LONDON, Nov. 6.—John Maxwell, head of Associated British Pictures and purchaser of the Ostrer Brothers' non-voting shares of Metropolis & Bradford, which controls G. B., definitely at this time has no intention of disturbing the G. B. setup in the United States, it was indicated here today.

He will make no final decision in the matter until the difficulties encountered relative to "A" or voting shares, in the recent discussions with Sidney R. Kent, Twentieth Century-Fox president, are ironed out.

It is pointed out in certain usually well-informed quarters here that Kent and Twentieth Century-Fox, which holds 4,900 "A" shares, against the Ostrers' 5,100 "A" shares, will not be able to prevent the final completion of the deal by which Maxwell would exercise his option to purchase

"We vigorously protest the consummation of any deal between your company and the Ford Motor Co. which will permit your stars to broadcast on Sunday nights."

44 Minutes of Delight

They say it's a lot of hard work. Granted. But it also must be carloads of fun for Walt Disney and his gang to turn out those Mickey Mouses and Silly Symphonies. And while that observation may carry with it elements of speculation, there can be none about the reaction of those who sit comfortably in the projection room to chuckle and to guffaw at the incomparable results of this Hollywood enterprise.

Five displayed themselves yesterday. They were "Donald and Pluto," but Walt should have screen credit to the magnet which provides the chief reason for the riot; "Three Blind Mousketeers," or picnics among the mice a la broad Alexandre Dumas; "Mickey's Elephant," introducing a new and jolly character raising havoc with Pluto; "Mother Pluto" which reveals the famous canine as far more maternal than you might have suspected, and "The Country Cousin," replete with cheese, champagne and the adventures of a country bumpkin mouse amidst the perils of the big city.

All in color and all loaded with genuine wit and charm, we should hate to be driven into a corner and told to pick the best. Therefore, we won't. K.

Consolidated Files Reply in Stock Suit

WILMINGTON, Nov. 6.—Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., has filed an answer to the bill of complaint in Chancery Court on which Norman Johnson of New York, a preferred stockholder, last week obtained an order restraining the corporation from filing an amendment to its certificate of incorporation, pending a hearing on Nov. 13.

The corporation denied that the vote of preferred stockholders in favor of the proposed amendment was obtained "by fraud and deceit," claiming a letter and notice sent to stockholders prior to the meeting in regard to the plan was fair and honest, and claimed that the facts alleged to have been omitted could easily have been ascertained by arithmetical computation.

Consolidated denied that the accumulated dividends of $1,600,000 are wiped out under the proposed plan, but that accumulated dividends on the present preferred stock would be paid and liquidated by the exchange of each share of outstanding preferred stock for one and one-quarter shares of the new preference stock and one-quarter share of the new common stock having all dividends and voting and other rights given to the present preferred stock.

The case will be tried next month.

No Radio-Film Solution Seen In Some Time

this might require weeks, if not months.

Spokesmen for the radio industry and the large networks pointed out among other things that an indifferent radio program featuring a film name or names could be as injurious to the entertainment prestige of a network as it could be to the star and the employing film studio. They stated, as well, that their efforts to cooperate with the film industry in the past had not been recognized on many occasions. In spite of the frank exchange of views, however, no unwillingness to work for a solution of the problems of either industry was evidenced at the meeting, and indications are that a genuine effort to work out an understanding between the complainants will be made.

A score or more of proposals have been submitted as solutions for the radio competition problems, industry figures stated, but few of them are regarded as of any value. No complete banning of film stars from the ether is either possible or desired, it was stated, and what regulatory measures are worth advancing is not known at this stage. Thursday's discussion considered no solutions whatever, nor were any figures purporting to show the effects on theatre business of film star radio competition submitted, it was learned.

Imposing Film List On 'Hotel' Program

Another of those super-colossal Hollywood productions is ready for presentation, but this time it's a radio program. The "Hollywood Hotel" broadcast of Friday, Nov. 13, will boast 18 film celebrities—the greatest array of film talent ever assembled for any single program to date.

Heading the cast are Eleanor Powell, Dick Powell, Frances Langford and Ann Jamison in a scene from "Born to Dance." Next come William Powell, Jeanette MacDonald, Luise Rainer, Allen Jones, Clark Gable, Jean Harlow, Myrna Loy, Robert Taylor, Charles King, Bessie Love and Cliff Edwards, each of whom will contribute a specialty or a brief talk.

The broadcast will emanate from the stage of the Chinese Theatre, Hollywood immediately before "Born to Dance" is premiered on the screen.

Duke Ellington begins an indefinite engagement in Dallas on Nov. 10.

NBC Gives Television Show; Novel Now, But Looms Large

By RED KANN

from the stages of NBC in the lower regions of the RCA Bldg.

What other television systems may have, time and demonstration will reveal. The NBC-RCA system, as far as it has gone, however, is very good on sound and very shy on pictorial value. The difficulty on the latter score is, of course, the limitation on the size of the images obtainable thus far.

Whether NBC was conscious of this or not is not among the available facts, but the nature of much of the material used in yesterday's demonstration threw this observation into glaring relief. Several clips snipped from a regular edition of Pathe News were essentially pictorial in value. There were crowds hailing the President at Hyde Park and scenes of Italy's activities in the manufacture of even more terrifying armored tanks spreading liquid fire. On a regulation motion picture screen all of the essential detail in the mass movements of each subject would have taken on drama. In the television program, the detail was reduced to minutæ and confusion.

NBC Broadcast Superior

However, in the directly televised portions of the show—those elements which came from the NBC stages—the results were pictorially better, but still susceptible of vast improvement. There were closeups of David Sarnoff, Betty Goodwin of the NBC press department who introduced the various speakers and talent: The Inkspots, colored performers; Hildegarde, radio singer; Bob Benchley in a clip from Pathe Topics titled "The Causes of the Depression" in which he referred to a chart undecipherable to the eye at a distance of approximately 20 feet and a special release, "Pictures Through the Air" which sought to trace the origins and the methods by which programs are televised.

It struck this reporter that in the latter instance, NBC entered upon a serious mistake. The screen limitations were so confining that the shots of the machinery used to televise meant nothing. It also occurs that far more effective than any effort to take the press audience behind the scenes in terms of televised motion pictures would have been to show the audience the machinery itself to see and to feel and to ask questions about. This, however, was not done.

Larger Screens Clearer

For its show, described as "the first showing of a complete program built for entertainment value as a demonstration of transmission," NBC rigged up a battery of 16 television receiving sets, close in resemblance to the ordinary, large-sized radio receiving set aside from the screen on which the images were reproduced.

Pointing toward future possibilities, however, were two differently sized images. One showed pictures 5¼ by 7½ inches and the second, demonstrated for the first time, images 7½ by 10 inches. The larger was a definite advance in photographic definition over the former, leading to an assumption which may or may not be borne out finally that the bigger the screen the better the pictorial quality achieved.

Apparently, the job is not finished. Sarnoff, president of RCA which has been conducting field tests since Sept. 1, in his television speech cited some of the difficulties between now and what may finally come. There is a problem existing in transmission and reception which must be bridged. NBC's experiments so far have satisfactorily covered a 25-to-30 mile radius and this occasionally has been increased to 40 miles. This would indicate that ground must yet be covered in very effective seven-league boots before any contemplation of national television is possible. There is a problem in programs, some of those at the demonstration believing television broadcasting will be interlocked, if not largely dependent, in its early stages anyway on motion pictures. The third is the establishment of some sort of economic base from which future developments in television can be conducted. Sarnoff did not explain, but obviously he must have referred to sales to the public on a scope sufficiently extensive to bring back to NBC and RCA the funds both organizations have poured into television experimentation.

Film Competition Eventually

It is also obvious that NBC must regard the current status of the development in sufficiently advanced stage to brave its exhibition to the press which turned out to the tune of several hundreds. Granting this to be true, next suggesting itself is where the film industry fits in.

It is this opinion that, insofar as NBC is concerned at least, television offers no concern for motion pictures as it now stands and as put on yesterday. But it is also very much of the moment to point out that the development must not be discontinued and that television one of these days or weeks, month or years will be competition of major proportions.

By JACK BANNER

representatives. The pictures were received on screens of two sizes: a nine-inch screen carrying an image 5¼ by 7¼ inches; and a 12-inch screen with a 7½ by 10-inch image.

Sixteen bench-made television sets carried the program to the audience simultaneously. The images were broadcast from the transmitter on top of the Empire State Bldg. and received on the 62nd floor of the RCA Building. The actual television studio is located on the third floor of the latter building.

The broadcast represented the first showing of a complete program built for entertainment value as well as a demonstration of transmission. It also included the first showing of the newly developed 12-inch receiving tube, which reproduced the pictures on the 7½ by 10-inch screen, the largest yet developed for practical commercial television purposes under this system. The screen utilizes a 343 lineage and broadcasts 60 images per second.

Betty Goodwin, NBC fashion editor, was the first to be presented in the televisor and introduced Lenox R. Lohr and David Sarnoff, NBC and RCA presidents respectively, who reported briefly on past researches, and explained the practical problems presented in staging performances for the air.

Lohr Address Detailed

In his introductory talk over the televisor, Lohr covered the three phases of television which he said would have to be further developed before television broadcasting could become practicable. Number one was the necessity to develop standard television equipment and sets; two, the learning of an entire new technique in continuity writing, programming, make-up, staging, and a multitude of other details; three, the economic aspects.

Sarnoff, in his televised talk, explained that television broadcasts, experimentally, had been successfuly received as far as 45 miles from the transmitter atop the Empire State Building, and that the transmission distance was being enlarged rapidly.

He hinted that the possibilities for commercial television broadcasts were still remote. The major difficulty at present, he stated, was the lack of facilities and equipment necessary to cover the nation.

The demonstration was presented and supervised by Ralph R. Beal, RCA research supervisor; O. B. Hanson, NBC chief engineer, and Charles W. Horn, NBC director of research and development.

Warner Radio Plant To Be Ready Nov. 30

Hollywood, Nov. 6.—Warners' expansion into the radio field has gained added momentum with the acquisition of a new 5-C, RCA high fidelity transmitter with a 450-foot vertical radiator tower, the whole plant to be ready for the air Nov. 30. The transmitter is nearing completion on a 10-acre site in the Baldwin Hills. It is powered for 5,000 kilowatts for day operation and 1,000 kilowatts for night use.

A projection room and screen will be installed for product advertising to precede programs. A $50,000 Vitaphone recording organ has been ordered.

The plant includes a television broadcasting transmitter.

To Open Chicago Studio

Chicago, Nov. 6.—The new $250,000 CBS studios in the Wrigley Bldg. will open Saturday with a "Football Revue" starring Ed Thorgersen, Fox Movietone News sports editor, and Kay Kyser's orchestra.

The 350-seat WBBM-CBS theatre-studio is in the North Wrigley Bldg. and is ultra modern. It was designed by William Lescaze, designer of the New York and Hollywood studios for CBS. Built with no two walls parallel, the auditorium and stage are novel in design and coloring.

Tri-States Session Held at Des Moines

Des Moines, Nov. 5.—G. Ralph Branton, business manager of Tri-States Theatre Corp., presided at a district meeting at the Kirkwood hotel with managers from Des Moines, Newton and Ottumwa in attendance. Jake Cohen, a partner of Tri-States in the Capitol and Rialto, and Strand in Ottumwa, also attended.

The meeting ended with a showing of "The Charge of the Light Brigade."

Protest Goes To Schenck on Olympic Films

of the gathering yesterday virtually was lost in the confusion before the entirely informal session had proceeded far. Certain of the distributors of foreign product here contended an inability to ascertain exactly the place of origin of a film, and especially declared themselves unable to discover whether or not German capital was involved in any of the companies from whom they might obtain films in countries other than Germany.

The personal equation became the backbone of the warm discussion, a resolution was presented and howled out of existence, and finally resulted in another, which was signed by virtually all those present.

Resolution Specific

The resolution read: "We the undersigned producers, distributors and exhibitors . . . agree for ourselves and with each other that we will not exhibit or release any film unless the same bears upon its face a title descriptive of the country of production of the film and, where the information is available, the producer thereof."

The signers included Ben Radin, Cameo; A. T. Kaplan, Franco-American, Cinema de Paris and Cinema of Detroit; Archibald E. Levine, Filmarte; W. Van Beverin, American-Tobis; a representative of the 55th St. Playhouse; David Brill, Globe Film; Kurt Laemmle; Arche Mayers, Du-World.

Max A. and William Goldberg of European Film Corp., among the most vociferous of the group, declined to sign the resolution, one declaring, "Get the 'big fellows' in here to sign, and I will."

Mayers' vigorous declaration that, "I'll burn three German films in my office before any committee you want to name," was greeted with an equally vigorous suggestion that he refrain from "heroics."

Wire to Schenck Read

The reference to the "big fellows" took specific form in the citing of M-G-M and the Olympic shorts. Mention was made of a recent anti-nazi meeting in Hollywood, sponsored by Eddie Cantor, at which Louis B. Mayer of M-G-M was present. Later came word of the Schenck telegram.

The telegram to Schenck read:

"We understand the Pete Smith shorts on the Olympic Games was produced by the Nazi German Government and sold to your organization for exclusive distribution in this country. As we boycott all German goods and services sold in this country we should be interested in a statement by you in this regard before we take definite action against your organization and theatres booking this short throughout the country."

The two shorts in question are "Olympic Ski Champions" and "Sports on Ice," which M-G-M has listed as "Official Olympic Pictures," and which were prepared by Pete Smith. The rights to them were sold to M-G-M by American-Tobis.

Henry Hull Scores Heavily In Play of Variable Merit

in poetry but honestly and on merit gained—and because she has been successful in doing this, much of her drama is sustaining and interesting.

Yet the impression lingers that elements are lacking. It occurs that in the necessity for compressing highlights of an unhappy existence into the limitations of six scenes and three acts, those highlights, perhaps, might have been more carefully sifted. Not completely and graphically shown are the sufferings of the man before he reaches his peace. Poe went through much more in his short span of years than "Plumes in the Dust" includes. Those years, somewhere lurking in them, suggest greater elements of drama.

However, this Treadwell play has merit. It is heavy and it is serious, but it is well performed with Hull far in the vanguard of the remainder of the cast which includes Mary Morris, Ruth Yorke, and Amelia Romano. It touches one peak in the second act when Hull denounces his critics. It reaches another in the third when he discovers the first love to which he had clung through his life has been poured out on a shallow, smug woman totally shorn of the understanding without which it appears useless for him to continue and it reduces itself to a dribble in the final death scene.

Any depiction of any version of the life of Poe, of course, must finish in tragedy. And so it would be in pictures. But opportunity for a magnificent film virtually sings around that life, whether Miss Treadwell's conception or some other, if some producer in Hollywood were willing to hazard the chance.

about another pooling deal between Loew's and Warners, giving the Penn first call on product and the Stanley the presentation privilege, the same plan that was in effect a year ago. There are prospects that the Harris Alvin will go back to an occasional stage-show policy.

assign the men to theatres ordered to be checked. The Interstate office in New York at no time, Schwerin stated, sees the figures of any theatre. The district men, after receiving reports from checkers, wire them to home office distributors directly every night. The telegrams are later followed by written reports.

Officers of Interstate will be elected next week when permanent and larger quarters will be established in the Paramount Bldg. The plan has been a year and a half in the making, Schwerin added. Four field men whose sole duty will be to visit exchanges are to be named next week.

Beginning Nov. 24, the postoffices will begin the distribution of forms to be filled out by employes, each of whom will later be given an identification number and a registration card. These forms will show personal data regarding the employe and the name and address of his present employer.

The forms to be distributed this month are designed merely to secure an identification of every employer and employe covered by the act. Forms for the reporting of the payroll taxes imposed under the law will be made available after the beginning of the year.

Maxwell Not To Alter G.B. Setup in U.S.

the Ostrers' 5,100 shares of "A" stock in Metropolis & Bradford Trust.

The Ostrer sale to Maxwell, without the transfer of shares, would leave the latter as owner, with the Ostrers virtually his nominees in the company, and obviously under the necessity of acting under Maxwell's instructions.

It is said Twentieth Century-Fox may have an action against Isidore Ostrer, who concluded arrangements with the Schencks in the United States some time ago.

Kent is expected to return here shortly, at which time he may discuss such possible action, and also talk with Maxwell again, probably on reciprocity. However, it is understood Maxwell will formulate no definite plans until the deal has been completed.

Heavy repercussions are anticipated here when G. B. financial figures reveal the relation of film costs to receipts and the allegedly unsound basis of the calculation of profits.

"U" First Over Line on Exhibitors' Concessions

Expect Metro To Withdraw Olympic Films

One of Two Subjects Is Pulled at Capitol

It is anticipated that M-G-M will withdraw from national release the two Pete Smith Olympic Games short subjects, "Olympic Ski Champions" and "Sports on Ice," following a telegram of protest from the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League, of which Samuel Untermyer is listed as president.

Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's and M-G-M, and J. Robert Rubin, M-G-M vice-president, withdrew one of the two, "Olympic Ski Champions," from the Capitol on Broadway on Saturday. The telegram of protest was addressed to Schenck by the executive committee of the league, and sent late Friday night.

Although neither Schenck nor Rubin could be reached on Saturday for information relative to a definite decision on the national withdrawal of the two subjects, which had been filmed at the winter Olympic Games in Germany, such action was indicated as an obvious followup of the specific action concerning the Capitol.

"Olympic Ski Champions" carries a national release date of Oct. 3, and "Sports on Ice" of Oct. 10. The league committee dispatched the telegram of protest to Schenck late Friday following a stormy meeting of distributors

All Companies Use New Reel Here But "U"

With the exception of Universal, all local major distributors have adopted the 2,000-foot reel, a survey of exchanges on Saturday revealed. Universal is holding up shipments on the enlarged spool until new 2,000-foot automatic splicers are installed at the exchange. The new machines have been ordered and are due in a week or so.

In addition to the major companies, Republic and G.B. have changed over to 2,000-foot reels.

Twentieth Century-Fox started using the enlarged reel with the release of "Ramona" on Sept. 25; Warners adopted the practice with the first new season release, "Bengal Tiger," on Sept. 5.

While M-G-M's first general release is "Our Relations," which has not been shown in the local area, the exchange started the new plan with "Kelly, the Second" and succeeding release. The first prints of "Kelly, the Second" were shipped to Greater

See Quick Action

Universal's announcement on Saturday of its concessions to exhibitors on trade practice revisions proposed under the M.P.T.O.A. 10-point program, is expected to spur other distributors to final action on the program.

A real likelihood of similar declarations this week from four additional companies now exists, it was learned Saturday. The four whose decisions are believed to be ready are Twentieth Century-Fox, RKO, Paramount and Columbia. The decisions of M-G-M and United Artists may be delayed because of current and recent absences from the city of company executives. Warners has indicated it would not participate in the exhibitor program.

Cochrane Grants Every Request Excepting Uniform Contract

Universal was first over the line in declaring the specific trade practice concessions it is prepared to grant exhibitors when R. H. Cochrane, president, advised Ed Kuykendall, M. P. T. O. A. president, by letter on Saturday that Universal would concede every major request set forth in the exhibitors' 10-point program with the exception of the adoption of a standard short form of contract.

The specific assurances set forth by the distributor include the maintenance of a 10 per cent cancellation privilege under liberal circumstances when the entire program has been contracted for and the exhibitor is in good standing thereunder; cooperation for the establishment of properly organized local conciliation boards to hear and attempt to adjudicate exhibitor complaints; continuation of the company's policy of not endeavoring to collect a score charge, and of its policy of not attempting to force shorts with features.

On other points covered in the exhibitor program Cochrane advises Kuykendall that Universal has not granted and will not knowingly grant unreasonable clearance to any exhibitor and asserts that the company sees "certain advantages" in the establishment of a uniform maximum clearance if legal means of so doing can be found. He declares that the company will cooperate in developing any feasible plan for dealing with preferred playing time.

The letter states that the company

M-G-M Re-Issuing Five Old Features

M-G-M is re-issuing five features. The group is being sold aside from the 1936-37 program to all exhibitors with available playing time. Exhibitors can take as many as they desire.

The five are: "Grand Hotel," "Rasputin and the Empress," "Trader Horn," "Dancing Lady" and "Billy, the Kid."

New advertising material is being made up for the re-releases to conform with Hays office requirements.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 8.—Charles "Chic" Sale died here Saturday afternoon of lobar pneumonia.

Nationally known for his old man characterizations, he had appeared latterly in a number of shorts. "The Perfect Tribute," made by M-G-M, in which Sale portrayed Abraham Lincoln, was considered by many to have been his best.

"Pigskin" Is Rushed Into Chicago Houses

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—In an effort to get "Pigskin Parade" shown before the football season has ended Twentieth Century-Fox executives here have arranged to have the picture open in the B. & K. "A" week theatres, the Marbro, Uptown and Tivoli, Nov. 20. The following week the picture will

8 Film Issues Hit New High on Board

Eight film issues hit new highs on the big board Saturday, all but Loew's common closing at the peak for the day. In addition to Loew's, the stocks reaching new top marks were Paramount common, first and second preferred; Warners common and preferred; and Twentieth Century-Fox common and preferred. Of these issues, Loew's had the greatest turnover with 4,800 shares changing hands. Paramount common was next with a total of 3,800. Warners common was third with 2,700, and Twentieth Century-Fox common, fourth, with 2,500.

Loew's common jumped to 63½ and closed at 63 for a gain of ¼ of a point;

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

YOUR salutes this morning should be unleashed for Bob Cochrane. Universal, as you may read elsewhere in this issue, is the first of the major companies across the line in granting practically all of the trade practice concessions sought so diligently by the M. P. T. O. A. While Allied will charge a set-up and mention the Hays organization and Dave Palfreyman, the fact indisputable is that all exhibitors, regardless of association beliefs and affiliations, share in the gain.

Other majors will not be far behind, as the news columns will be telling you quickly now. Yet the distinction of being the first cannot be taken away from Universal and the very fact of its established priority will, or should, result in a definite increase in the goodwill with which this veteran company is now regarded in the different stratas of exhibition ranks. It is our suggestion that, if you have read rapidly, you submit to further careful analysis the essentials of Cochrane's letter of policy to Ed Kuykendall. It is fraught with much of interest and importance. On both points there will be something further to remark at another time. . . .

It appeared very likely over the weekend that Metro will withdraw from the domestic market Pete Smith's brace of shorts, "Olympic Ski Champions" and "Sports on Ice." The footage is of official Nazi odor and was made last winter in the preliminaries of the Olympic games in Berlin, the same games where Jesse Owens, the black streak, constantly embarrassed Der Fuehrer and his straight Aryan theory and set the world laughing anew over the insanities of the present Germanic state. . . .

Metro, being an international corporation, obviously is faced with a situation earmarked with delicacies—on a straight business approach. The withdrawal of the two films which are the center of a current and steaming maelstrom no doubt will raise a fuss and a howl and a couple of yelps from Berlin and the German Ambassador in Washington shortly thereafter may be expected to rise in diplomatic indignation and protest to the State Department. But there are other angles. There is the angle and the slant of a film company whose management is Jewish emphasizing the touted glories of sportsmanship of a government, if not of a people, which rules by terror, religious intolerance and the suppression of free thinking. . . .

If Metro goes through with its indicated course, it may expect reprisals launched on its business in Berlin. If it does not go through, it faces a boycott of its films and the Loew theatres in this country and a welter of publicity which would be highly undesirable. Thus, there are two business stakes at issue: One, a possible further curtailment of activities in Germany; two: criticism, not alone from Jews, but from all who liken themselves and their views as liberal, in this country, the larger market. Regardless of how or through what circumstance the decision was made in the first instance to handle the films under fire, it bespeaks courageously and well for Nicholas M. Schenck that he is now prepared to act vigorously and with the type of clean-cut action around which much of his very considerable reputation has grown. . . .

The mystery English banking interests which have purchased a block of 35,000 shares of Loew's, Inc., common held by the estate of Irving Thalberg may be the villains of a more dramatic story than has thus far revealed itself. The war whoops let out in London when control of G. B. appeared ready for transfer to these shores had nothing to say about any steps in a reversal of the identical idea. In other words, America cannot further poach on England and her film industry, but British financial interests are to be free to penetrate into this industry's major company. In actuality, this is what has happened. It would be childish to voice fear that the purchase of this one block in any minute manner has any bearing on control of Loew's, which rests in hands that will not let go. It is interesting, on the other hand, to note that the very company, which with Twentieth Century-Fox, sought domination in England's largest now wakes up to find sizeably in its ranks a group of the same English who would not allow the original deal to go through. . . .

Two Exhibitors Now Kansas Legislators

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 8.—Kansas will have two members of the house of representatives from the industry when the legislature meets early next year.

E. A. Briles, exhibitor at Stafford, was reelected to the House, and J. C. Phillips, exhibitor at Colby, was elected a member. Phillips is a Democrat, Briles a Republican.

It is too early yet to predict what the industry can expect in Missouri and Kansas when the two legislatures meet early in the year. But the sweeping endorsement of the New Deal in Missouri and the strong Democratic trend in Kansas is expected to result in the introduction in both states of more "liberal" bills affecting films.

"She-Devil" to Fortune

Fortune Agency, of which Al Friedlander is head, has taken over "She-Devil Island" from First Division Exchanges. The company will handle distribution and sales promotion for the film in foreign and domestic territories.

O'Malley Is Reelected

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 8.—Thomas J. O'Malley, member of the House Patents Committee, was reelected to Congress from the fifth Wisconsin district. He had declared that he would propose a new copyright bill in the House if he were reelected.

Legion Approves All Of 11 New Pictures

All of the 11 new pictures reviewed and classified in the list for the current week of the National Legion of Decency were approved either for general or adult patronage, seven in the first and four in the second group. The new films and their classification follow.

Class A-2, Unobjectionable for Adults—"Come and Get It," "Glueckspilze," "Les Miserables," "The Smartest Girl in Town."

Twentieth-Fox Sets Sussman Sales Week

Twentieth Century-Fox exchanges in the east have set aside the week of Nov. 22-28 as Bill Sussman Week. Sussman is eastern division manager.

John D. Clark, Sussman and a number of home office sales executives will hold a special sales meeting at the New York exchange today on the S. R. Kent sales drive. It will be the last meeting in connection with the drive, which ends late this month.

Simons Named Aide Of Rodgers at MGM

M. L. Simons, who has been with M-G-M for the past 10 years, the last three as editor of the Distributor, the company's house organ, has been promoted to assist William F. Rodgers, general sales manager. Simons started with the company in 1927 as a checker in Indianapolis, later becoming booker. He assumes the post as assistant to Rodgers today.

Marks New Stock Ready

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—New securities provided for in the reorganization plan for Marks Brothers Theatres, Inc., are ready for distribution. The plan was approved by U. S. District Court under Section 77-B of the Federal bankruptcy act and affects three houses, the Marbro and Granada, operated by B. & K., and the Broadway Strand, operated by Essaness on a lease from B. & K.

The reorganization plan was worked out by the first mortgage bond protective committee.

"Rainbow" Releases Set

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 8.—Sol Lesser will release "Rainbow on the River" day and date in 40 key cities during Christmas Week. Lesser will fly to New York the latter part of November to discuss with Ned E. Depinet allotments in a $200,000 advertising budget. Ten advance exploitation men will be named.

Blackstone Agency is handling the RKO publicity for the New York opening. Songs from the picture will be heard on 18 coast-to-coast broadcasts.

regards overbuying as a matter "which can be cured not by distributors but by exhibitors," adding that the company never knows whether or not a contracting exhibitor is overbuying. In connection with this subject Cochrane declares that Universal will not adopt any restriction on the double featuring of its product "as a national policy." The M.P.T.O.A. program, however, does not petition a national distributor ban on double featuring. While not in favor of the practice, the organization favors its elimination only by agreement of a majority of exhibitors in individual local situations.

Cut-throat competition is characterized by Cochrane as a matter for exhibitor, rather than distributor, handling. On the subject of non-theatrical competition, the letter states that Universal "never licenses a picture to such an account where there is any real possibility of unfair competition with one of its customers."

Objects to Short Contract

Cochrane sets forth two reasons for Universal's refusal to adopt a uniform short form of contract, one of which is the company's belief that court decisions prohibit it, and the other is the Universal chief's discouraging experience with earlier industry attempts to draw a new contract form. Universal's specific objection to the short form of exhibition contract submitted to distributors by the M.P.T.O.A. is contained in Cochrane's statement that "we are not in favor of deluding an exhibitor into the belief that he is getting a short and simple contract by handing him for his signature a short contract which incorporates by reference a contract which is much longer than the one which he is now signing." However, Universal declares itself in favor of doing everything that is possible "to simplify and shorten" its exhibition contract.

Cancellation Right Broadened

Universal's liberalized cancellation privilege will include a waiver of the provision limiting the cancellation right only to pictures renting for less than $250, and a modification of the provision requiring notice of cancellation within 14 days of release date. The suggestion is made that a 10-day notification period be substituted and that provisions be agreed upon to limit the number of pictures which may be cancelled in the early part of the contract. The letter to Kuykendall adds that while Universal cannot increase the cancellation privilege to more than 10 per cent as a general policy, selective contracts are available under which any exhibitor who cannot "reasonably be asked to play more than 90 per cent of our product" may negotiate for a smaller number.

In declaring in favor of the establishment of local conciliation boards "provided that satisfactory machinery shall be set up," Universal makes the suggestion that matters which may be brought before the boards be limited for stated practical reasons. Through the boards, the M.P.T.O.A. hopes to resolve such other subjects in its program as complaints against unreasonable clearance, overbuying, cut-throat competition, non-theatrical competition, designation of preferred playing time and the forcing of shorts with features.

Cochrane's letter to Kuykendall is prefaced by the assertion that "James R. Grainger, Universal general sales manager, and I have carefully considered the proposals put forth by the board of directors and executive committee of the M.P.T.O.A. as outlined in your general bulletin and are now prepared to state to you Universal's reaction to these proposals with the intention of giving you our utmost cooperation."

New Orleans Houses Talking Price Jump

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 8.—Price rises are being discussed by neighborhood managers and the move may extend to downtown houses.

Sentiment in favor of a jump has been strengthened by the vote in favor of a two per cent city sales tax, which, in addition to the state tax already in effect, makes the total four per cent.

go into the Garrick for a Loop showing.

By this arrangement the picture gets out into the neighborhood theatres while football is still fresh in the minds of the public. Booking the film into the Loop for a first run would delay the neighborhood showing until January. This booking benefits both B. & K. and the independents. It also puts the picture in the first-week houses ahead of "The Big Game," which opened at the Palace two weeks ago for the first Loop showing.

Reliable Closes Deal

Reliable Pictures Corp. has closed a deal whereby Ferdinand V. Luporini will distribute 30 features of Reliable throughout the world with the exception of the United States. The deal was closed by Rudolph Eisenberg, attorney and eastern representative for Reliable, of which Bernard B. Ray is president and Harry Webb, general manager. Twelve dramas and 18 westerns are included in the 30.

Honor Jacocks, Phaneuf

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 8.—The Connecticut M. P. T. O. will honor the two exhibitor members of the state legislature, Abel Jacocks and Henry Phaneuf, at a luncheon at the Hofbrau on Tuesday. Jacocks operates the Capitol, East Haven, and Phaneuf, the Jodoin, Baltic. Irving C. Jacocks, president, and Edward Levy, executive secretary, are in charge.

SELZNICK INTERNATIONAL

MARLENE DIETRICH
CHARLES BOYER

in The GARDEN

with BASIL RATHBONE • TILLY LOSCH • C. AUBREY

From the book by Robert Hichens

IN TECH

"Selznick International's 'Garden of Allah' in Technicolor, with Marlene Dietrich and Charles Boyer, was enthusiastically received at a week-end preview. It is regarded as the finest color effort thus far. Producers of previous films in color, due to preoccupation with the new medium, have neglected story, performance and sound. Here no division is neglected and the color approaches perfection."

—N. Y. Times, Hollywood Notes

"Selznick's 'Allah' production of beauty, artistry, charm. Artistically the most beautiful and atmospherically compelling picture ever made. Its use of color to enhance mood and incident goes considerably beyond anything hitherto attempted . . . will win wide and hearty praise. Strong portrayals from Marlene Dietrich and Charles Boyer. Selznick International gains the record for the furthest advance in application of the varied hues . . . splendidly chosen for her beauty in the medium is Marlene Dietrich, who becomes a pace maker for sheer radiance of presence, and who has never appeared to such advantage in any picture. An acting triumph is won by Charles Boyer. A great accomplishment for Richard Boleslawski, as director."

New York theatres about three weeks ago.

"The Last of the Mohicans" inaugurated the large spool for U. A. Paramount began with "The Big Broadcast of 1937"; Columbia, with "Adventure in Manhattan"; RKO, "Big Game"; Republic, "Hearts in Bondage," and G. B., "East Meets West."

Practically all theatre owners in the Greater New York territory have been doubling up on the single reels for some time. With few exceptions, every theatre is equipped with an enlarged magazine, with projectionists splicing the single reels as features arrived for screening.

Exhibitors are enthused over the newly adopted policy, for not only does it save time and work in the booths, but also reduces the possibility of single reels going astray in delivery.

A technical staff associated with the board will be headed by Ben Golden and Harry Lurie, Golden acting as liaison officer and Lurie as technical adviser.

A preliminary conference will be held at 1 P.M. today in the Mayor's office.

The purpose of the Friday meeting was to obtain cooperation in an effort to boycott German-made or German-financed films.

Networks Tussle for New Outlets; 2 CBS Go to NBC

The quiet tussle for station acquisitions continues merrily on with NBC acquiring WOWO and WGL, Fort Wayne, Ind., both of which have been CBS links for the past five years or more. WOWO will join the basic Blue network on May 1, 1937, while WGL becomes an optional member of either the Blue or Red one day this week.

Both stations are owned and operated by Westinghouse. WOWO, a 10,000 watter, covers Northern Indiana, Northwestern Ohio and Southern Michigan. WGL, a 100 watter, services Fort Wayne direct.

The addition of the two stations brings the total NBC network stations to 103. The CBS network, formerly numbering 105, thereby is reduced to the NBC total.

The reason advanced locally for the station defections to NBC is that both stations, operating profitably with locally sponsored programs, objected to granting too much network time to CBS forcing the cancellation of local programs and thus automatically slicing the station profits. NBC is understood to have granted concessions to WOWO and WGL in this direction.

Westinghouse is now building new offices and studios for its stations.

Coca Cola Gets Singin' Sam

Coca Cola has signed Singin' Sam for 26 weeks of recordings. He will be heard as "Singin' Sam, the Coca Cola Man" in an electrically transcribed program which reports say will be spotted over 300 stations. Meanwhile, Coca Cola is still waiting in line for CBS or NBC to clear time for the new "Song Shop" series, already signed for network presentation. Coca Cola wants 45 minutes and the only available NBC time for a period of that duration is on Mondays, which the sponsor doesn't want. CBS has no open 45 minute spots, so it seems that Coca Cola will have to mark time until the first of the year, when renewal time comes 'round.

Ford Symphony to Stay

Statement by M-G-M in reply to a protest wire from P. J. Wood of the Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio over Sunday night air shows of M-G-M stars under Ford sponsorship indicates that it would be the two 30-minute Fred Waring shows which the motor manufacturer would replace provided the discussed deal with Metro is consummated. The original report credited the possible replacement of the Ford symphony hour which is nationally broadcast over CBS on Sunday evenings from 9 to 10 P. M., E.S.T.

All Chains to Air Auto Men

NBC, CBS and Mutual will present practically all of the leading automobile manufacturers during the week of the National Auto show in New York, starting Wednesday. Among those who will be heard are H. G. Moock, vice-president, Plymouth Corp.; Richard Grant, vice-president, General Motors; A. J. Chanter, president, Pierce-Arrow; Harvey Firestone, Firestone Tire and Rubber Co.; Robert P. Page, president, Auto-Car Co.; K. T. Keller, president, Chrysler Corp.; Alfred P. Sloan, president, General Motors; M. L. Pulcher, president, Federal Motor Truck Co.; A. E. Barit, president, Hudson Motor Co.; C. L. McCuen, president, Olds Motor Works; D. S. Eddins, president, Plymouth Corp.; H. J. Klinger, president, Pontiac Co., H. S. Vance, chairman of board, Studebaker, and D. R. Wilson, president, Willys-Overland Corp. The speakers will be presented daily over all networks during the week of the show.

They Go Elsewhere

Providence, Nov. 8.—Radio moguls here seem to feel that dialers have no use for local talent and prefer canned music and plugs to giving aspiring youngsters any air time. Talent, therefore, is forced to hit for New York or Boston where some of them such as Tony Russell, Mary Phillips and Mary Dodd made the grade. With the exception of "kiddie revues" commercials here use recordings and professional talent is out in the cold. Even gratuitous sustainings are hard to get with so many non-commercials being piped in direct from network sources.

Woollcott on Films

Alexander Woollcott, off the air since he airily told his sponsor off a year ago is a last minute guest on tonight's "Magazine of the Air" program over the CBS network from 11 to 11:30 P. M., E. S. T. Woollcott, who replaces the De Marcos on the program, will talk about the film versions of the Shakespearean epics.

Using "Gold Diggers" Chorus

Hollywood, Nov. 8.—Carolyn Newell, captain of the 12-girl chorus from "The Gold Diggers of 1937," will appear on the Lux program Nov. 12 before starting a national tour. Melvin Purvis will be interviewed by Cecil B. De Mille.

Some Television Reactions

More about the RCA-NBC television broadcast of the other day. Motion Picture Daily polled many of the 250 reporters on various aspects of the experiment, with the following results:

A majority felt that television still is five years away from becoming commercially practicable, aside from the economic aspects.

A majority complained of eye strain, due to the smallness of the screen, and the deep green shade of the film. A great many who witnessed the NBC-RCA broadcast had attended the Philco television broadcast in Philadelphia less than a year ago and were of the opinion that Philco's black-and-white effect was much easier on the eyes.

Other reactions and facts gleaned during the course of the show:

RCA has abandoned last year's make-up of chalk white face with black eyebrows and lips and is now using a panchromatic make-up in shades of orange, red and brown.

Leonx R. Lohr, NBC president, told of numerous sponsor offers already received by NBC for television programs. All offers have been tabled and in cases where cash binders were sent by sponsors, the money returned.

Utall, Morgan, Et Al

Short Shots: Fred Utall, straight man on the Ken Murray show, sick abed with a bad case of flu and tonsilitis. . . . Ben Grauer, NBC announcer, spent the winnings of a considerable bet on the election by tossing a party for the entire NBC announcing staff. . . . Clay Morgan, erstwhile publicity director for the French Line, now with NBC, has as yet received no title. NBC answers all queries with a statement that "Mr. Morgan is connected with the president's office." . . . Connie Gates now being film tested by Warners and M-G-M. . . . Theodore Dreiser and Gretta Palmer signed to guest on the "Magazine of the Air" program of Nov. 18. . . . Transamerican Broadcasting and Television Corp., John L. Clark, president, opening a Hollywood office, with William V. Ray in charge. . . . Rosa Tentoni will guest soloist with the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra Nov. 15. . . . Adele Starr, WBBM songster, signed to a long-term contract by that studio. . . . Betty Ito, heard on the NBC "Jack Armstrong" serial, is the only Japanese artist on the networks. . . . Dave Rubinoff will be Nick Kenny's guest star on WMCA's Inter-City program tomorrow.

M-G-M to Withdraw Olympic Game Films

M-G-M will withdraw completely from the domestic market the two Pete Smith short subjects based on the winter Olympic Games, "Olympic Ski Champions" and "Sports on Ice," MOTION PICTURE DAILY learned definitely yesterday.

The action followed withdrawal of one of the two shorts from the Capitol, and was taken on the receipt of a telegram of protest on the national release of the shorts from the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League, which was addressed to Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's and M-G-M.

Mayor Issues Ultimatum in Union Battle

Threatens to Close All Theatres Involved

Mayor F. H. LaGuardia yesterday emphatically declared that if a satisfactory solution of the projectionist union problem in New York cannot be found he will close all theatres involved.

"Settle your existing difficulties and clean up the situation or the theatres concerned will have to be closed," he told theatre representatives at the first meeting of the fact finding committee he appointed Saturday to delve into the situation following the recent theatre bombings. "That's all there is to it if the situation gets beyond me," he said.

The city is closely concerned, the Mayor indicated, since the safety of its citizens is involved. He characterized the multiple union situation here as an evil, and asked his committee to study ways of ending it.

The Mayor instructed the survey board to refer all information relative to the bombings to the district attorney. All recalcitrant witnesses, he

Canada Music Rates Below Recent Pact

TORONTO, Nov. 9.—Theatre music tax rates, which are considerably under those recently agreed to by leading exhibition interests and the Canadian Performing Right Society, have been established by the Government for 1937 and were made known yesterday by Secretary of State Fernand Rinfret.

The maximum music tax under the Government's schedule is 12 cents per seat in the largest theatres. The rate agreed upon by the principal theatre interests and the Canadian licensing society was scaled up to 15 cents per seat for theatres over 1,600 seats, with a 12-cent rate only for theatres seating from 801 to 1,599. The Government's schedule makes no reference to the rates agreed upon last week by theatre and music licensing representatives.

Reliable opinion here holds that the Government's schedule does not prohibit any theatre from voluntarily paying more than the rates prescribed,

'Black Limelight' Strong in Title, but Skiddy as Play

Other Majors To Follow 'U' MPTOA Lead

Kuykendall So Indicates In Statement

Definite assurances that other major distributors will follow Universal's lead in granting trade practice concessions have been given the M.P.T.O.A., according to a statement issued yesterday by the local office of Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, acknowledging Universal's action.

Universal gave the national exhibitor organization its assurances on extending a 10 per cent cancellation privilege under liberalized conditions, of maintaining its policy of not endeavoring to collect a score charge and of cooperating in the establishment of local conciliation boards through which the exhibitor organization hopes that most of its other trade practice reforms may be effectuated.

"The M.P.T.O.A. is elated to learn that Universal has definitely and publicly accepted most of the proposals presented to it," the statement said. "R. H. Cochrane, Universal president, and J. R. Grainger, general sales manager, are to be highly commended for their fairness and initiative. We are confident from their sympathetic attitude towards our problems that the few remaining details to which they refer can and will be worked out to our mutual satisfaction."

United Artists Asks Press To Log-Rolling; Some Fun!

By J. M. JERAULD

Monroe Greenthal and the boys in the United Artists publicity department had a big idea. They decided to have a log-rolling contest as an exploitation contest for "Come and Get It."

Two log-rollers who worked in the picture were brought east from a lumber camp north of Seattle, where logs are logs and log-rollers are log-rollers. The newspapers were invited to send reporters and photographers to the Park Central pool at 1 o'clock yesterday. They did.

The photographers clambered around the balcony, they picked vantage points on the stone benches at the edge of the pools, they inspected their flashlight bulbs. The log-rollers came in wearing corduroy pants and sweat shirts and adjusted their sandals.

A half dozen men in felt jackets and overalls examined the iron fences on the balconies and conferred. Then they went out doors and returned and conferred again.

Two policemen came in and one shouted to a photographer: "Where's da participants?"

The photographer was puzzled. After a second or two he replied: "Oh, them! There they are," pointing.

All Ready But the Log

Time passed. About 1:45 Monroe Greenthal, A-Mike Vogel and Jack Horrower came down from the dining room.

"Where's the log?" asked Monroe.

"Outside on a truck," explained Al Margolies.

Ken O'Brien hastened to explain: "And what a log! I'll bet it took a hundred years to grow up for this occasion."

One of the hotel attendants suggested they bring it down the stairway and throw it over the railing.

"Huh!" exclaimed one of the lumber men in overalls. "It would go right through the bottom of the pool and flood the B.M.T. subway. It weighs two tons."

Everybody conferred some more. Eventually the log started back to the Leary lumber yard over at Greenpoint, Brooklyn. Some day, perhaps, they'll use it to hold up a corner of the Empire State Bldg., if the foundations ever get weak.

Vogel lighted another of those stogies they use for fumigating Pittsburgh.

"Contest called off on account of wet grounds," he murmured softly, as is his wont.

Everybody went back to work, except the log-rollers. The nearest forest with man-sized logs is up near Oregon.

Lee Plans a Daily Television Program

Los Angeles, Nov. 9.—Don Lee television station W6XAO today inaugurated a new series of daily daylight television image tests under the direction of Harry R. Lubcke. The broadcasts are 300-line, high definition television emanating from the local station and received at Lubcke's home almost four miles distant. There is an added reception hazard in the form of two hills located close to the residence. Lubcke stated that increased transition mileage would result if the broadcasts were held under more favorable circumstances.

Today's broadcast extended from 8.30 A.M. until 6.30 P.M. Tomorrow the program will extend from 10 to 11 A.M., on Wednesday from 11 to noon, on Thursday from noon until 1 P.M. and so on throughout the week, giving amateur television operators the opportunity to test the value of the transmission at each hour of the day.

The original Don Lee tests were inaugurated in 1931 and used 80-line television. Today the station conducts tests each evening from 6.30 to 7.15 P.M.

Tomorrow Lubcke will conduct a synchronization test of image and sound with the sound originating at KHJ and the image at W6XOA. He will check reception from his home. The tests will be independently conducted. Experiments have been in progress since 1930. Tests during the past two years, however, have been private. Newsreels and short subjects are used as broadcast subjects.

NBC Hiking Its Air Prices; Red Chain, $8,000 an Hour

A rate increase of 10 per cent for sponsored time on the Red and Blue NBC networks, respectively, will be instituted shortly, it was learned yesterday. First to be affected, on Dec. 15, will be the 21 basic stations comprising the Red. Two weeks later, on Jan. 5, the advance will be enforced on the Blue, also numbering 21 basic stations.

With the additional 10 per cent, new prices for the Red network will be as follows: One hour, $8,000; half-hour, $4,800; quarter-hour, $3,200. Similarly, the Blue network prices will be one hour, $7,200; half-hour, $4,320; quarter-hour, $2,880.

However, network advertisers who have contracts with NBC as of Dec. 15 may continue on the present basis for any period up to and including Dec. 14, 1937, providing they continue existing broadcasts without interruption. Additions to such facilities may be made on the old rate basis, but the adjusted rates are applicable to all new broadcast series contracted for on and after Dec. 15, 1937. Discount brackets will remain unchanged under the new rate.

Explaining its reasons for the new rate, NBC points out that its company's coverage has greatly increased since the current rates were established and that the cost of radio advertising, per listener, is still relatively lower than that established by any previous rate schedule in the history of the company. The last NBC increase was established in February, 1935, and was 16.6 per cent.

Using figures compiled by the Joint Committee on Radio Research, an organization representing advertisers, agencies and broadcasters, NBC, as of Jan. 1, 1936, estimates 22,869,000 radio families in the United States, an increase of 4,920,838 radio families over the 17,948,162 of 1934, on which the current NBC rates were computed. The comparison is between a 10 per cent rate increase and a 27 per cent radio family increase.

Appraised of the impending NBC rate increase and queried as to Columbia's policy, Victor M. Ratner, advertising and sales promotion director at the latter chain, stated that insofar as he knew, Columbia at the present moment was not contemplating any increase.

Many at NBC Party

Seven internationally famous personalities in the fields of radio, business, government and science addressed the 1,600 guests at the National Broadcasting 10th anniversary banquet at the Waldorf last night. The principal speakers were Anning S. Prall, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission; David Sarnoff, president of RCA; Lenox R. Lohr, NBC president, and Maurice Rampert, president of the International Broadcasting Union. The speeches of the latter were broadcast from 10 to 11 P.M., E.S.T., over the NBC-Blue network.

Chairman Prall conveyed the personal regrets of President Roosevelt, who was unable to attend the banquet because of press of White House business. Prall pointed to the great progress made by radio during the four years of the Roosevelt administration, and gave the President credit for bringing the country generally out of the depression. He envisioned an even brighter future for the nation and for radio under the next four years of Roosevelt leadership.

In conclusion he scored forces that have been working for government-owned radio in this country and lauded the industry for its impartial granting of time to all political candidates.

Among the 1,600 guests present were the 25 members of the International Broadcasting Union; 101 owners of NBC's associated station; advertising executives, and business leaders.

Merlin S. Aylesworth, first president of NBC, paid high tribute to David Sarnoff, Owen D. Young, and others instrumental in the founding of the National Broadcasting Co.

One of the highlights of the evening was the reading of a facsimile of a message of congratulation sent to NBC via radio from Italy by Signor Gugliemo Marconi, inventor of radio.

Guests of honor included two members of President Roosevelt's cabinet; a former vice-president of the United States; a member of the French Cabinet; a prime minister of the Dominion of Canada; and notable figures in the field of religion, finance and industry.

These included Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture; Postmaster General James A. Farley; French Minister of Communications Robert Jardillier; Charles G. Dawes, former vice-president of the United States; the Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Transportation, Canada; and Major General James G. Harbord, Chairman of the NBC Advisory Council and Chairman of the Board of the General Electric Corp.

Walk Out on Films

Sunday night Chevrolet tried something new in ether showmanship by offering films, sans any admission price, to the studio audience gathered in the CBS Playhouse to witness the regular Chevrolet broadcast. The clips were 90 percent sales promotional in effect, with the result that when the 30-minute reels were run off, half the house was empty.

Three 10-minute clips were shown and all pointed to prove that Chevrolet motor cars were built sturdily enough to withstand tests by fire, water, poor roads, etc. The pictures, produced by Jam Handy, were pictorially satisfactory and expertly produced, but lacked sufficient entertainment punch to hold an audience. However, the commercial plugs were held down to a minimum.

Similar pictures will be shown at all subsequent Chevrolet broadcasts, according to present plans.

Pearl Returns

After an absence of more than a year, Baron Munchausen, as interpreted by Jack Pearl, returned to the air last night over the NBC-Blue network at 9:30 P.M., E.S.T. The result must be noted on the debit side of the ledger.

Pearl's delivery of lines, his interpretation of the Dutch dialect, were perfect. But his gags had about as much life as the Republican Party after the election. Jack is definitely not a comedian of other days, but his jokes last night most certainly were.

A multitude of stooges were used on the program, but, as usual when it comes to stooging, Cliff Hall was tops. Morton Bowe's tenoring and Tommy Dorsey's music were excellent.

With a bit of perking up in the gag department, the Baron should do better and find a sincere welcome back on the air.

placing the orders for the new equipment for the remainder of the circuit, Loew's insisted that it incorporate either the same refinements or their equivalent in reproducing quality.

The circuit's specifications give it a new type of rotary stabilizer in Western Electric equipment and a cellular horn patterned after the improvements conceived by Douglas Shearer of M-G-M in the RCA equipment, according to Lester B. Isaac, in charge of the sound reproduction and projection department of Loew's. The result, he declares, will insure a uniform reproduction. The claim is also made that advancements in recording technique which have been made at the M-G-M studio under Shearer will not be dissipated in reproduction.

The Loew move anticipates the wider use of RCA recording under new agreements just closed by the latter company with Hollywood producers. It endeavors to correct flaws in sound reproduction which Loew's engineers believe result from recording which has been aimed for a single type of reproducer, and which may reproduce best only in theatres equipped with that reproducer. By encouraging the standardization of reproducing equipment, Loew's believes that it can not only overcome the problem presented to its own and other theatres by individual methods of recording, but that it can also expect greater uniformity of sound reproduction for M-G-M pictures wherever they are played and on whatever sound equipment, it was stated.

The idea is reported to be winning favor with other large circuits and studios, and in line with this definite basic moves are under way in Hollywood looking to greater uniformity in sound recording methods.

ITO and Merchants Will Fight "Chains"

LITTLE ROCK, Nov. 9.—In a move calculated to combat what is characterized as the "chain influence," the I. T. O. of Arkansas today decided upon joint action with the Arkansas Independent Retail Merchants Ass'n, following addresses at this morning's session of the convention by C. W. Lithicum, secretary of the merchants' association. The committee appointed to work with the merchants comprises W. E. Malin of Augusta and J. M. Ensor and "Hy" Sanders of Little Rock.

Tribute was paid to the late H. D. Wharton, a former director, by Elit Whitney Cotlin. Sidney Wharton, son of the deceased, was elected to fill the vacated post.

Cecil Cupp of Arkadelphia was elected unanimously as vice-president to succeed L. F. Haven, who became president upon the resignation of Ray Morros of Malvern, now a Robb & Rowley partner.

Ed Kuykendall was the principal speaker at today's session.

Attorney General Jack Holt addressed the guests at a dinner dance which closed the convention at the Hotel Marion.

'Black Limelight' Strong in Title, but Skiddy as Play

suspicions and its net closer 'round her husband. Then suddenly, up he shows—this is a month later—conveniently slips through the police cordon and convinces his wife he is not guilty of murder, although damned guilty of infidelity. A telltale clue sets her on the trail which, by this time, has ended sharply and on all four brakes at the door of George Curzon, the mouse-like lawyer friend who, from the first, sides at large with the police and not as a lawyer as well as friend might be expected to.

The clue is a handkerchief which her frightened husband has brought home. And that's strange because he hadn't left with it. The wife, thinking sharply, recalls it was Curzon who had borrowed it. She sets out to follow through and arranges the stage, brave woman, for a cat-and-mouse play with her suspect. Withholding the information that the police have apprehended her husband at her behest, although more quickly than she had planned, she implants the thought that, by her murder, the suspicion would logically fasten itself on her husband. This would allow Curzon and his homicidal mania to further disrupt the English countryside and keep Scotland Yard off its financial keel by added overtime.

Lady and Gent in Brawl

Curzon goes for it, dowses the lights and is ready to spring. But Miss Lenihan, taking a very long chance indeed, has doped out that the villain suffers from an eye disease which gives him perfect sight in the dark and practically none at all in the light. She, therefore, hits him between the optics with a strong flashlight—the kind that never helps when something goes wrong with your automobile—and under its searchlight glare batters the heavy's resistance until he confesses. But, don't go away. There's more. Curzon upsets her on the 40-yard line and is about to toss another goal when the police clatter up for a picture finish.

Miss Lenihan gave a curiously uneven performance, alternating between terror and just conversation; Kirkland had little to do. It was Curzon who was as good as the play by Gordon Sherry allowed. The lack of logic could be called deplorable and even something stronger. And the flashlight scene almost got the audience—with snickers, not shivers.

Bob Goldstein, immediately in front, suddenly woke up at the close and remarked:

"I wish I had that flashlight. I'd go looking for the author."

The play? It was "Black Limelight" and it opened at the Mansfield last night. But not for long.

"Green Waters" Folds

"Green Waters," which opened at the Masque Nov. 5, closed Saturday night with a run of five performances.

Over the other one a sign says: "It will be this time when you come out," and this week there is an hour and 45 minutes difference in the time of the two clocks.

Sales Heads Attend 20th-Fox Meet Here

Twentieth Century-Fox sales executives yesterday wound up final meetings on the fourth annual S. R. Kent sales drive with a session at the New York exchange.

Home office personnel attended with Harry H. Buxbaum, Joe Lee and the local sales force and bookers.

Among those present were John D. Clark, William Kupper, William C. Gehring, William Sussman, Jack Sichelman, Clarence Hill, Charles E. McCarthy, William Clark, Harvey Day, Walter Hake, Jack Skirball, Lee Balsley, Roger Ferri, Harry Mersay, Martin Moskowitz, Edward Collins, Nat Finkler, Jack Bloom and G. McEvoy.

The conclave took about three hours. It was announced Roy Del Ruth will direct the first of two Eddie Cantor pictures for next season, "Saratoga Chips." Other pictures discussed included "On the Avenue," "Lloyds of London," "One in a Million," "Banjo on My Knee," "Reunion" and "Pigskin Parade." The last named picture will open at the Roxy on Friday.

Johnston May Again Use Franchise Plan

W. Ray Johnston, president of Monogram, may revive the company on an active working basis without Wall St. financing, it was intimated yesterday.

Johnston has two deals under way for downtown sponsorship, but in no event is anxious to relinquish control of the stock, which he holds. He is understood to be considering plans to establish the new company on the former basis whereby franchise holders participated in the financing.

Under the planned setup, Monogram franchise holders will not be permitted to distribute outside product unless the pictures are approved by executives and directors of the company.

Johnston will leave tomorrow for Chicago, Kansas City and Los Angeles where he will contact former Monogram exchange men. He will remain on the coast several weeks and then visit the Dallas Fair. According to present plans, Monogram will produce 26 dramas, eight westerns, and possibly two serials. Stories are now being lined up by Louis Lifton.

but obviously any theatre unwilling to pay the higher schedule adopted two weeks ago could not be required to now.

Officials of Ascap which, with the British Performing Right Society is an equal owner of the Canadian Performing Right Society, said yesterday that it was probable that the Canadian organization might have to refuse to license exhibitors who declined to pay only the scale prescribed by the Dominion Government. In this case, it was said, such exhibitors would be required to negotiate for performing rights with the individual owners of the copyrighted music which they used.

E. C. Mills, general manager of Ascap, who is now en route to the coast, said last week that refusals by exhibitors to pay more than the rates which might be prescribed by the Dominion were anticipated, but added that he was confident that cases of the kind could be amicably adjusted without the necessity for a hearing before the Canadian music tax commission. If the rates agreed upon independently with the leading exhibitors can be maintained, there would be no necessity for discontinuing the Canadian licensing society as contemplated earlier, it was stated at Ascap.

Phila. Percentage Is Dropped by G.N.

with an exhibitor committee here last week. The meeting was called following protests by the exhibitor organization against Grand National's policy of designating 10 of its pictures for percentage playing. The promised policy of the distributor, according to the exhibitor unit's bulletin, will be the setting of a "fair schedule of honest prices flexible enough to take care of every situation."

In addition, the distributor has decided to re-write any burdensome contract already signed, the U. M. P. T. O. bulletin states.

In commenting on Grand National's action, George P. Aarons, U. M. P. T. O. secretary, says: "It's a welcome relief to find one producer with enough respect for the opinion of his customers to meet with them and adjust their grievances. Such a spirit of cooperation, if adopted by the other producers, would make ours a grand and glorious business. That kind of cooperation means contracts. Your decision . . . might well be copied by other film companies."

Ed Peskay, Grand National general sales manager, said yesterday that the Philadelphia exhibitor committee was told that the company does not adhere to any fixed national sales policy and that it endeavored to make all contracts on a fair and equitable basis. The flexibility of this policy, he said, did not mean that Grand National would not sell any percentage engagements, nationally or otherwise, but that it did permit the company to determine fair terms for individual selling situations.

said, will be ordered before Commissioner of Accounts Blanshard for action, on the theory that the study of the union situation is in reality "an investigation into the handling of the situation by the Police Dep't."

The full membership of the board was present, including Howard Cullman, Samuel A. Lewisohn and William Collins. Attending from the industry were Joseph D. Basson, president of Local 306; George E. Browne, president of the I.A.T.S.E.; Harry Brandt, president of the I.T.O.A., and his brother, William Brandt.

Allied and Empire, the two unions which, with 306, are engaged in the jurisdictional battle, will appear at a later meeting, probably that which is scheduled for today at the Mayor's office. It will be a closed meeting of the survey board.

It is understood that all three unions will cease picketing of New York houses while the survey board is conducting its investigation.

Orders Return of Records

Justice Isidor Wasservogel in N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday ordered the police to return to Local 306 all records and other material seized last week during a raid on the headquarters of the union following the bombing of several theatres. The court condemned the raid, said it should not have been conducted without a warrant, and declared he was inclined to regard the raid as illegal. "It was all wrong," said Justice Wasservogel.

Assistant District Attorney William H. Barr of Queens County appeared and said the Queens Grand Jury has begun an investigation of the bombings, requesting the court direct union officials to produce the records seized, in the event they are called for by the Queens jury. Justice Wasservogel so directed.

The union on Saturday had sought an injunction against the Police Dep't. to force it to withdraw a policeman stationed at the union offices, but withdrew the plea when the police discontinued the surveillance.

Local 306 Sues Police

Local 306, through its attorney, Matthew M. Levy, yesterday, according to the union, filed suit in the N. Y. Supreme Court against Police Commissioner Valentine, Lieutenant Pike of the police Bomb Squad, and others who participated in the raid last week on union headquarters which resulted in the seizure of union records and other material.

The union is said to be suing for damages of $500,000, claiming the seizure was illegal, that it paralyzed the activities of the union and that the police action amounted to defamation of the character of the union.

Fox Fine Upheld

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—Orders of the Federal District Court in New York holding William Fox in contempt for his failure to appear for questioning in connection with a judgment against him in the sum of $297,412.91, were today affirmed by the U. S. Supreme Court, on a holding that the orders were not final and that there was no error in a ruling that they are not subject to appeal.

The judgment against Fox was secured by the Capital Co., which, upon default in payment, began supplementary proceedings. Fox failed to respond to a subpoena, which, he contended, was served upon him outside the jurisdiction of the court. He was held in contempt and fined $235,082.03, then unpaid upon the judgment, and an additional $10,000 to cover the costs of attorneys of the judgment creditors, and a warrant was issued whereby he was to be confined in jail until payment of the fine, with the proviso that except for the costs of the proceedings the fine would be remitted upon submission to the subpoena.

"Petitioner does not question the compensatory or civil quality of so much of the fine as may be avoided at any time by obeying the subpoena," the court pointed out in its opinion. "He takes the ground, however, that the fine of $10,000 which was imposed conditionally, is in excess of any damage suffered by the force of the contempt, and from this he moves to the conclusion that the penalty was inflicted as retribution for a crime. But the conclusion does not follow, though the premise be accepted.

"The court may have erred in its assessments of the costs required for reparation. As to that we do not intimate an opinion one way or the other. What is very plain is the fact that the assessment was made in a genuine endeavor to reimburse a harassed creditor for the damages occasioned by obstruction and delay."

F. W. C. Denies Charge

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 8.—In their answer to the appeal brief filed several weeks ago by William H. Neblett, F.W.C. attorneys entered a straight denial of all charges. The answer was filed in the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals at San Francisco on Friday.

Neblett's brief, filed on behalf of T. L. Tally and the Corbar Corp., seeks to reopen the F.W.C. bankruptcy on the ground that the adjudication was obtained by fraud and conspiracy.

Fox Theatre Claims Set

Two orders involving Fox Theatres Corp. were issued yesterday in U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals by Judge Martin Manton.

One of the orders confirmed the report of Special Master Courtland Palmer made last Dec. 6, and reduced and allowed the claim of Franklin Operating Co. for $23,399. The claim was reduced from an original petition asking for $816,666.

In the second order the court allowed the claim of the Ridgewood Operating Co. for $11,568. This allowance was in place of an original request for $550,000.

The Franklin and Ridgewood companies had filed suit against Fox Theatres Corp. on two leases entered into in 1926 and which were to run until 1947 at a yearly rental of $100,000 for the Savoy in Brooklyn. The company paid until June, 1932, when it went into receivership. The sum allowed yesterday by Judge Manton covered actual damages to Feb. 15, 1933. The court denied a claim for future rent through the expiration of the lease.

Shipment Verdict Reversed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—Reversing a decision of the South Carolina Supreme Court, the U. S. Supreme Court today held that the Pastime Amusement Co. was not entitled to damages from the Southeastern Express Co. for the latter's failure to deliver a film to be exhibited as advertised.

The company sued for and secured a verdict for $1,500, despite the limitation of liability in the express tariff, although the value of the shipment made from Jacksonville, Fla., to Charleston, S. C., was declared as $50, the lower court ruling that the suit was for damages for interruption of the plaintiff's business caused by the delay alleged to negligence.

The Supreme Court held that the lower court was in errror and that the Federal statute applying to damages for delay in making delivery should prevail.

Quashes M-G-M Action

CINCINNATI, Nov. 9.—U. S. District Judge Robert R. Nevin has sustained motions of M-G-M to quash the service made upon them in the suit of Margaretta Tuttle, local author, against them, charging infringement of her book, "Kingdom Come," in the film, "The Unguarded Hour."

Memories

Prints of "Queen Elizabeth," released in 1912 and the first picture handled by Adolph Zukor 25 years ago will be available to exhibitors in connection with Paramount's Silver Jubilee in January honoring Zukor. It will be screened at a studio celebration to be held Jan. 7.

Unger and Kusell Back

J. J. Unger and Milt Kusell yesterday returned from an 11-day tour of the country in connection with Paramount's Silver Jubilee, during which 7,000 miles were covered. Key cities visited were Washington, Atlanta, New Orleans, Dallas, Los Angeles, Kansas City, Chicago and Cleveland, in the order named.

Kusell will leave today for Boston where he will confer with the sales staff, then return to New York and in a day or so leave again for the midwest and south on a three-week checkup.

Can't Film Parliament

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Prime Minister Baldwin, in his first utterance in the House of Commons since his indisposition, said:

"The answer is in the negative" to a suggestion from Harry Day, M. P., that "in view of the interest taken in British topical talking films, he will consider whether facilities should be granted by the Government for filming the proceedings of one of our debates."

Chicago to Change Time

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—This city will return to Central Time, starting Nov. 15. The change is due to an election referendum.

In the summer Chicago will adopt the eastern time schedule in a daylight-saving plan. Theatremen generally approve of the change. Since E. S. T. has been used here railroad schedules have been on C. S. T. This has been confusing.

percentage pictures too many. This territory is being discriminated against in the rankest fashion on film rentals. A nation of exhibitors is up in arms against Metro's ruinous rentals. Whatever legal steps exhibitors adopt to combat the 'Lichtman Formula' count on us to join you.

"To Paramount, Warners, Columbia and RKO, who last season delivered pictures so poor that state righters would have blushed to release them, we say: 'Deliver what you sell or make good if you fail.' This organization serves a solemn warning that it will picket any exchange or any customer of an exchange that persists in its attitude of unfairness to the organized theatremen."

The advisability of a play date "strike" being fostered on a national basis as a protest against high rentals and unfair sales policies is listed for consideration by a meeting of the exhibitor organization at the Broadwood Hotel, Friday. Also listed is the subject of national support for a fight against M-G-M's sales policy as exemplified by the percentage picture groups said to have been classified by Al Lichtman, assistant to Nicholas M. Schenck. The exhibitor organization's bulletin refers to Lichtman as "Exhibitor Enemy No. I."

New Union Drive On

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 9.—Another drive is on in this territory to organize doormen, ushers and other service employes at local theatres. Rolla Dennis, business agent for Theatrical Amusement Employes' Union, is directing the campaign and is understood to have signed up the help at Municipal Auditorium.

wouldn't be interested in the transaction. However, you're not the only one who has asked about it."

David Bernstein, vice-president of Loew's, said: "The sale is without significance and, certainly, can have no effect on control. It is only a drop in the bucket. The purchase was made for investment only."

At current market prices the transaction involved approximately $2,200,000.

Feinstein Chief Booker

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 9.—Harry Feinstein has been named chief booker for Warner Brothers in the Pittsburgh zone, succeeding Oscar Kuschner, who has been transferred to the Memphis theatre department under Harry Waugh. Although he hails from Pittsburgh, Feinstein first joined Warners six years ago in New Jersey. When Harry Kalmine came from there to this city in 1933, he brought the new chief booker along, then as a manager.

"Broadcast" With $8,200 Tops Seattle

SEATTLE, Nov. 9.—"The Big Broadcast of 1937," dualled with "Sworn Enemy" at the Paramount was the best bet, drawing $8,200 against an average of $6,000. The bill moved to the Blue Mouse for an extended run.

"The Great Ziegfeld" bettered the $7,000 Fifth Ave. average by $1,100 in its second week, and moved to the Music Box. Other takes were below par, with cold and rainy weather partly responsible.

Total first run business was $39,050. Average is $36,500.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Plot Thickens"

(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 9.—As a light mystery-comedy this compares favorable with similar offerings and should please in houses showing that type of entertainment. The film is the third in the series depicting the adventures of detective Oscar Piper and his voluntary assistant, Hildegarde Withers.

James Gleason again portrays Piper, but the Withers role is played for the first time by Zasu Pitts. The pair work together, playing the scenes for comedy and suspense alternately. Their problem is to track down a gang of art thieves who have committed two murders and stolen a valuable relic from a museum. In orthodox fashion Miss Pitts discovers the real clues as Gleason fumbles.

The competent supporting cast includes Owen Davis, Jr., and Louise Latimer for the romantic interest, with Arthur Aylesworth, Paul Fix, Agnes Anderson and Richard Tucker as assorted policemen and crooks. The screen play is by Clarence Upson Young and Jack Townley from the Stuart Palmer original and is intelligently directed by Ben Holmes. William Sistrom produced.

Production Code Seal No. 2,666. Running time, 66 minutes. "G."

"The Big Show"

(Republic)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 9.—A western that goes behind the scenes for many novel and amusing situations, an "opera" that is replete with plenty of music and singing, and a moving and spectacularly exciting script, this production is of a fine, pleasing grade.

Gene Autry doubles for a western film star in the more hazardous part of his work and these are excitingly filmed scenes. The story takes its stride when the temperamental actor goes off on a fishing trip, leaving his studio uninformed. A conniving press agent who had booked him for personal appearances at the Dallas Centennial as a publicity stunt is frantic when he fails to return from location.

Instead he takes Autry. Enroute to Texas they cut off the trailer truck which is transporting Kay Hughes' prize steers and the animals stampede. Autry rounds up the herd and ingratiates himself with Miss Hughes. At the fair Autry makes a name for himself and his romance with Miss Hughes develops. Complications are introduced by the demon press agent and gangsters attempting to collect a gambling debt.

However, things straighten out in whirlwind fashion as Autry uses the public address system and Texas Rangers to apprehend the criminals. This culminates his romance with Miss Hughes satisfactorily.

Smiley Burnette lends plenty of comedy interest. Others in the cast include Sally Payne, Max Terhune and Charles Judel. For the most part the action is on the site of the Centennial and this should prove an audience draw. Mack C. Wright directed. It is handsomely photographed by William Nobles and Edgar Lyons. The screenplay is the joint work of Dorrell and Stuart McGowan.

Production Code Seal No. 2727. Running time, 70 mins. "G."

"Can This Be Dixie?"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 9.—One of the few worthwhile qualities in "Can This Be Dixie?" is Jane Withers' personal performance, which, in the face of things, is below par and once in a while Claude Gillingwater's work is satisfactory. From a possible entertainment or commercial standpoint the rest of the cast just goes through the motions.

There are a couple of fairly good specialty song and dance numbers and a pair of spectacle features that might have been the basis for better things, but their effectiveness is lost in a meaningless, meandering story that never rises to a point where spontaneous interest can be anticipated.

Probably the loyal dyed-in-the-wool Withers clientele will accept the show, but others will be disappointed.

Production Code Seal No. 2,562. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

"Pigskin" on Dual Best in New Haven

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 9.—Although all houses started with excellent weekend business, only the Poli beat election week radio competition to any extent. "Pigskin Parade" and "Adventure in Manhattan" rolled up a $9,200 gross, $2,200 over par, and held four days at the College.

"My Man Godfrey" and "Postal Inspector" scored $200 over the $4,800 average in the second week at the Paramount, after a first week's take of $8,000. The College, with "Man Who Lived Twice" and "They Met in a Taxi," stayed at the $2,800 par; while "Don't Turn 'Em Loose" on the Roger Sherman dual with "The Captain's Kid" was $700 short.

The weather was favorable throughout. Although election returns were announced in all houses, the attendance was sparse on the big day.

Refuse Tax Cut on Screen Advertising

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Nov. 9.—The City Council has declined to rescind its action in passing an ordinance calling for an annual levy of $200 on each theatre for screen advertising.

One member of the council, defending its action, asserted that "theatre patrons have to pay to see these advertisements and they have to see them whether they want to or not, unless they leave the show. Inasmuch as newspapers are taxed on their income, and advertising provides their greatest source of income, theatres should also be taxed for advertising."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Hideaway Girl"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 9.—This seems to have been made to concentrate attention more on Martha Raye's hoydenish and comedy clowning abilities than anything else. When she's on the film is lively fun; when she's off the picture is an artificial and complicated comedy-romance-melodrama. Not of sufficient strength in cast names, story content or production values to excite much interest, the show must depend upon Miss Raye's antics and a pair of musical numbers sung by Shirley Ross for audience attention.

The story revolves around Shirley Ross, who, fleeing the police, is picked up by Robert Cummings, play boy. Refusing to identify herself, Cummings' hotsy-totsy friends chose to accept her as his secret bride. The whole party gathers aboard Cummings' yacht, where after Elizabeth Russell, the boy's fiancee, gets jealous, there's a lot of weird goings on about some stolen jewels. Cummings suspects his uninvited guest, but when crooks arrive after police have made a stake out, Miss Russell is revealed as the thief in league with Monroe Owsley, master mind, with whom Miss Ross had been forced into a loveless marriage. Following the round up, it looks as though there will be a real marriage for the hideaway girl.

The youthful character of the film as well as those featured establishes it as attraction for youthful audiences.

Production Code Seal No. 2,714. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Song of the Gringo"

(Grand National)

There appears to have grown up a new school of western picture production, that in which an attempt is made to inject as much rambling, guitar-strumming music as possible into each film. The result necessarily has been a serious hampering of the basic furious pace which is vital to the type of entertainment which the western is and always has been.

That is one of the major faults of this initial Edward Finney production for Grand National—that and what may be called too much story and not enough action. The audience which attends the western wants action, more action and still more action. This picture lacks enough of that all-important ingredient.

Tex Ritter, singing radio "cowboy," sings well, but could do with considerably more realism in his performance and more punch. Joan Woodbury is adequate in the feminine lead and a number of western film standbys fill in the other spots. Tex is a deputy sent to join the gang in an effort to smoke them out of their Mexican hacienda headquarters. He does so, via song, guitar, romance with Miss Woodbury and some action.

Lindsley Parsons supervised and John P. McCarthy directed.

Production Code Seal No. 2,791. Running time, 62 minutes. "G."

"Janosik"

(French M. P. Corp.)

This is the story of an almost legendary Czecholovakian peasant hero who revolted against the feudal aristocracy in 1711 and carried on a kind of Robin Hood banditry until finally trapped through a ruse played on his sweetheart. He is hung.

The title role is played by a tall, striking young man named Palo Bielik, who, in addition to having some of the acrobatic skill of Douglas Fairbanks, can also sing. A blonde girl, Zlata Najdukova, who plays the peasant sweetheart, succeeds in being impressive without appearing to try.

The scenic background, laid in the mountainous regions of Czecholovakia, are beautiful.

Some of the fights, escapes, holdups and pursuits are reminiscent of an American western. Music and native dances are the elements which are different.

Titles in English make the story easy to follow, but the appeal of the film will be limited to the audiences which like foreign product.

Running time, 90 minutes. "G."

Short Subjects

"Spanish Civil War"

(Marcy Pictures Corp.)

There is nothing in this collection of supposedly uncensored shots of the rebellion in Spain which might arouse or excite audiences. Regular newsreel scenes have been re-edited and cut and there is presented a summary of the conflict since the first outbreak. Much destruction, troop movement, commanding figures and some comparatively tame battle scenes are shown. Also, a running narrative, quite passionate in its denunciation of war, but it is delivered unexcitingly.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 26 mins. "G."

"The Sporting Quiz"

(Rice-Paramount)

Husing, the inquisitor, asks the questions and the audience is given opportunity to answer. If they don't, Husing answers himself. The short being good entertainment. With lively humor the film commentator offers queries on such subjects as "catching a crab," what is a half gainor? a fungo bat? behind the eight ball? what is a charlie horse? and others, concluding with shots of famous personalities of past years. Production Code Seal No. 01,218. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Birds In Love"

(Mintz-Columbia)

A mild cartoon offering in Technicolor, "Birds in Love" is just so much diversion. The lovebirds bill and coo to distraction and when their antics are threatened by a feathered vacuum cleaner salesman the male end of the family, returning from work, disposes of him and all is serene again. Production Code Seal No. 2,481. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"The Star Reporter in Hollywood"

(Paramount)

Ted Husing delivers the results of his findings in the film capitol. Among his finds are Benny Bartlett, the child actor, singer and composer, Joer Rardin, who can imitate an orchestra with his voice; Dorothy Lamour, singer, and Vera Marshe and Louis Da-Pron, dance team. Clever and snappy. Production Code Seal No. 01,320. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

(Columbia)

A visit to the old Mexican quarter of Los Angeles, Joel McCrea's ranch, Edward Everett Horton's estate, Anna Sten's swimming pool and finally to a studio where the various phases of production are shown. It is interesting and good amusement. Production Code Seal No. 2,541. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

Cummings an Heir

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 9.—Robert Cummings, actor under contract to Paramount, has received word that he and his mother, Mrs. Ruth Cummings, are heirs to a large fortune. The inheritance comes from the estate of Dr. C. C. Cummings, the actor's father, and has been realized from the sale of gold mine stock purchased by the doctor many years ago.

THE SCOOP OF THE CENTURY!

Exhibitor in Victory Over British Quota

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Nov. 3.—An important decision regarding the exhibitors' obligation to show British films under the quota provisions of the Films Act was handed down by Everard Dickson, magistrate at the Old St. Police Court.

In a case instituted by the Board of Trade against C. A. Mathes, a member of the council of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association, the magistrate ruled that a default in the number of British films shown in the year from October, 1934, to September, 1935, was due to the fact that "it was not commercially practicable to exhibit the full quota."

Evidence was that during the period in question, in place of the statutory quota of 15 per cent of British films the defendant had shown 13.8 per cent of features and 12.77 per cent of all films. Mathes declared that there were not enough good British films to supply his needs at the theatre, in view of his competitive situation. He admitted that he could have filled the quota by supplying bad British films, but his audiences were too critical.

The case was regarded as a test by the C. E. A., and the decision is held of the greatest importance, as recognizing the standard of the British films available to be a factor to be taken into consideration in deciding on the possibility or otherwise of complying with the statutory quota.

Before the case came into court, the Board of Trade refused a certificate of exemption to Mathes and it was stated in evidence that only 19 such certificates were granted in 1935, to exhibitors who established the impossibility of obtaining sufficient British films.

Hungary Is Seeking New Pact with Reich

By ENDRE HEVESI

BUDAPEST, Oct. 31.—Janos Bingerth, general manager of the Hunnia Studios here, is in Berlin negotiating with German authorities for a new German-Hungarian film agreement. Long unsuccessful, the trade here is hopeful that Bingerth will be able to obtain a German market for Hungarian films dubbed in German.

It is expected, however, that Germany will not be disposed to grant Bingerth's request except on the condition that Hungary increase its imports of German films, which last year dropped to a new low. In the event Bingerth is successful, American companies obviously will be faced with a curtailment of the Hungarian market.

Of 17 films released in local houses in September, nine were American, three German, two French, one Austrian and two Hungarian, indicative of the preeminent place U. S. films hold in this market.

"Top Hat" started well in the city, but fell off during the second week, presumably because it was shown late, after several other musicals had been shown with considerable success. "White Angel" did poor business, but "Strike Me Pink" was strong.

Polish Production Shows an Increase

By R. SILLEI

WARSAW, Nov. 3.—Production in Poland is showing steady advances, with 30 features and 45 short subjects scheduled for production during the 1936-37 season.

The number seems small in comparison with other countries, but the film business, as did others, was forced to start from the beginning only a comparatively few years ago. Furthermore, the Polish Government does not aid the film industry financially, its only assistance consisting in more favorable tax conditions for domestic product, as compared to importations.

The greatest drawback to the success of native product is the lack of variety in stories. Often ideas are borrowed from imported American product. When the stories are original, they deal almost exclusively with the history of Poland. Films are comparatively weak in technical quality, but find favor with the public.

Poland has only 743 film houses for a population of 30,000,000. Of the total, 99 are still not equipped for sound. The seating capacity totals 261,000. Consequently the market is very small for foreign product, and has been decreasing in recent years. In 1933, 318 foreign films were released in Poland, in 1934, 268, and in 1935, only 242.

Extremely rigorous censorship makes importation still more hazardous. Of 714 Polish and foreign films submitted last year, only 348 were passed by the censors.

U. S. Sends 22 to Reich in 9 Months

By J. K. RUTENBERG

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—Durinfi the first nine months of 1936, 125 features were passed by the German censoring authorities, of which 22 were from the United States. A total of 80 were German productions, which compares with 55 German films in 1935.

The 22 from the United States were more than the imports from all other countries combined. Austria imported 11, France six, Czechoslovakia two, and Holland, Poland, Italy and Hungary, one each.

In the new season which has just started, Twentieth Century-Fox is expected to bring in six, M-G-M eight, and Paramount 12, for a total of 26.

India Bans 18 U. S. Films in Two Years

LONDON, Nov. 3.—A total of 40 features were banned by various authorities in India in the two-year period from Aug. 1, 1934, to July 31, 1936, of which 18 were American. The information was given in the House of Commons by Assistant Secretary of State Butler, speaking for the Indian Office, in reply to a question from Harry Day, M. P.

The 40 were divided as follows: American, 18; Indian, 17; British, four, and Italian, one.

New Austrian Deal To Hit U. S. Films

By HANS LORANT

VIENNA, Nov. 3.—American companies face a serious curtailment of the Austrian market in the outcome of the negotiations to start shortly on a new agreement in German-Austrian film relations.

It appears at this stage that Austrian companies, in order to save as much as possible of "frozen assets" in Germany, impossible to retrieve because of German Government restrictions on the transfer of money, will be forced to import a far greater number of German films than heretofore, thus cutting the market for other foreign product.

Austrian interests are seeking to have Germany increase the import quota on Austrian product, and release the money due them. Germany, on the other hand, will seek to cut the importation of Austrian films still further, claiming such a move necessary to strike a balance between the film trade of the two countries. Austrian producers may also be forced to produce in Germany, as another means of getting their money.

"Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," in its fifth week here, thus far has been the greatest success of the season. "Follow the Fleet" did so well in its first week at two first runs that it has gone into another group of five houses. "The General Died at Dawn" was average, "Little Lord Fauntleroy" did fair business, and "The Man Who Could Work Miracles" was weak.

Study Refinancing For Greater Union

By CLIFF HOLT

MELBOURNE, Oct. 13. (By Air Mail, Via London.)—Stuart F. Doyle, managing director, at the annual meeting of Amalgamated Pictures, Ltd., said that the board had under consideration negotiations he had satisfactorily carried out while in London for the refinancing of Greater Union Theatres, Ltd., and if considered practical they would be brought before the shareholders.

The balance sheet showed that Greater Union Theatres profits to June 30 last were £15,895. The distribution business showed a loss chiefly because of the expense of establishing new British product, but theatre results had been maintained. Doyle said he had returned from abroad with many ideas which he was confident would improve the company's trading results in the future.

Produced by the Australian producing organization, National Prod., Ltd., in association with Gaumont-British, "The Flying Doctor" will be distributed in Australia by Twentieth Century-Fox free of cost. Sir Hugh Denison, chairman of the board of National, estimates that this will save his company approximately £12,000. Publicly acknowledging Twentieth Century-Fox's generosity, he said:

"This is an astonishing gesture on the part of an American picture corporation, and it certainly shows beyond any possible doubt where Twentieth-Century-Fox stands in support of the local producing industry.

" 'The Flying Doctor' stars Charles Farrell.

By BEATRICE STERN

MOSCOW, Oct. 31.—Government approval is awaited here of the plans for the Soviet Hollywood, to be constructed in the area occupied now by three villages in the Crimea, Beidary, Laspy and Fiolent.

B. Z. Shumiatsky, director of Russia's state-controlled industry, has just returned from an inspection of the production site, and has submitted the plans to the Government. The center will be known as Kino-Gorod (Cinema City). Construction will begin immediately consent is obtained.

The center will occupy a total area of 8,397 acres in the three villages. The Crimean climate will permit approximately 215 days of outdoor shooting each year. The state has set a minimum of 300 films during the first year and 1,000 annually thereafter, for domestic and export use. Equipment in the new plant will be predominantly American.

The industry has not fulfilled its plan as set by the state for the first nine months of this year. A. Dovzhenko, director, in an article in Pravda, official Government organ, attributes the failure to high production costs, the extremely slow pace of production, and the lack of production schedules. Unsatisfactory training of directors is the basic cause, he declared, and advised changes in the teaching system for directors, making for more practical application. Most films require a year to produce.

Plan Buenos Aires Release Revisions

By N. BRUSKI

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 27 (Via Air Mail).—The Ass'n of Distributors here has submitted to the Society of Impresarios (exhibitors) a revised exhibition plan for this city and its suburbs, which is designed to aid exhibitors in recouping the losses in attendance they have sustained recently. The exhibitor group had requested such a plan of revision from the distributors.

The plan includes a limitation on the number of films to be shown on any one program, provides for increased protection for first run theatres, the elimination of the price difference between stall and balcony seats, with a uniform price to be set for each, the designation by each exhibitor of the classification of his house, the permitting of lower prices on old films on Mondays, and the requirement that exhibition dates must run consecutively on each film. If approved, the plan will go into effect Jan. 1.

The producers, studio and laboratory owners of Argentina held a meeting here with the object of forming the Ass'n of Argentine M. P. Producers. A managing committee appointed includes: Dr. Sebastian Naon, president; Jorge Mendez Delfino, vice-president; Dr. Emilio Carreiro, secretary, and Julio Lofiego, treasurer.

World Plan Sponsored By League of Nations

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—The adoption of an international convention under which broadcasting is not to be used in any manner "prejudicial to good international understanding" has been obtained by the League of Nations, already signed by 21 nations, according to reports reaching Washington today.

The convention will remain open until May 1, next, for further signatures.

A movement to prevent the use of broadcasting to bring about international complications was started by the League in 1931. Support for the proposal increased as various European nations began to develop their shortwave services for the purpose of disseminating nationalistic propaganda.

Under the convention, direct appeals to the inhabitants of another country are prohibited and signatory states are bound to prohibit any broadcast likely to prejudice good international understanding by misleading or inaccurate statements. There

M-G-M Checkers Going into Six More Exchange Centers

M-G-M will install its own checking system in Detroit, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Buffalo and Albany, it was stated yesterday by Col. E. A. Schiller, following a weekend meeting in Cleveland of branch and office managers of these exchanges with Jack Flynn, district manager, and Alan Cummings. The plan has been in effect in the company's offices at New York, Washington, New Haven and Boston.

Declaring that the system is to bring about a closer cooperative spirit with exhibitors, Schiller, organizer of the plan with Cummings as his assistant, said: "M-G-M has no fault to find with any other checking plan, but the company feels it wants to try out the system with its own representatives."

Checkers working for M-G-M cannot be employed by any other company and it is believed this policy will prove beneficial to the company as well as make exhibitors happy. Schiller also believes the M-G-M checker will serve to bring about a closer

Universal-Wilcox Talent Swap Is Set

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 10.—Charles R. Rogers, vice-president of Universal, stated upon his arrival here today that Universal has completed arrangements with Herbert Wilcox and General Film Distributors for the interchange of Hollywood and European talent. The arrangement is looked upon here as a means of evading the British quota.

Rogers, who was accompanied by Bill Pierce, stated that Universal will have 52 films on its program for next year.

Play Sales at 126 Despite Contract Row

Only three fewer plays were bought for production during the current stage season than in 1935, despite the withdrawal from the play producing scene of the major film companies this season, according to a report submitted to a membership meeting of the Dramatists' Guild by Sidney Howard, president, yesterday.

The report, compiled by Luise Sillcox, executive secretary, disclosed that 126 plays had been bought for production during the period from Feb. 1, 1936, to Nov. 1, last; whereas 129 plays were bought during the same period last year.

However, the new contract for playwrights and managers was not adopted until March 1 of this year and a large number of plays were bought by film companies under the old contract

Howard's "Hamlet" Good, But Gielgud's Is Superior

Performances should be appraised strictly on their merits. So goes the theory and it is a good one. But when, in one season, two "Hamlets" come along with only a handful of weeks to separate them, any play reviewer must be pardoned for drawing comparisons. He simply cannot help himself and, after all, the reviewer is entitled to consideration along with the play, the producer and the cast.

The word, then, coming out of last night's "Hamlet" at the Imperial is that John Gielgud's performance outdistances Leslie Howard's; that Leslie Howard's production outruns John Gielgud's and that:

"Hamlet is what it is and, if it seemed an unholy length of time and conversation had to elapse before the drama of the duel between Hamlet and Laertes, the end of the mother by poison and the doing to death of the king by his nephew, the blame either rests with Shakespeare or with an age

Hearst Name Dropped from His Newsreel

Appears First Time as "News of the Day"

All screen connection with Hearst Metrotone News was dropped by the William Randolph Hearst interests yesterday when that newsreel, beginning with Issue No. 215, appeared merely designated as "News of the Day, distributed by M-G-M."

Edgar B. Hatrick, general manager of the Hearst film interests, had denied any change in name was contemplated as recently as Nov. 4. Mike Clofine, editor of Hearst Metrotone News, yesterday had no comment to make and added, in response to a query, that "everyone knew the situation." He also stated no formal statement would be released to the press.

First agitation against Hearst Metrotone News began last spring at Williamstown, Mass., when students demanded the withdrawal of a clip considered by them to be war propaganda. The movement spread in college towns having anti-war groups and picketing developed in a number of places.

The reel also has been the butt of Communists' ire and Communist activities in widely separated areas resulted in occasional picketing and boycotting of theatres exhibting the

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

A NUMBER of first run operators are giving the fishy eye to release schedules for the first three weeks of December. A very piscatorial eye. And more. They are slightly defiant and ready to take on any distributor who can point out one—a mere, solitary one—outstanding attraction boasting a topflight star for release between December 1 and 25. They also hope against hope on both bended knees that they are wrong and stand ready to retract their defiance and their skepticism in Macy's window if so proven. Also do they find that the one sunshine ray penetrating the gloom disappeared this week when Metro moved up release of "Love on the Run," a Gable-Crawford starrer, from December 4 to November 20. . . .

It's quite a blanket of gloom. The more pessimistic among those showmen assert the release schedules for the pre-Christmas weeks are so unpromising that they will be forced to reinstate stage shows or bolster such shows with added "Name" acts where on-the-stage entertainment is already the existing order of the day. Listen to one circuit booker: "If we are to count on the pictures being released during the first three weeks of next month to show a profit, we might just as well close up from Thanksgiving to Christmas." You may think he is gilding the lily black, but he means it. . . .

Quotation from another: "Distributors had us believing this summer that we would never again face a shortage of good pictures the year 'round, because of the record business done by a steady succession of good pictures released during the midsummer months. From the middle of June to the middle of September there was at least one outstanding film released every week. All of them played to excellent business and one of them, 'San Francisco,' was probably one of the best grossers of all time. The sales managers began pointing with pride. It was their idea and it worked. It proved, we were told, that there is no off-season for a good picture. Now they have revised that to none." . . .

Yet for the Christmas-New Year's Week, the theatre's proverbial bonanza period, product looks superior and plentiful, thereby emphasizing anew the feast-or-famine rule from which this business never breaks far away. You might conclude that a tidal wave made up of genuine attractions would and should keep everyone happy, not excepting the men who run theatres. But the complaining ones not only yell about the interim period, but throw up their hands about the fatty one to follow. They assert most frankly that playdates will not be available for the six or eight potential humdingers; that curtailed "A" time must follow and distributor revenue held up because delayed dates on the remaining film will hold up all that follow. . . .

It is their idea and it is urged that a few of the distributors who have real attractions ready, but not scheduled, for release until Christmas, have a heart for their customers and not so casually for themselves. The idea is a good one. We know much about the lows which precede the year-end holidays, but we also know that, latterly, time has given way to the goods when they are genuine and when they are properly advertised and handled. At the outset of the 1936-37 season, which is to say about August last, we doubled back on an old custom and in almost tearful words exhorted distributors to stagger their releases in order not to stagger the nation's box-offices. We knew then, as everyone else also knew, that the season would start off with two bangs and at least one wallop and then, as of yore, settle down to a peaceful slumber along about the middle of November. It was a forecast and accurate, but one about which we should prefer not to have been so infernally smart. . . .

Mr. Goldwyn, about whom they tell funny stories, opens "Come and Get It" at the Rivoli this morning and for it, we go forecasting again by predicting a torrent of praise. That, however, should in no wise deter the exhibitor who at once recoils from films critic-wise blessed. It holds up very well with the reputation for painstaking effort which is a hallmark of Goldwyn's endeavors and is an attraction of formidable girth well equipped to hold its own in current and coming competition. "Come and Get It" is a drama of lumber and human beings or human beings and lumber, excellently produced and directed with Edward Arnold endowing the lead with a fine performance. It also includes

Local 306 Convenes With Mayor's Board

Representatives of Local 306, the Empire Union and the Allied Union met together for the first time yesterday afternoon in the office of Howard S. Cullman at the Roxy, in an effort to settle the jurisdictional fight in the city. The meeting followed Mayor F. H. LaGuardia's ultimatum of Monday, when he warned that theatres would be closed if the union situation was not satisfactorily settled.

The session was devoted to preliminary discussions on a possible basis for settlement of the multiple union status which the Mayor branded as an evil. Present at the meeting was the Mayor's survey board, composed of Cullman, Samuel A. Lewisohn, chairman, and William Collins. For Local 306 was Joseph D. Basson, president; for Empire, Benjamin S. Greenstein, vice-president, and Frank Asch, business agent, and for Allied, Henry Glover, president; Sol B. Fine, business agent, and David Karpis, recording secretary.

The appointment of the board by the Mayor and his subsequent ultimatum resulted from the recent bombings of theatres in the city.

"PLEASE BE PATIENT!"

The opening engagements of "TARZAN ESCAPES" have been so successful that showmen are asking us for reproductions of the promotion campaigns, to use in their own cities. These campaigns are just coming in from all parts of the country (they're swell!) and within a few days we will print them in the trade press. Meanwhile we urge our showmen friends to ballyhoo "TARZAN ESCAPES" like a circus. It's fun to exploit and the results are marvelous. "TARZAN ESCAPES" in its first engagements is beating M-G-M's previous Tarzan success! America loves this unique character—and there's only one Johnnie Weissmuller! So shoot the works! is a special provision to the effect that contracting governments, especially in time of crisis, will insure the accuracy of the information concerning international relations broadcast within their respective territories.

The convention calls upon participating countries to take into account the influence that may be exercised by broadcasts calculated to harm the interests or offend the national, political, religious or social sentiments of other people, and to show particular vigilance in regard to programs intended for foreign listeners in a language other than that employed for the listeners of the country of transmission.

the M-G-M and Loew head, it was revealed at a board of directors' meeting of the exhibitor unit yesterday at the Astor. The letter follows:

"Please tell us that trade paper reports that you have under consideration a tieup with the Ford Motor Co. for a one-hour broadcast on Sunday nights, between the hours of 9 and 10, are false, as we cannot conceive how you possibly could give serious consideration to such a proposal when you know that 9 P.M. Sunday night is the exhibitor's only salvation at the box-office to cover or reduce any possible loss incurred in the operation of his theatre during the other 69 hours of that week.

"If you will multiply this time by the number of theatres throughout the country that would suffer by reason of such a tieup, you would realize that $25,000 a week revenue to your company would destroy an immeasurably larger sum to the exhibitors to whom your company furnishes its product."

The missive was signed by John Manheimer, secretary of the I.T.O.A.

"Gold Diggers" Take To Air on Saturday

Warners' airplane tour in behalf of "Gold Diggers of 1937" will get under way Saturday at Burbank, Cal., with Jeanne Madden, Rosalind Marquis and Fred Lawrence heading the talent lineup. Also on board will be 12 of Busby Berkeley's dancers. American Airlines is to supply the ship.

They will hit 26 cities in 29 days, if all goes well, and a flock of governors, mayors, chiefs of police, aldermen and others will be on hand to greet them. At every stop they will put on a show.

The stops will include El Paso, Fort Worth, Dallas, Memphis, St. Louis, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Washington, Philadelphia, Boston, Providence, New York, Albany, Syracuse, Buffalo, Columbus, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Denver, Salt Lake City, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

More Film Names Over Air; 23 on 7 Shows in One Week

Exhibitor complaints notwithstanding, Hollywood continues to move in on radio or radio on Hollywood. If the ever increasing wave of film players doesn't let up soon, it won't be long before it will become a real novelty to hear a bona-fide ether attraction on the air.

Here are the film celebrities—23 strong—who will be heard on various programs during the coming week.

On Friday, Nov. 13, "Hollywood Hotel" will feature Jeanette MacDonald, Luise Rainer, William Powell, Allan Jones, Una Merkel, Eleanore Powell, Frances Langford, Dick Powell, Clark Gable, Jean Harlow, Myrna Loy and Robert Taylor in a full hour over the CBS network, 9 to 10 P.M., E.S.T.

That same evening, over the NBC-Red, Elza Schallert will interview George Raft, from 10:45 to 11 P.M., E.S.T.

Inventor Describes Patent in RCA Suit

Wilmington, Nov. 10.—Allen Hazeltine, professor of physical mathematics at Stevens Institute of Technology, Hoboken, and Frank N. Waterman of Summit, N. J., consulting engineer, were the first witnesses on the stand in the patent infringement suit involving RCA Manufacturing Co., RCA Victor Co. and Hazeltine Corp. in U. S. District Court here today. Hazeltine charges infringement of an automatic control patent for receiving sets. The original and reissue Wheeler patents are involved.

Hazeltine, inventor of the neutrodyne receiving set, told the court this morning that his patent states that the invention relates to amplifiers used to modulate carrier current signaling systems. The amplifier, he said, is universally used as a three-electrode vacuum tube and its principle of operation involves the control of its output by electrical pressure or voltage impressed between its input electrodes which are grid and filament in ordinary tubes. The purpose of the patent is to control the volume of sound in a radio receiver within a narrow range instead of the wide range of variation, he testified.

Legitimate Theatre Broadcast Hits Snag

Equity Ass'n and the League of N. Y. Theatres both agreed to cooperate in the venture if acceptable program ideas capable of reviving public interest in and demand for the stage could be devised. Equity agreed to permit its members to appear on the programs without receiving compensation and the managers' organization indicated a willingness to aid in defraying the broadcasting charges. No acceptable program suggestions have been submitted up to now, however, and so far as could be learned the proposal is dormant for the time being, at least.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Reunion"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 10.—Story, production and player values are skillfully blended in "Reunion" to make a desirable attraction for exhibitors and audiences. Featuring the famous Dionne quintuplets in a way that the public likes to imagine them, the substantiating story is warm in human interest in which rich, homely humor, appealing pathos-tinged drama and intriguing topical incidents are intelligently combined.

Although several of "The Country Doctor" cast are present again and the locale is the same, the film emphatically is not a straight sequel to that picture. Rather, it is an engaging new and unique idea providing showmen with an ample opportunity to stimulate wide attention.

While John Qualen and Slim Summerville are again once more rivals for multiple paternity honors, the theme is the reunion of all the children brought into the world by Doctor Jean Hersholt. Thousands from every walk of life respond to his invitation. Many of them are facing great problems. As Hersholt was the man who brought them into life, he is looked to as the man who will adjust everything. In a kindly, understanding way he adjusts the menacing romantic problem involving Helen Vinson, Robert Kent and Rochelle Hudson. Returning Miss Vinson to her husband, Tom Moore, he assures marital happiness for Kent and Miss Hudson.

He makes it possible for Alan Dinehart, the governor, and his wife, Katherine Alexander, who are childless, to adopt George Ernest. He saves a passe actress, Esther Ralston, from suicide, marrying her to Jo Edward Bromberg. He almost reforms George Chandler, a pickpocket. Meanwhile he is devoted to his five most famous babies, who, in their big tea party scene, have a grand time cavorting in delightful childish manner. All is effected in a sincere and heart-warming manner.

As the film places in the hands of exhibitors a wealth of material for sock exploitation and delivers worthy entertainment for audiences, especially family patronage, it seems geared for box-office excitement.

Taking Bruce Gould's original which Sam Hellman, Gladys Lehman and Sonya Levien adapted, Norman Taurog directed with understanding and vision so that the full quality of all the elements involved reach the screen in a believable and pleasing fashion.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

All-Continent Writ Modified by Court

ATLANTIC CITY, Nov. 10.—Vice-Chancellor W. Frank Sooy today modified his restraining order against All-Continent Corp., the asserted Fox family trust, disposing of its assets. The modification will be "only to the extent necessary so that All-Continent may be free to carry on its ordinary business," until a further hearing Dec. 8.

Murry C. Becker, Fox attorney, said here today that the U. S. Supreme Court order that Fox pay a judgment of $235,082 to the Capital Co. of San Francisco or be jailed, "by no means ends the matter." The next probable step, he said, would be habeas corpus action.

Rosika Schwimmer, international peace advocate who conceived the idea of Henry Ford's futile "peace ship" in 1915, created a stir when she appeared in the hope of seeing Fox. She declared Upton Sinclair did her a grave injustice in his book, "Upton Sinclair Presents William Fox." However, Fox did not appear.

Los ANGELES, Nov. 10.—Asking that all prints and the negative of "San Francisco" be impounded until a Federal court judge can determine the merits of the complaint, Samuel Gornbein today filed suit against M-G-M and others.

Gornbein asserts that the defendants copied the musical composition entitled "Setting for Love," using it in the title song of the film. He also declared that the chorus of the composition and the chorus of "San Francisco" are identical. He asks an injunction, the restraint against further use of the composition and $250 damages for each entrenchment.

during the month preceding. This was in anticipation of the new contract with its terms which film companies found to be objectionable, being put into practice as scheduled. Although the Dramatists' Guild did not make public the actual number of plays bought last February in advance of the adoption of the new contract, it was admitted that the number was more than for February of 1935. No plays at all were sold during March and April of this year, the Guild's report set forth, but a few were sold in May and the number increased in June. July and August, and September sales were the heaviest for the current season.

The membership elected the regular list of nominees to the council for a three-year term. The new council members are George Abbott, Maxwell Anderson, Gene Buck, Russel Crouse, Owen Davis, Jules Eckert Goodman, Lillian Hellman, George Middleton, Bertrand Robinson and Samuel Spewack. Of the 30 members of the council, 10 are elected annually for three-year terms.

The members were acquainted by Miss Sillcox with current plans being fostered to revitalize the legitimate theatre nationally. Dramatists may contribute their plays to little theatre groups free of royalties as an aid to the movement, in which Actors Equity Ass'n, the League of N. Y. Theatres and other theatrical organizations are cooperating.

By the time the plan is adopted by the six additional exchanges there will be approximately 225 checkers and 10 supervisors on the payroll. There will be a supervisor for every branch with a top supervisor guiding the activities of the branch men.

While there are no immediate plans to expand the system, Schiller said that as soon as the work of setting up branches already planned is completed Cummings will assume full charge of the department.

Supervisors will make periodic trips to the territories to discuss details of the system, in addition to going over various ideas on product.

Another trip to cement the friendship and extend cooperation between the production, distribution, advertising and exploitation departments of the company and the exhibitor, who are regarded as M-G-M partners because of percentage arrangements in which the distributor shares in the receipts, is planned by William F. Rodgers, Howard Dietz and William R. Ferguson shortly after Rodgers returns from the west. He is due the latter part of the week.

A series of meetings with Warner and B. & K. heads was held recently in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Washington and Chicago, the results of which were found to be very favorable by M-G-M executives.

Rockefeller Claim Is Delaying RKO Moves

Failure of RKO reorganization principals to make definite progress on an agreement for the settlement or treatment of the Rockefeller Center claim of $9,100,000 against the film company continues to stand as a bar to further significant progress toward the completion of a reorganization plan for RKO, reliable sources reported yesterday.

The efforts to arrive at an agreement with Rockefeller Center are continuing, but reorganization factors are unwilling to hazard a guess as to when they might be completed. The status of the claim appears to be the major obstacle to the immediate completion of the plan. With the claim out of the way, indications are a plan might be put before the Federal court within a matter of days thereafter. There appears to be little likelihood, however, of an agreement being reached within the next week.

New Delay Seen for Roxy Reorganizing

Another delay is seen in the hearing on reorganization plans for the Roxy, scheduled for Friday before Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey. Carlos Israels of White & Case, attorneys for the first mortgage bondholders, has not completed negotiations for a lease on the theatre lobby.

Other matters have since cropped up to divert Israels' time from the reorganization, indicating he will seek from two to three weeks additional time when the case is called Nov. 13.

Made Naval Officer

New Orleans, Nov. 10.—Collector of Customs A. Miles Pratt, owner of the St. Charles, has been sworn in as lieutenant-commander in the United States Navy Reserve and has been presented an American flag and an eagle-tipped standard at ceremonies in his office at the Custom House.

The flag and standard were the deferred gifts of a committee which arranged a luncheon for him when he retired as acting mayor of New Orleans last summer.

will not agree to the use of the short form of contract or to the elimination of the score charge. It will take a stand against the forcing of shorts with features, against the granting of unfair clearance and against knowingly aiding an exhibitor in overbuying of product.

The Paramount statement on trade practices is in preparation and may be made public today or tomorrow. Replies to the national exhibitor organization on its proposed trade reforms are also expected almost daily from Twentieth Century-Fox, RKO and Columbia.

Chinese Government Bars Para's Films

SHANGHAI, Nov. 10.—Because it considered Paramount's reply unsatisfactory, the National Government at Nanking today barred importation of all of that company's product.

The Government originally demanded Paramount remove from and destroy world distribution of "The General Died at Dawn" and "Klondike Annie" which were viewed as "unsatisfactory."

Because Paramount's reply was deemed inadequate, the prohibition on all of its output was made public today.

Close in Md. Sunday

BALTIMORE, Nov. 10.—Theatres in Anne Arundel County as well as all dance places are closed Sundays on an order to the sheriff from the Grand Jury. Theatres in Annapolis and Glen Burnie, usually open Sundays with a portion of the proceeds going to charity, are closed.

Bans Insurance Plan

OMAHA, Nov. 10.—A proposal to establish a Bank Night insurance company by P. W. Downs was turned down here today by the Insurance Director. Downs says he intends to submit the proposal to the insurance departments of Iowa, Illinois, Missouri and Wisconsin.

subject. The reports of an impending change in name, moreover, have been recurrent for weeks.

News of the Day made its appearance at many Loew theatres in New York yesterday and was dropped into the regular programs of the Capitol and Loew's State. Aside from its introductory title, the reel impressed a MOTION PICTURE DAILY reporter who caught it at the State last night as essentially the newsreel under its former title. There were differences, however. He discovered no mention of Edwin C. Hill as the commentator and left the theatre with the definite impression that the voice of the narrator was not that of Hill.

News of the Day, as shown at the State where it runs four minutes, opened with several shots showing the return to the Capitol of President Roosevelt after his reelection, followed by scenes of the landing in Capetown of Jimmy Mollison, who made a solo flight from London, Secretary Hull prior to his departure to the Buenos Aires peace conference, while strikers picket the boat on which he sails; a shipwreck at Cornwall, England, King Edward VIII riding through the rainy streets of London en route to Parliament, insurgent troops marching on to Madrid, Mussolini in a fiery speech at Milan and the pigskin highlights of the Fordham-Purdue and Northwestern-Wisconsin games.

Canada Establishes Uniform Music Rate

TORONTO, Nov. 10.—The Dominion Government's music tax commission has prescribed the same rates for theatres as those agreed upon here Oct. 30 by representative Canadian theatre interests and E. C. Mills of Ascap, and Leslie Boosey of the British Performing Right Society. The action fully legalizes the rates agreed upon independently by the latter groups and, in addition, makes them applicable to all theatres in Canada.

Complaints against these rates may be made to the government commission during December and adjustments may be made if the complaints are found to be well grounded. The Government will make an official announcement of the 1937 rates about Jan. 1.

It was erroneously stated yesterday that the maximum music tax allowed by the Government rate commission was 12 cents a seat as compared with the 15 cents a seat tax agreed upon by the music licensing and theatre representatives earlier. It is now learned, however, that the Government commission's rates are the same in all respects as the others.

B. I. P. Seeks Operas

LONDON, Nov. 10.—W. Mycroft, director of production for B. I. P., is negotiating with D'Oyley Carte for the rights to the Gilbert and Sullivan comic operas, in competition with Paramount, which last week was reported negotiating for the shows.

New Central Depot For Film Delivery

With film delivery service companies in Philadelphia, Des Moines and Minneapolis having adopted the plan, George Callahan of Exhibitors Film Delivery Service in Pittsburgh will inaugurate a central shipping depot.

Horlacher's in Philadelphia was the the first to institute the central shipping plan with Isles & McKinney in Des Moines following. Charles McCarthy of Minneapolis put the idea into effect last week and it is understood M. Jamison of Kansas City will shortly bring the plan into that city.

Independent product in all of the key cities mentioned is being handled through the central depot. It is hoped to extend this service to major distributors.

James Clark, president of National Film Delivery Carriers, and also head of Horlacher's, leaves for the Quaker City today after a two-day visit. Callahan will return to Pittsburgh today after conferring with Clark here.

Censor in Maryland Wants Judge Named

BALTIMORE, Nov. 10.—Mrs. Harry T. Phoebus, member of the Maryland censor board, suggests that the name of any judge upsetting a censor board ban on a film should appear on the film instead of the board's seal.

Her suggestion is an aftermath of the action of Judge Joseph N. Ulman in upsetting the board's ban on "Girls for Sale."

State Senator Harry T. Phoebus, husband of the censor, says he will propose an amendment to the censor act providing for this change when the next legislature meets.

Legion Attacked in Ontario

TORONTO, Nov. 10.—O. J. Silverthorne, chairman of the Ontario Board of Censors, charged the Legion of Decency today with unfairness and inconsistency in the classification of films by placing features in the category "Unobjectionable for general patronage" when, in the opinion of official censors, some of these pictures are not suitable for children. On the other hand, said Silverthorne, some films classified as "Objectionable in part" were subsequently passed by his board for family patronage.

The chairman promised that the Ontario Government would publish its own listings in the daily press for the guidance of parents.

Cut Censor Secretary

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 10.—Abolition of the $600 annual salary paid George Hampel as secretary of the city film censor board has been voted by the board of estimate's examining committee. A raise to $960 had been asked. Mayor Hoan, a member of the board, may veto the elimination. He remarked that the board "can't expect to get anybody to do the secretary's work for nothing."

RKO Takes Wing Film

Ward Wing, Ltd., headed by Ward Wing, has completed arrangements with RKO for the distribution of "Tea Leaves in the Wind," which Wing will produce in India. A native cast will be supported by English and American players. Negotiations are under way to star Richard Dix in the film.

that reacts restlessly to ponderous and slow-arriving climaxes.

Now before you go into any brain cudgeling and endeavor to remember where you may have read these lines before, this is to tell you that, if they are familiar at all, you scanned them in this very space the morning after Gielgud's "Hamlet" opened at the Empire on the evening of Oct. 7. It struck this reviewer then and it strikes him so 34 nights later.

The whispers circulated the Imperial's lobby last night were that Howard was to emerge the victor in the inevitable comparison. This was after the first act during which genuine excitement reached out from the performing side of the footlights and gripped the audience. In the second act, it began to wane and to grasp its original hold once, at least, when Howard delivered the famous "to be or not to be" soliloquy. Certainly, at the moment he transcended Gielgud's interpretation. Whereas the earlier rendition impressed as too thoughtful and too lacking in intensity, Howard conveyed the fury of the burning fires that seared through Hamlet's brain after his father's ghost had bidden him to wreak vengeance.

Ending Is Strong

In dramatic value and in rising tempo, the Howard play regained lost ground again in the closing scene, where rapiers and poison take their toll and Hamlet is carried off on Viking war shields to the offstage accompaniment of drums and martial music. Yet, it could be argued and argued accurately that it would be a poor "Hamlet" indeed which failed to bestir its audience with such dramatic threads to spin into a final curtain.

Howard's Prince of Denmark was interesting, always intelligent, occasionally fiery yet sometimes failing to sufficiently impress. Wilfrid Walter was a generally good Claudius, barring occasional mouthing of his lines. Mary Servoss as the queen, this department thought, excelled Judith Anderson's interpretation in the Gielgud play. Pamela Stanley, as Ophelia, made a lovely picture, conveyed her madness well technically, but failed to arouse the wave of sympathy which the tragedy befalling her should have. Aubrey Mather's Polonius was one of the best characterizations of them all; yet Arthur Byron's parallel role in the Gielgud play, to this way of thinking, was superior.

Mounting Is Flawless

While these things have been said about the cast, there is nothing but the most lavish of praise to offer for the settings and costumes designed by Stewart Chaney and the richness in pageantry, pomp and lighting with which the production is invested. On those scores, magnificent is the word.

Bad throats were common last night. The audience coughed, hissed and presumably spat, in the polite manner, of course, all through the evening. There are those who will tell you quickly enough that audiences forget about those incidentals when there is enough of what it takes on the stage to capture their attention and keep it unwaveringly riveted.

Luncheon Series to Aid Charity Drive

In an effort to raise the $200,000 amusement quota for the annual drive of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies a series of luncheons is to be started next Wednesday. The first will be at the Hotel Edison.

Albert Warner, co-chairman of the committee in charge, says the idea is to tell what the federation is trying to do. David Bernstein is the other co-chairman.

Among those who attended a meeting yesterday to discuss the plan were: Leo Brecher, J. J. Bregman, Jules Brulatour, Irving Caesar, Jack Cohn, Sam Dembow, Jr., Leopold Friedman, Leon Goldberg, Jules Levy, Jack Milstein, Sam E. Morris, Dan Michalove, Phil Reisman, Budd Rogers, Louis K. Sidney, Steve Trilling, A. P. Waxman, Alex Yokel, H. Lerber, Max Rudnick and Red Kann.

Loew's Stays at Astor

Loew's has taken a four-month extension on the Astor, the new lease with City Investing Co. giving the circuit possession of the house until May 1. Twentieth Century-Fox has entered into a temporary lease with Loew's for the showing of "Lloyds of London." Following this, M-G-M is scheduled to present "The Good Earth."

To Announce G. N. Plans

Grand National's foreign plans will be announced tomorrow by Jack C. Barnstyn at a special luncheon to be attended by the foreign and domestic trade press. Reporters will first meet at Barnstyn's office and then go to a restaurant to be designated later.

Sloan Planning for 4 More at Detroit

DETROIT, Nov. 10.—Saul Sloan, Detroit real estate man and contractor, who built the Alger and Norwest and leased them to United Detroit Theatres, and who is now building the Radio City, a 1,500-seater, in Ferndale, local suburb, has announced plans for four additional houses in the metropolitan area.

Sloan will make his debut as an exhibitor, operating the new Ferndale house in conjunction with William Schulte, of the Schulte circuit.

One of the additional theatres will be a 3,200-seat house and the other three about 1,700 seats each.

Sherwood on "Polo"

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 10.—Robert E. Sherwood has been signed to work on the screenplay for "The Adventures of Marco Polo," which Samuel Goldwyn and Douglas Fairbanks will produce with Gary Cooper starred.

Bill Scott Recovering

Johnston Organizes Holding Corporation

W. Ray Johnston has organized Sterling Pictures Corp. in Delaware as a holding company for his new producing and distribution enterprise. It will control the stock in the distributing company; in Sterling Prod., Inc., the California producing unit, and in Sterling International Corp., the foreign subsidiary.

Whether the name Monogram will be retained for the distributing company, or whether it will be merged or absorbed by the new company will be decided at a meeting of Monogram stockholders in December at Chicago.

Working capital has been obtained, it is stated, and the public will not be asked to participate.

Johnston says applications for distribution have been received from Great Britain and other sections of the British Empire, Brazil, Argentina, Holland, Belgium and Australia and that negotiations are being held up pending the completion of organization plans.

Twenty-five story properties have been acquired.

Johnston has gone to the coast for a vacation trip and will visit the Texas Centennial on the return trip.

Capital MPTO Again Headed by Brylawski

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—A. Julian Brylawski was elected today to serve his 10th term as president of the M.P.T.O. of the District of Columbia. Other reelections were: Sidney B. Lust, vice-president and delegate to the national convention; Dr. William B. Herbst, treasurer, and Nat B. Browne, secretary.

The organization went on record as approving the screening of postoffice and social security trailers.

Fishman for Allied Board

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 10.—Allied Theatres of Connecticut, Inc., today elected Dr. J. B. Fishman as representative of the unit on the national Allied board. Nathan Yamins, Sidney Samuelson, Arthur Howard and Frank Leyden spoke.

Resolutions were passed protesting Victor McLaglen's leadership of the Light Horse, which was described as a "militaristic organization."

At a closed meeting, Charles Williams, president, appointed a committee consisting of Walter Creal of Omaha, Dick Kerberg of Sheldon, Ia. and Dale Goldie of Cherokee, Ia. to draft resolutions for presentation at the closing session tomorrow.

10-Year Agreement Calls For Wage Increase

An agreement has been reached among Local 306, the Allied Union and the I.T.O.A., headed by Harry Brandt, by which the Allied Union will be absorbed into Local 306, the I.A.T.S.E. and A.F.L. affiliate, and the theatre owners will grant a 25 per cent wage increase to Allied projectionists. The agreement, which was a signed arrangement, and described as an "agreement to agree," was arrived at following a lengthy conference under the guidance of the Mayor's board of survey at the office of Howard S. Cullman in the Roxy.

The agreement will be for a period of 10 years, it is understood, and will provide for the absorption of the entire membership of Allied into Local 306.

The initial step in the move toward eventual peace in the jurisdictional fight took place yesterday, when three houses, the Windsor, Sutter and Flatbush, in Brooklyn, were manned by 306 men in place of Allied members.

It was pointed out yesterday that

The suit was instituted by Hector

Radio-Film Tilt to Coast; WPA Troupes Get NBC Time

Means of controlling the appearances of film stars on radio programs to lessen competition with theatres and interference with production schedules will be left to Hollywood to devise, in the opinion of responsible home office executives who were queried yesterday.

New York executives are fully aware of the seriousness of the problems which can result from unregulated broadcasting activities of studio personalities, but most of them appear to be convinced that no inflexible Negotiations which began five months ago between the Radio Division of the Federal Theatre Project in New York and National Broadcasting for a WPA program over the latter chain were completed last night at a secret meeting presided over by John S. 16 Pictures Rejected in Year in N.Y.

ALBANY, Nov. 11.—Only 16 films were finally rejected entirely, out of 1,902 reviewed by the Motion Picture Division of the N. Y. State Education Dep't. during the year ended June 30, 1936, according to the annual report of Irwin Esmond, director of the division to Frank P. Graves, Commissioner of Education. The film division of the department is the state censor.

In all, 19 pictures were rejected initially, but three were later approved after revisions. Eliminations were made in 180 films upon statutory grounds, the report revealed. In addition to the 16 films finally rejected in

Industry Will Shy Off Code To Await Law

Official participation by the industry in preliminary efforts to revive labor and trade practice codes under the supervision of Federal industrial agencies is unlikely, in the opinion of industry observers. However, in the event enabling legislation is enacted by Congress after it convenes next January, the industry undoubtedly would participate in any move to draft enforceable wage and hour provisions or an effective code of trade practices, it is believed.

Industry opinion shows no indications of being averse to the revival of some of the basic aims of its NRA code. Independent efforts, even, were

This wearisome observer of the drama does not indulge in bridge. In the first place, he has too many plays to catch before they fold on their way to Cain's. Secondly, he has contemplated some of his inner circle wax batty and yell queer noises when four spades or something like it cry out to be made. No student of Culbertson and, as a consequence, a decided social problem, he does, nevertheless understand that a seven no trump bid is like scaling Olympus. He also recalls vaguely that this is referred to as a grand slam. But the Casper Milquetoast hero of "Double Dummy," last night's debutante at the Golden does it—on the stage. The rest of the evening was not even a little slam, but a couple of measly clubs.

This play by Tom McKnight and Doty Hobart seeks to capitalize on the popular American pastime, so usually relied upon by hosts and hostesses everywhere to tide over their own and their guests' social delinquencies.

In a vehicle made up of two acts, 19 scenes, blackouts that are funny and some of which are strained to the last ineffectual dregs, the central character, played adequately enough by John McGovern, carries an aura

Conciliation Boards Likely To Be Started

Seven Majors Expected To Approve Plan

The establishment of local conciliation boards as proposed under the M.P.T.O.A.'s 10-point trade practice program appears assured with indications that seven major distributors will approve the project and cooperate in bringing them into being. The cooperation of only four major companies would be sufficient to assure their establishment, exhibitor spokesmen assert.

The organization of the boards would be undertaken locally with nominated exhibitor and branch manager representation, according to current ideas. The number of board members, their selection and the type of complaint or problem which could be placed before them, all appear to be matters which are destined to be determined in individual local situations. Even the question of whether or not an exchange center is to have one of the boards will be left for local determination. Palpably, no attempt can be made to foist a conciliation board on an unwilling locality as their functions, findings and effectiveness will

With the opening of "Come and Get It," the Rivoli yesterday tipped its "early bird" admission to 40 cents, a five cent increase over the former price. "The Big Broadcast of 1937" tallied $32,000 on the third week at the Paramount. "Polo Joe" garnered about $7,000, while "Ladies in Love" in its second stanza at the Rivoli took in around $14,000.

New Tax Regulations Applied to Brokers

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—An amendment of the regulations governing the reporting and payment of admission taxes to require separate returns on tickets sold at prices in excess of the established price was announced today by the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

A special form has been provided for brokers for this purpose, to be attached to their monthly returns.

The revised regulations also require that all theatres and other places of amusement shall keep separate records of all tickets sold to brokers or others.

With the special reports from theatres, revenue agents will be given additional facilities for checking on the activities of brokers and other re-sellers of tickets.

The new regulations were adopted as a means of preventing tax evasions by re-sellers, on which, it is said, there has been considerable complaint.

Industry Will Shy Off Code To Await Law

launched within the industry following the demise of the NRA to salvage some of the code's better features with a view to continuing them in force if legal means of doing so could be found. After a study of the situation by an industry committee of which J. Robert Rubin of M-G-M was chairman, however, the efforts were abandoned because of the complete lack of enforcement provisions for any trade agreements which might be legally devised. The situation existing then has not altered since and is not likely to until the Administration's industrial aims have been defined and brought to realization through an enabling act by Congress, it is pointed out by industry authorities.

The theory now being advanced that the Federal Trade Commission could take over either the administrative or enforcement functions for industrial codes is of a wholly unofficial character, as the commission is without power to act along these lines until means have been devised of giving it new grants of authority.

Enforcement Question Paramount

It is this situation which prompted the industry to take no official part in the last conference called by Major George L. Berry of the Council of Industrial Progress and which will more than likely govern its official attitude toward the new conference now being arranged by Berry, it was said. Several thousand invitations will be dispatched to industrial leaders by Berry within the next week and the film industry will be included among them, but regardless of the significance of such an overture, industry leaders are unanimous in the belief that nothing material is possible of accomplishment until Congress has convened and acted on a definite Administration program for industry.

Berry Office Issues Statement

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Members of the film industry will be given another opportunity to join in the work of the National Council for Industrial Progress, created last year by Major George L. Berry, President Roosevelt's coordinator for industrial cooperation, to develop a successor to NRA, it was said today at Berry's office.

Invitations were issued to the industry last year to attend the meetings at which the organization was projected, but the companies failed to take an active interest in the plan. Invitations will again be extended so that the industry may have an opportunity to participate in the deliberations of the council.

The meeting will be held in the early part of December, but no date has yet been set, nor have announcements gone out. At the forthcoming conference, it is planned to consider and adopt reports which have been prepared by various committees set up a year ago.

The council is composed chiefly of labor representatives with a few independents from small industries. The first meeting last year broke up in a row when some of the delegates objected to Berry's steam-roller methods, and the labor and independent group got together and formed the council, on which big business has been conspicuous by its absence.

the First Division pictures being liquidated by the latter. It was estimated that the stock and film interest figured at around $1,000,000. Pathe distributed to its stockholders as dividends most of the 400,000 shares, and Grand National has completed liquidating the outstanding First Division contracts.

Frank F. Kolbe, a director and former president of Pathe, recently resigned as a director of Grand National. Robert W. Atkins recently denied he would quit the Grand National board, but the report persists.

Pathe on Monday issued a financial report for the 39 weeks ended Sept. 26, which showed a net profit of $24,687, after taxes and other items. Net profit from its laboratory operations aggregated $92,950.81, while an additional revenue of $46,898.69 was returned from film rentals.

Officials of the company yesterday denied any plans were on foot to either re-enter production or finance production.

Dan Frankel has been officially appointed sales manager for Pathe. He has been supervising sales of laboratory work for some time without title.

there are a great many details of the arrangement still to be worked out. This is being done by representatives of the two unions and the I.T.O.A. With reference to the report that unemployed members of Allied will not be taken into 306, it was emphatically stated that "every member of Allied will be taken care of."

This initial arrangement does not take into account the Empire union, the third of the three organizations. Another meeting at Cullman's office, probably on Friday, will take up that phase of the problem. Approximately 85 theatres employ Empire members, about 300 use 306 men and approximately 120 have employed Allied members.

Pending the outcome of the negotiations by the Mayor's board, and pending the final settlement of the situation, all picketing by Allied and 306 members has been abandoned.

A statement issued yesterday by the survey board, of which Sam A. Lewisohn is chairman, and Cullman and William Collins are other members, noted that the settlement effects 537 out of 587 theatres in Greater New York.

Lewisohn and Brandt Concur

Lewisohn said: "A sound basis has been laid for bringing about better conditions of employment and the discontinuance of disputes between the two unions which have in the past caused considerable inconvenience to the public. The commission will continue its investigation and make all efforts to bring a small minority into a similar understanding and thus ensure lasting peace."

Harry Brandt, although he had no comment to make on the details of the agreement, said: "Anything done to bring about a permanent peace is a good thing. I think the commission is a very knowing one and the cooperation of the Mayor himself has been very good."

It is understood that the agreement will also include a provision that a two-men-in-a-booth arrangement will be substituted for the present basis of one man to each machine.

Conciliation Boards Likely To Be Started

be completely dependent upon voluntary action.

It is assumed at the outset by the champions of the boards that not all exchange centers will have one. In some territories, local conditions do not warrant their establishment and in others, local opposition may prevent their establishment. Once approved by at least four major companies, however, steps could be taken at once to organize a board in any locality which desired one.

The M.P.T.O.A. anticipates that complaints of overbuying or inability to obtain sufficient product will be the most numerous to be presented to the boards for action. Unreasonable clearance, cut-throat competitive tactics and non-theatrical competition are also expected to be brought before the boards for consideration in large volume. Many such complaints will involve grievances between exhibitors only and, having no bearing on contractual terms, solutions could be attempted immediately. This is pointed out by the boards' champions merely to demonstrate that the boards could become operative immediately.

Cooperation Essential

The boards' findings will not be enforceable and their utility and effectiveness will depend largely upon the ability of the board members to bring together the principals involved in a complaint and assist in the adjustment of their differences. The extent to which branch and home office cooperation is forthcoming, once solutions have been agreed upon between the parties to a complaint, particularly in the case of overbuying adjustments, also will go far toward spelling the success or failure of the boards. The effectiveness of the boards will be dependent in most cases on a sense of fairness in the disputants and the powers of persuasion of the board members, M.P.T.O.A. officials admit.

Midwest M.P.T.O.A. Ends Meet

OMAHA, Nov. 11.—Asserting that their efforts to obtain justice from distributors have been futile, members of the M.P.T.O.A. of Nebraska and Western Iowa concluded their meeting here with resolutions stating:

(1) We will help to enact the Pettingill Bill or any other national legislation which will assure us the operation of our theatres at a reasonable profit and make it possible to show desirable pictures.

(2) We hold that broadcasting by film stars is detrimental to theatre owners and ask that the practice be discontinued between the hours of 7 P. M. to 10 P. M.

All officers of the organization, including Charles Williams, were carried over until an election is held following the meeting of the Legislature in January.

Silent on "Court" Criticism

J. Walter Thompson Co., advertising agency handling the "Good-Will Court" program and Standard Brands, sponsors of the program on behalf of Chase and Sanborn coffee, yesterday refused to comment on the report of the New York County Lawyers' Ass'n attacking the show.

Recently the board of directors of the association designated a special committee to investigate the workings of the "Good-Will Court," air program. The committee assailed it for its "exploitation of private woes."

Recommendation was made that the Appellate Division of the New York State court system adopt a rule making it illegal for an attorney to "advise inquirers or render an opinion to them through, or in connection with, a publicity medium of any kind in respect to their specific problems, whether or not such attorney shall be compensated for his service."

This series, incidentally, has been a headache to Young and Rubicam ever since the agency contracted Wynn to star on the program. It's an open secret along Radio Row that Wynn has been trying to be relieved of his contract, due to ill health and worry over domestic matters. Only last week a confab is reported to have taken place at Wynn's hotel, with lawyers from the agency, client, and the comedian's attorney arguing it out. Confab ended with Wynn reputedly resigned to the fact that he must go on with the show.

His Favorite

Jack Benny asked Kenny Baker the other night who his favorite film star is.
"Tallulah Bank Night," replied Kenny.

Colgate Preparing New Show

Colgate-Palmolive-Peet, through its advertising agency, Benton and Bowles, is now auditioning acts for a new air series. Over the weekend, company officials listened to competing comic acts furnished by Sam ("Schlepperman") Hearn, and Pick and Pat, Negro dialect comedians. Al Goodman's orchestra has been signed to provide music for the act winning the assignment. The new program will begin sometime after Jan. 1, with time and network still undecided. At present, Colgate is sponsoring three network shows—Community Sing, Goose Creek Parson, and Gang Busters—all on CBS.

"Stainless Show" Now

Allegheny Steel Corp. yesterday closed for a new NBC program to be known as the "Stainless Show" (even NBC workers grin at mention of the title.) Starting date is Nov. 27, 7:15 to 7:30 P.M., E.S.T., over a coast-to-coast Blue network hook-up.

WPA Troupes To Go on an NBC Network

will probably be released in a few days.

The program tentatively has been assigned to the NBC-Blue network, 9 to 10 P. M., E.S.T., beginning next Wednesday, and weekly thereafter. Competing for listeners' attention during this period are the programs of Fred Allen over the NBC-Red network, and the Chesterfield and Palmolive-Peet Community Sing offerings, both heard on the CBS network. The latter shows star Nino Martini, Andre Kostelanetz, and Homer Rodeheaver, respectively.

Road units comprising talent heard on the program will be sent on tour, it was definitely determined at last night's meeting. It is almost certain that the units will play film houses, as an adjunct, just as the Major Bowes and Rudy Vallee stage units are now doing. The NBC artist bureau will book the units at the usual fee. Actors selected for road work will be taken off the WPA payroll and will receive salaries conforming to regular road unit standards.

Niblo As M. C.

Fred Niblo, former film director, will be master of ceremonies on the radio program. Niblo, however, is under exclusive NBC management, and will not be identified as a WPA artist.

Efforts are being made by the NBC sales department to sell the program commercially. WPA players assigned to the program will receive a sum no lower than $15 and no higher than the regular WPA salary scale, $23.80, for their stints.

Casts will be completely turned over each week and the compensation received for a radio performance will supplement and not supplant the sum paid WPA artists, unless the performer is assigned to a road unit.

It is understood that the program also will offer opportunities to unemployed actors not on the WPA payroll. Only professional talent will be utilized.

Boldest Venture of WPA

Music for the series will be provided by a regular NBC house band, which will be paid regular union wages.

The new series unquestionably is the most elaborate and ambitious radio program yet attempted by the WPA. At present the only other WPA network program is a 15-minute offering called "Department of Education Series" and heard Mondays over the CBS network from 4 to 4:15 P. M., E.S.T. The series is sponsored by the Federal Dept. of Education, but the actors are WPA recruits and are paid by the Works Progress Administration. Many other WPA radio series, ranging in time from 15 minutes to an hour, are now being broadcast.

Discuss Club in N. H.

New Haven, Nov. 11.—Formation of a social group along the lines of a Variety Club was discussed here last night at a meeting of members of the Connecticut M. P. T. O.

Joan Superstitious

Hollywood, Nov. 11.—Joan Bennett talked NBC into switching dates for her interview by Elsa Schallert because she is superstitious about Friday, the 13th, on which date the broadcast was scheduled.

George Raft isn't, however, because he's been penciled in for that date and the actress has been moved up to Nov. 20 for her quiz.

Radio—Films Clash Seen as Coast Problem

code can be drawn to govern all cases involving a clash of interests between the film and radio industries and that individual solutions must be sought for individual cases. The belief is expressed that Hollywood, where most of the broadcasting programs featuring film stars originate, is the proper place to attempt such solutions.

Indications are that only the most general understandings and agreements affecting the participation of film stars in radio activities can be worked out between the two industries. Specific broadcasting programs will continue to present specific problems which no underlying agreement can be made to cover, New York executives believe. Largely because of this they express the belief that every broadcast of a film program which suggests a competitive aspect of serious proportions would have to be discussed and dealt with by coast radio officials, representing both the networks and program sponsors, and the studio officials involved, who would, of course, be free to consult with representatives of any branch of the industry which might also be affected by the broadcasts contemplated.

Discussions on Coast Likely

No further meetings of industry executives have been scheduled with radio representatives in the east and doubts were expressed by those queried yesterday as to whether any would be called unless some urgent problem of serious proportions or some significant remedial proposal developed. It appears much more likely, however, that any new meeting of representatives of the two industries will occur in Hollywood, either for the purpose of advancing general underlying agreements governing the appearance of film stars on the air, or to consider complaints against and rulings governing specific broadcast plans of far-reaching industry significance.

Norma Shearer Gaining

Hollywood, Nov. 11. — Norma Shearer, well recovered from her attack of bronchial pneumonia, will leave for the desert this week to recuperate. Her two children, Irving Thalberg, Jr., and Katherine Thalberg, will accompany her. Miss Shearer has not left her Santa Monica home since the funeral of her husband.

toto, 1,452 eliminations of scenes, subtitles or dialogue were ordered. The statutory reasons for the eliminations were classified by the censor as follows: Indecent, 522; immoral or tending to corrupt morals, 275; tending to incite to crime, 496; inhuman, 101; sacrilegious, 58.

In the previous year, nine films were rejected in toto out of a total of 1,737 reviewed. Eliminations totaling 1,868 were ordered made in 225 films in the 1934-35 period.

A total of 9,366 reels were reviewed by the censor during the year, or more than 9,000,000 feet of film. The net revenue to the state for the year amounted to $204,202.21. Receipts for the year were $269,931.20, and expenditures were $65,728.99. Since the organization of the censor board in 1921, the total net profit for the state over all expenditures has been $2,070,382.64, the report stated.

During the year five appeals were taken to Graves from the action of the censor. In all cases the censor was sustained.

Esmond recommended that additional reviewers and inspectors be employed to supplement the present staff of four reviewers and five inspectors.

The report noted that the number of foreign films submitted for review increased during the year by more than 50 per cent over the previous year.

To Appeal Argentine Distributor Verdict

Sentence was suspended against Cristobal Solari, legal representative of the group, and held responsible for its acts. Judge Artemio Moreno also ruled that the association lacks legal authorization to function in Argentina. Both aspects of the court decision will be appealed, it was indicated.

China Film Ban Action Started

Industry and State Dep't efforts are reported to be under way to win reconsideration by the Chinese National Government of its recent banning of Paramount pictures from that country. The ban resulted from the Nanking Government's displeasure over the continuation of distribution of "The General Died at Dawn" and "Klondike Annie," both of which it had objected to.

Officials of the Paramount foreign department said yesterday that the matter was now in the hands of the M. P. P. D. A. and the State Dep't and that an amicable understanding was hoped for.

See No G. B. Meet Before Next Month

By BRUCE ALLAN

London, Nov. 11.—The adjourned meeting of the stockholders of Gaumont British is considered unlikely to be resumed before some time in December at the earliest. The consolidated financial statement has not yet been published, and its appearance must precede the formal summons to stockholders.

The meeting held last week developed into a heated series of criticisms leveled at the G. B. board of directors, with respect to the deal for American purchase of G. B. control, and of the inadequacy of the financial report issued shortly before the meeting.

Film Sale to Canada Up 183% Since Pact

Washington, Nov. 11.—An increase of 183 per cent in the exportation of photographic films to Canada as a result of the reciprocal trade agreement which became effective Jan. 1 last, was claimed by the State Dep't today in an analysis of trade during the first six months under the pact.

Exports of films from January to June, it was said, were valued at $+12,000 (Canadian currency) against $229,000 for the same period last year. The department also asserted that exports of radio apparatus and tubes increased 415 per cent, shipments on which were $1,004,000 this year against $629,000 in 1935. The figures cited by the department were compiled from official Canadian statistics.

Hepburn Contradicts Silverthorne

Premier Hepburn declared that it is not the function of the Government's censors to classify pictures and added that the board will cooperate to the fullest extent with organizations aiming at proper censoring.

POTENTIAL

OF the 29,066,72 young Americans in school this year, a survey, made by FORTUNE and widely published by the U. S. cinema trade press, estimates that only 56.4% attend motion picture theaters once a week. Biggest potential then for the development of regular patrons is the remaining 43.6% eager to go but discouraged by the unwarranted disapproval of U. S. cinema fare by parents and teachers.

MARCH OF TIME, heir to TIME's long popularity as an authoritative textbook in U. S. schools, for more than a year has experimented with school cooperation to overcome this condition. In widely scattered areas pioneering exhibitors have proved to their own satisfaction the box-office value of MARCH OF TIME's school tie-up.

reminiscent of the central character in "Three Men on a Horse," the sport making up the difference. He finds it's better with his shoes off and, lest there be any misapprehension about what this refers to, it appears he can apply mathematical principle to the solution of bridge and the besting of his opponent minus his Whitehouse and Hardys. There is a mad and generally fast-moving tempo with the cast running up, down and along the stage from the orchestra, police officers who, satirically enough, drop protection of the citizenry for bridge and eventual victory for the Milquetoast McGovern as the winner of the Champion Bridge Game of the Universe and Martha Sleeper, an attractive miss, once of Hollywood and likely material for a return engagement there.

Humorous Only in Spots

The story is involved, long, farcical and frequently funny and furious, but not quite furious enough. That may or may not be because of the fast clip established at the outset. This purveyor simply knows and reports to you now that it does slither off into waltz time too often for its good and for the amusement of the audience. There are funny lines and funny situations, but those lines, also the situations, are asked to reach further than their maximum fun value can consistently go.

Nevertheless, "Double Dummy" is film material if it's a comedy on bridge which the Hollywood master minds determine their public will countenance. It's almost worthwhile recommending for the fun coast executives will have working out the script.

"Four to Go"

A pitiful little attempt at comedy is this week punishing the boards at the Boulevard of the subway circuit in Jackson Heights, although only the author and producer could possibly know why. The title is "Four to Go."

It is, says the program, "a comedy of youth and Hollywood," which, analyzed by the result as played, breaks down into "comedy" which is so ineffectual as to sadden the viewer; "youth" which can be nothing more than the maiden effort of the second year in a dramatic school, and "Hollywood" which is wholly ridiculous.

John Byron Totten is the producer, and one Aimee Torriani authored the piece. The cast of youngsters tries its best to be actors and actresses, but they all have a long, long way to go—if they ever reach there.

Briefly, four young extra girls live together in a Hollywood bungalow and as one of them meets an old love almost simultaneously with her engagement to a new one, the other three girls fumble pointless and unclever dialogue, which in its attempts to be sophisticated, succeeds only in being childish.

For the films? They throw out things like this by the dozen every day.

In all, it was a sad evening in Jackson Heights.

VOL. 40. NO. 115 NEW YORK, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1936 TEN CENTS

See 50-Cent Dividend On Para. Common

Would Be First Payment Since June, 1935

A dividend of 50 cents a share on Paramount's common stock for the third quarter is anticipated in financial circles, it was learned yesterday.

Payment of the dividend would be the first to be made on the company's stock since its emergence from reorganization in June, 1935. With the prior dividend requirements of $1.50 on the first preferred and 15 cents on the second preferred the company's indicated dividend disbursements would amount to approximately $1,300,000 for the quarter.

Accumulated dividends on the first preferred will amount to $12 a share at the year's end and to $1.20 a share on the second preferred. Year-end action on clearing up the arrears on both issues, probably in line with moves to reduce the company's undistributed profits taxes, is also regarded as likely in financial quarters. If earnings are maintained at the same rate during 1937 as for the third and current quarter of this year, a dividend of $3 to $4 on the common would

"U" Has a 39-Week Loss of $812,475

Universal Pictures Co., Inc., reports a net loss of $812,475.90 for the 39 weeks ending Aug. 1. Because of a change in accounting policy for foreign subsidiaries the results of 30 weeks of foreign operations are included in this total. Also included are the results of 16 subsidiaries for 34 weeks and a share of the revenue from English distribution for 37 weeks.

If the results of foreign operations had been included for the full 39-week period the consolidated loss for the period would have been $600,815.01, the company states.

"Like It" $59,000 in Music Hall Week

"As You Like It" ended a week's run at the Music Hall with a mild $59,000. Armistice Day had a lot to do with boosting the figure to the final tally. The Roxy likewise was off with "Girl on the Front Page," which garnered an indifferent $32,000.

The Rialto took in about $7,000 on "Without Orders." At the Palace a double bill, "Give Me Your Heart,"

Berry to Call Business Men To Conference

Small Success Likely for NRA Revival Move

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Invitations to attend the annual meeting of the National Council for Industrial Progress, sponsored by Major George L. Berry, President Roosevelt's coordinator for industrial cooperation, will be sent out this week, it was stated here today. The meetings will be held Dec. 10 and 11.

All of the groups, industries and agencies invited to attend the meetings a year ago will be offered a new opportunity to participate in Berry's attempt to revive some of the principles of the NRA, but in view of the dissension which marked the 1935 conference and which resulted in the withdrawal of practically all of the large industries, it is not expected that business generally will accept the invitation.

The paramount business of the conference, Berry said, will be to outline

No Film Matters to Come Up at AFL Meet

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—No matters involving films are scheduled to come up for consideration at the Tampa convention of the American Federation of Labor next week, it was said today at A. F. of L. headquarters here.

While there are labor difficulties in the industry in New York, it was explained, they are of such recent origin that unless brought up from the floor they will not be discussed. This will be the first convention of the Officials of Chase National Bank yesterday intimated a second dividend probably will be declared shortly by National Theatres, holding company for Fox West Coast, Intermountain Theatres, Fox Midwest, Fox Wisconsin, Evergreen States and other theatre subsidiaries.

The initial dividend, reported yesterday in Motion Picture Daily, was a 75 cent per share declaration, to the end of October and was paid immediately.

Ampa Is Seen As At Its Last Gasp

The end of the Associated Motion Picture Advertisers is in sight. Only a suddenly revived interest of the membership can resuscitate this oldest publicists' organization in the film business, now gasping its last.

Moved by the apparent unconcern of the membership at large, expressed by their otherwise unexplained failure to answer an urgent plea to attend yesterday's meeting in order to determine the Ampa's future, the nine members and five officers present

Hirliman Combining With A. Van Beuren

A. H. Van Beuren and George Hirliman are bringing to a close negotiations for a combination of their interests in a new production company to be known as Continental Pictures. There will be a public sale of stock.

The present Hirliman activities, which include distribution contracts for a George O'Brien series through RKO and a second group through Grand National, will in no wise be affected. Van Beuren will produce shorts under the new setup, probably continuing release through RKO.

Allied Brands MPTOA Moves As a Maneuver

Aimed at Booking Bill, Bulletin Asserts

Allied States, national independent exhibitor organization, views "the obvious purpose" of M.P.T.O.A.'s 10-point trade practice program to be an attempt to "sidetrack the Neely-Pettengill anti-block booking bill," which Allied is again mustering its forces to have passed at the coming session of Congress.

In a bulletin distributed to its members yesterday, Allied reviews the laborious progress of the M.P.T.O.A. trade practice program and traces its origin to hearings on the Neely-Pettengill bill before the House and Senate committees last winter.

"C.C. Pettijohn, M.P.P.D.A. general counsel, and Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, came forward with the suggestion that all the trade abuses which had been brought into the open at the committee hearings could and would be rectified within the industry as a result of a proposed series of conferences between Kuykendall and executives of the major producer-distributors," the Allied bulletin states. "The committees were assured, in effect, that if action on

Off-Color Play, in Gallic Manner, of No Film Worth

All of them—Grace George, A. E. Matthews, Rex O'Malley, Sylvia Field, Jose Ruben—did very nicely indeed last night. It was a comedy called "Matrimony, Pfd.," strictly in the Gallic manner and so in the highly sophisticated manner. It happened also to be strictly and exactly what cannot be done under the production code. No manner of whitewashing would help and the endeavor would not be worth the bother, nor would the results justify the effort.

For the play at the Playhouse, the citadel of William A. Brady, deals with affairs of the heart and how Miss George, after her son has waited 29 years for legitimacy, finally weds Matthews, the last of her quartet of guardsmen. That son, played by O'Malley, who looks like and gestures

On the Log, the Winnah! In the Water, the Losa-ah!

By J. M. JERAULD

Monroe Greenthal's boys put it over—that log-rolling contest. And the champeen won!

On Monday the log was too big to get into the Park Central pool, but yesterday it was just right. The log-rollers did it with adzes, a bucket of paint, two bolts and some exercise. They split the log in half and launched it into the chlorinated Park Central billows without mishap. Then they used adzes—that's a form of axe—to reduce its girth. Some call it circumference, but it's the same thing. Then they painted it light green to blend with the Park Central pool walls, with a couple of red stripes to keep the contestants separated.

The contest was scheduled for 3 o'clock, but was postponed to 4 o'clock. At 4:35 Charlie Leonard and Ken O'Brien got the mermaids and men swimmers out of the pool and the log, which was tied beneath the springboards, was unloosed.

Bill Delyea, the champion log-roller, from Coeur D'Alene, Idaho, took the north end and Harry Wilson, the challenger, took the other end—meaning south.

Footwork, Plus

It's quite a sport. One man dances, waves his arms, runs like mad without going any place, and the other man runs, too. Then they stop, glare at each other, makes some swift motions with the feet and start running the other way. They dance. In eight minutes Wilson hit the water.

The crowd yelled for a return engagement. This one lasted six minutes and the champion won again.

It's quite a sport. If they'd had a moose calling to its absent mate, and a bald eagle flying around the balconies it would have been just like the great outdoors.

On the front of the boys' sweat shirts were the words "Come and Get It." This may have had something to do with a United Artists' picture.

Leonard Goes Arty

Charlie Leonard has had his suit dyed—the one with the little white spots his friends tried to brush off. James Cagney's missus brought the cloth over from Scotland and gave it to Charlie.

Charlie took it to a Scotch dyer who tried to convince him that it would be sacrilegious to have the color changed, but Charlie insisted.

Most of the suit is now dark brown, but what used to be white specks are now red, so Charlie is wearing a maroon shirt to make it look like an ensemble.

Grand National Sets Japanese Deal for 34

Grand National has closed for the distribution of 34 features in Japan, Jack Barnstyn, head of the company's foreign department, stated yesterday at a press conference. Deals are under way with companies in five other countries, he said, but was not inclined at the moment to reveal the names of the companies.

M-G-M has the South American distribution rights to three George Hirliman color films, "Devil on Horseback," "Captain Calamity" and "We're in the Legion Now." The Japanese deal is for one year, Barnstyn said.

Grand National has closed product deals with three Ohio circuits, Lefkowitch-Greenberger, Smith and Beidler and Charnas.

MELBOURNE, Oct. 20 (Via Air Mail).—A notable gesture of good will towards the industry in the United States was the luncheon tendered to Walter J. Hutchinson, general foreign manager of Twentieth Century-Fox, by J. A. Lyons, Prime Minister of Australia, during the former's visit to the Federal capital at Canberra. Stanley S. Crick, managing director of Twentieth Century-Fox in Australia, and Charles E. Munro, managing director of Hoyts, were also guests. Newspapers stated that it was given as means of further cementing friendly relationships between Australia and America, and as a mark of courtesy and token of goodwill towards three men who had done much towards the development of the industry in this country.

Scout Rumors Ticket Tax Will Be Dropped

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Rumors that experts studying the elimination of unproductive excise taxes would recommend to President Roosevelt abandonment of the admission tax as one of a group costing almost as much to collect as is received in revenue were scouted in informed circles here today.

The admission tax, it was said, is not unduly expensive to collect and returns a not inconsiderable revenue, receipts during the first nine months of the current year totaling nearly $13,000,000, with indications that the full 1936 revenues may be in excess of $17,000,000.

While it is true that Treasury and Congressional tax experts are studying the advisability of eliminating taxes which return little more than the cost of collection, it is pointed out that if the amount secured from the admission tax was unprofitable the receipts from possibly half of the present excise taxes would come in the same categorly. Only nine of the more than 40 special taxes return a larger revenue than do admissions, according to the latest Internal Revenue Bureau figures.

Delay Fox Hearing

Examination of William Fox before Referee Elvin N. Edwards at Mineola was postponed again yesterday because Fox is now appearing at bankruptcy hearings at Atlantic City. This was the sixth postponement.

Wheeler and RCA Systems Compared

WILMINGTON, Nov. 12.—Testifying today in the suit of Hazeltine Corp. against RCA and RCA Victor alleging infringement on the Wheeler automatic volume control for radios, Frank N. Waterman, consulting engineer, stated that in the defendants' sets the anode of the two-electrode rectifier upon which the controlling voltage is built up is connected back to the grid of the amplifier tube to be controlled.

Waterman further testified that in the defendants' system as well as in the Wheeler system the entire signal, the carrier with its modulation, is impressed on the rectifier. In all of the defendants' systems and in the patent, he continued, voice frequencies are subsequently separated from the rectified signal and passed on to the amplifier. He also explained in terms of voltage the amount of signal energy that is received on the grids of the A.V.C. tubes in the defendants' sets.

Waterman concluded his testimony for the day by describing the British Round, Affel and Friis patents.

New Station of WJZ Starts As 10th Anniversary Closes

The new 640-foot antenna for WJZ, key station of the National Broadcasting's Blue network, will be placed in operation on Sunday, the closing day of NBC's 10th anniversary celebration. The power of the station will remain at 50,000 watts, pending action by the Federal Communications Commission on WJZ's application for an increase to 500,000 watts. At present the only station in America operating on a grant of 50,000 watts is the Crosley station in Cincinnati, WLW.

Construction of the new WJZ antenna, located near Bound Brook, N. J., was started last August. The antenna is one of the highest in the world, rearing into the sky a few feet less than the RCA Bldg. itself. The steel tower is painted in alternate stripes of aviation orange and white, and at night will be lighted with a high-powered light beacon on top and by 15 separate marking lights between top and bottom. This system was worked out by engineers of NBC, the Dep't of Commerce, and technicians of the air transport companies in the metropolitan area. Under favorable conditions it is expected that the beams of the top beacon will be visible beyond Philadelphia.

The old WJZ antenna, located also near Bound Brook, will not be destroyed. It will be held in readiness for emergencies.

Both new and old antennaes were constructed under the supervision of O. B. Hanson, chief engineer, and Raymond F. Guy, radio facilities engineer of NBC.

Simultaneously with the beginning of operation of the new antenna, the radio organizations of 13 major nations throughout the world will combine to present a globe-girdling tribute to NBC as a climax to the chain's silver jubilee celebration. The program will be heard over both the Red and Blue networks, totalling 102 stations throughout the United States, Canada and Hawaii, from 9 to 10 A.M., E.S.T.

Nations cooperating in the program are Austria, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, England, France, Germany, Holland, Italy, Switzerland, Hawaii, Argentina and Japan. The program will open in the NBC studios, with short-wave switches to the various countries participating in the broadcast. Each nation will contribute brief offerings typical of the spirit of that particular land. For instance, from Switzerland will come folk music featuring mountain yodelers; from Holland will come carillon playing of the Holland national anthem; from Hawaii, ukulele and steel-guitar strummings of Hawaiian folk songs.

The entire delegation of foreign radio representatives, now in New York participating in the NBC anniversary, will be in the NBC studios listening to the final program.

Dissension Rends the Ether

Trouble looms on the "Saturday Night Party" program, heard over the NBC-Red network from 8 to 9 P.M., E.S.T. and featuring Walter O'Keefe and the music of Ferde Grofe.

O'Keefe who, heretofore, has written his own comedy, is now objecting violently because N. W. Ayer, agency responsible for the program, insists on retaining the three outside writers who have been penning the humor for the program since its inception. O'Keefe doesn't like the comedy and is making no bones about his displeasure. Wordy conferences with sponsor and agency representatives are daily occurrences.

Ferde Grofe also is up in arms because a musical consultant, Harry Salter, has been secured to pass upon the program's music. The situation is most unusual and Grofe is reported as interpreting the move as a personal reflection on his ability, which is rated tops in the profession. The agency merely states that the retention of Salter is merely in keeping with its policy of trying to improve the shows.

Meanwhile, the "Saturday Night Party" is far from a happy party and any day there may be an eruption leading to cast replacements.

Cheerful Stuff

Omaha, Nov. 12.—Kenneth Golden, local tenor who has been on Omaha radio programs for years, and Eddie Butler, formerly organist at the Orpheum, are doing a daily program from Golden's new mortuary at 1:15 daily over KOIL.

Eve Sully, of the comedy team of Block and Sully has been added to the cast of the Ken Murray program for next Tuesday, 8:30 to 9 P.M., E.S.T. over CBS. The understanding is that Miss Sully may be retained permanently if there is a favorable listener reaction after her performance. Incidentally, announcer Fred Uttel, absent from the program for two weeks due to illness, will return on the program Tuesday night.

Chindblom Succeeds Paley

Richard N. Chindblom, production director of the WBBM-CBS staff, Chicago, for the past year, has been named assistant program director of WBBM. Chindblom succeeds Ben Paley, now vacationing in Palm Springs, before assuming a new post in Hollywood.

Ben Hafter, program director of KMOX, St. Louis, steps up to the post of production director at WBBM.

P. and G. Add Another

Procter and Gamble, largest users of radio advertising, have added another program to their lengthy list. The new program is an electrically transcribed one, waxed by the World Broadcasting Co., and will be broadcast on some 60 stations in behalf of Crisco, a P. and G. product. Blackman Co. is the agency.

Shell Chateau Coming East

While the J. Walter Thompson agency only hints at it as a possibility, it was definitely ascertained yesterday that Shell Chateau, Hollywood program starring Edward Everett Horton and Smith Ballew, will be moved eastward some time after the first of the year for a considerable overhauling. Victor Young's orchestra will probably be the only feature retained on the program.

New Broadcasting Plant

The second act of "White Horse Inn," the musical comedy starring William Gaxton and Kitty Carlisle, will be broadcast direct from the stage of the Center Theatre over the NBC-Blue network tomorrow, from 10 to 10:30 P.M., E.S.T. This marks the first time that a pickup of the operetta will be made during an actual performance of the show.

Seek New Transmitter

SEATTLE, Nov. 12.—Application for a license to cover construction of a new transmitter for KJR has been filed with the Federal Communications Commission. The station is owned by Fisher Flouring Mills of Seattle and is a part of the NBC Blue network.

Another application by the same station requested authority to determine operating power by direct measurement of antenna power. A similar request was entered by KOMO, also owned by the Fisher interests, and associated with the red network of NBC.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 12.—Patsy Kelly and Robert Armstrong have been signed for the Kraft broadcast on Nov. 19 over NBC. Harold Bauer, concert pianist, has also been set for the program.

the Neely-Pettengill bill was suspended all would soon be hotsy-totsy in the motion picture business."

"Congress adjourned," the bulletin continues, "and many months elapsed during which the trade papers carried many pages of M.P.T.O.A. hand-outs about the far-reaching concessions which Big Ed had wrested from the distributors and which would be shortly announced. Now on the eve of a new Congress and the imminent resumption of efforts to pass the Neely-Pettengill Bill, the log jam has broken and Universal has revealed its response to the M.P.T.O.A. 'demands'. Twentieth Century-Fox, RKO, Paramount, Columbia, M-G-M and United Artists are expected to make separate responses to Kuykendall to be released at strategic intervals."

Allied "Skeptical"

"Because of the circumstances which gave birth to the idea," the bulletin says, "Allied has been frankly skeptical of these negotiations. It seemed to us that the obvious purpose was merely to sidetrack the anti-block booking bill and that, in any case, the spectacle of Haysite exhibitors negotiating with Haysite distributors concerning the rights and interests of independent exhibitors did not inspire confidence."

The Allied message declares, however, that a public declaration of policy on important trade practices by a major company "merits and will be accorded dispassionate analysis." It then proceeds to devote three pages of the six-page bulletin to an analysis of the recent statement of policy by Universal in regard to the M. P. T. O. A. program.

Of Universal's offer of a 10 per cent cancellation privilege the bulletin observes that "Universal promises no enlargement of the percentage of pictures which may be cancelled. . . . Thus in this important matter, the only subject dealt with having a bearing on the need for the Neely-Pettengill Bill, Universal stands pat, and trade paper rumors of increased cancellations of from 15 to 20 per cent appear to have been unfounded, at least so far as Universal is concerned."

Sees No Legal Barrier

"Universal is in the clear," the bulletin remarks, "in regard to score charges, and the fact that it has dispensed with this gouge puts other companies which persist in it definitely on the spot." It intimates, in taking up other points of Universal's declared policy that legal means of drafting both uniform maximum clearance schedules and a uniform exhibition contract are available. Universal cited legal barriers to the furtherance of both proposals in its reply to the M.P.T.O.A. Brief comments are added on Universal's policy in regard to other program points.

The bulletin urges that suspicious instances of the free exhibition of films by itinerant medicine shows be reported to the Copyright Protection Bureau because "virtually all distributors deny licensing film to these shows." It reports that legislation designed to outlaw the compulsory designation of playdates, which is being drafted for introduction in a number of state legislatures, is waiting upon the test of the constitutionality of such an act in Ohio, the hearing to be held at Columbus, Nov. 20. If the outcome is unfavorable, the bulletin states, attempts will be made to re-enact it in slightly modified form.

The organization's campaign of legislation and litigation has been approved and "is in full swing" in New Jersey, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Michigan and Indiana, the bulletin reports. It now includes the bill to divorce production and distribution from exhibition and a proposed suit on behalf of an unnamed exhibitor "whose town has been invaded by an affiliated chain and whose product has been cut off as a result thereof."

The bulletin credits Aaron Saperstein, head of Allied of Illinois, with blocking B. & K.'s recent demands for increased clearance in Chicago and places responsibility for the return of duals in that city on the circuit.

frankly admitted the futility of attempting to continue, and accepted a resolution of Al Sherman that the association be dissolved on the spot. A temporary delay was effected, however, when James P. Cunningham moved that the dissolution be tabled until next Thursday, while all members are advised of the step to be taken.

The Ampa has been sliding downward since last spring, when a new administration, headed by Gordon White, tried to revive waning interest. Following the summer recess, the board of directors went to work on a program aimed at rejuvenation. This they completed three weeks ago, when the ranks were split on learning that one provision of the new program took from trade paper members and some others, the right to vote and the privilege of participating in any but social or "open" meetings.

Ampa's board of directors resigned yesterday in a body because of the objections in this connection to their program.

New directors will be elected next Thursday, if sufficient interest in the organization can be created then to obtain a majority vote for continuance. In that event, the officers, too, will resign at the meeting, to be succeeded by others who would be instructed to arrive at a program acceptable to all groups.

It became obvious at yesterday's session—stormy though small—that the reason behind the reclassification of trade paper members, was the aim of the directors and the administration to formulate policies which would quickly mould the Ampa into a "guild" of advertising and publicity copy writers.

some program of industrial legislation. Industrialists who have remained aloof from the conference and who have severely criticised it will be forgiven and welcomed in a "friendly spirit" if they attend next month's meetings.

"The problems which will come before use," said Berry, "are those which vitally affect all industry. They cover the operations of the raw material producers, the great manufacturing corporations and finally reach through distribution processes to the corner grocery and the crossroads general store."

The first day of the conference will be devoted to addresses by Berry and other leaders in the movement; the second day will be given over to executive sessions of the industry council which will receive reports from the seven committees set up to consider national industrial policies, hours and wages, fair trade practices, internal and external competition, anti-trust laws, financial aid to small enterprise, Government competition with private enterprise and employment.

Expect Dividend on Paramount Common

not be unlikely, according to financial sources.

Lehman Bros, an integral investment factor in Paramount and currently identified with the marked activity in the company's issues, attributes the healthy financial position of the company to generally improved theatre business throughout the country. The basic improvement is noted, as a result, both in the earnings of the company's 1,100 theatres and in Paramount's distribution income.

The company's third-quarter report has not been issued yet but estimates place the net for the period at between $1,500,000 and $1,700,000.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Charlie Chan at the Opera"

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 12.—Pitting Boris Karloff against Warner Oland and spotting both in what probably is the best Chan story to date is a showmanship gesture that should interest audiences and exhibitors. With bolstered production effects indicating that an expanded budget was available, the show is a pleasing combination of such elements that should thrill. It introduces many unique features that should engage the attention of general patronage. Well-built suspense, together with the convincing work of Oland and Karloff which spurred the support to give high quality performances, gives the film a punchy tone.

As practically all the action occurs during the presentation of a grand opera performance, the terroristic machinations of Karloff, a jealous maniac, who is threatening death to Margaret Irving, his philandering wife, baffle the police who call on Oland for aid. Then, to the tune of strongly dramatic situations involving several members of the opera cast, with the tragic elements contrasted by tension-easing comedy and youthful romance, it becomes a match of Oland versus Karloff. A murder or two adds to the mystery content in which Oland is called upon to display all his remarkable sleuthing talents to forestall the menace of Karloff and prove to the police who the real killer is.

Departing noticeably from the Earl Derr Biggers theme, Bess Meredyth's original story was made to order for Oland and Karloff. In adopting it Scott Darling and Charles Belden, wisely keeping the leads in mind, concocted situations and dialogue into which they could sink their teeth. They likewise made sure that good parts were included for Keye Luke, Charlotte Henry, Thomas Beck, Margaret Irving, Gregory Gaye, Nedda Harrigan, and William Demarest. In directing, H. Bruce Humberstone took full advantage of the players, the quality of the story and the value of tricky production effects to deliver sound, mystery-melodrama entertainment.

"Pennies from Heaven"

(Cohen-Columbia)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 12.—A light, whimsical and wholly entertaining film, this relies for its potential drawing power on two major factors, first the singing personality of Bing Crosby, and second a human interest quality in story, which at the same time has a goodly portion of romance.

With Crosby the pivotal character, Madge Evans, welfare worker, is the romantic foil, and young Edith Fellowes, whose performance is excellent, is the human interest factor with the aid of competent Donald Meek. There is something to sell in the title song, the music of which was by Arthur Johnston, with lyrics by John Burke.

Jo Swerling's screenplay makes Crosby an amiable, careless vagabond with a lute, who, emerging from an unjust prison sentence with a letter to be delivered to the family of a condemned murderer's victim, finds his way to a small New Jersey town. There he comes upon Miss Fellowes, the bane of the existence of Miss Evans, and Edith's grandfather, Meek.

Unaccountably, Crosby finds himself the guardian of the child and old man and definitely at odds with Miss Evans. Out of a deserted house which is their legacy, Crosby devises, on credit, a night club, which is a high spot of the film, in order that he may be gainfully employed. But that collapses, Edith is thrust into an orphanage and Crosby lights out after attempting to take her away. It all comes out in the end, with Crosby and Miss Evans taking the child. Crosby's singing lends an engaging note to the film.

Production Code Seal No. 2,402. Running time, 83 minutes. "G."

Sees General Use Of Double Track

general throughout the circuit within the next few months.

"Both Western Electric and RCA systems are being built so that film can be interchanged," Hartley wrote, "and, furthermore, the systems are being so designed that they can be modified to play either single or double track film regardless of whether they are RCA or Western Electric recorded."

"All of our new recording channels now being installed in the three major lots in Hollywood will have provisions for recording either single or double track," the letter states, "and it is quite likely that within the next 12 or 15 months many of the theatres in this country will be using double track film in preference to single track."

Allied's query resulted from a report from one of its regional units that an exhibitor member had been advised by an RCA salesman that because of the impending adoption of double track film "all theatres will have to be equipped with either Western Electric's Mirrophonic or RCA's push-pull system in order to exhibit major company film."

like Robert Montgomery, is called upon to plead his mother's cause with the interfering woman in the romance, Rosemary Ames. Matthews, it appears, has fallen for her on the eve of his wedding, almost 10 years to the day of the start of his illicit love affair with Miss George.

To tell you that O'Malley does "his duty" and successfully establishes his argumentative prowess, as well as something beyond, with Miss Ames is to pass on exactly what happens. The following morning finds him confronting his wife, Miss Field, and a general all-round effort to square his defection, abetted by his mother, et al.

"Matrimony, Pfd." has its moments. So has the one about the farmer's daughter. But they are risque moments that undress their chief characters verbally, if not actually, and keep them swirling around the boudoir for three solid acts.

Theme Is Shop-Worn

It is this reviewer's thought on the matter that appeal to a sophisticated audience with a sophisticated play need not harp on four lovers, two fathers for one child, one unmarried mother who regards it all as fun and a young husband who falls for the first attractive skirt that brushes his knee.

Never has it been a creditable trick, moreover, to talk politely around off-color situations in the anticipation that the odor will turn more savory. This observer laughed last night. You bet he did. But he also reflected that here was a theme which constituted the case perfect of how low the standards of the New York theatre might fall and did.

Decision on Mexico Quota to Be Delayed

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 10 (Via Air Mail).—No decision is expected this month on the plan to set an exhibition quota of one Mexican picture for each five or six foreign films, limitations on imports, regulation of distributors and the like. A Government committee of six, considering the matter, asked for industry opinion, and has been deluged in a flood of conflicting views.

The committee has been advised that the industry here is too weak for so radical a proposition. It is pointed out that while it is of unquestioned value for the Government to aid the growing production industry here, great caution is imperative, so that help is not forthcoming at the price of sacrificing the profit derived from foreign product, chiefly American.

Small Circuits in Illinois Expanding

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Many of the smaller circuits in Illinois are expanding, among them Alger in Peru, Frisina and Kerasotes in Springfield, Hainline at Macomb and Fred Anderson at Morris.

Alger has reopened the Majestic in LaSalle, after remodeling which cost $40,000. Frisina, operating 26 houses, has completed a new house at Keokuk, Iowa. A deal with Leo Burnstine in Springfield calls for tearing down the present Capitol and erecting a 1,400-seat house to cost $100,000. The Empress there will be remodeled.

Prospective Taxes Worrying Colorado

DENVER, Nov. 12.—The state legistature is expected to go wild on the subject of taxation. The regular session starts Jan. 6.

The voters at the recent election approved what is estimated to be a $10,000,000 burden in the form of a $45 monthly pension for persons over 50. A constitutional amendment was also passed authorizing the legislature to levy a state tax. The income from this tax is expected to take care of approximately half of the old age pension demands.

Experienced politicians expect bills to be presented taxing everything the legislators can think of, including admissions. Proposals for amusement taxes have been presented to most of the legislatures in recent years, but theatre men have convinced legislators the business was standing all the taxes it could.

A special session next week will consider revamping of the liquor laws and also make arrangements for the state to share in the national unemployment insurance act.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 12.—Grosses slumped last week with the only impressive showing being furnished by "The Magnificent Brute," on a dual with "Without Orders," at the Pantages and Hillstreet. At the former the $9,200 take was $1,200 to the good and at the latter the $9,800 gross was up by $1,800.

N. Y. Sale Tax Appeal Comes Up on Dec. 3

State's Highest Court Sets Hearing Date

The Court of Appeals at Albany has set Dec. 3 for hearing of the industry's arguments against the application of the New York City two per cent sales tax to film rentals. The contest has been hanging fire for almost two years and the accumulated liability of the local industry up to this time is estimated to be in excess of $3,500,000.

The city initiated the current action to test the application of the tax to film rentals by assessing the revenue of the local United Artists exchange early in 1935. The assessment was challenged by the distributor at hearings before the city comptroller, who ruled that the levy against film rentals was proper. The case went to the Appellate Division of the N. Y. Supreme Court on appeal and resulted in a decision upholding the taxability of film rentals derived from theatres within the city, but exempting rentals originating in

No Suit Was Filed In Argentine Court

No anti-trust action has been brought against the Argentine Ass'n. of Film Distributors in the Federal Court in Buenos Aires, and naturally no sentence has been passed or verdict rendered, contrary to the report in a United Press dispatch from Buenos Aires on Wednesday, New York was informed by cable yesterday.

The association is composed of representatives of all major American companies in Buenos Aires and two Argentine distributors. The suit was said in the newspaper report to have been filed by Hector J. Bini, an exhibitor, alleging coercive action in a

Paramount, Warner Issues Touch New Exchange Highs

Both Paramount and Warner preferred and common issues yesterday reached new highs on the stock exchange with large blocks being traded throughout the five-hour session.

With the exception of Warners preferred, none of the issues closed at the new top figure, the stocks tapering off with the rest of the market on a wave of selling, which got under way around noon and spasmodically cropped up during the last three hours.

Loew's touched the former high of 64¾, but closed at 63⅝, for a loss of ¾ on the day. Turnover in this issue was 12,400 shares.

Warners took the lead of all film stocks with big lots accounting for a turnover of 69,700 shares of common. This issue hit 17¼ and closed at 16⅝ for a plus of ⅝ on the day. The preferred, on a gain of ⅞, closed at the top, 64⅞.

Paramount common soared to 20⅛. The issue closed at 19⅝, for a profit of ⅜. Approximately 53,400 shares were traded in. On the first preferred, a 2½ point plus sign was chalked up on a total sale of 3,000. The issue ran up to 145⅜ and wound up at 142. The second preferred gained a ½ point, reaching 18½ on the day, and closing at 18, the former high. About 13,000 shares changed hands.

Union Board Meet Delayed to Monday

The meeting of Mayor LaGuardia's survey board, which is working on a unification of the multiple union situation among projectionists in New York, will meet on Monday, the scheduled session for yesterday having been postponed. The Monday meeting will be held in the office of Howard S. Cullman, board member, at the Roxy. The other board members are Sam A. Lewisohn, chairman, and William Collins.

The postponement was caused by the absence from the city of Collins and George E. Browne, president of the I.A.T.S.E., who are attending the

UMPTO Seeks Wide Stoppage For Playdates

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 13.—Efforts to organize a national playdate strike were decided upon today by the U.M.P.T.O. If this fails, the plan will be used locally as a weapon against distributors, who, members of the unit claim, are charging excessive rentals.

Distributors who are the targets of attack were not named following today's session.

Violent verbal blasts were directed at distributors, who are charged with encouraging the reopening of closed houses in order to step up competition and help maintain prices.

Grand National and M-G-M scales were informally discussed, the latter being criticized because the last 10 pictures in general release were called "double feature product" by members.

Michael O'Toole of the Comerford circuit attended the meeting to discuss legal problems and legislation.

Representatives of the Federal Housing Administration secured the organization's pledge to run three-minute films explaining insurance of mortgages.

Foreign Stock Buying Starts Federal Study

Roosevelt Aims to Guard Against Dumping

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Administration moves to regulate purchases by foreign interests of American securities on the stock exchanges of this country are under way and may be translated into legislation in the near future, President Roosevelt said in a press conference today.

Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, and James Landis, chairman of the S. E. C., are now studying means of correcting the situation, which is regarded by the Administration as a threat to stabilization of currencies. The danger, the President indicated, could be immediate if foreign holders of American securities unloaded on the market suddenly.

No indication of the type of legislation which may be sought was given, but it was stated that while present gold export regulations tended to control the situation, this means did not afford the complete protection desired.

Whether or not the Administration would move to restrict the sales as well as purchases of domestic securities by foreign interests likewise was not disclosed, as the entire situation

Korda Studies Move To Do Cheaper Films

LONDON, Nov. 13. — Alexander Korda may embark on a program of cheaper films which would not carry the London Films trade mark. It is understood release of the secondary group would go through British Lion.

Korda's name has been mentioned in connection with such a plan for a couple of months. In its original form it was reported that Korda was considering his own distributing unit here not only for the proposed cheaper negatives, but for his London Films output as well.

General Talking Is Allowed an Appeal

Federal Judge William H. Bondy yesterday allowed General Talking Pictures Corp. to take an appeal to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals from the judgment obtained by Western Electric, Erpi and A. T. & T. for a permanent injunction. The judgment restrains General Talking Pictures from selling and distributing sound equipment on the ground that the patents are the property of Erpi.

General Talking Pictures Corp. posted a $10,000 bond to cover cost of the appeal. In filing the appeal counsel for General Talking Pictures explained that from 1929 to 1933, it manufactured and sold 3,372 amplifiers of which 70 per cent are still in use, but that they have sold none between 1933 and 1936.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Love on the Run"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 13.—With the magnetic personalities of Clark Gable, Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone predominating and with the Van Dyke directorial touches at their best, this is smash entertainment from start to finish. Situations top each other in rapid succession and, although the story defies analysis because of its rash inconsistencies, the humor is so spontaneous that the audience never recovers from its laughter long enough to spot the flaws.

Gable and Tone are foreign correspondents battling each other for news beats. Miss Crawford portrays an heiress who walks out on her marriage to Ivan Lebedeff, a nobleman. Her altar desertion leads her into Gable's arms and also into complications with Reginald Owen and Mona Barrie, international spies. From that point onward the picture becomes an insane dash over France with all characters involved in the flight.

The Van Dyke direction seizes every opportunity of developing two laughs for every chuckle in the script by John Lee Mahin, Manuel Seff and Gladys Hurlbut. Donald Meek, uncredited in the billing, delivers the best supporting performance, scoring repeatedly in one sequence as caretaker of the Fontainbleau Museum, where Gable and Miss Crawford take refuge for the night.

Other sterling characterizations are offered by William Demarest as Gable's editor and by Charles Judels as a police lieutenant. The original story is credited to Alan Green and Julian Brodie. Joseph L. Mankiewicz has contributed class production while the photography of Oliver Marsh is uniformly good. If energetically sold from any of the many possible angles, the picture should show top returns.

"Winterset"

(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 13.—Powerful, grim and emotion-stirring drama, this tells a gripping human-interest story which is brought to the screen under narrative, production and directorial technique that represents a radical and impressive departure from the customary channels. It is a film that will evoke high praise for Peverell Marley, photographer; for Al Santell, director; for Anthony Veiller, the scenarist, and for the lead players—Burgess Meredith, Margo, Eduardo Cianelli, Edward Ellis and Paul Guilfoyle. It is a courageous undertaking of unquestionable artistic and production merit that will test the showmanship ability of exhibitors to the utmost to popularize.

In bold and straight-from-the-shoulder strokes "Winterset" tells a surging, dramatic story that is deeply moving and impressively poignant. It details the episodes in the life of a boy who, growing to manhood, lives only to clear the name of his father, an innocent sacrifice to a miscarriage of justice. In the shadow of the Brooklyn Bridge with the rain beating down on them, the boy and girl about whom the poetic romance rotates, the actual murderer and the mentally tortured judge meet. The consuming desire to vindicate his father's honor impels the boy to acts of reckless daring. On the other hand, the murderer, fearing that justice is about to catch up with him, becomes again the coldly vicious killer intent only on removing every threat to his personal safety. The dramatic quality of the action is intense and penetrating.

Although the cast names have little box-office significance, the character of their work in this unusual photoplay should enthuse audiences. The film looks like an attraction that will create more than ordinary interest in the ranks of the intelligentsia. Reaction to the story is not instantaneous, as in the case of "The Informer." Rather it is a tale that will evoke an increasing amount of discussion with the passing of time.

Dinner for Ray Smith

At the same time Norman Ayres, successor to Smith, will be welcomed to the territory. The affair will be held at the Ten Eyck. Moe Silver, Warner theatre zone manager, is in charge of arrangements.

Reorganization for Roxy Delayed Again

Hearing on the Roxy reorganization plan yesterday was postponed until Dec. 4 by Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey, as expected. Negotiations with the Taft Hotel on a 10 and a half year lobby lease are holding up completion of the plans whereby Twentieth Century-Fox would lease the theatre.

Because Carlos Israels of White & Case, attorney for the first mortgage bondholders, was at Amherst, Mass., yesterday, the application for a three-week adjournment was made by representatives of Beekman, Bogue, Leake, Stephens & Clark, attorney for Halsey, Stuart & Co., which represent the second mortgage noteholders' committee.

Paramount's continued interest in the court hearings on the Roxy rehabilitation is an enigma with no one anxious to talk. Irving Cohen of the company's legal department has been present at all scheduled hearings, but will not comment other than to say his appearances were by chance, and not prearranged.

No Warner representative was present yesterday, the company being regarded as out of the picture because of an indirect bid which proposes to subordinate the Roxy to the Strand, a plan which the first mortgage bondholders state they will not consider.

Engineers Heard in Hazeltine-RCA Suit

WILMINGTON, Nov. 13.—Frank N. Waterman, consulting engineer, testifying further in the action in which Hazeltine Corp. charges RCA and RCA Victor with infringement on the Wheeler automatic volume control patent, discussed a paper of Edwin Armstrong read before the Institute of Radio Engineers in 1927 on the operating features of Audion in which was explained the regenerative feedback circuit producing oscillations as an oscillation generator.

Frederick E. Johnson, chief engineer of Crosley Radio Corp. of Cincinnati; Leslie F. Curtis, chief engineer of the radio division of United American Bosch Corp. of Springfield, Mass., and William LeRoy Dunn, chief engineer of Belmont Radio Corp. of Chicago, also testified today.

Unknown to Employe

Johnson, former employe of Hazeltine, testified that he never heard of the automatic volume control prior to 1925. In 1926, he said, he heard of the control while attending a meeting at which a paper on automatic control was read by Harold A. Wheeler.

Curtis stated that he heard of the Wheeler system for the first time in 1927, adding that it offered a practical solution to the problem of fading and blasting in receiving sets. After learning of the Wheeler paper, he testified, he built a form of receiver embodying the principles which the engineer's dissertation expounded.

Dunn, who designed radios for the now bankrupt Freshman Co. from 1926 to 1928, denied hearing of automatic control prior to 1926. His first information, he said, came through one of his engineers who had attended the Wheeler meeting.

The hearing was adjourned until Tuesday.

transmitter is of only 150-watt power and televised on 45,000 kilocycles, and that Lubcke's home, which is used, is located between two hills, the demonstrations thus far would seem to indicate that television is practically something of the comparatively near future. The sound is synchronized one-millionth of a second behind the image and cannot be detected. Lubcke emphasized that his company is mainly interested in achieving favorable results under unfavorable conditions at the present time and in developing new ideas for television, rather than making perfect public demonstrations.

Hamrick Switches Plans

SEATTLE, Nov. 13.—A last-minute change in plans affected the reopening of Hamrick's Music Hall and his Orpheum. The combined film-vaudeville policy originally scheduled for the Orpheum has been installed in the Music Hall, opening this week, and the Orpheum will remain on its dual feature class "A" film policy. Top price for two class "B" pictures, five acts of vaudeville and a 10-piece stage band at the Music Hall will be 35 cents. The Orpheum scale will remain at 40 cents top.

Road Tour of Vallee Hour Talent Now in the Making

Following the trail blazed by Major Edward Bowes, whose amateur stage units are still doing a land-office business, Rudy Vallee and the NBC Artists' Bureau have combined forces to place on the road a series of acts comprising talent heard on the Vallee Variety Hour. One unit is already at work, it was ascertained yesterday, and others are being prepared for tours now being formulated.

The unit now in action is made up of Fred Lightner, Arlene Jackson, Bowie and Daley, Michael, a boy accordianist, the Stewart Sisters, and Al Bernie. Currently the troupe is playing in Toronto, with subsequent dates set for Philadelphia and Baltimore. According to the Vallee office and Rubey Cowan, head of NBC's Artists Bureau, the second unit will be ready for engagements within the next week.

How much money the acts are receiving and how the revenue will be split between Vallee and the network booking service could not be ascertained, although it is presumed that Vallee will receive the lion's share of the take.

Confining the talent to acts heard on the Vallee Hour does not narrow the selection as much as one might presume. Vallee has been on the air with guests for almost five years, featuring as many as five and six per broadcast.

Home Talent in NBC Show

Staff employees at NBC's San Francisco studios will present a special program of their own tonight in celebration of NBC's 10th anniversary. The program will be heard over the Blue network from 8:30 to 9 P.M., E.S.T.

Participating in the program will be Ameila Kennedy, secretary to Meredith Willson, general music director of NBC's western division; Dave McKay, baritone and a member of the sales promotion division; Frank Barton, soloist and regular NBC announcer; Jessie Woods, pianist, a member of the traffic department; Ruth Chappell, contralto, of the music library, and a male quartet recruited from the continuity, sales, and traffic departments. The staff workers competed in special auditions for a chance on the program.

No Free Auto Time

WBBM, Columbia's Chicago station, is setting a new precedent by getting Dodge dealers there to foot the bill for a commercial plugging the Chicago automobile show, instead of giving time gratis to the motor companies.

The sale came as a result of a policy established by J. L. Van Volkenburg, assistant to H. Leslie Atlass, CBS Chicago vice-president, against giving show free time as long as they were paying for newspaper ads.

Dodge dealers followed with order for six broadcasts.

The program will be handled by Doug Hope, of WBBM staff, and was sold by Ruthrauff & Ryan, agency.

Film Hopes for Thibault

Conrad Thibault, who flew to the coast yesterday, will not be heard on one Packard broadcast, as was originally planned when he was booked for the date. He will remain on the program indefinitely and will replace Allen Jones, who is leaving the program because of studio activities. Incidentally, the William Morris office, which booked Thibault for the radio engagement, will make efforts to sell Thibault to the studios while he is in Hollywood. Thibault has been film tested several times in the past, but has never worked in pictures.

"Hollywood Hotel"

Things didn't come off as scheduled on last night's broadcast of the Hollywood Hotel program heard over the Columbia network from 9 P.M. to 10 P.M., E.S.T.

In the first place, many of the stars who were advertised to appear on the program did not participate and Columbia made no announcement in explanation.

For example, pre-broadcast releases stated that William Powell and Luise Rainer would contribute a scene or two from their picture, "The Great Ziegfeld." Several bits from that film were dramatized but the voices of the broadcasters sounded strange to this reviewer. A wire to Hollywood elicited the information that two unknowns re-enacted the scenes. Neither did Jeanette MacDonald sing, though the young lady who offered a medley of songs from the MacDonald pictures was referred to as "Jennie" by Dick Powell after she had finished her numbers. He was referring to Ann Jamison who plays the part of "Jennie" regularly on "Hollywood Hotel" but many might easily have misconstrued this as meaning Jeanette MacDonald, inasmuch as no announcement had been made.

Eleanore Powell, Jim Stewart, Una Merkel, Virginia Bruce, Buddy Ibsen, Sid Silvers and Frances Langford contributed several scenes from their new picture, "Born to Dance." This was the most interesting feature of the broadcast, especially Eleanore's dancing. One song from the picture was outstanding — "Swinging the Jinx Away."

Introduced to the air audience, though they said but little, were Gene Raymond, Joan Bennett, Robert Montgomery, Edmund Lowe and newlyweds, John Barrymore and Elaine Barry.

All in all, last night's broadcast was a very jumbled affair and in conclusion, we still wonder why CBS neglected to inform the listeners that unknowns in some instances were substituting for the stars.

Campbell's Soup sponsors "Hollywood Hotel."

Guy Kibbee was sold yesterday to the Sears, Roebuck "Now and Then" program for a guest appearance on the Nov. 19 broadcast. Kibbee will do a comic skit, written by himself. Mischa Elman and Coe Glade are the performers signed for the Sears' broadcast of Nov. 26.

Testimony Heard on Ohio's Booking Law

booking law is unconstitutional, giving this opinion to Governor Davey prior to the passage of the bill.

RKO, which is attacking the constitutionality of the law, was represented by Lester A. Jaffe of Paxton & Seasongood, Cincinnati. Jerome Jackson, owner of the Jackson, Cincinnati, was the chief witness.

Testimony today centered on the proportion of pictures sold by each distributor on percentage and on preferred playing time in relation to the total number released.

By agreement between attorneys, Jackson's testimony was accepted as typical.

RKO's attack on the law centers on three points all based on the claim that the industry is not subject to state regulation as it is interstate commerce.

A hearing on briefs and arguments by attorneys is scheduled in Circuit Court, Columbus, Nov. 20.

David Palfreyman is here listening to the testimony.

Carewe Application Rejected

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 13.—The plea of Edwin Carewe for a second permit to sell stock in a 16 mm. educational pictures producing unit was definitely denied here today by the State Corporation Commission. The first certificate was suspended some months ago but the former Hollywood director claimed reorganization as a basis for his second plea.

"Misrepresentation found in Carewe's statements" was given by the commission as the reason for today's refusal.

still is in the study stage. However, the projected action may have a direct bearing on foreign purchases of film stocks, which recently have attracted marked interest abroad. Only last week 35,000 shares of Loew's, Inc., was acquired by undisclosed British interests from the Irving Thalberg estate through Hirsch, Lilienthal & Co., brokers. The transaction, at current market prices, represented an exchange of more than $2,200,000.

The Royal Liverpool group of British insurance companies was a large investor in Paramount Publix stocks just prior to the company's reorganization in 1935, and its holdings of the bankrupt company's securities made it a dominating factor in the Paramount reorganization and subsequent administration of the company. British interests were reported to have disposed of large blocks of the new Paramount stock immediately in advance of its market recession during last spring and the early part of the summer. Harold A. Fortington, financial secretary of the British insurance groups, withdrew from the chairmanship of the Paramount executive committee shortly thereafter. The C. M. Woolf British interests hold a large but not a dominant interest in Universal.

G. B. Situation to Mind

The situation here recalls, as well, the upsetting of the proposed acquisition by Loew's of an interest in Gaumont British through the Metropolis and Bradford Trust and Twentieth Century-Fox last summer. The principal factor in the rejection of the deal is reported to have been the unwillingness of British officialdom to approve a deal which they feared might transfer control of the English company to American interests. The British Government has interested itself directly in security deals affecting the control of its national industries.

The sale by RCA of its holdings in the British Electrical and Musical Industries, Ltd., and by the Atlas Corp. of its interests in the British Utilities Power & Light Corp. are recent examples of the effects of the British policy on foreign ownership of securities.

refusal to supply films for his theatre. Cristobal Solari, legal representative of the association, was said to have been found guilty.

Actually, the court merely rendered an opinion relative to the right of the exhibitor to sue under certain circumstances, and declared that an employe of the association may be proceeded against from the anti-trust standpoint. "We are not even indicted yet, and our attorney is confident of winning the proceedings," the cable from South America said. It is expected that Bini now will proceed with the action he has planned for some time, it was said.

Sales Tax Appeal Up December 3rd

theatres located outside the city limits, even though serviced by local exchanges.

Distributors moved immediately to appeal from the first part of the decision and the city corporation counsel followed with notice of appeal from the second part. The arguments of both will be heard by the state's highest tribunal on Dec. 3. Frederick H. Wood of Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood, who successfully argued the unconstitutionality of the NRA before the U. S. Supreme Court, has been retained by distributors jointly to present the industry's arguments before the court at Albany. The industry's principal arguments against subjecting film rentals to a local sales tax embrace the Federal Copyright Laws, Federal laws governing interstate commerce and the contention that films, being leased rather than sold, exempts them from a sales tax.

Distributors, meanwhile, have been collecting the tax from all theatres served by local exchanges and segregating it to return to the exhibitors in the event the industry's appeal is successful.

The Monday session is expected to be in the nature of an executive meeting of the board members, probably without union representatitives present, and it is anticipated that the situation with regard to the Empire Union, third of the three unions involved, will not be taken up at that time. See Chicago Duals General In Two Weeks

B. & K. Now Using Plan In All "A" Houses

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Double bills are expected to become a general practice here within 10 days. B. & K. theatres are using duals in their "A" week houses, the same films later running single in the "B" and "C" week theatres. Business is reported good under the policy. John Balaban, head of B. & K., said that duals probably will be the policy in all the outlying houses within the next week or two.

It is expected that if that policy is made effective, the independents will go to duals at that time. Warners and Essaness are planning to continue single bills regardless of what the other theatres do. For three years the exchanges were able to hold down the use of duals, but when B. & K. demanded the right to run double bills this year, the clause prohibiting the practice was dropped from contracts.

Warner-Loew Again Pool in Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 15.—Warners and Loew's have pooled the operation of the Stanley, Warner and Penn. Under terms of the deal, which is slated to be signed in New York this week, Warners will continue to operate the Stanley and Warner, while Loew's will retain management of the Penn. All booking and buying for the three houses will be handled jointly by the circuits, out of New York.

The Stanley will be the only house of the three to play vaudeville. The Penn will have first call on all product. The pool is virtually the same as the one dropped when Loew's turned back the Penn to the first mortgage bondholders in June.

The A's Have It

It is to be wondered how many "A's" the really perfect picture would get.

U.S. Reports Exhibition in Sharp Upturn

Gains Shown in Figures Of Commerce Dep't.

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Relatively late in feeling the effects of the depression, the exhibition industry is making a rapid return to prosperity, it was indicated by the 1935 report on national income made public tonight by the Dept. of Commerce.

The worst year of the depression was 1932, when an aggregate corporate surplus of $4,219,000 reported for 1929 had turned into a deficit of $64,379,000, the figures disclosed. In 1933, however, the deficit was reduced to $33,155,000 and by 1934 it had dropped to $6,656,000.

As a result of criticisms of its earlier reports, the department, in preparing its latest figures, abandoned its former methods of estimating and went to the Film Boards of Trade and other

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 15.—Production showed another slight drop here last week. Although seven new films went before the cameras only 37 features and two shorts were in work as compared to 39 features and two shorts for the week preceding. Twenty-one new pictures will start shooting within the next two weeks according to studio schedules. Sixty films were in the cutting rooms.

Three brothers also are in radio: John Patt, general manager, WGAR, Cleveland; Ralph Patt, publicity director, WJR, Detroit, and Robert Patt, radio department of a Detroit advertising agency.

Spanish See No Hope for Early Peace

By HARRY C. PLUMMER

No one familiar with the present crisis in Spain believes that the impending fall of Madrid will end the conflict. The moral effect of the loss of the capital to the Government and its Anarcho-Syndicalist mentors undoubtedly will be serious, but the history of civil war in Spain through centuries affords a definite criterion for anticipating a long struggle to follow the capitulation of the handsome city on the Manzanares. Already the president of the republic, Manuel Azaña, has taken refuge with his executive staff on the frowning heights of Monserrat, overlooking Barcelona, while the premier, Largo Caballero, has moved officially to Valencia. Both factors with their following and the entire Anti-Fascist Militia can entrench in the two cities, first and third in population of all

"U" to Apply Concessions This Season

Cancellations Effective on Current Contracts

Universal's concessions under the M.P.T.O.A. 10-point trade practice program are effective immediately and apply to contracts already closed for the current season, irrespective of the language of those contracts, as well as to all deals subsequently made, R. H. Cochrane, Universal president, said on Saturday.

Cochrane's statement was made in answer to a question raised as to the effective date of the company's liberalized cancellation terms by the Allied States Exhibitors Ass'n., in an organization bulletin distributed to its members last week. Universal's decision was made, it was said, in response to trade paper inquiries covering the points raised in the Allied bulletin. While Universal can not reprint its contracts for the current season measures will be taken to make the new cancellation provisions effective at once, it was said.

"This means," Cochrane's statement sets forth, "that any exhibitor who has contracted for 100 per cent of Universal's 1936-'37 feature product

Stock Issues of Five Firms Jump 164½ Points in Year

The issues of five leading companies on the New York Stock Exchange jumped 164½ points in the year to Saturday, Paramount first preferred taking the lead with a gain of 70½ points since Nov. 14, 1935. Warners preferred was second with 17⅝, with Twentieth Century-Fox preferred running a close third with 17⅜.

Increased earnings and signs of dividends, in some cases the first to be declared after a lapse of years and in others a distribution of extras in addition to the regular quarterly payments, are reported as the motivating factor sending the stocks to new highs.

During the past year, the record shows that Paramount first preferred soared from 77½ to 148, where it closed Saturday after setting a new high for a six-point profit. The second preferred moved up to 18⅞ from 11⅛ last year. The common, which gained 11½ points for the period is now at 20⅝. The last dividend on

A New Tune

Bob Goldstein is embarking on a career as stage producer. Already, he has changed his tune about the new plays. Where once he was rather caustic, now he finds them all pretty good. In other words, he is preparing.

He gives as his real reason for doing "Get Along Little Doggie" a desire to give the boys around town a chance to come back at him.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THEY have tasted a new kind of caviar in Hollywood and their palates now refuse any denial. It is a rather idle pastime to sit back and reflect at large about the menace or no of studio names in radio. Some time ago, it was pointed out that the practice had been started. Now, it is merely reportorial to inform that what began as a mushroom development has grown into something approaching a garden of toadstools. . . .

If you are interested in why, note how simple it all is. The nationally advertised products never blink an eyelash at campaigns running into the millions. They cannot ignore radio because it would not be good business to overlook a medium which so quickly and so simultaneously reaches millions. These companies, or their clever advertising agencies, also know something about the appeal of Hollywood personalities and after them they went. Hollywood saw opportunity to cinch big and extra money, caring little about program sponsorship or program quality. You're as recent on the situation now as today. . . .

But, it would be well to remember and pleasant, furthermore, to do so that the foray into the field of Hollywood talent can end almost as suddenly as it began. Everybody is utilizing film names. Not a remote consequence is a conclusion which may be reached faster than appears likely at the minute that the air will be so cluttered with celluloid greats and near-greats something else will take their place. In seven air shows which began with the "Hollywood Hotel" program Friday night and terminate with that same show this Friday, approximately twenty-three Hollywood personalities of varying importance will be, or are scheduled to be, heard, but not seen. It makes for air waves glutted with too much of the same glitter and it will not take long before the sad fact is recognized. . . .

Intelligent observers, in and out of radio and chiefly in it, as a consequence believe that the craze for Hollywood names will wash itself out. That, of course, would mean a natural adjustment of what is either a serious exhibitor problem or one which theatre operators are overemphasizing. Our own inclination leans toward the belief the problem is serious, but we draw attention to a significant reaction which may help. The drawing power of any entertainment depends directly on its quality. Many important radio programs had resumed for the fall and winter at about the time "Swing Time" was hitting the first runs. The Astaire-Rogers musical, nevertheless, did very handsomely by itself. We would venture to say other film attractions, as popularly geared as this one, will encounter the same experience. Likewise must it hold that Hollywood players on worthwhile radio shows will enhance the value of those players, reflecting itself, of course, in their next available picture. Likewise again will their standing be damaged if the reverse prevails. . . .

In the period, lengthy or short, which prevails between hordes of Hollywood personalities on the air or few, it is the procedure to suggest that producers on the coast remember their backbones, not to overlook their investments, and exercise some form of control over material and frequency of appearances. Stars being what and who they are, it would be extremely difficult to rule them off radio, as anyone who knows of their vise-like hold on the industry can vouchsafe. It should not be too much of a job, on the other hand, to convince them of the need to preserve their value for future film and radio work alike by a thorough and discriminating, but cooperative, check on ether performances. . . .

And something else. The "Hollywood Hotel" program of Friday last stressed an extremely dangerous situation. Bill Powell and Luise Rainer had been nationally publicized for a boildown scene from "The Great Ziegfeld." Jeanette MacDonald had been similarly treated on the vocalizing end of the same show. Two unknowns replaced Powell and Miss Rainer and, by not too clever glossing over, Ann Jamison, a regular member of the "Hollywood Hotel" troupe, substituted for Miss MacDonald. Technically, Campbell's Soups, the sponsors, and CBS, the network, were in the clear. They did not announce these performers were on the air. But significantly, and obviously deliberately, they also did not announce they were off it. Taking advantage of the widely known fact that Powell and Miss Rainer had played leads in "The Great Ziegfeld" and Miss MacDonald in "The Merry Widow" and "Rose Marie," announcement in the first case and a musical interlude in the next left the public to draw its own conclusions, which, of course, are obvious. . . .

If we were an exhibitor, already sorely beset, perhaps, in trying to determine if radio is helping or hurting, we would be exasperated, if not downright angry. If the substitute trio were better than the genuine, it fails to help the latter. If they were worse, the answer is the same. On any count and by any approach, the incident smacks thoroughly of misrepresentation and gives the matter a very deplorable turn insofar as M-G-M is concerned. For, as their direct point of contact among the varied interests and groups involved, it is to the distributor that the exhibitor obviously will direct his beef. A proper beef, we might add in sounding off. . . .

"Pastures" Approval Seen As a Precedent

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The lifting of the ban on "Green Pastures" by the British censor board is seen here as establishing an important precedent. Lord Tyrrell, in issuing the permit for the film, has indicated that he does not regard one of the standing rules of the British board as binding in all circumstances.

That rule prohibited the introduction of sacred figures and encountered considerable criticism when it caused the banning of such pictures as "Outward Bound."

Another ruling arising out of the British censor classifications came from the London County Council, which decided that children shall not be allowed to see "horrific" pictures under any circumstances. Previously they were permitted to view them when accompanied by an adult. The ruling probably will be adopted in other sections of the country.

Injunction Against Consolidated Asked

WILMINGTON, Nov. 15.—Chancellor Josiah O. Wolcott yesterday in Chancery Court took under advisement a petition for a preliminary injunction against Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., to restrain the company from filing with the Delaware Secretary of State an amendment to a certificate of incorporation.

The action was taken on a bill of complaint filed by Norman Johnson of New York, a preferred stockholder, who obtained a preliminary injunction against the amendment purported to have been adopted recently by either directors or stockholders of the company.

The bill alleges that 150,000 of the issued 524,973 shares of the common stock are owned by Setay Corp. which, it is alleged, is controlled by Herbert J. Yates, president of Consolidated. Yates and directors of Consolidated are largely interested in the common stock and the purported amendment was proposed to improve the position of common stockholders at the expense of preferred stockholders, the complaint charges.

Consolidated denied the allegations in an answer filed recently.

Cullman to Ask $20,000 More

Howard S. Cullman, trustee for the Roxy, will file a petition in Federal Court on Nov. 27 for an interim allowance of $20,000 for services from Dec. 1935 to date. He has already received $40,000 since he took charge.

In the petition, Cullman states that from June 15, 1934 to Oct. 29, 1936, the theatre made a profit of $352,365. The income from June 15, 1934 to July 2, 1936 was $2,947,570. Operating expense for the same period was $2,302,896.35. From July 2, 1936 to Oct. 29, this year, the theatre showed a profit of $50,116.84. More than 8,000,000 persons have attended the theatre since July 15, 1934, which Cullman states is an average of 10,000 a day. The present assets of the Roxy Theatre Corp. are more than $9,500,000, according to the petition.

A hearing on a reorganization plan is scheduled for Dec. 4 before Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey.

Erpi, A. T. & T. Complaint Upheld

Federal Judge John C. Knox on Saturday refused to dismiss a bill of complaint filed by Stanley K. Oldder, as assignee for creditors of Pacent Electric Co., Inc., against A. T. & T. and Erpi for $6,000,000, charging violation of the anti-trust law.

The judge in an opinion, said: "The complaint, which must be taken as true, discloses a vast scheme to prevent or diminish competition in a field of sound recording and sound reproducing."

As a result, the case must go to trial. The plaintiff was organized in 1928 and manufactured, distributed and sold sound equipment. The defendants had asked a dismissal on the ground the complaint failed to show a cause of action.

Wodehouse Judgment Satisfied

P. G. and Ethel Wodehouse on Saturday satisfied a judgment of $250,703.59 against them for back taxes for the years 1926-31. This sum was paid to Joseph T. Higgins, U. S. Collector of Revenue.

CBS Watching Television, But Interest Is Passive

In view of the great hullabaloo raised recently about television, brought about by last week's RCA-NBC demonstration and by the news of experimental television broadcasts now being conducted by the Don Lee chain in California, radio observers regard it as most amazing to discover that CBS is doing nothing toward development of sight and sound broadcasting.

CBS abandoned all active television experiments some four years ago and to date no orders have been issued toward the resumption of activities. And no such order for the immediate future is contemplated. Its engineers, naturally, have been instructed to keep abreast of developments, but that is all. Not one cent has been spent on television in the past four years by Columbia.

While CBS officials naturally are reluctant to brand television a failure to date, nevertheless the impression they give is that they regard sight and sound broadcasts as being at least 10 years removed. And so they are content to wait.

Sear's Signs with WOR

Sear's, Roebuck recently tried a single test program over WOR with such favorable results that the mail order house, in the interests of its metropolitan and New Jersey outlets, has signed for a thrice-weekly series on the station to begin Dec. 19. The broadcasts will be heard Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, at 8:15 A.M., and will be conducted by John Gambling. The program will be known as "Gambling's Bargains."

Several other WOR accounts sign renewals this week. Procter and Gamble, for Drene-Shampoo, renew Jack Randolph and His Music beginning Nov. 19. The series is broadcast Mondays, at 8:15 A.M. H. W. Kaster & Sons is the agency. The Fischer Baking Co., through Neff-Rogow, Inc., renew the Transradio News flashes, Mark Hawley conducting, beginning March 9, 1937. The program is heard Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 8 A.M.

Brian and Ruggles Tuesday

Mrs. Pat Campbell, Eddie Matthew, and Ada May are Ted Hammerstein's guest nominees on the latter's CBS Music Hall program of Nov. 24. Guests on other programs include Buddy Clarke, the Eton Boys and Virginia Verrill on the CBS Al Pierce Gang shows of tonight, tomorrow and Wednesday, respectively. Buddy Clarke also has been signed as the inaugural guest on Dwight Fiske's new "Fables in Rhythm" program which begins tomorrow night on the CBS network. Picture guests on tomorrow night's Camel Caravan program comprise Mary Brian and Charles Ruggles in their postponed offering of "Elizabeth the Queen," with Ann Sothern added to the guest list early Saturday morning.

"Headin' South" for the I. C.

"Headin' South" is the name of the new program which the Illinois Central is launching over WBBM-CBS, Chicago, 7:30 to 8 P.M., E.S.T., starting Nov. 22.

Ruth Lyon, soprano, and the Chevaliers, a male quartet, will head the entertainment, with a 20-piece string orchestra supplying the incidental music.

The program will be broadcast over WBBM, Chicago; KRNT, Des Moines; WISN, Milwaukee; WCCO, Minneapolis; KFAB, Lincoln, Neb.; WNAX, Yankton, South Dakota; KSCJ, Sioux City, Ia.; and KMOX, St. Louis.

New All-Girl Band

Durelle Alexander, Paul Whiteman's vocalist, has her own band now. This week Durelle begins leading a new all-girl orchestra, which opens a tour in Philadelphia. The nucleus of the new band was the Bon John girl band, recently returned from a European tour. It is quite likely that Durelle's band soon may be in radio competition with Phil Spitalny's band, to date the only feminine aggregation of musicians on the air. Durelle's band already has auditioned for one sponsor, and several other auditions have been set.

O'Neill's on the Blue

The O'Neill's, dramatic serial heard over the NBC-Red five times a week for the past year, will be heard on both the Red and Blue networks beginning Nov. 16. The series, sponsored by Procter and Gamble in the interests of Ivory Soap, will be heard over the Blue, Mondays through Friday, at 11 A.M., E.S.T., and will be the same program as broadcast each afternoon over the Red at 3:45 P.M., E.S.T.

Concert List Growing

Many of radio's most popular artists will take long concert engagements this season, following the favorable debut the other night of Phil Duey. Those who have contracted for tours —and the list grows steadily each week—are Jimmy Melton, Ross Graham, Lanny Ross, Helen Jepson, Igor Gorin, Frank Forrest, Frank Parker, Nino Martini, Nelson Eddy. And, of course, John Charles Thomas and Lawrence Tibbett.

From Films to Radio

Tony Martin, young film singer who was heard in "Sing, Baby, Sing" and "Pigskin Parade," has been signed as the permanent vocalist on the George Burns-Gracie Allen program, heard Wednesdays at 8:30 P.M., E.S.T. over CBS. Martin replaces Jimmy Newell, who is leaving the series on Nov. 25 to devote his entire time to film work.

The G. O. P. and Its Future

Politics returns to the air this Wednesday when Representative Hamilton Fish speaks on "The Future of the Republican Party" at 10:30 P.M., E.S.T., over the Columbia network.

Tompkins, Murray, Et Al

Detroit Houses Use Radio

DETROIT, Nov. 15.—Local theatres are now using several radio plugs. Through a tieup just made with the Fox, Station WWJ, the Detroit News, presents Ty Tyson each noon at 12:30 for a half-hour as "The Man in the Street," Tyson interviewing persons in front of the theatre in much the same fashion as the "Vox Pop" program.

United Detroit theatres use a 15-minute period each evening over Station WXYZ, the King-Trendle outlet, to plug their first runs.

Each Sunday afternoon United Detroit presents a "Children's Hour" from the Regent over WXYZ and on Tuesday nights presents an amateur hour over the same station from the stage of the Broadway-Capital, downtown second run, reopened recently by George W. Trendle when the Madison went to first runs.

The Fox also has a working agreement with CKLW, of Windsor, from time to time presenting a half-hour show at 11:30 P.M., featuring stars appearing on the Fox stage.

What One Cipher Can Do

Four minutes after its conclusion last Monday, the Lux program was in a jam.

Melvin Purvis, G-man responsible for the capture of John Dillinger, was guest. Interviewed by Cecil B. De Mille on police methods at large, Purvis pointed out the average number of murders in London annually ran to 75. In Memphis, he continued, the total was 1,630. Four minutes after the show, the mayor of Memphis had De Mille on the telephone in Hollywood registering a protest; then the police chief telephoned.

What happened was this:

Purvis, reading from script, read 1,630 for Memphis when the actual figure after the script had been checked, was 163. He, thereupon, apologized to the Memphis city fathers.

Tonight when the Lux show goes on again, public apology over the air will be made.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Born to Dance"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 15.—Music and dancing, comedy and romance, spectacle and glamor are the elements out of which "Born to Dance" is woven. Produced on a lavish scale, the film is a splendid second vehicle for Eleanor Powell, one in which James Stewart takes definite steps up the ladder and in which Virginia Bruce, Una Merkel, Sid Silvers, Frances Langford, Raymond Walburn, Alan Dinehart, Buddy Ebsen and Reginald Gardiner score. It is an audience treat which exhibitors should delight in selling. The picture seems assured of a high spot in the list of the year's real money-makers.

Paced by comedy in which Silvers, Miss Merkel, Ebsen and Walburn dominate, and to which Gardiner contributes a hilarious specialty, but of which Miss Powell and Stewart are a definite part, the motivation is a gayly atmosphered love story. The embellishing quantities of music, dancing, girls, glamor and class production feature Miss Bruce, Miss Langford and Miss Powell in the tingling music and Miss Powell and Ebsen in tap and specialty dances that had the preview crowd applauding enthusiastically.

Dealing with jack-tars adventuring in the realm of romance, the picture moves at a speedy clip with never a letdown as one situation follows another. Roy Del Ruth's keenly pointed direction extracts the full value of the story from the talents of the various people. Interest is spontaneous and continues in a high key. A film that should excite the attention of any kind of audience in any competition. The music and lyrics by Cole Porter are just as much a part of the show as the dialogue situations created in the Jack McGowan-Sid Silvers-B. G. De Sylva original which McGowan and Silvers transposed to the screen. Ray June's photography is artistic.

The film evidences a brand of teamwork on the part of the principals and the support that retains all the necessary merits of good musical comedy and further introduces several unique departures certain to impress audiences. Jack Cummings produced.

Florida Gains Speed Theatre Building Pace

MIAMI, Nov. 15.—Last year's successful season is being reflected in new theatre construction in this state. Three new houses have been added to the list of projects.

Paramount Enterprises is to build a $250,000 house at Miami Beach, with the idea of rushing construction for an opening date Jan. 15. Sparks is planning a 500-seater at Bradentown, the second for this circuit in that city.

A new house has just been opened at Vero Beach by Clinton Ezell and R. N. Koblegaurd, Jr. Work also has been started on the renovation of the Prince at Pahokee and the remodeling of the Victoria at New Smyrna.

The old Stuart at Stuart has been condemned and will be razed.

Carolinas Get New Houses

CHARLOTTE, Nov. 15.—Three more new houses are being erected in South Carolina and one in North Carolina.

One of the new South Carolina houses is at Columbia. It will replace the Imperial and will be known as the Center. Palmetto Amusements, Inc., intends to spend $100,000 on the building. Another South Carolina house is at Newberry. It will be owned by T. E. Davis and will be managed by Mrs. C. H. Albrecht. A third, to be built by Greenville Enterprises, will be at Greenville.

The new house for North Carolina will be at Spruce Pine. It will be a 500-seater for Cherokee Amusement Co., Inc. At Burlington, N. C., new acoustical treatment and sound are being introduced at the Paramount.

Canadian Field Active

TORONTO, Nov. 15.—After having been completely rebuilt, refurnished and re-equipped, the Park, operated by H. Alexander for years, has been reopened as the Lansdowne. It serves the northwest section of Toronto.

Another rebuilding job, the Greenwood, has been completed in the East End. After reconstruction from front to back the house has been reopened as the Guild.

W. H. Furlong, a newcomer to the theatre business, is completing a new house in Windsor, Ont., which will be called the Vanity.

The Plaza, seating 950, has replaced the old Maple Leaf in Vancouver, the owner being John Dawson.

The Capitol is under construction in Sarnia, Ont., and work is proceeding on a new theatre in Hull, Quebec, by Famous Players Canadian Corp.

Remodel at Terre Haute

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Nov. 15.—The Lyceum here is being remodeled without closing the house.

In West Terre Haute the name of the Grace has been changed to the West and the house has been opened under new management. The Victory has been purchased by Ben Van Borsuum, operator of the Savoy.

Five Building in Ohio

CLEVELAND, Nov. 15. — Five new houses are being built in Ohio.

The remodeling jobs include extension of the back wall of the American at Bridgeport; a $12,500 renovation of the Strand, Hamden; the improvement of the Bostwick at Bridgeport, which has just been taken over by Harold Tabachman. The Rivoli at Bantam will be reopened for a trial by Steve Panora.

Build at Winchester, Mass.

BOSTON, Nov. 15.—E. M. Loew has started a $125,000 house in Winchester. This town, the wealthiest in the country, has banned films for 20 years. Albert Locatelli, denied a license to build by the selectmen, led the fight waged during the past few years to induce residents to allow a theatre within the town limits. M. P. Theatres Corp. and the Morse-Rothenberg circuit also attempted to obtain licenses to construct.

Theatres Gain In Farm Belt Despite Worry

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 15.—In spite of all the predictions of disaster in the farm belt during the drought and sandstorm period of early summer, business gains are being reflected in new building on a scale that has not been seen for years.

In Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and Iowa 15 new theatres are under way, 18 are undergoing renovation, two others are having new sound installed and two have been sold lately. These figures are in addition to statistics previously reported.

Of these latest additions to the list of new projects five are in Kansas and two are in Missouri.

The new Kansas houses are: Fredonia, White Way, 1,000 seats, operated by A. W. Pugh; Wichita, Civic, a $75,000 house operated by O. F. K. C. Theatre Status Best Since Slump

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 15.—Judging by material improvements, the number of seats in use, and continuity of ownership, the general theatre situation in Greater Kansas City is the best since the depression, and perhaps better than it ever has been. Some theatres may be doing less well than formerly, but for the most part this is not evident.

The biggest improvement has been made by subsequents. This is due to the trend away from downtown first runs toward suburban theatres which started some years ago.

Another factor is the easing up of money in the last year or two. The competitive situation is keener than it has been. This is indicated by the low average admission in Kansas City, a little over 16 cents, which is considered one of the lowest for any city this size in the country. Practically all houses are showing doubles six or seven nights a week. One house offers two features for seven cents one night a week; another a triple at 15 cents. A part of any increase in box-office income is going into premiums or money giveaways. These conditions explain, somewhat, why in spite of gains, exhibitors as a rule are not bragging about income.

Much Renovation and Building

There are more seats than there were three years ago. Most of the theatres closed now were closed then, but some that then were dark have reopened. In addition, some theatres have increased their seating capacity, and there are new houses.

A brief review of what has happened in the last three years, much of it in the past year, bears out these points:

Substantial modernizations have taken place in the case of the Fox Rockhill; the Bijou; the Mary Lue (reseating, cooling system, etc.); the Westport, Roanoke, State, Sun, Gillham, St. John; National (new refrigeration system), and the Forty-first St., formerly the Indiana, which was closed throughout the depression except for a brief interlude about two years ago. In Kansas City, Kan., the Pershing has been reseated and modernized, the Rosedale modernized, and the Midway has added additional seats, refrigeration, etc. Colored houses: the Fox Lincoln, almost completely rebuilt at a cost of around $50,000; the Hollywood, and the Princess, which has just increased seats from 450 to 760.

New Negro House Opened

W. D. Fulton is building a new 1,000-seat house, the Brookside, for occupancy the end of the year. Fulton's State, Kansas City, Kans., a 400-seat house, has just celebrated its first birthday anniversary. The Castle is a new 775-seat house opened this year to colored patronage.

Of the five first runs, the Tower is the product of the depression. This 2,200-seat house, formerly the Pantages, was closed for some years before it was opened about two years ago. Its subsequent run neighbor and corporate affiliate, the Downtown, has been modernized.

Continuity of ownership is one of the strongest indices of an improved condition, inasmuch as a frequently changing ownership is almost synonymous with poor business in a particular house.

The Bijou, dark until about two years ago, when J. W. Cotter took it over, raised its prices last fall, the first and only theatre in Kansas City so far that has done so. Several changes in the ownership of the Mokan occurred over a period of years until it went to W. D. Fulton last fall. Prior to two years ago, when E. S. Young took it over, the Roanoke was closed and opened spasmodically under several owners. The State, formerly the Diamond, was closed, but two years ago it was taken over by C. E. Esterly.

The Central has been regularly operated for about three years by the same owner. It was open and closed before. The Gillham, dark for a long time early in the depression, has been open the past three years. The Prospect's ownership has been stabilized. The LaSalle, closed for years has been operating under the same owner for three years.

Intermountain Men Honor Chet Miller

DENVER, Nov. 15.—Following the northern district regional meeting of the Fox Intermountain division here, a dinner was held at the Denver Athletic Club to honor Chet Miller, who has resigned as district manager. Because of his health and the traveling necessary for a district manager's job, Miller requested a change, and he will go to Missoula, Wyo., to be city manager of the Wilma, Rialto and Liberty.

Rick Ricketson, Fox Intermountain manager, presided.

Spain, and oppose one another for an indefinite period.

Barcelona will continue to function as a film center so long as the rail, sea and air communication with the French frontier is maintained, and, similarly, Valencia will continue to be supplied from Barcelona until the land, water and aerial routes cease to function. It is obvious, of course, that with the battle lines converging so closely upon the city itself, the people of Madrid are concerned with sterner things than pictures, for the time being, at least; in fact, while air raids prevail, both the Spanish and Catalan governments are discouraging by proclamation all mass assemblages, even including the bullfight, Spain's national sport. But the Madrid populace may again seek the relaxation and entertainment of the screen if one or the other of the contending armies proves to be victorious. It is doubtful if new films or even re-issues can be supplied from Barcelona to Madrid for some time to come, as the frequently interrupted transportation routes between the two capitals are needed for military uses and all traffic not within that category is suspended.

Film Interests Prepared

However, the main distributing offices at Barcelona and the Madrid branch managers long ago made preparation for such an eventuality and have provided reserve stocks of films; further, they have arranged for an exchange system as between the different exhibitors, who, as elsewhere indicated in this news article, have not syndicalized their theatres, but remain under independent operation, following the mysterious pilgrimage of their syndicalist committee to Barcelona many weeks ago, when they failed to get into contact with the American and foreign distributor heads in the Cataluna capital they had set out to meet.

One thing should be borne in mind. That is that regardless of a revolutionary victory by the Government forces or of the seizure of Madrid by the military, or Nationalist, besiegers, new obstacles are sure to be placed in the path of American and other film interests—by ukase of the C.N.T.-F.A.I.-U.G.T. dictator committees if the revolutionists maintain their present supremacy at Madrid and Barcelona, or by more or less arbitrary decree of the Fascist or military dictatorship or by formal legislation if the Nationalists succeed in dislodging the Anarcho-Syndicalists.

In neither instance will this condition arise from actual hostility toward the American picture group. It will be due to a new psychology—an almost fanatical urge to develop an independent film industry in Spain. The underlying motive of the revolutionists, of course, will be that of utilizing the Spanish screen "for all that the traffic will bear" for Anarcho-Syndicalist propaganda and the glorifying of the Soviet idea and ideal; that of their opponents the nationalizing of the industry and art. Of course, neither will admit, even to themselves, that the task it seeks for itself is virtually impossible for years to come, due to the dearth of component and experienced directors and of native artists of drawing power and the utter absence of suitable material for screen production other than the pallid type of narrative which the Spanish public already has eschewed in favor of the faster tempoed and infinitely better directed and portrayed films from other countries.

New Distributor Group Formed

There has been a shift in the personnel of the Comité Economico de Distribuidores, the off-shoot of the Cámara de Defensa Cinematografica of Barcelona, which was formed to treat with the Comité Económico de Espectáculos Públicos, the C.N.T. labor-exhibitors' group in all questions relating to the release of American pictures in Barcelona and Cataluña. Word has just reached New York that, due to the "prolonged absence" in Paris of the managers and sub-managers of the Barcelona distributor houses, who went to the French capital late in September to work out with the labor-distributor committee making the same pilgrimage, and the general European managers of the American companies the agreement foretold in MOTION PICTURE DAILY on the eve of their departure from Spain, a new ad interim committee has been appointed to take their places in the local councils of the Cámara de Defensa Cinematografica in Barcelona. Among those seated upon this temporary committee are Ferdinand Bruckner, secretary of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Iberica, S. A., and now the ranking official of that house, José Virós Moyes, secretary of the Cámara and publicity representative for Warners-First National, and Jaime Torroella, of Columbia Films, S.A.E. When, as and if any of the Barcelona executives return from their prolonged sojourn on the banks of the Seine, the original composition of the committee will be restored.

When the agreement concluded at Paris between the two entities was finally analyzed by the best legal minds and the politically informed among the distributor houses in the Spanish metropolis, the opinion was expressed that the pact was predicated upon the maintenance of harmonious relations between the Generalidad of Cataluña and the National Government of the Republic at Madrid. In the present moment, this relation, due to the exigencies of the military situation, are such as to encourage the hope that those clauses of the contract relating to the conversion of peseta accounts into dollar remittances and their transmission to the principals in the United States will be carried to fulfillment—if not in whole, at least in part. The agreement, in fact, is a commitment upon the part of the C.N.T., but in behalf of the regional government of Cataluña, of certain obligations which, under the existing governmental status in Spain, properly devolve upon the national administration. The fact must be taken into consideration, however, that within the last month or two the C.N.T. has lost much ground as an administrative factor in Cataluña, to the U.G.T. (Unión General de Trabajo), the rival Syndicalist organization of less "direct action" tendencies. Three months ago the C.N.T. came pretty near to being the government itself—the government at Madrid and the government at Barcelona. The changed political condition at Madrid and the removal of President Manuel Azaña to his "mountain retreat" executive mansion in the ancient Benedictine Abbey of Montserrat—on the heights 30 miles south of Barcelona make the fulfillment of the agreement alike in letter and in spirit a matter of speculation.

No Late Films Available

The Paris agreement will effect the release of a limited number of relatively new films of secondary importance by all of the eight American distributor houses operating in Spain and the opening of the current season already has seen a number of these announced for early presentation, among them being the second run of "Top Hat" in its original version. But the key pictures originally scheduled for fall and winter showing are still withheld from Spain, negatives and prints having been returned to Paris following the Revolt of July 19. Enough leeway, however, has been given the C.N.T. committee to enable it to prove the sincerity of its pledge, none too specifically expressed, to effect the release of some percentage of the "frozen pesetas" deposited with the Centro Oficial de Contratación de Moneda, or Exchange Control Commission of Spain.

this issue was paid in scrip several years ago.

Warners, during the past few weeks, have been as active and at times have seen more action on the big board. The common, which was 8½ a year ago, is now 17⅛, and the preferred at 47¼ last Nov. 14, is now 64⅞.

Loew's has hiked 14⅛ points in the last year, the issue now being at 63⅜, compared to 49¼ last year. The stock has been a consistent dividend payer with extras not uncommon.

At Warners, the board of directors will meet tomorrow and discuss the annual financial report. This is expected to show a profit of close to $3,000,000, it is reliably reported. There is a slight possibility a dividend may be declared on the common, but the prospects for the payment of back dividends on the preferred are held as more likely.

RKO, now in the process of reorganization, has advanced $4 in the year. Downtown interests see this stock tipping $10 within the next week or so.

Twentieth Century-Fox common has been steadily gaining in the last few months. For the last 12-month period, this issue has netted a 14 point change in its favor, while the first preferred showed a 17⅜ plus mark. On Sept. 29, the board declared a common dividend of $1, the first in years. The company is reported earning about $3 a share.

Loew's is said to be making about $6.50 a share on the common, while Warners is declared to be earning $1, or better. Payment of a deficit accumulated during the bad periods is held to be one of the reasons for Warners not being in a position at this time to declare a dividend. The company's position is held to be very good and the insiders look to the common stock going to at least 25 before the first of the year.

Universal is progressing nicely. Columbia also has been a consistent dividend disburser, but because of a split-up some time ago, the change in the year's figures is somewhat difficult to compute. This issue has been tapering slightly in the last few days.

M-G-M Closes Rome Plant

ROME, Nov. 15.—The local offices of M-G-M informed United Press today that it is closing its "dubbing-in" studio in Rome as a result of failure to reach an agreement with the Government for export of money earned in Italy. The studio employed 23 engineers, actors and directors. The Italian Government recently advised American film companies that they could not export more than 13,000,000 lire ($680,000) of their total annual earnings representing only about one-third of the proceeds of their business.

sources within the industry for basic data.

Its figures on employment now are based upon the film boards' estimate of theatres open, as a result of which the 1929 employment, in past reports carried as 285,915, has been reduced to 129,600.

On the new basis, theatre employment dropped to 67.1 per cent of the 1929 figure in 1932, but had increased to 72.8 per cent by 1934, in which year it is estimated 94,298 persons were engaged in exhibition.

At the same time, the figure for salaries and wages was reduced from $427,443,000 for 1929 to $212,416,000 for that year, from which point it dropped steadily during the next four years to a low of $110,717,000 in 1933, increasing to $119,828,000 in 1934.

Little Data Available

Officials of the department concerned with the compilation of the report explained that no accurate sources of basic data have ever been developed and it has been necessary to take such figures as were available, chiefly from tax reports of the Treasury and such material as was obtainable in the Census Bureau, as a basis for estimates. Because of this, it is stressed, the figures on exhibition are valuable only as showing the trend, although it is felt, as a result of the cooperation of the Film Boards of Trade and other trade sources, that they are more nearly accurate than in the past.

With respect to production, the figures in former reports have been subject only to minor correction since there are available the Census Bureau statistics on this branch of the industry.

The national income report shows that production employment by 1934 had not only recovered from the effects of the depression but exceeded that of 1929 by 7.9 per cent. Total employment in production in 1929 was 19,602, dropping to 15,224 in 1932, then increasing to 19,221 in 1933 and 21,143 in 1934. Salaries and wages, which dropped from $85,028,000 in 1929 to $61,624,000 in 1932, had climbed by 1934 to $81,716,000, or 96.1 per cent of the 1929 figure.

Surplus Reappears in '34

By 1934, also, the producers were again "in the black," with a surplus of $6,804,000, contrasting with a deficit of $32,627,000 in 1932 and but little more than 25 per cent of the 1929 surplus of $23,820,000.

Of all the amusement industries, radio broadcasting has done the best, although the corporate surplus of the industry was reduced from $12,997,000 in 1929 to a deficit of $12,050,000 in 1930. Feeling the effects of the depression at an early date, broadcasting had a good start on recovery and by 1932 had reduced the deficit to $4,590,000, although it took a setback to $6,645,000 in 1933. In 1934, however, a surplus of $1,983,000 was reported.

Employment in the broadcasting industry, with the exception of 1933, has been steadily upward since 1929, when it was 9,322. By 1932 employment had increased to 11,354, dropping back to 11,000 in 1933 and climbing to 11,699 in 1934. Salaries and wages, which increased from $18,569,000 in 1929 to $20,945,000 in 1930 and $23,631,000 in 1931, dropped to $22,640,000 in 1932 and again to $20,916,000 in 1933 but advanced to $23,000,000 in 1934.

No separate figures are given for the legitimate theatre in the current report, although in earlier reports the 1929 employment was placed at 49,035. It was felt that the legitimate figures were so inaccurate as to need drastic downward revision and, when so revised, the total was so negligible that it was bulked with miscellaneous amusements. In the current report, the total employment for miscellaneous amusements is given as 40,344, which is approximately 50,000 under the former figure for legitimate theatres and miscellaneous recreation.

Films Dominate Entertainment

"The entire field of entertainment is characterized by a high degree of business risk due to the varied acceptance by the public of amusement offerings," the report commented. "Motion picture exhibition has been the leading industry in this field. In recent years its change from 'silent' to 'sound' pictures and its encroachment upon the field of the legitimate theatre has given it a more predominant position. This field of activity has a characteristic worthy of note in that it represents a vertical industry, which manufactures, distributes and sells its product, utilizing to a large extent the chain type of business organization.

"Employment and payrolls in recreation and amusement held up relatively well in 1930 and 1931, but the decline from 1931 to 1932 was marked. Employment was lowest in 1932, when it was 77 per cent of that in 1929; by 1934 it had increased to 83 per cent of the total for 1929. The low year for payrolls was 1933, when this item was 64 per cent of the 1929 total; but in 1934 it rose to 69 per cent of the 1929 total. The decline in the per capita income of the employees was less than the decline in the cost of living."

and whose contract is in good standing on the date of his application for elimination will be entitled to exercise his elimination privilege irrespective of whether the average rental was more or less than $250. We will also accept notice of elimination of any picture within 10 days after notice of its availability to the particular exhibitor, instead of within 14 days after release date, as formerly provided."

"We have not as yet had an opportunity to confer with exhibitors as to a provision which will insure against too many pictures being eliminated during the early part of the contract," Cochrane's statement concludes, "but for the present we will permit two cancellations out of the first 20 pictures in any case where the exhibitor is otherwise entitled to elimination."

Universal is the only company which has publicly stated its policy in relation to the trade practice reforms sought by the M.P.T.O.A. In addition to the liberalized 10 per cent cancellation referred to in Cochrane's statement, the company also pledged itself to refrain from attempts to collect the score charge and offered its cooperation in the establishment of local conciliation boards through which the exhibitor sponsors hope to achieve solutions for the remaining trade practice problems covered by the program.

N. Y. Exhibitors Await Outcome of Test

Admission increases are expected to become general throughout the metropolitan area as soon as the current legal test of the city's right to apply the two per cent municipal sales tax to film rentals has been decided, it was learned yesterday.

Numerous exhibitors have been prepared to make upward adjustments of admissions for the past several months on the basis of increased attendance and the marked improvement in general business conditions with its assurance of better public buying power. Admission scale increases have been deferred, however, because of the uncertainty over the outcome of the court test of the sales tax on films.

Maryland MPTO Ask 25% Cancellations

BALTIMORE, Nov. 16.—Resolutions calling for 25 per cent cancellation privileges in this territory "to prevent the unwholesome and uneconomic practice of double billing from gaining a foothold in this community" were passed at the last meeting of the M.P.T.O. of Maryland, Inc.

The resolution points out that many cheap films have been made for inclusion on duals and that the M.P.T.O. unit members feel they should have the privilege of refusing these in return for maintaining single features here.

20th-Fox Votes Fourth Quarter Dividends; Second for Common

The dividends are payable Dec. 12 to stockholders of record Nov. 27.

Federal-NBC Units to Use Film Houses

Film theatres for the most part will be used to house the stage units to be developed as an outgrowth of the new WPA-NBC radio hour which will begin an indefinite period of weekly broadcasts over the NBC-Blue network tomorrow night at 9 P. M.

Months in development, the program, one hour in length, will be called the Federal Theatre of the Air. Completely cast and ready for presentation, the program will be heard privately today by John Royal, NBC vice-president, and if it is satisfactory, will go on as scheduled. In the event that the program still needs

"Gold Diggers" Trip Gets "Tremendous"; Texas Astir

By J. M. JERAULD

It's "tremendous"—that "Gold Diggers" airplane trip across the country. Sid Retchetnik stuck his head up out of a pile of telegrams yesterday afternoon at the Warner home office and said so. If it keeps up the way it's going now, Sid'll be hysterical and the "Gold Diggers" will be exhausted in a short time.

It began Saturday in California and hit El Paso and Fort Worth in a few hours. At Fort Worth Lionel Blevins,

Koenig Quits "U" in Shift At the Studio

Reported Going to MGM To Succeed Pelton

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 16. — William Koenig, who joined Universal as studio business manager shortly before the company changed hands less than a year ago, has resigned, Charles R. Rogers, vice-president in charge of production, stated today. No reason was given for the resignation which is effective immediately.

It is reported that Keonig will succeed Fred Pelton at M-G-M. The studio would not comment today on this aspect of the situation.

In a rearrangement of the executive setup, James P. Normanly becomes general business manager in charge of business and financial contacts. Val Paul has been elevated from associate producer to studio manager with Martin Murphy and William J. Fender continuing as production manager and studio superintendent, respectively.

Koenig said today he would announce his future affiliation following a vacation. He was with Warners as studio manager for a number of years before joining Universal.

Union Survey Board In Closed Meeting

The Mayor's survey board, which is seeking settlement of the union difficulties in New York, held a closed meeting yesterday afternoon in the office of Howard S. Cullman at the Roxy. There were no representatives of either the union or theatres present, the committee members devoting the session to a discussion of the progress thus far made.

Sam A. Lewisohn, chairman of the board, Cullman, and two technical advisers of the committee, Ben Golden and Harry Lurie, were present. William Collins, the third member of the survey board, was absent, attending the Tampa convention of the A.F.L. No date has been set yet for the next meeting with either union or theatre representatives, but such a session is expected later in the week.

The producer will leave tomorrow for the coast.

head of the Chamber of Commerce, and the local debutantes turned out. There was a barbecue at the Buck Sanson ranch. Fred Lawrence, Jeanne Madden and Rosalind Marquis did a half-hour broadcast over KTAT and the whole troupe appeared at the Worth. Frank Weatherford, manager, started the telegram avalanche at the New York office.

El Paso got excited, too. Acting Mayor R. E. Sherman and a few thousand El Pasoans turned out. More receptions, more broadcasting and an appearance at the Plaza. Yesterday Dallas went into a ferment, with Mayor Sargent and city officials at the landing port, and Chief of Police Robert L. Jones and a motorcycle escort for a parade. At noon Dallas Variety Club entertained at the Adolphus, with Robert J. O'Donnell, Interstate general manager and chief barker of the club, presiding. At 5:30 they had another tour of the city. In the evening there was a dinner at the Baker Hotel, followed by a stage appearance at the Majestic, also a broadcast over the Texas Quality Network with WFAA as the Dallas outlet.

Memphis Honored Today

The air travelers were gasping for air when it was over, but they're due in Memphis this morning. Streets have been bannered, the Mayor has issued a proclamation calling it "Gold Diggers' Aviation Day." A 15-piece orchestra will be at the air port, and they're even going to use homing pigeons to greet the plane. Just how a homing pigeon greets a plane isn't clear, but Sid says it's so. The Junior Chamber of Commerce will join in the festivities.

On Thursday Albert Warner, the home office contingent and all the district managers meeting in Chicago will greet the aviators and avitarixes—if that's the plural for feminine flyers.

By that time, if the trip isn't colossal, it will at least be epoch-making.

"dressing up," the opening broadcast will be postponed one week, although that is considered highly unlikely.

The first stage unit is expected to be ready to take to the road shortly after the first broadcast. Following that, according to present plans, a new stage unit will be devised out of each weekly broadcast, each air program to be different, and include different performers.

NBC is donating the station time and broadcasting the program as a sustaining feature. It is anticipated that a sponsor will be obtained for the program in the near future, since it is understood three different companies are considering sponsorship of the air feature now.

NBC and WPA Cooperating

The program is a cooperative effort of the WPA Radio Division and NBC's artists' bureau. The broadcasting company will derive its revenue on the program from the booking of the stage units, in which the WPA will have no hand. The Federal project is interested merely in providing work for unemployed actors and actresses. The first program's personnel will consist of 60 per cent of players on the WPA rolls, and 40 per cent unemployed players not so registered. All are professionals.

Fred Niblo, former film director, hired by NBC, will be master of ceremonies. The first program will consist of 12 old-time vaudeville acts, with Jerry Sears' orchestra, an NBC house band, providing the musical accompaniment. Among the acts for the first unit will be Margaret Padulah, vocalist, and Charles B. Leland, comedian.

The program is considered the highlight of the radio division's efforts since its inception on March 23 of this year. The unit has eight other air programs, but this is considered the most ambitious yet attempted.

Pull "Pastures" Program

LONDON, Nov. 16.—After all preparations had been completed for the broadcasting tonight of sequences from "The Green Pastures," the British Broadcasting Corp. decided not to permit the broadcast. The film was finally passed recently, after first having been banned by the film censor. No reason was given for the radio action other than that an item of that nature could not be included in the mixed program arranged for tonight.

Sears Unit Quits Dec. 10

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Sears-Roebuck radio show, "Then and Now," will leave the airlanes permanently Dec. 10. The company is planning a new program to start some time following the first of the year.

Colbert Show on Air Is Set Back

"Maid of Salem" with Claudette Colbert in the lead will be replaced by "Theodora Goes Wild," with Irene Dunne on the "Hollywood Hotel" broadcast of Nov. 20. Melvyn Douglas will support Miss Dunne in the air dramatization. No replacement date has been set for "Maid of Salem."

The following Friday "Hollywood Hotel" will feature Mary Astor and Charles Boyer in reenactments of scenes from "The Garden of Allah." Miss Astor will play Marlene Dietrich's part from the picture, Miss Dietrich now being in Europe.

Lanier Wins Contest

First prize of a $1,000 in the children's program contest conducted for the past few months by NBC was won by Henry W. Lanier, son of Sidney Lanier, one of America's best known poets, it will be announced today. Five other cash prizes, totaling $1,200 will be awarded by NBC to other winners.

The contest was conducted in an effort to discover new entertainment for the younger listeners and was held under the direction of Paul Wing, NBC director of children's programs. The judges were Homer Croy, novelist, Louise Seaman, editor of children's books; Dr. Rollo Reynolds, school principal; Sidonie Gruenberg, of the Child Study Ass'n of America; Dr. Arthur Frank Payne, psychologist, and Charles Coburn, actor and producer.

Also a prize winner, but in another contest conducted by NBC, is June Hynd, of the network's New York program department, who won $100 in NBC's slogan contest by coining the phrase, "By Choice the Nation's Voice." The slogan will be used on all promotional and advertising copy issued by NBC, but will not be heard on the air.

Radio Men to B. A.

John Royal, NBC vice-president; Paul White, CBS special events chief; and H. V. Kaltenborn, CBS commentator, leave by plane this week for a 17,000 mile flight to Buenos Aires to attend the Pan-American Conference, opening Dec. 1.

Kaltenborn and White leave tonight, while Royal boards a plane tomorrow. Both networks will carry short-wave broadcasts of the sessions. While the CBS duo will return at the conclusion of the conference, Royal will remain in Latin America indefinitely, traveling from nation to nation as NBC's "good-will" ambassador. Royal acted in a similar capacity for NBC last year, when he toured Europe for four months.

While in Latin America, he will arrange for native broadcasts.

Fiske Only on Music

Dwight Fiske will not participate in person on the new "Fables in Rhythm" series which begin on the CBS network tonight. Fiske will merely write special music for the program. CBS makes this statement to correct the general impression that Fiske would appear on the show and assumes the blame for the error, which was caused by an ambiguously worded release.

O'Neill in Capsules

The March of Time on Thursday will offer pocket dramatizations of six Eugene O'Neill plays in recognition of the playwright's award of the Nobel Prize. The plays, approximating 30 hours of emoting in the theatre, will consume four minutes on the air.

Wynn Wobbly

Ed Wynn got off to a wobbly start at his premiere Saturday night over the NBC-Blue. The program was one of the poorest production jobs heard on a national network, with practically all members of the cast confused with may unforgivable "dead" spots.

Wynn himself was guilty of causing one of the more glaring "dead" spots by getting mixed up in his script and inadvertently walking off the stage when he was due before the microphone. None of the actors dared ad-lib during the lull, which lasted approximately 45 to 50 seconds.

Wynn's comedy in spots was hilarious, but in the main far below his usual standard. The burlesque of "Hamlet," with Lenore Ulric as the comedian's foil, was pointless. Don Voorhees' band was one of the saving features of the program.

A relief was the gaggy commercials. Everyone took witty pokes at the sponsor, which in no wise detracted from the product, as most sponsors unfortunately believe.

In justice to Wynn, however, it must be added that the script was not written by himself, but was prepared at the agency, Young and Rubicam for "Spud" cigarettes. Wynn is reported to be decidedly unhappy with his new show, mainly because the agency insists on handling the script.

Four Film Issues at New Highs for Year

highs for the year. With the exception of RKO, all issues closed at top prices. RKO closed at ⅛ off the high.

Paramount common was unusually active. Approximately 60,100 shares were traded in for a gain of 1⅜. It closed at 22. Warners common, with 51,800 shares changing hands for a profit of ⅞, ended at 18. Paramount first preferred, which has taken a sharp spurt in the last few months, showed another gain of nine points yesterday on a turnover of 4,900 shares, closing at 157. The second preferred closed at 19⅞, for a gain of one point on sales totaling 8,100 shares.

Twentieth Century-Fox first preferred jumped 2½ points to reach 47¾. About 1,400 shares changed hands. The common advanced 2, closing at 38¼ on sales aggregating 17,500. Warners preferred gained ⅜, hitting 65¼, with 600 shares being sold.

Reaching a new high of 10⅛, RKO closed at 10 for a one point profit on the 58,200 shares sold. Universal showed a plus 4½ on a turnover of 9,000 shares, closing at 110, or five points from the peak. On the curb this stock hit a new high of 15½, gaining 1¼. About 800 shares were traded.

Warners and Keith set new marks with their bond issues. B. F. Keith 6s '46 reached 98, a gain of ½ point, and closed there. Warners hit 99½ and closed at 99¼, up 1¼.

With Loew's reported earning $6.50 on the common for the current fiscal year, there is a possibility the company may declare an extra dividend of $1, in addition to the regular 50 cents.

THE KEYSTONE OF YOUR FUTURE

See Boost in Scales After Tax Decision

as an emergency unemployment tax, and with the social security tax to be added after next Jan. 1, even those exhibitors whose admission scales do not come within the Federal admission tax brackets are agreed that a boost in scales will have to be made in the near future regardless of whether or not the sales tax is eliminated. A determination of the amount of increase required, however, hinges on whether or not the two per cent sales tax need or need not be figured in the new scales, exhibitors say. For this reason action on admissions has been deferred in the hope that the issue will be decided before other tax overhead factors force the increases, it was said.

Each for Himself on Boosts

With no action on increased scales being taken now, the exhibitor will be free to mark up admissions in accordance with conditions prevailing when the sales tax issue has been decided. Judicious increases could be made at that time which not only would absorb the new costs whether the sales tax is upheld or not, but would also result in a net benefit to the exhibitor as well, it is pointed out. If increases were to be made now on the basis of the sales tax being upheld theatres taking such action would place themselves at a competitive disadvantage for the time being and might be forced to reduce scales later if the tax was declared invalid. On the other hand, if the mark-ups were made now on the theory that the sales tax will not be upheld an inadvisable second increase might be necessary later in the event the tax was declared legal.

Out-of-towners Also Affected

Theatres outside the city limits are confronted with the same uncertainty due to the fact that the city comptroller is appealing from that part of the Appellate Division's decision which held that theatres outside the city which are serviced by local exchanges are exempt from the tax. A reversal of this by the Court of Appeals at Albany, which will hear both the city's and the distributors' arguments on Dec. 3, would make all exhibitors in the metropolitan area subject to the tax. Indications are, however, that in such an event the industry would endeavor to bring the case to the U. S. Supreme Court as it is of major concern not only because of the large amount involved locally, but also because of the effect as a precedent such a decision might have on other municipalities.

Distributors have been collecting the tax from exhibitors since Jan. 1, 1936, but the collections have been segregated and will be returned to exhibitors if the appeal is successful. If the tax is upheld, however, the local industry would be liable as well for the uncollected tax on rentals from Dec. 28, 1934, when it became operative, up to Jan. 1, 1936, further suggesting the considerations entering into admission mark-ups while the sales tax remains undecided.

Film Writers Talk To Coast Liberals

San Francisco, Nov. 16.—Papers by John Bright and Viola Brothers Shore, Hollywood scenarists, were read here at a meeting of 300 Pacific coast "liberal intellectuals" presided over by Donald Ogden Stewart.

The general theme of the dissertations was that Hollywood will respond to higher artistic and "more honest social standards" whenever the majority of the public demands them. This thesis was attacked by a scattered group of left-wingers in the audience among whom was Michael Gold, playwright, who stated from the floor that there has been formed in New York a "Motion Picture Patrons' Alliance" having for its object the boycotting of films glorifying Fascism or Naziism.

Dorothy Parker and Alan Campbell were on the platform, but did not address the assemblage.

Ford on Goldwyn Film

Hollywood, Nov. 16.—John Ford was signed by wireless to direct Samuel Goldwyn's production, "Hurricane," which will be filmed in the South Seas, starting about Feb. 1. Ford was cruising in those waters on his yacht.

Two Plays Closing

"St. Helena," stage play which opened at the Lyceum Oct. 6, closes Saturday night.

"Night Must Fall" that same night closes at the Ethel Barrymore after a run of eight weeks.

Holton Does Stuff

Joe Holton, whose efforts at Twentieth Century-Fox at picking future Shirley Temples and Robert Taylors are well known, had the eyes turned on him Sunday night at the dress rehearsal of the Lambs' Gambol. News had leaked out that he was to appear as a "beautiful girl" in one of the sketches, so every talent scout in the city was was among those present.

Joe admitted last night that as yet he had received no offers.

Overseas Previews

"Rembrandt"

(London Films—United Artists)

London, Nov. 9.—Declared to be Alexander Korda's last personally directed picture, "Rembrandt" provides many proofs of his imagination and artistry. From Charles Laughton, also, there is a display of virtuosity sufficient to lift any picture out of the ruck. Whether these qualities, to which the virtues of fine art direction and beautiful camera work must be added, are sufficient to justify the epithet "great" which one may feel inclined to apply in advance to any Korda-Laughton effort is in doubt.

This story of the life of one of the greatest of painters is, in fact, just a bit out of focus. It seems to have nearly every quality but the most important quality of all, conviction. The studio work is brilliant, but there is too much studio. Laughton is brilliant in his best moments, but there is too much Laughton; he is a magnificent elocutionist but why, except to prove that fact, give him two long biblical passages to deliver as well as a very stilted eulogy of Woman?

Rembrandt, the man of temperament, who insults the clients who want portraits when he has given them art; Rembrandt, the unlucky lover; Rembrandt, the failing old man who spends his last penny on paint for a self-portrait and his near-last breath for the whisper: "All is Vanity," —that is the theme of the series of detached pictures which make up "Rembrandt."

Many of them are very fine episodes. Rembrandt, painting his wife's portrait before her memory fades and disregarding the tolling bell summoning him to her burial; Rembrandt, telling the story of Saul and David in order to inspire his models with the spirit of their parts; the unveiling of the picture now known as "The Night Watch" and his denunciation of the dissatisfied Syndics who ordered it. It is all beautifully done pictorially, but it leaves one a little cold, although Laughton shows that there is scarcely any part, however he may appear unsuited to it, to which he cannot give distinction and although Elsa Lanchester plays charmingly the part of Hendrickje, his last love.

It seems a picture for big city audiences, and for that percentage of that public which is superior to conventional entertainment values.

Running time, 84 minutes. "U." Allan

HIGH INTENSITY PROJECTION

THEATRE patrons desire enough supplementary lighting for comfortable vision from the moment of entrance. They are annoyed when a dark theatre compels them to stumble and grope blindly for their seats.

High Intensity Projection permits ample side lighting for a comfortable level of general illumination. It improves the quality of black and white projection and brings out the full beauty and realism of color productions.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Mandarin Mystery"

(Republic)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 16.—This one is a laughless comedy, carrying the added weight of a sluggish murder mystery and a romance without any love interest to mention.

Charlotte Henry, with a $50,000 postage stamp for sale, is chased by wicked stamp dealers intent on stealing the valuable bit of paper. Eddie Quillan, as Ellery Queen, the boy detective, runs around embarrassing the police force and finding the murderer. Among those one suspects of doing the murder or of trying to be funny are Rita La Roy, Franklin Pangborn, Wade Boteler, George Irving, Kay Hughes, William Newell, George Walcott and Edwin Stanley.

On top of everything else, stamp collectors may be filled with horror at the way the valuable collectors' item is carried, carelessly folded in an ordinary envelope, and handled without tongs.

Production Code Seal No. 2,803. Running time, 66 minutes. "G."

"The Yellow Cruise" ("La Croisiere Jaune"), opening at the 55th St. today, was reviewed on May 7.

"Go West, Young Man," tomorrow's opener at the Paramount, was covered by wire from Hollywood Nov. 4.

"Wedding Present," which goes into the Criterion tomorrow, was also reviewed from Hollywood on Sept. 21.

"Murder with Pictures," the Rialto's new attraction beginning tomorrow, was reviewed from Hollywood on Aug. 28.

"Tarzan Escapes" goes into the Capitol Thursday. The Hollywood wire reviewed it on Oct. 26.

"The Garden of Allah," opening at the Music Hall that same morning, was seen in Hollywood and covered on Nov. 2.

"Can This Be Dixie?", slated for the Palace Friday, was reviewed from the coast on Nov. 10.

New English Circuit Capital $32,500,000

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Financial details of the Union Cinemas amalgamation scheme, already reported, have been released. They provide for a merger between Union Cinema Co., Ltd., Oxford and Berkshire Cinemas, Ltd., and National Provincial Cinemas, Ltd., and the establishment of a new company with a capital of £6,500,000 in 2,000,000 redeemable six per cent cumulative first preference shares of £1 value, 1,500,000 redeemable six per cent second preference of £1; and two classes of ordinary shares, 10,000,000 "A" of five shillings value (£2,500,000) and 2,000,000 ordinary at five shillings (£500,000). Both classes of preference shares are redeemable at 22 shillings, by a one per cent sinking fund commencing in 1940, or at the company's option.

Security interchanges with the existing companies are proposed to holders on the following basis:

Union Cinema Co., Ltd.—37 "A" ordinary and 12 ordinary for every existing £1 ordinary. Five first preference and 10 second preference for every seven per cent preference.

Oxford and Berkshire—two "A" ordinaries and one ordinary for each five shilling ordinary. One preference and one second preference for every seven per cent preference.

National Provincial—Three "A" ordinaries and one ordinary for each five shillings ordinary. Seventeen preference and 17 second preference for every 24 £1 preference.

The scheme will be submitted at a special shareholders' meeting of the three existing companies on Nov. 27.

Leading figures in the Union groups are C. F. Bernhard and W. Southan Morris. An easier quotation for the companies' shares, and greater freedom in obtaining finance are the ascribed reasons for the amalgamation scheme.

Plan for RKO May Go Before Court Friday

Status of the Rockefeller Claim Not Made Known

A plan of reorganization for RKO may be completed in time for filing with the U. S. District Court here on Friday, it was stated on good authority yesterday.

"While we still cannot be certain that the plan will be completed within the time set," the spokesman for the reorganizing factors said, "our aim today is to file a plan with the court on Friday."

Leo Spitz, RKO president, who returned from the coast Monday, is understood to have spent considerable time since then at conferences with reorganization factors downtown in an effort to expedite the completion of the plan. The Atlas Corp. and Lehman Bros. interests are the proponents of the plan, with the law firm of Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett acting as counsel.

Whether the plan, if completed by Friday, would include a provision for the Rockefeller Center claim of $9,100,000, which dominates the unsecured creditor class, could not be ascertained yesterday. It is understood that several proposals, looking either to a compromise settlement of the

Trade Conference Called; Film Industry to Accept

As a result of indications that definite steps will be taken to enact enabling legislation for enforcement of wage and hour agreements and trade practice regulations at the conference of business leaders called for Dec. 10 and 11 at Washington by the National Council for Industrial Progress, the film industry is now regarded as certain to send its representatives to the sessions.

Since the demise of NRA the industry's attitude has been that participation in such conferences was futile because of the absence of enabling legislation for the enforcement of any trade pacts which might result from the meetings. It was this viewpoint which decided the industry against sending its representatives to the industrial conference held in Washington a year ago at the instigation of Major George L. Berry, head of the National Council for Industrial Progress.

With the current possibility of enabling legislation being at least con-

Treasury, Reserve Board And SEC Are Concerned Over Heavy Sales

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Administration officials who are watching stock exchange activities to determine whether there is a trend toward a stock boom which might get out of hand, were today understood to be studying the film securities as a result of recent heavy trading.

While Treasury and Federal Reserve Board officials are known to be somewhat concerned about the recent boom in the market, which was especially pronounced following the election, officials of the Securities and Exchange Commission refused to divulge their views on the situation, other than to say that at all times they have about 100 stocks under scrutiny. Whether specific picture stocks were among those under study could not be learned.

However, the SEC is believed to be watching the situation to some extent since under the law it is required to prevent stock manipulations which might come under the heading of "market rigging." It is against the law for any person to operate in the market for the purpose of creating an artificial appearance of activity or an artificial trend. In the instance of a

By RED KANN

NOT so, not so, insist two distributors. Releases for those waning weeks ending with the dreaded pre-Christmas slump may be doddering throughout all of the industry, but no bearing has it on what's to come from Metro and Warners. The companies say so themselves. They say so in answer to the unnamed circuit bookers of the other day's column who wailed and mentally tore their hair over conclusions drawn from a bulking of releases from all sources for the initial three weeks of next month. There is the Warner organization, pointing pridefully to

1. "The Charge of the Light Brigade."
2. "Three Men on a Horse."
3. "Polo Joe."
4. "King of Hockey."

And Metro, as usual, with no apologies to make for Leo to anyone, with

A. "Love on the Run."
B. "Camille."
C. "After the Thin Man."

Enough good stuff for any man's theatre there, they insist. Metro even goes beyond. It has optioned the space in Macy's window the scoffers said they'd occupy if any distributor can prove them wrong. . . .

The wise film man will tell you readily enough that no one can predict the public's reactions to a given attraction. There are, of course, known equations; no great variance develops with a Temple or an Astaire-Rogers, although don't kid yourself that there is not some. Yet, beyond that very limited starring group of which those cited are examples, precedent these days means little or nothing. Because it does not, sales managers' fingers, late 1936 model, are forever more crossed. Several important exhibitors, reaching the town since the week began, separately brought with them interesting information about the current status of three attractions over which New York critics purred and Hollywood naturally raved....

In the vast mid-country area, this trio is passing through a first run experience decidedly out of kilter with the forecasts. As a matter of fact and to cut the verbiage, they are flops. Each of the three, for reasons inherent in themselves, rates the public's support which has not been forthcoming although merit, beyond question, is there. The coast will be discouraged and cannot be blamed for its inevitable reaction. In one case, an important star cannot lure them past the box-office. In the second, the film is accurately and dramatically drawn from a nationally known property. In the third, the subject is a stirring depiction of a popular best seller. Earmarked by all the requisites demanded of money pictures, no money is in them and thus this unfortunate tale comes to its unsatisfactory end. . . .

In case you don't know it, Gypsy Rose Lee is a dark-haired, dark-eyed dame of buxom proportions who specializes in that creation of burlesque known as the strip-tease. The strip-tease is a form of entertainment which calls for an orchestral accompaniment, usually hot and certainly rhythmic; sometimes a song, but more often not, from the strip-teaser and always an undress act. It provides for an evening gown, maybe cut on the bias, but anyway cut to allow hips, torso, et al to show by the easy discard of a minimum of pins tied up in a general plan which presumably tantalizes an audience made up almost entirely of men. Your effective strip-teaser shows little, finally gets to all and is skilled when she reveals her womanly charms first on a modesty plus basis and builds up to a climax when the lights go blue and she goes naked. . . .

Miss Lee ranks high in this chosen profession of hers and so, far be it for us to disparage an artiste. However, when reports get around that she is being considered for pictures, we go violently disparaging long enough to suggest that this is more than a mild form of insanity, not to include taste that reminds of the one about last week's socks. Miss Lee, when her professional abilities are cleaned up, might have something to offer Hollywood. For the sake of the argument, we'll concede it, but, whatever the histrionic virtues, the coast can afford to pass them up and not run counter the danger of missing out on a potential Duse, if that renowned actress's memory will pardon the comparison. The market demand seemingly created for Miss Lee may be the usual agent's manouevres and that would occasion no surprise. But of burlesque and the strip-tease, Miss Lee is a Minsky product and to Minsky and the Shuberts she should be permitted to remain true. . . .

Not so long ago: Instructions to the Warner Theatre bookers to find their film where they might, but not from Grand National.

Now: These same houses giving G. N. dates. And that makes for a story, proving the sighing of the wind changes with its direction.

Warners were none too pleased about losing the widely-known Carl Leserman to Alperson and certainly Grad Sears was not too happy about it. W. B. men, here and there and in scattered manner, followed suit. Then, of course, the Cagney situation which is a delicate one. But Leserman and Alperson, as those things go, might have gotten along far better and that made it a likely proposition for Carl to return to Sears as the latter's assistant, thereby to revive what always has been a closely-knit and understanding selling combination. It happened and it resulted in a sort of peace. Also in dates for Grand National. . . .

"Gold Diggers" Due In Milwaukee Today

Those flying "Gold Diggers" are getting around. Yesterday it was Memphis. Today it's Milwaukee and tomorrow it'll be Chicago.

Memphis turned out in a big way with bannered streets, an air circus with 50 planes, a speech by the acting mayor and a broadcast over WBMQ at the Municipal Airport. After a parade, luncheon was served at the Rotary Club. Then there were more broadcasts, a personal appearance at the Warner and a "Gold Diggers Ball" at the Hotel Peabody in the evening under the auspices of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

At Milwaukee today the visitors will be welcomed by five winners of a contest put on by the Wisconsin News. On the City Hall steps the Marquette University football team will present a good luck token to Jeanne Madden. Broadcasts will be made, followed by a party.

Jack L. Warner and the sales executives attending a mid-season conference at the Blackstone Hotel, Chicago, will greet the flyers tomorrow in Chicago.

A MUSICAL ON A GRAND SCALE; SHOULD BE A WOW AT ANY BOX OFFICE.

This is one of the singingest, dancingest mammoth musicals ever made. And it sure is one grand show. As produced by Jack Cummings, and directed by Roy Del Ruth, it is a big production that should be a box-office wow. Everybody sings and everybody dances, but the topper of them all is Eleanor Powell. Her dances are many, and some of the routines are nothing short of sensational. The songs by Cole Porter are in the hit class, with "I've Got You Under My Skin", "Easy to Love", "I'm Nuts About You" and "Rap, Tap On Wood", standing out. James Stewart sings and dances, and he and Eleanor are splendid as the romantic interest. For comedy there are Una Merkel, Sid Silvers and Buddy Ebsen. Besides contributing a lot of laughs they are very important in the song and dance set-up. Raymond Walburn adds to the laugh footage. Virginia Bruce and Alan Dinehart have important roles, and Frances Langford sings in nice style. Special mention should go to Reginald Gardiner for a smash routine in which he directs a non-existent symphony orchestra. Georges and Jalna present a superlative ball-room number, Barnett Parker has an enjoyable bit, and Helen Troy's telephone skit is hilarious. Juanita Quigley is a clever and beautiful child, who gets her lines over well. The dance ensembles, as staged by Dave Gould, are gigantic numbers and are most important in the total lay-out. The story by Jack McGowan, Sid Silvers and B. G. De Sylva, with screenplay by the first two, furnishes a peach of a structure on which to use the songs and dances, and their dialogue is very clever. Ray June's photography gives scope to the numbers and his work on the individuals is noteworthy. Roy Del Ruth's direction gives the piece a swift pace, with entertainment every foot of the way, and Jack Cummings can be proud of a production of this calibre. While visiting his wife, Una Merkel, whom he has not seen during his four years in the navy, Sid Silvers introduces a fellow sailor, James Stewart, to Eleanor Powell, who is desirous of getting on the stage. Eleanor goes for James in a big way and he for her. A publicity gag involves him with Virginia Bruce, an actress, and Eleanor thinks it is on the level. Virginia falls for James, too, and he leads her on because of the opportunity it affords him to maneuver his Eleanor into Virginia's job, which the former is understudying. Jimmy's explanation, plus Eleanor's professional success, reunites them romantically.

RIOTOUS COMEDY PUT OVER IN GRAND STYLE BY BOX OFFICE BIG SHOTS.

One riot of a comedy is this "Love On the Run". It sparkles with clever dialogue that Joan Crawford, Clark Gable and Franchot Tone put over in grand style. In such a swell piece of entertainment, this name cast should mean smash box-office returns. Every type and kind of audience should love its gay, breezy, laugh-loaded qualities. Tone deserves special mention for his performance. Crawford and Gable are splendid in this light type of comedy as they certainly know how to put over the lines. Reginald Owen makes a perfect suave spy, masquerading as a Baron with an accent, and Mona Barrie serves capably as his accomplice. Donald Meek is in for a dance with Joan that is a wow, and she and Gable do a routine that will rock the audience. The piece is filled with hilarious situations, and the lightning tempo that is maintained never allows for a dull moment. W. S. Van Dyke's expert direction is everywhere to be noted, and the screenplay with the praiseworthy dialogue was written by John Lee Mahin, Manuel Seff and Gladys Hurlbut. Franz Waxman contributed a very appropriate musical score. This production should do Joseph Mankiewicz, its producer, proud. Gable and Tone are a couple of double-crossing, fast-working reporters. Gable meets Joan, who is hot copy and befriends her while getting her story exclusively. In making a hurried getaway they take Owen's airplane, in which they discover a very important map. Joan and Gable proceed to fall for each other and when she learns his true identity, is off him momentarily. Tone always manages to be around somehow and he fortunately slips in when it seems as though Owen has got Crawford and Gable in his clutches. Joan forgives Gable, and the picture ends with both boys still trying to out-smart one another.

MGM's "Born to Dance" has one of the best openings and greatest finishes yet seen in one of those big, lavish and entertaining productions. The opening demands attention that holds for the full length of the picture, setting a pace that would seem impossible to follow, while the finish will send an audience out yelling its praises

It's a big show

Submarine Locale

This big musical, assembled by MGM around the nimble feet and radiant smile of Eleanor Powell, is a super-galaxy of young dancing and singing talent in a coruscating collection of Cole Porter musical numbers and comedy interludes, with several specialties and two or three big production numbers added It is a generous order of breezy and tuneful entertainment and will give general satisfaction and register solidly at the boxoffice

Its frame is another navy story, located this time on a submarine, with a gob-meets-girl romance, and uses the dependable device of having the gob engineer the girl into an understudy spot in a big show and then engineer the leading woman out on the opening night There are some engaging variations along the way, but it is what the story frames that matters, and matters plenty

Eleanor Powell's dancing seems more magical each time one sees and hears it. She is credited with exhibiting 14 different styles in this show and is just about perfection in them all. Her good looks and unaffected charm continue to be winning assets.

The show opens with a male chorus, "Rolling Home," sung by the gobs in the heart of the submarine as it enters New York harbor, and the singing is led by James Stewart, who becomes Eleanor's romance and by Sid Silvers and Buddy Ebsen, his pals. The boys, sent on an errand by Captain Raymond Walburn, the jovial but feeble-minded skipper, land in a boy-meet-girl social club, where Una Merkel is clerk, Frances Langford, a waitress, and Eleanor an out-of-town refugee. The dancing and singing, as well as the romancing, begin right there and it continues on into the show business, where Virginia Bruce is a singing star loaded with explosive temperament who walks out on the spectacular battleship finale.

An amusing story-variant has Sid Silvers married to Una Merkel and returning to her after a four-year absence, to find an addition to the family in little Juanita Quigley This situation is pie for Una and Sid and yields many of the best laughs of the piece.

Outstanding Songs

The outstanding songs are "Rap, Tap on Wood," for Eleanor, who has also a lilting waltz song, "I'm Nuts About You" and "Swingin' Away" for the big finale With Stewart she has "So Easy to Love," which is repeated by Frances Langford and Buddy Ebsen Virginia Bruce's best song is "I've Got You Under My Skin" and there is one for Raymond Waldron, "Miss Lucy James," with a male chorus.

One of the hit specialties is Reginald Gardiner's burlesque of a showy orchestra conductor, leading in a policeman's uniform in Central Park an invisible band in a fine orchestral interlude Another topnotch skit is Barnett Parker's floorwalker rave in a department store cottage and a third is a dance by Georges and Jalna.

The music throughout is admirably delivered under Alfred Newman's baton and rates credits to its arrangers, Roger Edens, Edward Powell and Leon Arnaud, with another to Dave Gould for his dance direction and to Merrill Pye for musical number sets

Bright Dialogue

The authors of the piece, Jack McGowan, Sid Silvers and B. G. DeSylva, have decked their story frame out with a heavy sprinkling of laugh-lines and bright gags, and director Roy Del Ruth has adroitly swung the whole into breezy continuity, while Ray June at the camera has given it arresting pictorial value.

In the support James Stewart's bashful gob is amusingly different and engaging Virginia Bruce sings and looks better than ever in her ungrateful part. Frances Langford wins at every opportunity Alan Dinehart scores pleasantly as an enterprising press agent, Buddy Ebsen helps a lot in all departments and Helen Troy scores uproariously as a switchboard operator

The picture is a first producer assignment for Jack Cummings, who must get his share of the praise.

As suggested in the opening paragraph, MGM or any other company has not produced a finish to a picture that is as fast, as lavish and as entertaining as the big finale. The number reeks of heavy expenditure and, whatever the outlay, it is justified by the entertainment.

Exhibitors will welcome this new musical; audiences will do nip-ups over it. It's a cinch to add plenty to any theater boxoffice and that's why pictures are made.

Jolson to Head New Ether Show Originating on Coast

Hollywood gains another important radio show next month when Al Jolson, Martha Raye, Sid Silvers, and Victor Young's orchestra premiere in an as yet untitled offering over a coast-to-coast CBS hookup. Announcement to this effect will be forthcoming shortly.

CBS yesterday denied all knowledge of the new program, but Ruthrauff and Ryan, the agency handling the account for Lever Bros., admitted that the program was practically set and would be delivered on Tuesday, Dec. 22.

Time and length have not yet been decided upon, but the present indication is that it will be a half-hour show, 8:30 to 9 P.M., E.S.T., and that it will replace the Ken Murray program, now occupying the CBS channel Tuesdays at the above time, and sponsored by Lever Bros. in the interests of Rinso and Lifebuoy soap.

Gotham Licks Hollywood

The score in the game between Hollywood and New York now stands six to five in favor of Gotham. At least, that's the score as compiled by an outfit which polls the popularity of the various radio offerings and whose results are accepted as gospel by all advertising agencies, sponsors, networks, and stars.

In the current compilation, released yesterday, the top 11 programs—no one pays much attention to the balance of the list—are: The Jack Benny Show, Major Bowes' Amateurs, Hollywood Hotel, Eddie Cantor's Texaco Town program, Good-Will Court, George Burns and Gracie Allen, Fred Allen, Lux Radio Theatre, Vallee Variety Hour, Fred Astaire's Packard program and the Kraft Music Hall, starring Bing Crosby, in the order named.

Surprise programs in the poll were Hollywood Hotel and the Packard show, which made unexpectedly strong showings.

WPA Talent Lined Up

The talent for tonight's Federal Theatre of the Air program, which premieres over the NBC-Blue network at 9 P.M., E.S.T., was definitely established after a five hour "grind" behind locked doors at Radio City yesterday.

The actors are Margaret Padulah, vocalist; Charles B. Leland, comedy; Orlando Ricalbe, baritone; Elsie Mae Gordon, monologist; Edna White, trumpeter; a harmony trio known as the Harmonettes; Ralph Hertz in a skit; Perchik Melik, vocalist; Sow and Lubin, blackface comedians; and a war sketch by the company.

Fred Niblo and Jerry Sears' orchestra complete the cast.

20th-Fox Busy on "Lloyd's"

20th Century-Fox is waging an extensive radio exploitation campaign in connection with its latest film, "Lloyd's of London." On the west coast, KHJ, KFI, KNX, KECA, and KMTR have been announcing the premiere dates at key program spots for the past few days.

Here in New York, Norman Corwin, of the local 20th Century-Fox publicity staff, will be interviewed at 4 P.M. this afternoon by Penelope Summerwell over WNEW.

"Court" in Court

Radio's Good-Will Court was hailed to Supreme Court yesterday by Municipal Court Justice Sweedler of Brooklyn who sought an injunction against the program and sued for $250,000. Justice Sweedler, who claims to have originated the Good-Will Court, is suing Standard Brands, the sponsors of the program, and the Knickerbocker (WMCA) and National Broadcasting companies.

Justice Conway, who heard the case, reserved decision.

Party for Deanna Durbin

Eddie Cantor tossed a great big party at the Pierre last night for his tiny singing discovery, 13-year-old Deanna Durbin. The news mob turned out en masse to welcome Deanna on her first visit to New York.

Needless to state, practically the entire local personnal of Universal, producers of Deanna's "Three Smart Girls," were among the welcomers.

Increase W3XE Power

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—An increase in power for both its television and accompanying aural transmitters, the former from 1,500 to 10,000 and the latter from 250 to 10,000 watts was today granted the Philadelphia Radio and Television Corp. by the Federal Communications Commission.

The company operates Station W3XE, over which it is broadcasting experimental television and sound programs.

The commission also granted licenses for the two new broadcasting stations, one at Price, Utah, and the other at El Dorado, Ark. Each is to have a power of 100 watts.

MPPDA, Allied Unit Seek Radio Solution

Allied of New Jersey is now working with the Hays organization, producers and distributors on an interchange of ideas in connection with stars appearing on important radio broadcasts, it was stated yesterday following a meeting of Allied at the Lincoln.

Max A. Cohen is chairman of the radio committee with Dave Snaper and Morton Miller of New Brunswick and Passaic, N. J., respectively. Realizing a protest will do no good unless there is a spirit of cooperation in trying to work out the problem among the interests involved, Cohen yesterday told MOTION PICTURE DAILY that "we feel this is a mutual problem and concerns us all.

"There is no use yelling copper," he added. "We will accomplish nothing unless all hands join in. Allied is working on an interchange of ideas to benefit the exhibitor so that these radio broadcasts may be a definite asset to the box-office," he said.

Says Benefit Is Possible

"Certain types of broadcasts, if properly applied, can help the box-office. There is no doubt that these air shows as scheduled today are a definite harm to the theatre operator.

"There is no angle of venom involved. We do not ask the distributor to take the stars off the air. We are trying to work out an active and constructive program."

As soon as the Hays office and the distributors complete their statistical data, Allied of New Jersey will try to work out an equitable program.

Meanwhile, the I.T.O.A., which on Nov. 7 sent a letter to Nicholas M. Schenck, president of M-G-M, protesting the appearance of the company's stars on a proposed Ford program Sunday nights from 8 to 9, received an answer, assuring the exhibitor group that the complaint will be given careful consideration.

This may indicate that the M-G-M-Ford deal is off or may result in the broadcasting hour being changed, if and when a deal is signed.

RCA Rests Patent Case

WILMINGTON, Nov. 17. — Radio Corp. of America and RCA Victor rested their case today in the patent trial in which Hazeltine Corp. charges them with infringement of an automatic volume control for radio receivers in the U. S. District Court here. Testimony of Frank N. Waterman, consulting engineer, and five depositions concluded the case of the defendants.

Depositions of P. H. Betts, Herbert H. Fischer, Edward L. Nelson, Henry F. Scarr and a stipulation concerning the proposed testimony of Benny O. Browne were offered by RCA.

A. J. Friis, who also testified for RCA, stated that he filed application for his patent in 1924 while in research work for Western Electric. The receiver, he said, he constructed in 1923 in New Jersey, and was tapped in such a manner as to provide energy for automatic gain control. One tube amplified, he stated, while the other tube rectified, thus eliminating the necessity for an operator at the receiver for clarification of signals. Friis testified that he knew of the diode but did not use it because the use of the triode for automatic gain control gives better results than the diode.

Ask All Film Interests to Berry Parley

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Practically all film companies, including distributors and large exhibitors and labor organizations and other interests in the business, have been invited to attend the sessions of the National Council for Industrial Progress to be held here Dec. 10 and 11, with George L. Berry, Coordinator for Industrial Cooperation, expected to preside, it was made known today.

In all, more than 3,000 invitations were sent out. Because of its size, the list was not made public by officials.

Observers believe that the response to these invitations will indicate the possibilities of the council becoming a factor in the development of the Administration's policies with respect to labor legislation. Last year, about 300 organizations sent delegates to the meeting, but after the turbulence which marked the opening session, only a handful remained.

A number of industrial organization heads have intimated that they would be willing to participate in a discussion of industrial and labor legislation provided it was headed by some person other than Berry, with whom they claim it is impossible to cooperate, and there is some informal discussion in Washington of turning the council over to some department, preferably the Dep't. of Commerce.

on the exhibitor proposals has been delayed due to the absence from the city of various officials who had to be consulted both on the decisions involved and the drafting of the statement. These included Sidney R. Kent, John D. Clark, W. C. Michel and Felix Jenkins. The latter returned from the coast yesterday and is understood to have given the statement a final inspection from the distributor's legal viewpoint.

Policy statements from RKO, M-G-M and Paramount are expected in the near future. The Columbia statement will be delayed until the return from the coast of company officials. United Artists is reported not to have made its final decisions yet.

Mannix has produced a scattered number of pictures in the last few years, but the contemplated change is in line with his long-standing desire to concentrate on the actual making of pictures. Cohen has been with Metro on studio administration for years. Koenig resigned from Universal on Friday after differences of opinion with Charles R. Rogers. His resignation, however, was not formally acknowledged and made public until Monday.

sidered at the forthcoming conference of industry and Administration officials, the conference is viewed by film executives as taking on a different complexion from that of a year ago. With the promise that enforceable trade agreements may materialize, the sound attitude for this or any other industry would be to have representatives in attendance at the sessions, thus assuring the industry of a voice in any legislation which might be suggested and under which it ultimately might have to function, industry spokesmen point out. Such a course, they say, is obviously more prudent than ignoring the conference and learning later that legislation pertaining to the industry was being drafted by others.

Industry spokesmen said that invitations being sent out by Major Berry's office and addressed to film officials had not been received here up to yesterday, but indications are that a representative group will accept the bids when they are received and will attend the sessions in the capacity of observers for the industry. Subsequent action undoubtedly will be guided by developments at the conference itself, it was said.

Spokesmen for national circuits said they had rejected the subjects solely because, in their opinion, the reels lacked sufficient entertainment merit to remove them from the advertising or propaganda classification. The Security Board said the reels were made by the industrial film division of Pathe. There are five subjects and 2,500 prints have been ordered. The board said that the reels are being shown in theatres all over the country and that 600 houses in this state have accepted them, and 385 theatres in the city.

Warners Transfer Stern

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 17.—Sam Stern, for the last four years Warners' head artist here, will transfer to the home office, Jan. 1. He came here with Joe Feldman, advertising director for the Pittsburgh zone, in 1932.

Scherzo in B Major

Philadelphia, Nov. 17.—Members of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, with Leopold Stokowski and Eugene Ormandy as possible recruits, will join the picketing of Warner downtown theatres on Thursday for the Musicians' Union. It may be in the form of a sonata, a fugue, concerto or symphony or it may be merely for sweet publicity's sake.

Last week Meyer Davis and Thaddeus Rich, noted conductor and head of the Temple School of Music, were in line.

The union says Warners have agreed to everything except the price, but Warners deny it.

Whether the absence of such approval would result in a delay in filing the plan on Friday is problematical. Consideration has been given to possible means of treating the claim apart from the plan, probably by reserving new securities in a sufficient amount to satisfy contingencies resulting from future negotiation or litigation of the claim.

yesterday, in which the distributor's action on the program is acknowledged and further discussed for purposes of clarification.

The four points on which Universal declared a policy with which the exhibitor organization is in complete accord, the latter sets forth, are approval of the proposed local conciliation boards; policy with respect to non-theatrical competition with established theatres; elimination of the score charge, and policy with respect to the forcing of shorts with features.

Reconsiderations Asked

The letter asks for reconsideration of Universal's stipulation that a 10 per cent cancellation under liberalized conditions will apply only to exhibitors contracting for the company's entire picture lineup, and asks further consideration, as well, for the proposal that distributors make available an optional short form of contract. Universal rejected this proposal, citing legal objections and the company's experience with former unsuccessful attempts within the industry to draft such a contract. Kuykendall's letter suggests that the reasons for the use of such a contract as that proposed may have been misunderstood by the distributor. He asserts that while the contract form suggested by the exhibitors "does not simplify the terms and conditions of the contract itself" it would have the effect of facilitating the "physical and mechanical handling of the contract."

Points on which Universal and the M.P.T.O.A. are not in disagreement as to the need for corrective action, but which the exhibitor organization hopes to regulate by means of the local conciliation boards are unreasonable clearance; overbuying to deprive a competitor of product; cut-rate competition between theatres and designated playdates. Non-theatrical competition is also suggested as a problem for the boards.

Seeks Rejection of One in 10

In respect to M.P.T.O.A.'s views on cancellation, the letter urges the distributor to grant exhibitors the right to reject one picture out of each group of 10 in all exhibition contracts for 10 or more feature pictures bought at the same time.

The letter commends Universal for taking the initiative in the matter of publicly defining its policy in the light of the exhibitor program and adds: "We are certain that the modifications in sales policies and sales practices which you have announced prove to be a very definite step towards removing the unnecessary friction and needless irritations that have existed for years in the trade relations between exhibitors and distributors and that your sincere cooperation, particularly in the matter of organizing and establishing local boards of conciliation, will go a long way towards developing the best and most practical solution of some of our most troublesome problems that is possible under the present circumstances."

Classification by Ontario Censor Hit

TORONTO, Nov. 17.—The announced intention of O. J. Silverthorne, chairman of the Ontario Board of Censors, to publish lists of classified recommendations on approved features has brought a sharp reply from M. J. McGrath, secretary of the Toronto Council of the Legion of Decency, although Premier M. F. Hepburn had taken his censor chairman to task for his statement and had repudiated the promise. Silverthorne intimated that Government classification of films was necessary to offset the alleged misleading decisions of the Legion which, he said, were based on opinions in the United States which would not entirely apply in Ontario.

McGrath pointed out, in a lengthy reply to Silverthorne, that the Legion branch in Toronto had a previewing committee made up of members of the bench, the bar, medical and nursing professions, social workers, college professors, teachers, office workers and college graduates who are parents. McGrath said, in part, "I think this cross section of the community will compare quite favorably with that of the two members of the Ontario Censor Board."

Complaint Is Filed On Fees in Canada

TORONTO, Nov. 17.—The first and only complaint against the new music tax rates adopted for the Dominion by the newly constituted copyright appeal board to be made thus far was filed yesterday by the London, Ont., Railway Commission, which operates various places of amusement at Port Stanley, Ont. The complaint charges that the rates, which are the same as those prescribed recently by the Canadian Performing Right Society, an Ascap affiliate, are "excessive."

The Dominion rate commission will receive appeals from the schedule of fees adopted for 1937, ranging up to 15 cents per seat for theatres, only until Dec. 1. Thus far, no complaints have been made by individual exhibitors or circuits.

Zanuck Answers League

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 17.—Replying to the wired protest of the American League Against War and Fascism on the planned production by Twentieth Century-Fox of "The Siege of the Alcazar," Darryl F. Zanuck, vice-president in charge of production, declared: "Our picture is neither Fascist nor Communistic. We shall take no sides. The film will be made purely for entertainment, its drama having no direct bearing on the Spanish political situation. It will no more take sides than did that outstanding play, 'Journey's End,' propagandize Germany or the Allies."

"Ecstacy" Case Heard

A U. S. Statutory Court yesterday heard an application of Eureka Prod. for an injunction against New York State which they claim has no censor power over "Ecstasy," once it has been admitted to the country by the Federal Government under the 1930 Tariff Act. Decision was reserved by Judges Manton, Patterson and Mandelbaum upon completion of argument.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Jungle Princess"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 17.—Genders are reversed in this fantastic jungle production as Dorothy Lamour is the exotic female Tarzan and Ray Milland the mighty white hunter. Improbable in its mixing of romance, drama, animal comedy, heroics, sex implications and love interest complications, the film nevertheless, is entertaining in its outlandish way.

Made an orphan by an elephant stampede, Miss Lamour grows to be a native jungle beauty with a tiger and an ape for companions. While sheltering the injured Milland during the rainy season, her pristine mating instincts play havoc with Milland's civilized social and moral ethics and the action of the situations provoke choice comedy. When the girl, feared by the superstitious natives as a witch, is brought to the camp she comes into conflict with Molly Lamont, Milland's finacee, who believes his infatuation is only a passing fancy.

The natives rebelling, prepare to massacre the girl and Milland, Miss Lamont, Hugh Buckler, Lynne Overman first kill the tiger. But as Milland frees himself to kill Mala, the chief, an ape summons legions of his kind to panic the terror-struck savages. In the finale Miss Lamont recognizes the eternal power of love and nature and so surrenders Milland to Miss Lamour.

Supported by good jungle production effects and camera work, Max Marcin's weird original has been ingeniously adapted by Cyril Hume, Gerald Geraghty and Gouverneur Morris. In directing their material William Thiele has taken care to fix things so that Miss Lamour's feature debut concentrates plenty of attention on her. She seems to possess the talent and personality that presages a future. Her singing of a plaintive native love ballad, in a strange contrast to her other dialogue because it is rendered with trained artistry, elicited comment at the preview.

Overseas Previews

"Man of Affairs"

(Gaumont British)

LONDON, Nov. 11.—A very good Arliss, the better that it is all Arliss, A dual role gives him exceptional opportunities. Story values are excellent and the net result is a sparkling comedy in which characterization and incident are both far above average. The picture was produced as "The Nelson Touch" and is being released in England as "His Lordship."

Lord Duncaster, pompous foreign secretary in the British Government, has a twin brother, his opposite in every detail of character, who is an Eastern traveler and an expert in Eastern politics. With the knowledge that two emirs, on a mission to England, intend to murder the young prince whom they are escorting home from an English school, the traveler finds it impossible to convince his politician brother of the danger. He therefore, kidnaps him, impersonates him at a cabinet meeting and, per dictaphone, traps the emirs into a confession. The pompous one gets all the credit.

Arliss has never been more polished than in his subtly differentiated study of the two brothers; excellent dialogue shows his diction to great advantage.

Clever and amusing and for all audiences. Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

Short Subjects

"Rah! Rah! Rhythm!"

Featuring Herman Timberg, Jr., and Pat Rooney, Jr., this snappy little comedy of college doings is nicely entertaining. The story is of the rivalry between Pat and Herman for Grace MacDonald. They outdo one another in thinking up difficulties in order to appear in the school show and to the accompaniment of much snappy dialogue, dancing and merriment the piece winds up with the pair both doing their stuff. Production Code Seal No. 01,260. Running time, 16 mins. "G."

"Sports Headliners of 1936"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

A review of the high spots of the Olympic games. Many scenes have been culled from newsreels. Re-editing has brought out the vivid action of the games and it unreels as spectacular and snappy entertainment. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

member of a stock exchange the commission can institute proceedings to suspend or expel the company from membership on an exchange, the latest case to be brought in this manner being the citation on Nov. 13 of W. E. Hutton & Co., a New York brokerage firm, for alleged manipulation of Atlas Tack Corp. stock.

In the case of a person not a member of an exchange, the commission must go to court and secure an injunction.

Under the law, the commission is not required to await the receipt of complaints before taking action in such matters, but may, and has, instituted investigations and proceedings on its own initiative.

Call Film Spurt Natural

Observers in Washington who have had their attention directed to the heavy trading in picture stocks point out that that in itself is no indication that any premeditated drive is being made. They explain that some stock must naturally lead the market in activity and that heavy trading in a stock may merely mean that the attention of the investing public has been directed to it and there is an effort to "get aboard" on a good thing, or it may be that speculators are buying on the basis of some knowledge, real or inferred, that the company has entered upon a prosperous season or is preparing to announce dividends which will push the quotation up.

At the same time, the Administration is rather nervous over the market situation generally and may be preparing to prevent too rapid a rise in values by stepping in where there is reason to believe a planned movement is taking place.

See Union Agreement Ready in Two Weeks

The completed draft of the agreement brought about by the Mayor's committee, by which the Allied Union will be merged with Local 306, is not expected to be completed for about two weeks, it was learned yesterday. The basic principles of the agreement call for the absorption by 306 of the membership of Allied, and the granting to Allied projectionists of a wage increase of 25 per cent by theatre members of the I. T. O. A.

The agreement is being reduced to written form by the attorneys for the three units involved, Milton C. Weisman for the I. T. O. A., Matthew Levy for Local 306, and Murry Harston for Allied. Upon completion, the draft will be submitted to the membership of the three organizations for ratification. If that fails, the points at issue will be submitted to the survey board for clarification and settlement, after which ratification again will be sought. The arrangement will become effective then on the date specified in the agreement.

Meanwhile, the survey board has as yet set no date for a consideration of the problem involved with respect to the Empire union, which has many unemployed members. It is thought probable in some quarters that a completion of the first phase of the union settlement will precede specific action on the Empire situation.

The I. T. O. A. will discuss the union situation at its regular meeting at the Astor today.

G. B. May Halt Its World Producing

program of cheaper films for the home market only, or abandoning film production altogether," Ostrer said. "Either of the two latter alternatives would greatly assist our financial position, but on the other hand it would mean giving up a great potential source of income. It would at the same time, however, make dividends assured.

"This problem is now receiving the careful consideration of your directors," Ostrer told the stockholders.

Ostrer's remarks were seen by observers here as indicating that the company's financial position has been a direct reflection of the expense of producing for the world market, and maintaining a distribution system of its own in the United States, which, he declared, "must necessarily be high in the initial stages."

Decision Probable Next Month

John Maxwell of Associated British Pictures, who purchased the Ostrers' non-voting shares in Metropolis and Bradford Trust, which controls G. B., had said recently that there would be no immediate curtailment of the American distribution setup in the United States as far as he is concerned. However, the board of G. B. is understood still giving consideration to the advisibility of abandoning world-market production, and its decision is expected to be a feature of the stockholders' meeting when it resumes some time next month.

In some quarters substantiation of the possibility of a completely revised production policy for the company is seen in the recent cutting of the G. B. production staff at the Shepherd's Bush studio to only two units, and the other moves indicating a tightening of the company's distribution activities.

Jerseymen Refusing To Pay Sales Levy

Theatre owners have not and will not pay the two per cent sales tax, it was stated yesterday by a spokesman for Allied of New Jersey after the matter was discussed at a meeting of the unit at the Lincoln.

By advice of counsel, exhibitors across the Hudson have been told not to pay the New York City levy, the spokesman stated. So far no shows have been held up by exchanges, it was said, and there is no expectation that shipments will be delayed because of the unpaid tax.

The Social Security tax insofar as exhibitors are concerned also was taken up at the session.

Paramount Theatre Starts Its 10th Anniversary Week

By BILL ORNSTEIN

The Paramount theatre today will celebrate its 10th anniversary with a combination show consisting of "Go West Young Man," with Mae West on the screen, and Al Donahue and his band, Paul Draper, Jack Powell and Louise Massey and her westerners on the stage.

During the past decade the average gross for the theatre has been $50,000 a week, it was estimated yesterday. No picture during the first three years averaged under $70,000, it was said. Some of the big films which tallied better than $60,000 a week included "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," the Mae West pictures, "Ruggles of Red Gap," "Cleopatra," "The Big Broadcast of 1937," and "Underworld." The highest gross for any combined show at the house was chalked up by "Pointed Heels" and Buddy Rogers and his band. This show drew $103,000.

Average attendance has ranged from 85,000 to 90,000 persons a week, it was said. Some of the outstanding headliners have been Nancy Carroll, Eddie Cantor, George Jessel, Dave Rubinoff, Maurice Chevalier, and Rudy Vallee.

Has Shown 480 Films

When the theatre opened Nov. 18, 1926, the admission scale was 40-65-85 cents weekdays and 99 cents weekends. Today the prices are 25-55-75 cents and 85 cents on Saturday and Sunday. About 480 pictures have been shown during the life of theatre. "God Gave Me Twenty Cents" was the opening attraction.

There are approximately 250 employed today. This figure includes 50 ushers, eight doormen, four cashiers and three assistants to Bob Weitman, manager.

Weitman, at the time the house opened, was assistant manager of the Rialto, but contributed his services on the opening night by tearing up tickets as the customers arrived. After a year at the Rialto, he was transferred to the Paramount, Brooklyn, as manager. A short stay in Brooklyn and then Weitman was promoted to city manager by Paramount with supervision of the old Criterion, the Rialto, Rivoli and both Paramounts.

Promotions from the Staff

After a term as city manager, Weitman returned to the Brooklyn Paramount and when that theatre closed about three and a half years ago with the Paramount bankruptcy, he was switched to his present post.

Promotion from within the ranks has been Weitman's policy. Ben Greifer, his first assistant, was with him as a part time usher at the old Rialto when Weitman was there. Bob Shapiro, who was an usher at the former Rialto, has succeeded Greifer as second assistant. Eugene Peshette, treasurer of the Paramount, succeeding Shapiro, started at the theatre as an usher.

Few outside pictures have been booked by the Paramount, a rough estimate being an average of two a year at the most.

The current show is expected to continue for four weeks, which naturally will carry with it anniversary tidings.

Union Merger Terms Hit by ITO Members

A number of members of the I. T. O. A. are understood to be dissatisfied with the terms of the Local 306-Allied operator merger, it was learned yesterday. The labor situation was discussed at a meeting of the I. T. O. A. at the Astor, but John Manheimer, secretary, would not comment on it.

Exhibitors now using Allied exhibitors will be forced to hike booth costs 25 per cent, it was stated, and because of the 10-year contracts the I. T. O. A. has with Allied, no exhibitor can install non-union operators. The Allied contracts with local exhibitors are part of the deal with Local 306.

The 60-day truce between the two opposing unions ends Jan. 11, by which time it is expected that some of the smaller theatre owners, who cannot afford the 25 per cent increase, may get concessions.

Warners Add 3 Million to Film Budget

Applies to "A" Product, Sears Tells Meet

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—Warners added $3,000,000 to its production budget six months ago, which is to be applied to pictures to be released during the coming winter and spring, Gradwell L. Sears, general sales manager, told the mid-season sales convention at the Blackstone here today.

The increase was made in anticipation of the result of the national election and the increased prosperity of the nation and film business, Sears said. The additional money will be used on Class A pictures, of which the company plans to release two or three every month.

Sears declared an elaborate 15-week sales drive will start soon, ending Easter Week.

All the service divisions of the distribution department are represented at the two-day meeting, which will conclude tomorrow. District sales managers, home office sales executives, advertising and publicity representatives, and members of the accessories department in this country and

Stumped for Once

It was over the radio—the Jimmy Fidler broadcast, to be exact—that James R. Grainger first heard rumors of the reported engagement of his son, Edmund Grainger, to Mary Rogers, daughter of the late Will Rogers.

Edmund is an associate producer for Universal, but was not "available" when his father tried to reach him on the transcontinental telephone yesterday for the low-down.

Therefore, at a late hour last night Grainger, pere, was still wondering. Ditto for Mrs. Grainger.

"U" Deals Greatest In 6 Yrs.—Grainger

James R. Grainger, general manager of distribution of Universal, stated yesterday that thus far the number of contracts closed by the company this year is greater than in any year during the last six. The statement followed the completion of a deal with A. H. Schwartz of the Century Circuit, including 41 houses in the New York area.

Grainger said that 606 more contracts were signed this year, as of last Saturday, that every important circuit

Ostrer Sails To Iron Out G. B. Impasse

Isidore Seen Seeking To Aid Maxwell

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Isidore Ostrer, ranking executive of G. B., sailed for New York on the Normandie today reputedly in an attempt to clarify his company's situation so that John Maxwell may proceed with completion of his still pending deal for complete control of G. B. This would entail efforts to reach an understanding with Twentieth Century-Fox which must approve sale of the 5,100 shares of "A," or voting stock held by the Ostrers and on which Maxwell holds an option. Twentieth Century-Fox holds the remaining 4,900 shares and, furthermore, must sanction any financing or refinancing moves which the G. B. management may seek to undertake.

Insofar as the official aspects of the trip are concerned, G. B. merely announced Ostrer would spend four weeks in America, dividing his time between New York and Hollywood.

No specific connection between Ostrer's visit and the present negotiations for the acquisition of control of G. B. by Maxwell was indicated officially, but speculation ran high here when Ostrer's departure was revealed.

It was pointed out in some quarters that Ostrer's visit here may make it

Stockholders Delay Stanley Co. Merger

Because certain papers were not ready for signing, stockholders of Stanley-Davis-Clark Corp., operating theatres in Western Pennsylvania, yesterday postponed merging this company with Stanley Co. of America. The meeting was held according to schedule and adjourned until next Wednesday.

Stanley Co. of America owns Stanley-Davis-Clark and Warners own 99 per cent of the stock of Stanley Co. of America.

Warners are not confronted with the necessity of paying a dividend at this time because the tax on undistributed profits does not apply to the fiscal year ended Aug. 29, last, it was stated. No dividend was declared on either the common or preferred, the $3,000,000 profit for the year slated to be set aside to reduce an accumulated deficit of $14,000,000.

Stewart McDonald, assistant secretary of Warners, will leave for Pittsburgh early next week on the Stanley-Davis-Clark matter.

Korda's Program Is Raised to 10 Films

Alexander Korda has increased London Films' production schedule for the current season from six to 10. Emanuel Silverstone, American representative, briefly outlined Korda's plans at the U. A. board meeting on the coast.

The 10 pictures are "Rembrandt," "Men Are Not Gods," "Fire Over England," "The Man Who Could Work Miracles," "Elephant Boy," "Rank Without Armour," "I, Claudius," "Divorce of Lady X," "Troop Ship," and "Dark Journey."

At the same time, the directors declared a $250,000 dividend. All officers and directors were reelected.

Steve Pallos, general sales manager for London Films, is due from England next week. He may arrive on the Normandie.

Miss Powell Dances On Train Platform

M-G-M's publicity boys rolled a red piano down the long platform at the Grand Central Terminal yesterday and spread a bamboo mat for Eleanor Powell. She danced.

Church Dignitaries Convene in Capital

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—High dignitaries of the Catholic Church today convened here for the annual two-day meeting of Archbishops and Bishops for the discussion of general ecclesiastical problems. This will be followed by a meeting of the administrative board of the National Catholic Welfare Council on Friday.

No pronouncement was issued following the initial session of the conference, but it is understood that motion pictures, which in past years were a subject of serious consideration, were not discussed.

Whether there will be any discussion of recent moral trends in the industry could not be learned. From unofficial sources, however, it was suggested that during the past year a number of exceptionally fine pictures have been produced and there has been a diminution in the output of gangster and other types of films on which the hierarchy in past years has frowned. It is expected that if any statement regarding films is issued it will be more commendatory than critical. At the same time there is a possibility that it may carry an admonition to communicants of the church that they must not abate their vigilance to detect and avoid pictures which violate the tenets which have been laid down.

It is expected that the Legion of Decency, which two years ago was a potent force in "cleaning up" the screen and which last year was continued as a deterrent to any relapse by producers, will again be continued, forming a powerful defense against any recurrence of the situation which led to its formation.

Schumann-Heink Funeral Tomorrow

The INDUSTRYS NEWEST BLESSED EVENT!

FCC Grants 1 Radio Permit, Denies Ten

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The Federal Communications Commission today granted the application of the Press Democrat Publishing Co. for a construction permit for a new broadcasting station at Santa Rosa, Calif., and had denied 10 other applications for new stations, eight of them in California. Two of the proposed stations would have used high power.

The commission granted the Rensalaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N. Y., an increase in power from 500 to 1,000 watts for station WHAZ, and granted the Iowa Broadcasting Co., station KSO, Des Moines, authority to increase its power for day operations to 2,500 watts.

Minneapolis Showme Hit Star Broadcasts

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 18.—Aroused by lowered box-office receipts due to the appearance of film stars on radio programs, independent exhibitors in this territory are agitating for removal of stars from the air and recently sent a vigorous protest to M-G-M headquarters in New York against the practice. Special reference was made to the reported Ford tieup.

In answer to the telegram sent Al Lichtman of M-G-M, the Allied office here was instructed the matter would be given serious consideration. W. A. Steffes, head of Allied here, said today the organization would continue to fight although there was little that could be done just now outside of registering protests.

Dispute Looms Over Powell's Air Shows

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 18.—Perhaps establishing a new relationship between studio and radio, Dick Powell's new Warner contract is claimed by Warners to provide for his retirement from the "Hollywood Hotel" program when his radio pact expires Dec. 1. Campbell's Soups, the sponsors, on the other hand maintain Powell will continue.

In the background may be tied in the Warner network plan and the reported intention of the company to hold its film talent for its own radio broadcasts.

broadcasting unit in the country. A new cooperative move between the station and Warner theatres is said to be in the making. The plan would take Haven McQuarrie's air program titled "Do You Want to Be an Actor?"—an amateur show—into local Warner houses to strengthen their bills during Christmas week.

McQuarrie today was signed as studio director for seven years in recognition of his work on producing the radio show.

Attorney Turns Actor

Michael A. Romano, a Chicago attorney, will be added to the cast of "Today's Children," popular serial heard over the NBC-Red network at 10:45 A. M., E. S. T., Mondays through Fridays. Romano formerly was the personal attorney for Rudolph Valentino.

Loretta Young on the Air; Signed for One Lux Program

Loretta Young will play the lead role in "Polly of the Circus" on the Lux Radio Theatre program of Nov. 30. It is reported that the broadcast will emanate from the Columbia studios in New York instead of from Hollywood, as heretofore, but J. Walter Thompson, the agency controlling the program, denies this.

However, it is known that Cecil B. De Mille, producer and director of the program, will arrive in New York on Nov. 27 to confer with Paramount here on "The Plainsman," which is scheduled to open some time in January. Of course, De Mille could be bridged to the cast in Hollywood by remote control, but this action is deemed unlikely.

In the event that the Lux program of the 30th is presented here, the performance will be the first New York effort since the first week in June, at which time the Lux base of operations was transferred to the coast.

Another Hollywood Tie-In

Both NBC networks will offer a special events program titled "Forward Industry" on Friday, Nov. 27, from 2 to 3 P.M., E.S.T. Remote pickups will be made from field, factory, office, and from a Hollywood lot.

Microphones will be set up in industries in New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Schenectady, Denver, San Francisco and Hollywood. The film industry will be represented in a pickup from a working stage.

Venuta to "Court of Honor"

Benay Venuta yesterday was signed as a permanent player on the Radio Guide-sponsored "Court of Honor" program, heard weekly on the NBC-Blue network. She will, however, continue with her series on WOR and the Mutual network.

Cantor on Boston Stage

Eddie Cantor, who arrived in New York for a short stay last week, has been signed for a one week vaudeville engagement at the Keith's Memorial in Boston—at a salary of $15,000 against 50 percent of the gross. Eddie's entire radio troupe, consisting of Jimmy Wallington, Deanna Durbin, Jacques Renard's orchestra and Parkyakakus, will appear with him. The act opens on Thanksgiving Day and omits the Sunday performance because of Cantor's air duties.

Muni on New Lux Show

Paul Muni, one of the most air-minded of film players, returns to the microphone this coming Monday to do "The Story of Louis Pasteur" on the Lux Radio Theatre program, heard 9 to 10 P.M., E.S.T., over the CBS network.

Muni was signed for the program several weeks ago, but no announcement was made due to the trouble experienced in obtaining the air rights to the biographical drama from the copyright owners. The deal was closed late yesterday and, while no supporting cast has been selected as yet, preliminary rehearsals began immediately.

Arnold in "The Last Mile"

Edward Arnold will be Rupert Hughes' guest on the Camel Caravan broadcast of next Tuesday, Nov. 24. Arnold will offer an air version of the prison drama, "The Last Mile." The Caravan is offered Tuesdays, 9:30 to 10:30 P.M., E.S.T.

Silent on "Good-Will Court"

J. Walter Thompson maintains its usual silence when queried on matters pertaining to the "Good-Will Court," but rumors will not be downed to the effect that several jurors, who had accepted invitations to sit as advisors, had reconsidered and withdrawn, following the recent blast of disapproval against the program made by the New York County Lawyers Ass'n.

St. Luke, Editor

The NBC press department yesterday received a request from the radio editor of the New York News (not the tabloid), who asked to be placed on the network's press release list.

The editor's name is Mr. St. Luke.

The New York News is Father Divine's paper and the letter was addressed to the attention of the "angels" in the press department.

Icemen Sign Gladys Swarthout

It's still very much of a secret, but Gladys Swarthout of the opera and films has been signed for a new radio series by National Ice Advertisers, Inc., an organization representing the ice industry of America. While no definite starting date has been established as yet, the program will be aired over the CBS network. Donahue and Coe, New York, is the agency.

The new program will supplant the morning program titled "Home Makers Exchange," now heard twice weekly over CBS and sponsored also by National Ice.

NBC-RCA Goes Contesting

Beginning yesterday, NBC and RCA will give away five RCA radio sets and 25 kits of RCA radio tubes to listeners writing the best 100 word, or less, essays on "What NBC Has Meant to My Family." The contest will continue indefinitely and winners will be announced each night at 6:35 P.M. E.S.T. on WEAF and the Red network, and at 7:15 P.M., E.S.T. over WJZ and the Blue.

Joan's Qualms Ended

Superstitious Joan Bennett, who would not appear with Elza Schallert last week because it was Friday, the 13th, will be heard this Friday in an interview revolving about her sister, Constance. The program is carried over the NBC-Blue network at 10:45 P.M., E.S.T.

Obler, Bailey, Et Al

Short Shots: Arch Obler, author of "Light's Out," air horror serial, will be Hollywood bound next month to write mystery films. . . . Mildred Bailey, the "Rocking Chair Lady," who has been absent from the airlanes for a long spell, returns Saturday over the Mutual web, singing with Red Norvo's band. Off the air, Mildred is Mrs. Red Norvo. . . . Carleton Smith, NBC announcer, left for South America last night to report on the Pan-American Peace Conference beginning Dec. 1. . . . Sam Taylor, Mutual web screen commentator, off to Hollywood for a month's vacation. . . . Don Higgins, CBS news head, due back from Washington this morning. . . . The Jean Paul Kings celebrate their eighth wedding anniversary Sunday. . . . Jackie Heller, NBC vocalist, to England next week to fulfill vaudeville and radio commitments there. . . . Frank Parker's local WEAF program fades from the air in two weeks.

Wheeler Heard in RCA Suit

WILMINGTON, Nov. 18.—Harold A. Wheeler, inventor of the Wheeler patent for automatic volume control in radio receivers, took the stand today as the Hazeltine Corp. opened its case in U. S. District Court here charging RCA and RCA Victor with infringing on its automatic volume control patent.

Wheeler testified at length concerning notations in a notebook in which he marked progress made in automatic volume control.

"Professional Parade" in Debut; Acts, Variety Style, Are Good

"Professional Parade," the new WPA program aired for the first time last night over the NBC-Blue network from 9 P. M. to 10 P. M., E. S. T., is a smartly produced, entertaining show and is assured of a happy future on the air if subsequent broadcasts can keep pace with the inaugural offering.

The program adheres to the time-tested variety formula by offering a plentitude of acts, each calculated to please a different type of listener. Fred Niblo, who emerged from retirement to m.c. the show, kept the entertainment moving at a swift pace and seemed to have plenty of microphone "savvy" considering his limited radio experience.

Twelve acts in all were offered. Most outstanding were: Margaret Padullah, vocalist; Elsie Mae Gordon, monologist, and Orlando Ricardo, operatic baritone.

According to plans completed by NBC and WPA, regular vaudeville units comprising acts heard on this and subsequent broadcasts, will be sent on tour weekly. The units, in the opinion of this observer, should do well inasmuch as all performers who will be heard on this series have vaudeville background.

Canada are present at the current convention.

Sears mentioned the exploitation plane trip of members of the cast of "Gold Diggers of 1937," and called it the "biggest promotion stunt we have ever undertaken."

The "Gold Diggers" troupe, en route east on their exploitation flight for the picture, will arrive here tomorrow morning from Milwaukee, where they were greeted today at the city hall, made a radio broadcast and appeared on the stage of the Warner.

Their arrival here will be the occasion for a reception by the convention delegates, headed by Major Albert Warner, Sears and other executives. A parade, luncheon, and interviews are on tomorrow's card for them. The plane is scheduled to alight in Detroit on Friday, and the group will aid in a Red Cross drive in Philadelphia next Wednesday.

be produced by Portena Films of Buenos Aires; the second is with Exito Films of Mexico and calls for three features and an option on as many more. In addition, a separate deal was arranged with Exito for distribution of two pictures already completed without U. A. sponsorship. They are "Que Hago Con La Cariatura" and "Mas Alla de La Muerta." All contracts call for the handling of pictures in Latin American countries, the United States and Spain.

According to Gould production in the Argentine and Mexico is at its peak with 40 to 50 features expected from local producers in the Argentine this season and about 40 from Mexican companies. Brazil is slow in moving with the production tide, he said. This country will make about twelve.

United Artists has the right to approve stories, casts and directors in all of the Spanish produced films. So great is the market for Spanish films that U. A. is planning to add several other foreign-made films, Gould said. A few deals are now in work, he added.

Cohen Says Stage Financing Needed

the new Broadway offerings as much as to attend the opening of his new Mae West picture at the Paramount, cited the dearth of outstanding plays among those now current as a direct indication of the stage's need for film backing. Of 28 offerings now on the boards, only two could be considered of any import, he believes, and attributes the situation directly to the refusal of film companies to sponsor plays produced under the new Dramatists' Guild contract.

Cohen indicated that Major Pictures will be active this season in signing established stars and developing new talent. It has considerable growing yet to do, he intimated, and cited the recent signing of Warren William and Karen Morley as indicative of the sort of growing its mentor has in mind for it.

Will Make 8 for Para.

Major will make eight pictures a year for Paramount release on a three-year contract. "Go West Young Man" and "Mind Your Own Business" are the first two to be completed. The company has also finished "Pennies from Heaven" for Columbia, which is the last picture it will make for release by an outside company during the term of the Paramount contract.

The producer was elated yesterday over returns being relayed to him from the Paramount box-office. The Mae West picture, he was told at 3:00 P. M., was $4 ahead of "The Big Broadcast of 1936" for the same opening day time.

Cohen plans to return to the coast in about a week.

Para. Final Quarter Net Seen Over 3rd

ter, Paramount's net for 1936 would approximate $4,400,000. This estimate, wholly unofficial and based only on indicated business prospects, would reflect the benefit of the application during the year of $2,500,000 set aside out of 1935 earnings as a special inventory reserve, but includes only a partial net interest of Paramount as a stockholder in the undistributed earnings of its partially owned theatre companies. This interest amounted to $785,000 at the end of the first half of 1936, and unofficial estimates indicate that this amount will be increased to approximately $1,650,000 by the year end.

However, the third quarter report will be benefited by a partial distribution of theatre company profits and the report for the final quarter, it is expected, will reflect an even greater participation in such profits as dividends undoubtedly will be voted by the theatre companies to avoid Federal taxes.

Inventory Reserve Appropriated

The entire $2,500,000 special inventory reserve set aside on Dec. 28, 1935, has been applied already to write-offs for the current year, thus benefiting the 1936 showing to date to that extent. Earnings for 1936, according to expectations of financial interests associated with the company, may be equal to 50 cents a share on the 1,610,452 shares of common, after provision for accumulated dividends of $12 a share on the first preferred and $1.20 a share on the second preferred at the year end.

Profit for 1935 was $3,153,167 before applying $2,500,000 to the special inventory reserve for 1936.

Paramount first preferred closed on the N. Y. Stock Exchange yesterday at 157⅞, off 2⅛ for the day. Both the second preferred and common also were off fractionally.

The attorney had had discussions with the officials of the League prior to the declaration of the possibility of action being taken against the company, which holds that it is a Dutch-owned organization.

Dictograph Secures Court Order on SEC

An order was signed yesterday by Federal Judge Julian W. Mack requiring SEC representatives to appear before him tomorrow in connection with an application filed by the Dictograph Products Co. and others seeking an injunction to enjoin SEC from further activities in the investigation of the company's stock.

Dictograph charges SEC with using its powers to persecute the company. An affidavit by Dictograph says that SEC harrassed brokerage concerns and banks that maintain accounts for customers who had purchased Dictograph stock.

Yesterday, the company was apprised for the first time that SEC was engaged in a new investigation for delisting the Dictograph stock from the curb. "Because of the fear inspired in brokerage concerns and others, a general attempt was made by all parties to dispose of their stock on the market," a statement from Dictograph declares. "In order to protect the stockholders and public from loss, the Curb Exchange has temporarily suspend the stock from further trading.

Net sales for the first 10 months of the year were said to total over $2,000,000, an increase of $854,000 over the same period in 1935, according to an affidavit by Lawrence M. Ogden, treasurer.

Airplane Film Screened on Long Island-Upstate Flight

By J. M. JERAULD

Marc Lachmann and Buelah Livingtston of Universal invited a new kind of a thrill for New York's jaded film critics yesterday. They took them up in the air to see "Air Hostess," and had Judith Barrett, feminine lead in the film, to add to the realism.

All the airport activity and the spreading panorama of New York's lower harbor were a perfect build-up for what was shown in the film, the big scene of which takes place in the pilot's cabin of a TWA plane after the pilot and co-pilot have been knocked out by an escaped convict and the air hostess lands the plane while receiving instructions by radio telephone from the ground.

Time for Sightseeing

It was a perfect day. The plane rose to 7,000 feet, slipped over the Statue of Liberty in a few seconds and swung over the Queen Mary near Sandy Hook. The big liner had left New York nearly two hours before. No curtains were drawn until after the plane had swung high over Jamaica Bay and had reached Jones Beach.

When the film started the plane was over the eastern tip of Fire Island. By the end of the first reel it had traveled north over Great Neck and across Long Island Sound to Westchester near the Connecticut line.

In the meantime, the air hostesses in the picture had reached California. Judith Barrett had leaped out in a parachute and a romance was budding with William Hall, the film pilot.

When the reels were changed the steam of a West Shore train below the cliff at Bear Mountain was rising beneath the plane and West Point was in full view. The hills of the Bear Mountain reservation looked like brown biscuits with shadows all on one side and the tan outlines of the Catskills were just visible far to the north.

The climax of the picture approached. Shots out of plane windows, lurches, frightened passengers, close-ups of Miss Barrett struggling with the controls intermingled. The plane lurched. Some of the passengers chewed gum rapidly and tried to look nonchalant. Some succeeded.

When the plane in the picture finally landed after bursting through high tension wires there was an audible sigh of relief, and it wasn't from the screen.

Miss Barrett Was Thrilled

There was applause. The curtains were opened again. The plane was over South Brooklyn. It turned east over Long Beach and passed above Floyd Bennett field on the shore of Jamaica Bay. In another eight minutes it touched ground at Newark.

About 250 miles in one hour and 44 minutes at an average rate of 176,000 feet a minute. The film had been running 90 feet a minute.

A real air hostess, Betty Steffin, graciously unfastening passengers' safety belts, while the film air hostess, Miss Barrett, told how thrilled she had been. The pilot, Wayne Williams, and his co-pilot, Irving Kravitz, explaining how far and how high the party had been.

It was quite a stunt.

Voluntary Action Is Suggested by Roper

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Voluntary action by industry on compliance with the fundamental principles of NRA was advised today by Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper in order to forestall a public demand for an arbitrary return to invalidated features of the recovery program.

Roper emphasized that he did not mean that NRA would be re-established by arbitrary measures. He expressed the belief that NRA principles must be applied generally to insure economic recovery and added the hope that fundamental principles of the outlawed program could be worked out cooperatively through agreements among industry, labor, business and consumers.

"If this is not done," he said, "the ends sought by NRA again will be brought to the attention of legislative and administrative branches."

Bids to the general meeting of industry, labor and Administration officials, called by the National Council for Industrial Progress in Washington, Dec. 10 and 11, which were mailed from the Capital on Tuesday, had not been received by any leading industry figure here, so far as could be learned up to a late hour yesterday. Both industry and officialdom and labor have been included in the invitations, however, it was said in Washington, and current indications are that the industry will have accredited representatives in attendance at the December sessions, if only as observers.

Artists Give $75,250 For Federation Fund

A total of $75,250 was contributed by stage, screen and radio stars to the campaign of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies of New York City at a meeting held yesterday in the Hotel Astor under the auspices of the Artists' Division, a section of the Amusement Division of the Federation which, under the chairmanship of Major Albert Warner and David Bernstein, has undertaken to raise a quota of $200,000 to support the work of the 91 institutions affiliated with the Federation.

Appeals were made at yesterday's meeting by Eddie Cantor, Ben Bernie and Phil Baker, each of whom is a co-chairman of the Artists' Division. Other speakers included Lawrence Marx, David L. Podell and Louis Nizer.

Among those present at the meeting were: Rubinoff, Lanny Ross, Max Gordon, Al Goodman, Sylvia Froos, Juliette Lowell, Irving Caesar, Max Rudnick, Benny Goodman, Bob Hall, Jack Pearl, Jack Waldron, Guy Lombardo, Yascha Bundchuk, Bill Robinson, Eddie Dowling, William Gaxton, Cab Calloway and Rex O'Malley.

British Group Aims for New Major Circuit

Portal, Rank and Woolf Seek 400-500 Houses

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Nov. 19.—One of the repercussions of the Maxwell deal with G. B. is the penetration of interests headed by Lord Portal, J. A. Rank and C. M. Woolf into exhibition with a chain of from 400 to 500 theatres in the next few years, thereby providing General Film Distributors, Ltd., which Woolf heads, with an outlet for Universal and various British product which it handles.

Woolf began to shape his plans prior to the Maxwell deal and at the time when it appeared control of G. B. would go to Twentieth Century-Fox and Loew's. It became obvious to even cursory observers of the British trade that major interests here would immediately launch steps to offset the consolidation of large theatre interests in one group. M-G-M which now operates the Empire in the West End is reported considering first runs in key cities.

James Kay, who with his three sons at present runs the Kay circuit of five at Becontree, Ilford, Barking and Dagenham in Essex neighborhoods, is declared to be associated with the Portal-Woolf-Rank scheme for a new major circuit. With unlimited money declared to be available, the Kay interests are stated to have already acquired options on 60 houses.

RKO Reorganization Plan Expected in Court Monday

Completion of work on the RKO reorganization plan sponsored by Atlas Corp.-Lehman Bros. interests is expected by late today, affording a "good probability" that the plan will be filed in U. S. District Court here Monday morning, reliable authorities stated yesterday.

Indications are that the plan will not be definitive in respect to all creditor classifications and may provide only the basis for treatment of the several claim groups, with final agreements left to be reached through subsequent court hearings. Reorganization authorities decline to comment on any provisions of the plan and little official information is available on its specific contents. Important creditor groups insist that they have seen nothing but tentative drafts of a plan and, in face of the meager information available to them, expressed incredulity yesterday over the prospect of its being presented to the Federal Court on Monday. Moreover, no agreement appears to have been made with Rockefeller Center on its $9,100,000 claim, which dominates the unsecured creditor class.

These circumstances, in the face of the optimistic assertions of the reorganization managers, lead to the belief that the plan, in all probability, recognizes insurmountable obstacles in the way of the desired early reorgani-

Members Vote Ampa New Lease on Life

The Ampa is making progress, finally, after 20 years, some 41 members voting at yesterday's meeting at the Hotel Edison not to dissolve the organization. There was no opposition, even the press agent exponent of the resolution voting against his own motion. But there the harmony ended, for no one among the 25 per cent of the total membership, who were present, seemed to agree with any other as to where, when or how the organization is headed.

This much is certain, however: (1) House-to-house canvassers from among the members in good standing

War Play Theme in Clear, But Its Handling Is Not

The same sort of righteous indignation which fired Sidney Kingsley into the authorship of "Ten Million Ghosts" lurks behind the theme of "Johnny Johnson," first of the Group Theatre's offerings of the season, at the 44th St. Theatre last night.

Again it is war and what makes it and, although the technique by which the Group approached and disposed of its play by Paul Green is vastly and widely removed from Kingsley's, the results in this latter day instance, like the former, are mixed up, ineffective and effective, in turn, but generally a confused melange of satire, straight drama and missouts, inter-

Loew Deal for U.A. Theatres Is Called Off

Chicago, Detroit Spots Get M-G-M Product

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—Negotiations between Loew's and United Artists Theatres Corp., whereby the former was to take over the United Artists theatres here and in Detroit have terminated. A new booking arrangement for the playing of M-G-M product in these houses replaces the original deal. Under the plans discussed, Loew's was to have taken the two units next year, thereby marking its entry into the downtown areas of both cities for the first time.

George Trendle, who operates the United Artists in Detroit, and B. & K., which has the local United Artists, are understood to have made deals whereby they will play an unlimited amount of the better M-G-M films. Heretofore, both theatres have been playing a limited number of the distributor's pictures.

United Artists, which has no interest in United Artists Theatres Corp., has supplied a minimum of 26 a year to the two theatres. The arrangement is said to have expired when "Dodsworth" completed a two-week engagement at the local United Artists. "Come and Get It" has been booked into the Roosevelt this week and "The Garden of Allah" next week opens at the Chicago.

"Born to Dance," "Love on the Run" and "Old Hutch" have been dated into the United Artists here by B. & K. as the first move under the new deal, it is said.

Goldstein Will Act As Republic Liaison

The institution of a liaison arrangement between the production forces on the coast and the home office distribution activity in the east for Republic will take effect with the arrival in Hollywood late next week of E. H. Goldstein, vice-president of Republic Pictures, who will leave here on the Century on Monday.

It is anticipated that Goldstein, who was handsomely dined by his company associates at the Warwick on Wednesday night, probably will make periodic visits to the coast in the future, to maintain a consolidation of activity looking to maximum efficiency in operation. His immediate visit is expected to be for three months. M. J. Siegel, vice-president of Republic Prod., on the coast, who has been here for some time, will return west with Goldstein.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

IT will be taken in its stride. As these matters are very apt to go, little attention has been paid to what this fount of dubious wisdom views as a matter of some import. A few days ago, the British Board of Censors, dropping its ingrained island conservatism, approved "Green Pastures." It was a victory for Warners, of course, but actually more. It was an evidence that liberal viewpoints continue to prevail even if circumstance and fact so often indicate they do not. On that basis, therefore, what happened in London is of direct interest to the business at large. . . .

This is so because, in a measure, it unfetters Hollywood which has been hamstrung here and abroad on too numerous counts to go into now and here. It emphasizes, in a degree which we would wish were much more clearly marked and defined, that coast effort along new and unfrequented tracks may not forever more be penalized by slavish kowtowing to tradition surrounded by the mists of the past and moss covered by virtue of venerable age. For, aside from the difficulties which by now are routine in Hollywood, no more completely discouraging note has or can be struck than the hurdles placed in the path of distinguished enterprise braving it out along little known byways. . . .

"Green Pastures" is such an effort and, while many who saw the play thought the picture was decidedly inferior, we were among those who viewed the film as one perched safely on a plane far above the Hollywood normal and, so, one worthy of commercial success and critical acclamation. Yet, in England where representations of the Diety on both stage and screen have been ruled off chiefly because it has always been so, bets were available on all sides as far back as July that "Green Pastures" would never get by censorial glares. The forecasts were correct until a few days ago. . . .

What led to the reversal of opinion is something with which we are not familiar. Information is lacking, also, on how sharp the scissors may have been applied. We are hoping hard that the shearing was merely once over lightly or not at all for the new precedental value it thereby establishes and for the encouragement it furnishes the makers of pictures. And since we are on it, there can be no wrong in wishing a wish that seems beyond grasping that other limitations dropping from other faucets might go by the wayside as well and that Hollywood might be permitted to take a whack at many properties suitable for filming which international politics, more politely described as diplomacy, currently rules off. For instance, "The Forty Days of Musa Dagh" which makes monkeys out of the Turks. Or "Paths of Glory" which centers the bitter spotlight on French militarism at its worst and thereby hurls a devastating and unmasking white light into the militarism of all nations that practice it. . . .

Press agentry may be day dreaming again, but from over the Hollywood hills to New York reach reports to indicate Mary Astor, apparently well contented with her literary endeavors, a la Samuel Pepys, will try her hand at the great American novel. Quotes credited to her are pretty good. Thus:

"There isn't any short cut to good writing. It is hard work—and plenty of it. But if I ever achieve success in writing, it is going to be because of what I write—not because it has my name on it. . . .

"Why should I write under another name? I write because I like to write. I've always wanted to—it is not a new urge in my life."

Neither was the urge which reputed accuracies from her diary told about a few months back. . . .

Bette Davis, in Chicago and between trains, added to the peace of the nation by declaring she will return as "a good little girl" to the Warner studio. That must be the same "jail" she referred to in London, the one that pays her $3,000 a week to emote. . . .

Record Net Expected For Maxwell's Firm

LONDON, Nov. 10.—In well-informed quarters it is anticipated that the John Maxwell company, Associated British Pictures, will show a record profit at the end of the current financial year. An expert estimate is that the available gross will amount to 60 per cent against the 40 recorded last year and that the last dividend of 12½ per cent on the ordinary shares will either be substantially increased, on the present issue, or practically maintained even if allowance is made for the full new issue of ordinaries as part of the purchase of the Ostrer interests in Metropolis and Bradford, controlling Gaumont British. It has been announced that 300,000 of these 5s shares are being issued to the Ostrers and that the unissued balance of 1,500,000 is being held for further use in connection with the Gaumont British deal.

Bonuses Predicted For Film Employes

Year-end bonuses or wage increases are reported to be under consideration by Paramount and Twentieth Century-Fox. Definite confirmation could not be obtained in either instance, however.

The generally improved financial position of most companies, however, together with the operation of new Federal taxes on undistributed profits suggest the likelihood that a number of film companies may take action of the kind reported coincident with the voting of dividends to stockholders.

General Mills Air Deal Reported Off

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 19.—The deal of General Mills, flour manufacturers, for daily radio broadcasts from the studio sound stages is said to have fallen through. The studio's refusal to grant exclusive rights to the company is reported to have caused the failure of the negotiations. Broadcasts had tentatively been scheduled to start Thursday.

Meetings between representatives of the local Hays office and executives of General Mills and the company's agents resulted in an impasse. It is said that the various discussions concerning the deal assumed such complicated proportions that a settlement was finally admitted to be an impossibility.

Says Warners Barred Her

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—Bette Davis, en route west after a trip to London, said here that she has unwillingly missed several chances for radio appearances since she returned to the United States. The Warner studio to which she is under contract, refused to give their consent to broadcasts, she said. One radio appearance was to have been with Eddie Cantor and another on the Sears-Roebuck "Then and Now" program, which emanates from here. Picture assignments prompted the refusal, according to Warner executives, Miss Davis reported.

Agency Claims Powell

Arthur A. Bailey, account executive with F. Wallis Armstrong, advertising agency which conceived and for more than three years maintained on the air the "Hollywood Hotel" program, yesterday denied that Dick Powell, "Hollywood Hotel" star since the program's inception, would leave the show on Dec. 1, as is claimed by Warners.

Speaking to MOTION PICTURE DAILY by phone from his Philadelphia office, Bailey stated that, insofar as he knew, Powell would remain on the program for some time to come. He refused, however, to reveal the terms of Powell's contract and would not comment on the claims made by Warners.

Discuss Inaugural Program

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Representatives of NBC met with Capitol Building officials to formulate plans for broadcasting the inaugural ceremonies of President Roosevelt and Vice-President Garner.

Meeting with the broadcasters were Chesley W. Jurney, sergeant-at-arms of the Senate; Col. Edwin A. Halsey, secretary of the Senate; David Lynn, Capitol architect, and Arthur Cook, supervising engineer.

In the event that the ceremonies are held in the Senate chamber due to inclement weather, plans were made for special booths for announcers. Until the President appoints a chairman for the inauguration, full details will not be made public. However, it is understood that the parade this year will be much shorter than the one staged in 1933.

Both the Red and Blue networks will go on the air at approximately 9 A. M. Jan. 20. Some 40 engineers from New York, Chicago, Cleveland and Pittsburgh will aid the Washington technicians in blimps and airplanes; atop the Washington Monument, in the Capitol dome, along Constitution Ave., at the White House grounds, in the corridors of the Capitol, at the President's reviewing stand and on the steps of the Capitol.

Other NBC microphones will use two mobile units with micro-wave transmitters.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Lady from Nowhere"

(Columbia)

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 19.—Replete with action and comedy, this production starring Mary Astor has plenty of exploitation angles and looks suitable for all types of audiences. The wise exhibitors will make the most of Miss Astor, who turns in a splendid bit of acting as the ambitious manicurist who unwittingly becomes involved in a gangster feud.

Called to the hotel room of Lustig, the killer, played creditably by Norman Willis, Miss Astor witnesses a gang murder. She flees and is given a ride into Clearview by George Quigley, a small town reporter who helps her get a job as a waitress. Meanwhile Willis traces the manicurist and sends his lieutenant, Gene Morgan, to bring her back. Miss Astor is rushed to his grandfather's farm by Quigley as a hideout. She fakes a story that she is the Barnes heiress who is threatening to marry a count against her father's wish.

Spencer Charters, who gets the most laughs as the grandfather, conspires with Victor Kilian, the hired man, to tip off Barnes to win the reward. The climax is reached when Willis comes to Clearview and is taken to Miss Astor by the reporter, who mistakes him for the count in the Barnes case. Barnes arrives to find his daughter fleeing with the gangster. An exciting chase is halted by the Clearview minute men, summoned by Kilian. Just as Willis is about to escape after having shown the militiamen that all is a mistake, Quigley arrives and forces the gangster to admit his identity. Willis is captured, Charters wins $5,000 reward and the two lovers are reunited.

Gordon Wiles directed. The story is by Ben Kohn and the screen play by Fred Niblo, Jr., Arthur Stawn and Joseph Krumgold. Rita Leroy, Claudia Coleman, Matty Fain and John Tyrell give creditable performances.

Production Code Seal No. 2,534. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"Smart Blonde"

(First National)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 19.—Announced as the first of a series featuring "Torchy" Blane, a newspaper woman, and Steve McBride, a police lieutenant. Warners must improve on the next to hope for success in a market already glutted with this type of product.

Glenda Farrell and Barton MacLane are teamed in the top roles and give good performances, but the story and the production do not compare favorably with other offerings of the same type. The adventures here depicted concern the running down of the murderer of Joseph Crehan and Max Warner, a pair of underworld characters. Involved in the killings are Winifred Shaw, Addison Richards, Charlotte Winters and David Carlyle. As the plot unfolds everyone save MacLane and Miss Farrell fall under suspicion but the audience has little difficulty in identifying the culprits.

Frank McDonald's direction allows several good comedy sequences to score, but is routine in its handling for the most part. The screen play is by Don Ryan and Kenneth Gamet from the story by Frederick Nobel and was produced by Bryan Foy.

Exhibitors featuring detective entertainment will find this just one more series from which to choose.

British Silent on Thalberg Stock Buy

LONDON, Nov. 10.—No confirmation is obtainable here of rumors that the purchase of 35,000 of the late Irving Thalberg's shares in Loew's for "British interests" was connected with old or new British-American trade affiliations. A member of Hirsch, Lillienthal & Co., brokers, mentioned in New York cables, confirms that the firm was acting for a British client, but said the name could not be disclosed at the present time.

Sam Eckman, Jr., managing director of M-G-M here, had no information, but discredited suggestions that the deal had any connection with the finance of impending British production by M-G-M.

G. N. Closes 3,000 Non-Circuit Deals

In addition to a number of important major circuit deals, Grand National has closed more than 3,000 accounts, the company states. "In His Steps," first release, will play RKO and Loew theatres starting Dec. 1.

Scripts for five productions to be put in work next month have been approved by Edward L. Alperson, president, who is due to arrive Monday with Sidney M. Biddell, story head.

Short Subjects

"Modern Home"

The couple move in and Tim is made the butt of Irene's father's screwy inventions which covers slapstick and dumb cracks from one extreme to the other. FHA Will Continue Moves for Bookings

Efforts to get playing time on the screens of major national circuits for a series of reels depicting the work and objectives of the Social Security Board are continuing despite the views of circuit officials on the entertainment merit of the subjects, a representative of the Federal board said yesterday.

"Because of the public interest in the aims of the board and the social values involved," the spokesman said, "it is our opinion that the reels should not be judged entirely on their entertainment content. The subject of social security is of national public interest and we believe that the great mass of the nation's theatre-goers not only would not object to being shown these reels but keenly appreciate the informative aspects depicted on a subject which directly concerns so many of them and about which they know so little."

The board representative stated that 160 new bookings had been obtained for the reels in New York state this week, bringing the total to approximately 700 theatres.

Expect RKO's Plan Will Be Filed Monday

zation of RKO which would have to be faced if all creditor interests were to be negotiated with at this time. The plan, therefore, probably will be filed without definitive agreements affecting such interests being included. The need for reorganization of the company probably will be urged upon the court and, according to indications, the court will be asked to determine the rights of claimants' or creditors' groups after the usual hearings. The decisions of the court then might be added to the plan as they were received.

The present probability is that the plan will be filed with Federal Judge William Bondy when attorneys for Atlas Corp. appear in his court on Monday morning to ask a postponement of a petition by the RKO trustee to retire the last $750,000 of RKO gold notes outstanding. The postponement will be asked on the grounds that the plan will provide for treatment of these notes and a granting of the trustee's petition at this time would result in further delays in filing the plan.

Intervention Granted

William V. Hodges and John Moroney, as an independent committee of unsecured RKO creditors, were granted leave to intervene in the company's reorganization proceedings by Federal Judge William Bondy yesterday. Their committee represents in excess of $1,000,000 of claims against RKO, the largest of which are those of the Karl Hoblitzelle interests.

Hodges is a director of the U. S. National Bank of Denver and Moroney is secretary and general counsel of the Hoblitzelle Corp.

will make a strenuous effort to collect some $770 in back dues; (2) Committees are on the verge of functioning—after they are appointed—to determine Ampa procedure and policy; (3) A complete new board of directors must be appointed to fill the vacancies caused by the resignation en bloc of the old board.

The Ampa has for months been in a lethargic state, due for the most part to the difference of opinion as to the exact nature and purpose of the organization. Some had been holding out for purely social weekly luncheons, with song and dance and such; others were more bent on a serious-minded policy—serious discussions of serious problems. Still a third group, apparently more liberal, were thinking along lines of a "craft" organization. Immediately, cries of "union" were raised—and that ended that.

Then came the resolution last Thursday to give Ampa a painless death on the spot, which was held in abeyance until yesterday's session, when Ampa, by virtue of 41 lively votes, was given a new lease on life.

Bob Meets Boa Constrictor, Chimp Pulls Light, AND—

If Bob Harrison of Teatro al Dia is pale today, it won't be from the usual cause. He had to step over a nine-foot boa constrictor to get into A-Mike Vogel's office yesterday, and the boa stuck out his forked tongue and winked.

The winking was all right, but that knowing look—just as though the reptile recognized an old friend—was too much. Bob called up the Tavern immediately and asked if they were sure it was Seagram's in that Old Fashioned.

He didn't hear the reply. A chimpanzee pulled out the lights, and nobody—not even Gertrude Merriam—knew where the snake was headed. The business of getting out the Managers' Round Table halted abruptly.

When Capt. Rodney Pfeiffer got the lights turned on the chimpanzee had one arm around Miss Merriam's neck and wasn't feeling affectionate.

Mike chuckled in a mild way and thought it was a good exploitation stunt. Harrison broke the running broad jump record and headed for W.C.T.U. headquarters.

Halsey Raines phoned the W.C.T.U. that Harrison didn't mean it. Then he explained that Billy Ferguson was responsible for the idea. They're touring the country with the chimp and the boa as a stunt for "Tarzan Escapes."

Orpheum Groups Get Kresel on RKO Plan

of halting court approval of the RKO plan until the issues raised had been settled.

Orpheum stockholders have at various times in the past three years threatened litigation to set aside the absorption of Orpheum assets by Stadium Theatres, an RKO subsidiary formed in 1933. An Orpheum indebtedness of approximately $3,000,000 to RKO and Keith-Albee-Orpheum was compromised through the formation of Stadium, which assumed the obligation and, in return, took over various Orpheum properties. Stockholders of the latter company have contended that the transaction violated the New York corporation laws and benefited K-A-O and RKO at the expense of Orpheum.

Kressel was attorney for Fox Theatres Corp. when that company sponsored the reorganization of Fox Metropolitan Playhouses, under which Joseph M. Schenck's United Artists Theatres Corp. and K-A-O acquired the metropolitan circuit.

His Way or None

Baton Rouge, Nov. 19.—When a March of Time crew went to the Capitol to get a few microphonic words from Gov. and Mrs. Leche for the sequence on the St. Lawrence waterways, Mayor Robert Maestri was ready for his turn. But he discovered that what he was to say was already prepared—and not by him. He balked, and the March of Time sequence will struggle along without the mayor's words.

Adverse Ohio Ruling To Bring an Appeal

will hear the case today, it was stated here.

RKO is the sole distributor plaintff in the case, but its attorneys, Paxton & Seasongood of Cincinnati, are aided by the organized industry. The action is in the form of a restrainer against John Bricker, attorney general of Ohio, to prohibit the state from applying the law on the grounds of unconstitutionality. Bricker, who submitted an opinion that the law was unconstitutional prior to its enactment, is represented by Schwartz & Rocker. The Cleveland Independent Exhibitors Ass'n and Abram F. Myers, general counsel of Allied States Ass'n are cooperating in the defense of the law. The state will contend that the law comes under the public welfare clause of the Constitution and is similar to the authority under which state and municipal film censor boards are set up.

Indications are that depositions taken earlier and documentary evidence will be sumbitted to the court and that no witnesses will be called. The court is expected to reserve decision.

comment on the new tieup, but the company is understood to have been assured a steady outlet for its product at the U.A.

Bids for the McVickers, under control of the Chicago Board of Education, will be opened shortly. B. & K. and Jones, Linick and Schaefer are after the largest house in the Loop. What either will do with it, if successful, is problematical at this time. Should B. & K. get it, the circuit will have all the first runs in the Loop with the exception of the Palace, RKO operated. B. & K. recently bought the State-Lake building and will take over the State-Lake on May 1.

Warners' Campaign Named "Sears Drive"

was named coordinator for the drive, the name of which was adopted unanimously over the objection of Sears. Major Albert Warner, vice-president, suggested the Sears designation, and paid tribute to the sales executive.

Sears said today that Warner sales are $4,000,000 above the corresponding period last year.

James E. Coston stated that Warners have suffered no losses since the institution of duals in the territory. He predicted that the double featuring idea will be abandoned within 90 days.

The current meeting will be held over for another day as a result of the arrival in Chicago of the company's "Gold Diggers" plane. Festivities in honor of the air visitors included the bestowal of the key to the city by the mayor, a parade along Michigan Boulevard and a broadcast over CBS.

"Diggers" in Detroit Today

The "Gold Diggers" plane will arrive in Detroit for its seventh stop today, having come on from Chicago. A series of assorted welcomes there will feature the day, and tomorrow the plane will reach Cleveland. The group will remain there over the weekend, leaving on Monday for Pittsburgh.

Warner Kid Party Set

The local Warner Club will hold its annual Christmas Kiddie Party on Dec. 19, to which all child relatives of members will be invited. Gifts, refreshments and entertainment will feature the affair.

Para. Denies Early Will Join Company

Paramount officials yesterday denied Washington reports that Stephen Early, assistant secretary to President Roosevelt, would become associated with the company on Jan. 1, or later.

Local associates of Early quoted him as saying recently that he had received several "tempting offers" from business organizations, none of which was identified with the film industry, however.

No Resignation Confirmation

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Reports that Stephen Early, assistant secretary to the President, will resign his White House post to join Paramount on Jan. 1 could not be confirmed here today, but observers expressed no surprise at the rumor, which has been circulated from time to time in the past.

The inauguration of President Roosevelt for his second term is expected to be followed by changes in his official family, several of them arising from the desire of officials to return to private life. It would not be surprising if Early is among this group, but it has not been believed generally that he would leave until after the inauguration.

War Play Theme in Clear, But Its Handling Is Not

larded with unimportant and undistinguished music by Kurt Weill.

"Johnny Johnson," the program advises, is a legend. It is also balderdash and a considerable expenditure of energy thrown into the pot with merely vapor and an occasional savory odor for the trouble. Satirically and in comedy, it tells of a small town tombstone cutter who stays out of the war and enlists only when spurred by Woodrow Wilson's proclamation that this is a war to end wars. He makes a bad and troublesome soldier, conceives the brotherhood of man idea and, as a solo gargantuan, tries to sell the scheme to the American soldiery while a German sniper whose life he had saved, does likewise on the other side of no man's land. But Johnny gets shot in gluteals when he becomes careless. Escaping from his hospital bed, he sprinkles the Allied high command with laughing gas and extracts an order calling off all shots. As the effects wear off, so is the order rescinded. Johnson is sent home, confined to an insane asylum where he organizes a League for World Republics and 10 years later, is set free. In the meantime, he has lost his girl, of course, but that fails to prevent his final song spouting of faith in man and happier days to come. For a guy who got such a pediculous break, Johnny proves quite a man and the Group Theatre a bunch of incurable optimists.

Good Points Too Few

It is true there are flashes of excellent stage technique, embellished by fine lighting and effects. Also are there spasms of laughter, overtoned by the grim and tragic drama which should stalk through all lost causes. The good points are woefully sparse, however, and never begin to make amends for the large patches of meaningless mish-mosh which clutters the stage throughout most of the evening. Russell Collins did cut a woebegone figure in the asylum scene, but for performance this reviewer will take Morris Carnovsky's fine and comic interpretation of the asylum's psychiatrist.

John Hay Whitney is reported to have backed "Johnny Johnson." At least, in part. For a horse breeder of parts and an expert of last summer's season at Saratoga, he should have known better.

Prelates End Meet; No Film Statements

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—The annual meeting of the Archbishops and Bishops of the Catholic Church was concluded today and the administrative board of the Catholic Welfare Council began its sessions which will carry over through tomorrow.

It could not be learned whether or not films were discussed by the hierarchy, but it was indicated that if anything is to be made public it will be handled by the administrative board.

Phil Goldstone Sues EKC on 16 mm. Films

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 19.—Phil Goldstone and Phil Goldstone Prod. today filed suit in Superior Court against Eastman Kodak Co., Eastman Kodak Stores and Kodascope Library of Los Angeles, seeking an injunction restraining the further use of two 16 mm. films to which Goldstone claims exclusive rights. An accounting of profits is also asked as well as an additional $50,000 damages.

Goldstone claims ownership rights to films titled "Hearts of Humanity" and "Phantom Express" which were designed for home entertainment. He charges that the defendants for four years copied these films on 16 mm. gauge and used them commercially.

Sam Wolf represented Goldstone.

Tax Appeal Off to Jan.

The hearing of arguments on appeals involving application of the municipal sales tax to film rentals, scheduled for Dec. 3 before the Court of Appeals at Albany, has been put over to the January term of the court. Frederick H. Wood, attorney for major distributors in the appeal, asked for the adjournment when he found he could not be ready with his argument by the originally scheduled hearing time.

Delay Consolidated Plan

Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., has delayed putting into effect the stock changes voted at the recent meeting because of an injunction in the Keller vs Wilson & Co. case. Attorneys have advised the company not to file a certificate of amendment or to consummate the recapitilization. The $1 dividend will be held up for this reason.

Federal Judge Julian W. Mack yesterday denied the motion of Dictograph Products, Inc., for an injunction to restrain the Securities and Exchange Commission's investigation of transactions in the stock and other activities which the company charges amount to persecution.

Minneapolis New Theatre Ban Up Again

Introduced in the Form Of Traffic Ordinance

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 20.—The second attempt within a month to restrict the number of film theatres in the city through municipal ordinance was before the City Council yesterday, disguised as a traffic safety measure.

The first attempt was defeated when the city attorney's office ruled the proposed ordinance invalid. The new measure is ostensibly directed at improvement of traffic facilities about theatres, but it likewise proposes to limit the number of showhouses.

Provisions call for: Granting of no licenses within 600 feet of church or school; reference of license applications received after May 3, 1937, to the Planning Commission and the Police Department for a survey of the traffic problems that would be created by the proposed theatre and for a recommendation as to what parking space the theatre management would have to make available.

Church officials and some theatre men were said to be behind the ordinance. Alderman Edwin I. Hudson, who introduced the proposed ordinance

Wilcox to Set Deal For Sale of 12 Here

Herbert Wilcox plans to complete a deal within the next week for the American distribution of 12 features he has scheduled for production in England, he said yesterday. He is dickering with several companies, he said, and hasn't decided which offer to take.

The new company under which he plans to produce the dozen films has not yet been formed. An American company, Herbert Wilcox Prod., was recently formed in Albany by William Fitelson, his attorney here.

Wilcox may sail on the Normandie next Wednesday, he said, contingent on the outcome of negotiations now in progress.

Loew's? No! 'Twas Asthma Brought Beaverbrook Here

His Lordship was out of the hotel. But Lord Beaverbrook's secretary was not. It was he, who, in response to a question, put a dent in, if he did not puncture, those persistent reports current in London that the British newspaper owner, once the dominant factor in Provincial Cinematograph Theatres with Will Evans, was toying with the idea of returning to the film industry in a large way. "His Lordship's interest in the cinema has been declining and he is now pretty well out of it," the secretary stated to MOTION PICTURE DAILY.

Making no compliment to Nicholas M. Schenck and his organization, the secretary added he had heard nothing of the report, milling around in some New York financial circuits, that it was Beaverbrook who headed the group which had purchased the 35,000 shares of Loew's held by the estate of Irving Thalberg. The one-man secretariat inquired who Loew's was.

Lord Beaverbrook, furthermore, is not going to Hollywood, as pre-arrival reports insisted. As a matter of fact, he returned to London last night after reaching New York the same morning. It seems His Lordship suffers from asthma and turned to a sea voyage for relief.

He got it.

MPPDA Gets Bid to Berry Industry Meet

A communication asking that an accredited industry representative be designated to attend the Dec. 10 and 11 meetings of the Council for Industrial Progress at Washington was received here yesterday by the M.P.P.D.A. The meetings have been called to further plans for wage and hour and trade practice agreements for industries.

Indications are that the communication will be forwarded to Will H. Hays in Europe without action by the M.P.P.D.A. in advance of the receipt of instructions from Hays. It is believed likely, however, that the industry will have a representative

K.C. Showmen Do Not Want NRA's Return

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 20.—Kansas City exhibitors do not want a return of the NRA.

Queried on the subject, eight exhibitors and one exchangeman expressed the belief that the NRA had benefited them but little, if any, and they questioned whether its return, even in a revised form, would be any better.

Exhibitors feel that the general type of regulation imposed by the NRA would be particularly valueless, if not harmful, to the independent exhibitor. Among those questioned there was not a single deviation from a general opposition to NRA's return for the film

New Play Is Film Material, But Sags Badly in 3rd Act

The soil, that inescapable fundamental, and the errors committed by government and man in its name wove its way all through the pattern of "200 Were Chosen" at the 48th St. Theatre last night.

While you did not see it, you heard about causes that traced back to the Middle West, depression, drought, mortgages and, finally, relief and led to the Government's transplanting of farmers and their families to the rigors of Alaska on the promise of a new and waiting existence. The 200 that were chosen were made glowing promises, this interesting and frequently sardonic and biting drama by E. P. Conkle goes on to say. They were promised houses, electric washers, running water and the proprietary rights to the land which they were prepared to cultivate. But they got in place of all that petty bureaucracy under army ministration that drove them first to stubborn resistance and ultimately to

RKO Again to Share Control Of Music Hall

Back in Center Also in Claim Settlement

RKO will again participate in the operation of the Music Hall and Center under the settlement terms of Rockefeller Center's $9,100,000 claim against RKO, which was finally resolved yesterday for inclusion in the completed RKO plan of reorganization. The treatment of this largest of the unsecured claims against RKO has stood for months as the principal bar to completion of the plan.

The amount at which the huge claim was finally compromised will depend to a significant extent upon the market values of the new RKO securities which will be issued in payment. Indications are that the value of the securities which Rockefeller Center will receive may vary from a minimum of $4,500,000 to a maximum of $6,000,000. The type of securities to be paid was not disclosed but it is believed that new RKO debentures will comprise a large proportion of the payment.

RKO has not operated the Radio City theatres since 1933. It will not immediately resume operation on its own for some time to come, probably until Rockefeller Center's interests in the situation have been completely liquidated. Both will have a voice in operation under the claim settlement provisions and RKO will participate

Court Orders Briefs Filed in Ohio Case

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20.—Attorneys for the distributor plaintiff and for Attorney General John Bricker of Ohio were heard today in the playdate case by a special three-judge Federal statutory court, who ordered that the depositions of the plaintiff be filed by Jan. 30, and that briefs be filed within 15 days thereafter.

With RKO as the sole plaintiff, but with the support of all distributors, the action sought to restrain the attorney general of the state from applying the anti-designated playdate law on the grounds of unconstitutionality.

Murray Seasongood, Cincinnati attorney representing RKO, argued that the law is discriminatory, that it attempts to aid the exhibitor at the expense of the distributor, and that there is no reason for the legislation. As the distributor is the owner of the revolt. Sympathy goes out to the embattled emigres and stays there most of play's length, but not all.

Led by Tom Johnson, played by Anthony Ross, the band in Matanuska Valley finds patience giving way to unbridled anger when that minor authority, as represented by Aldrich Bowker, orders their hastily constructed cabins destroyed because official specifications have been ignored. And so they decide to sit it out. Then food runs short and tempers even shorter. An attempted raid on the commissary fails and Johnson's son dies. You might argue their resistance to a very obvious cockeyed kind of law and order was more foolish than valorous, but there is a gallantry and a courage about their expressed convictions that induce admiration.

Spirits Weaken in the Third

The difficulty, dramatically, rears itself in the third act. When dozens of the camp's children face death from illness and removal to Anchorage impends, overnight and in their crisis the men build their own hospital and, significantly enough, lay the beams according to official dictum, thereby acknowledging their obeisance to the law and a recognizance of their defeat. Somehow or other, the motivation for the sharp turnabout is glossed over and never satisfactorily built up when you remember all that came before. The plot maneuvres here do harm to the play and soften immeasurably the starkness and the basic righteousness of the earlier premise.

Performances are generally good in a lengthy cast of which Johnson, Kathryn Grill, Dorothy Brackett, Charles Jordan, and Paula Bauersmith are some of the principal figures.

In "200 Were Chosen," there is a film of topical value and entertainment possibilities, despite its third act transgression and regardless of the impression walking up and down this reviewer's mind that the punches were pulled unnecessarily on the audience for the perfunctory sake of a safe and sane ending.

"If and When"

Edmund C. Grainger, associate producer at Universal, who is reported engaged to Mary Rogers, daughter of the late comedian, yesterday wired Red Kann:

Admission Taxes Hit New High $1,797,278

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Admission tax collections reached a new high for the year in October at $1,797,278.84, it was reported tonight by the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

The October receipts, the Bureau disclosed were $127,000 in excess of the September collection of $1,670,044.71, and more than $308,000 above the October, 1935, revenue of $1,488,922.68.

Admission tax collections for the 10 months ended with October amounted to $14,657,223.24 compared with $12,784,047.24 in the corresponding period last year, the bureau announced.

New Taxes Seen in Mo.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 20.—The possibility of increased special taxation against films looms in Missouri, as a result of the rebellion by merchants throughout the state against the present one per cent sales tax, and the consequent possibility that the sales tax cannot be increased by the legislature in the next session. In that case new sources of revenue would have to be sought.

Flash Previews

"Career Woman"—A rather loosely-constructed story combining the elements of small town bigotry and metropolitan legal justice with naive and sophisticated romance.

"Son of Mongolia"—In which the Soviet again goes propagandistic, this time in favor of Sovietized Mongolia as opposed to the Japanese-sponsored Manchukuo.

These films will be reviewed in full in a coming issue of MOTION PICTURE DAILY.

Barney Balaban, Paramount president, and Stanton Griffis, chairman of the executive committee, are en route here from Hollywood following their first visit to the studio since being elected to their present executive positions in the company. Balaban may stop off in Chicago for a brief visit, arriving here early next week, while Griffis is due here today.

Prior to their departure Balaban stated that whether Cecil B. DeMille would produce two or three pictures under his new contract was still undecided.

Waring-Ford Status Continues in Doubt

Despite the reported collapse of negotiations between Ford and M-G-M for the widely discussed program featuring the production company's stars, the Fred Waring status of his current two Ford programs remains unchanged. Competent observers feel that at best Waring has but a 50-50 chance of a renewal.

The bandleader made a hasty plane trip to Detroit on Thursday for a conference with A. R. Barbier, advertising director and W. L. Collings, sales manager of Ford, and returned to New York yesterday with the issue still in doubt. It is expected that Waring will return to Detroit for another confab today.

The drop of the Waring shows in the program popularity ratings, accepted at large by the radio industry, is understood to be the most unfavorable factor in the situation. In the last rating on his NBC program, Waring was 69th in the list, whereas in past polls he has never been lower than 15th. Similarly, in the last CBS rating, Waring's program finished in 22nd position. Previous ratings had always found him among the first 10. Ford, it is reported, is of the opinion that the two programs, costing approximately $1,322,000 per year for time and talent, rate higher in the official ratings.

In any event, an official decision will be rendered no later than Nov. 25 at which date the Waring contract either must be renewed or dropped.

copyright on each film, Seasongood contended, the law interferes with the Federal law, since the contracts for exhibition are in interstate commerce and under the jurisdiction of Federal and not state law. No moral issue is involved, he said, since the censor decides on that point. Any claim of monopoly becomes a Federal issue, he declared.

Abram F. Myers, general counsel of Allied States Ass'n, assisting Benjamin H. Schwartz, representing Bricker, said the law is essentially Sunday legislation, and that the exhibitor is responsible to the community for the type of pictures shown, and is entitled to specify what the patrons should see. The exhibitor should not be compelled to show objectionable films over the protest of civic groups, the defense said.

Ohio Approves Minimum Wage

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20.—The Ohio minimum wage law today was declared constitutional in U. S. District Court here. The decision was unanimous among Judges Florence E. Allen, Robert R. Nevin and Mell G. Underwood. The law establishes a minimum wage for 42,000 women and minors in hotels, restaurants, dry cleaners and laundries.

Ora B. Chapman, state director of industrial relations, today told MOTION PICTURE DAILY that the scope of operation of the law would be broadened to include retail trade, with the film industry ultimately to be affected.

Counsel for the plaintiffs, who contested the constitutionality of the statute, indicated that the case will be carried to the Supreme Court.

Permit Mortgage Appeal

Federal Judge Knox yesterday allowed the Philadelphia Co. for Guaranteeing Mortgages to take an appeal to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals from a decision of the Federal Court in allowing a claim against Fox Theatres for only $48,134, instead of $389,436 asked. The suit arose out of the breaking of the lease of the Fox Theatre in Philadelphia when Fox Theatres went bankrupt. The Federal Court refused to allow future damages, which is what the plaintiff wanted.

Chicago Judge Hits B. N.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20. — Municipal Court Judge John H. Lyle today ruled that all Bank Nights conducted here are lotteries and illegal but added that prosecution on these grounds is a matter not in his hands.

The decision was handed down to Mrs. Catherine McDonald, who sued the operators of the 63rd Street in Englewood for $500 which she claimed the theatre owes her.

The decision is considered a blow to Bank Night here. The game offers over $100,000 weekly in prizes.

at the Washington sessions, if only as an observer.

The primary function of the sessions next month will be to receive reports from committees named by the Council for Industrial Progress and to act upon them. A number of these reports will suggest types of enabling legislation for the drafting and enforcement of trade agreements and any which may be adopted by the Council will be forwarded to the President and Congress for further action. Industry itself, it is felt, could do little in the way of acting upon trade practice agreements or wage and hour provisions until enabling legislation had materialized. This fact, rather than any aversion for trade agreements, continues to dampen enthusiasm within the industry for the December conferences in Washington.

The M.P.T.O.A., national exhibitor organization; the I.T.O.A., local organization, and Allied States, national exhibitor organization, all reported yesterday that no bid to the Washington meetings had been received by them. Advices from Washington earlier this week, however, were that all organized trade units would be invited to send representatives to the sessions.

of a month ago, was the one who placed the latest one before the council. In answer to a question as to whether the ordinance would effect existing theatres as well as new ones, Assistant City Attorney John F. Bonner said he thought the old ones probably would be the houses concerned.

W. R. Frank, exhibitor, told the Council Committee on Ordinances: "As theatre men we have large investments, and of course we are concerned about new theatres coming in. The introduction of one new theatre could quickly ruin four others. As far as theatres go, the city is overseated now."

Although Frank pointed out that an ordinance limiting the number of houses already had been passed in Brainerd, Minn., it could not be learned whether or not the measure had been approved by the courts.

business, although they all believed there would be at least an attempt by the Government to impose some such regulation on the industry.

Ed Dubinsky of Dubinsky Brothers would not like to see the NRA come back if it is to be handled the way it was before. But he would like to see the Government step in and eliminate what he called the racketeering element from labor.

"I'm not in favor of it," commented Jay Means of the Oak Park and Bagdad.

Glen W. Dickinson doesn't think the NRA helped, or will help, the little fellow in the theatre field.

"The NRA almost ruined me," asserted J. W. Cotter, operator of the Bijou.

"The NRA didn't help me," said C. E. Esterly, "and I'd hate to see it return."

Opposed to the NRA from the beginning, E. Rolsky, operator of the National, and president of the I. T. O., still is opposed to it. He was one of the few who did not sign acceptance of the act.

Dusty Rhodes, who operates the Gillham, thought some points of the NRA were good, but he does not want it back.

E. S. Young, who runs the Central and Roanoke, is not in favor of the NRA. However, "it might be all right if it were correctly administered."

"The Garden of Allah," tallying $13,900 on the first day with the second day's receipts up to 5 P. M. running $100 better than the opening day.

Although the management had expected the figure to hit around $50,000, a wave of cold weather is said to have affected the take.

The Capitol wound up the last six days of a three-week run of "Libeled Lady" with about $18,000. This house also has gone to Thursday openings until after the holidays.

"Our Relations," at the Rialto, in eight days ended with $11,000, which was very good. "Here Comes Carter" and "Cain and Mabel" at the Palace took approximately $8,000.

Keep RKO for Name Value In Firm's Reorganization

Radio-Keith-Orpheum is retained as the parent company under the RKO reorganization plan which was completed late last week and which in all probability will be filed with the U. S. District Court here today.

Radio Committee Formed By Producer Ass'n.

Hollywood, Nov. 22.—The industry's newly established machinery for the regulation of its radio broadcasting problems affecting both production and exhibition is now functioning under the ministrations of a special radio committee set up by the Producers' Ass'n. here. Details of the industry's plan for the regulation of its participation in radio broadcasting through the cooperative efforts of both film and broadcasting interests were described in Motion Picture Daily of Nov. 12.

The Producers' Ass'n. has refused to divulge the names of members of its special radio committee for reasons unknown, but it is learned that the entire membership is composed of producers. The committee went into action for the first time late last week when it met with representatives of broadcasting and agency interests involved in the General Mills proposal to broadcast directly from sound stages here, the programs to be sponsored by the flour milling company. As a result of the meeting the negotiations were reported to have fallen through when the objections raised by the industry committee were held by the broadcasting interests to be insurmountable. It had been planned in

Metro Is Receptive To Programs on Air

While it is generally accepted that the Ford-M-G-M broadcasting deal has collapsed, although formal acknowledgement has not been forthcoming, Metro is understood to be receptive to a limited number of coast-to-coast hookups a year, preferably tied in with its musicals and under a different sponsorship for each program.

Hollywood reports the studio gratified as a result of the "Born to Dance" show which was broadcast on the

"Not Interested" in Berry Meet, Says ITO

The I.T.O.A. is "not interested" in the meetings to be held in Washington Dec. 10 and 11 to further proposals for enabling legislation on wage and hour and trade practice agreements, an official of the organization said on Saturday.

"We are not interested in this phase of the situation," it was stated. "If proper legislation does materialize later and we are satisfied that the Hays organization will not dominate whatever administrative body is set up for this industry, the chances are we would participate, but not otherwise."

The spokesman said that no bid to the Washington meetings, called by the National Council for Industrial Progress, had been received by I.T.O.A. yet. So far as could be learned neither the M.P.T.O.A. nor Allied States had received bids on Saturday, either. The M.P.P.D.A. received and acknowledged a bid to the meetings late last week. Indications are that the industry will have at least an "observer" at the sessions.

Use "Zombies" Title By Special Consent

Syndicate Exchange will distribute "Revolt of the Zombies" in the local territory under that title, according to a special arrangement between Robert Benjamin, co-assignee of Melbert Pictures, and Amusement Securities Corp., which recently obtained an injunction against use of the title.

N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Wasservogel has approved the arrangement. Phillips & Nizer and Harold Lerman acted as attorneys for Melbert Pictures, while Krellberg & Fitzmons represented Amusement Securities in procuring the court's approval. The arrangement in no way affects previous decisions handed down against Producers Laboratories, the Rialto, New York, and Academy Prod.

National Censorship Functions in Mexico

By JAMES LOCKHART

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 20.—(Via Air Mail).—The new national film censor board in Mexico has begun to function. It is composed of three men appointed by the Ministry of the Interior. The Confederation of Mexican Workers has asked the ministry to permit a representative on the censor board.

Film interests have requested President Lazaro Cardenas to take action to avoid the conflict which has arisen between the national censor board and the Mexico City censor. The film people say they have no objection to censorship, but point out the confusion which develops from the system of two boards. Both collect fees. The National board is favored. Penalties will be imposed for evasion of censorship.

The country's first cooperative society of film workers, long in formation, finally has been organized. It is known as the Cooperative Society of Mexican M. P. Workers for Film Production and Exploitation. It is receiving Government assistance from the Ministry of National Economy and plans the production of several pictures.

Producers here are discovering that increased cost of films pays. The average cost of productions has risen in recent years from approximately $18,000 to $30,000.

Censure Seattle Censors

SEATTLE, Nov. 22.—Seattle's censors were themselves roundly censured here this week by the City Council. The rebuke came in connection with the recent showing of "Ecstasy" at John Danz's Winter Garden.

A council investigation disclosed that the film was booked into the Winter Garden only after it had been given an official OK by the censor board. After a three-day run the council requested that it be discontinued because of protests. At its regular session yesterday, the council went on record as publicly censuring the board for passing the film, and advised it to be more discriminating in the future.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Plainsman"

(DeMille-Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 22.—Grand entertainment for anybody, "The Plainsman" is finely done, martial, thrilling, action-loaded western drama and romance and is certain to be an impressive box-office attraction. Produced and directed by Cecil B. DeMille, the film matches some of his other great pictures that have blended historical fact with emotion-touching fiction. Effectively merging the story content with worthy characterizations and spectacular production effects, the picture balances romance with drama and comedy, and combines the whole with nerve-tingling action.

It is a blood-and-thunder saga of the west following the Civil War. The picture takes vivid chapters from the careers of "Wild Bill" Hickok, Calamity Jane, Buffalo Bill, General Custer, Indian Chiefs Yellow Hand, and Painted Horse, against backgrounds of authentic history to tell in roaring terms how a vast domain was wrested from the red men and white renegades. It also tells a poignant story of a woman's love for a man denied to her during his life and who is lost to her when a traitor's bullet mows him down.

It is meaty stuff, but not lacking in those compensating qualities that make desirable entertainment for all.

Gary Cooper, as Hickok, gives one of his more telling performances. Jean Arthur is both a man's and a woman's Calamity Jane. DeMille's technique further enables James Ellison, as Buffalo Bill; Helen Burgess, as his wife; John Miljan, as Custer; Paul Harvey, as Yellow Hand; Victor Varconi, as Painted Horse, and Frank Albertson, as a fear-crazed trooper, to check in with performances marking high spots in their careers.

It is based on data from stories by Courtney Riley Cooper and Frank Wilstach concerning Hickok's part in winning early western frontiers, with liberal license taken in bringing in other historic figures and incidents. Jeanie MacPherson compiled the material and Waldemar Young, Harold Lamb and Lynn Riggs, scenarists, turned out an intelligent continuity.

Vivid camera work has been done by Victor Milner and George Robinson. Farciot Edouart and Gordon Jennings collaborated on the spectacular production detail. It is dramatically effective. Similarly, George Antheil's original music, directed by Boris Morros, is a potent factor in intensifying the picture's moods.

A potential natural in any competition in any season, showmen need have no fears that patrons will not enthuse over this stirring, human interest entertainment.

Production Code Seal No. 2,597. Running time, 110 minutes. "G."

"The Plainsman" is tentatively scheduled to open at the Paramount on Jan. 7.

"Career Woman"

(Wurtzel-Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 22.—An attempt is made here to combine tense drama with farce comedy and the result is a confused picture of doubtful entertainment value. The elements portrayed are small-town bigotry; justice as doled out by metropolitan and rural courts, and two romances, one naive and the other sophisticated.

Claire Trevor and Michael Whalen, as lawyers, dominate the cast. Whalen, supposedly a brainy trickster, resorts to theatricalism to win his verdicts. Miss Trevor, insistent on the strict ethics of the code, returns to the small town to practice. Whalen's romantic pursuit links the pair to try Miss Trevor's first case—the defense of Isabel Jewell, who is accused of murdering her father, Charles Middleton, in a misunderstanding over her romance with Eric Linden. The complications which they produce are treated first dramatically and then farcically, making the picture neither one nor the other.

Lamar Trotti's screen play, based on a story by Gene Fowler, shows only a superficial knowledge of the social problems involved, and the direction of Lewis Seiler seems unable to make the situations clear. Supporting players include Edward Brophy, Gene Lockhart, Guinn Williams and Virginia Field. Milton Feld is creditable as assistant producer.

The nature of the story indicates doubtful reception by both metropolitan and rural audiences.

Production Code Seal No. 2,802. Running time, 73 minutes. "G."

Milwaukee License Is Asked for Games

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 22.—Alderman John Schultz, chairman of the Common Council License Committee, has asked the city attorney to draft an ordinance licensing and regulating theatres and taverns which sponsor Bank Night, Hollywood and similar revenue producing schemes. The proposed annual fee is $100.

Alderman Schultz declared that permitting theatres and taverns to hold Bank Nights is granting them a special privilege for which they should be made to pay a reasonable license fee.

"Bank Nights at theatres and taverns require special police protection and in my opinion violate some of the fire ordinances," Alderman Schultz declared.

Bank Night in Omaha

OMAHA, Nov. 22.—With all five downtown and all 23 suburban houses cooperating, weekly Bank Night will be started in Omaha in the near future, it has been learned. Issue New Guild Book

THEATRE GUILD ANTHOLOGY —Compiled by Phillip Moeller, Theresa Helburn, Lee Simonson, Lawrence Langner, Maurice Wertheim, Helen Westley and Alfred Lunt. Published by Random House.

As the name implies, here is a volume containing the "complete and unabridged" texts of 14 among the many plays produced by New York's "art theatre" from the time of its inception in 1918 up until the present day.

Molnar, Werfel, Shaw, O'Neill, Ervine, Milne, Anderson, Sherwood, Behrman, Barry, Andreyev, Rice, Howard and the Heywards are each represented by a single outstanding work, the whole being an impressive cross-section of the Guild's collective contribution to the field of drama in the City of New York.

Looking 'Em Over

"Son of Mongolia"

(Amkino)

That the Soviet state uses the screen as a medium for the dissemination of propaganda has long been obvious. However, whereas in the past the propaganda has been general, lauding the current collectivism, this film turns specific and presents a bold anti-Japanese document.

It is called the first production made in Mongolia, with a wholly native Mongolian cast and utilizing that language, but with the Russian-Japanese situation close to the boiling point, it becomes at once apparent why Russia now releases a Mongolian film. It is that section of Russia which is closest to the Japanese frontier in Manchukuo.

A poor Mongolian shepherd, in search of a hero status which will make his sweetheart look kindly on him, wanders into Manchukuo, there finds brutality, the cold-blooded overlordship of princes, of whom one portrayed might or might not be a sly and unflattering picture of Pu Yi, Manchu ruler installed by Japan. He returns happy in the freedom of Mongolia, and waves the verbal banner of defense, against a background of heavily armed forces on parade.

The average American audience could not be expected to find attraction in any so-called entertainment which is so blatantly propagandistic.

No production code seal. Running time, 83 minutes. "A."

Regulation of Broadcasting Is Under Way

advance of the meeting to initiate the broadcasts immediately.

All future deals for broadcasting involving industry interests of the same import likewise will be submitted to the scrutiny of the Hays organization committee, it was stated officially. The regulatory system thus installed is regarded by producers and New York home offices as all that can be attempted of a practical nature to govern the problems resulting from the participation of industry talent in radio broadcasts.

Studio officials are agreed that talent cannot be kept off the air, but the programs in which film stars are to appear, by mutual cooperation of the interests involved, can be regulated so as to minimize competition with theatres, lessen the interference with production schedules caused by radio rehearsals and broadcasts of working stars, and insure against danger to the stars' reputations and popularity by proper supervision of their work on the air. These, obviously, will be the primary objectives of the producers' committee.

The formation and functions of the committee were decided following the recent conference in New York of industry and radio officials at which interlocking problems were discussed. The committee will meet with network officials, advertising and talent agents and representatives of the potential sponsor of any program which proposes the use on the air of any significant studio resources, it was said. Similar action would be taken in the east on programs of the same nature originating here.

In the radio field, the impression is these may be held to approximately four to six a year. In New York, M-G-M is on record with the statement Saturday and Sunday broadcasts will not be considered. On the basis of 10 points per week, theatres traditionally compute weekend business at five, or 50 per cent of each seven-day gross.

the San Mateo County Grand Jury, J. C. Chastain said yesterday.

Chastain, who is publisher of the Redwood City Weekly Standard, has been active in protesting slot machines and similar devices in the community. While active against the slot machines, the other newspapers of the county, some of which accept advertising on the theatre games, have not joined in Chastain's protests. The mayor has stated that he does not believe the theatre games are in violation of any local or state anti-lottery laws.

WHN-CBSL Launch Talent Deal Soon

The new WHN series featuring CBS starlets will make its debut this Thursday, Nov. 26, at 8 P. M. over the Loew-owned station. The program was devised to give air time to CBS talent who otherwise would have to remain inactive because of the crowded network schedule.

The first program will have Jay C. Flippen as master-of-ceremonies, and Jerry Cooper of CBS as guest star. Other CBS acts scheduled to be heard are the Buccaneers Octette, Frances Comstock, and Vic Laurie. Irving Aaronson and his Commanders will provide the music.

Will Pick 10 Best Films

Elza Schallert, NBC motion picture critic in Hollywood, will reveal her nominations for the 10 best films of 1936 on her program next Friday, over the NBC-Red network at 10:45 P. M., E. S. T.

During the past year Mrs. Schallert has previewed more than 300 films on the air. Her selections will be based on three points: first, the contribution of each film to the highest advancement of the screen, second, the general artistic quality of the film; third, its general popular appeal.

Before revealing her nominations, Mrs. Schallert will interview Joel McCrea.

WMCA-WPA Shift Intrigues

Exactly what is behind the move is not discernible at the moment, but officials at WPA headquarters and at WMCA admit to Motion Picture Daily that both organizations were contemplating shifts in bases of operation.

WMCA, it is understood, will leave its present location at 1697 Broadway within the next few weeks for premises in the Hollywood Theatre Bldg., while WPA moves from 1991 Broadway to the present WMCA site.

More "Good-Will" Fuss

Bar associations in Chicago and in California will follow the precedent set by the Bar Ass'n of New York, which recently "indicted" the "Good-Will Court," it was learned Saturday.

Attorney Phil R. Davis, of Chicago, has submitted a resolution condemning the "court," and it is understood that the committee's report, soon to be published, will be as severe as the New York findings. The secretary of the Illinois Bar Ass'n has gone on record that he is opposed to such radio programs.

In the meanwhile, it is reported the sponsor of the "Good-Will court," upset by the unfavorable publicity the program has been receiving of late, will remove the program from the networks at the expiration of the initial 13-week contract, some five weeks hence, and will replace it with another program.

completed by the end of the year and that 30 are scheduled to be finished by the close of 1937. The majority of them, he said, will be for the American market, the company's production policy embodying the principle that all films will be aimed directly at the United States field except those which contain a particularly strong local British appeal, the production chief said.

Mycroft is in continuous consultation with Budd Rogers of Alliance Films, American distributor for B. I. P., relative to American reactions on stories and stars scheduled for B. I. P. productions.

It is understood that Maxwell's policy will be to use the G. B. distribution setup in the United States for the total increased output of G. B., B. I. P. and independents, with a rejection option attaching to the arrangement in New York. It is estimated that the films designed to reach the American market will range between a minimum of 30 and a maximum of 50 each year, assuming that G. B. has 16 to 20 and the independents six to 12, in addition to the B. I. P. output.

It has been ascertained definitely that Maxwell's policy includes the retention of the G. B. American distribution organization, increasing rather than lessening its activities.

ducer, recently returned from England, where he was associated with Universal, has been named general manager and vice-president in charge of production, and Joseph R. Fliesler is secretary in charge of publicity and advertising.

Major national distribution is planned for the Class A product intended by the company, with a budget of more than $1,000,000. Negotiations are now under way for stories, talent and a technical staff. The home office is in the RKO Building. Preferred bookings in England are said to be assured the company's product through British National Pictures.

British National Pictures, headed by Lord Ragnor, was originally capitalized at more than $12,000,000. Its entry into the American field is said by the company to be on the basis of a "hands-off" policy with regard to production and distribution.

preparing to invest more deeply in the latter proposition.

Rank, with Lord Portal and C. M. Woolf, is also interested in General Film Distributors, Ltd., which, as reported, is developing a chain of from 400 to 500 theatres in a move designed to offset John Maxwell's combined exhibition power represented by Associated British Theatres and Gaumont British.

RKO As Name To Continue In New Setup

at once, but, of course, will be designated in advance of the time for court approval of the reorganization plan.

According to present indications the plan should not meet with any serious opposition and may have the court's approval by March 1. The agreement on the $9,100,000 Rockefeller Center claim which was reached last week eliminates the most serious potential opposition to a plan. It is the dominant item in the unsecured creditors classification and should go far toward obtaining the approval of that group for the plan. The secured creditors and stockholders, dominated by Atlas, Lehman Bros. and RCA interests, are assumed to be in accord. The situation leaves only sundry independent creditors' groups, representing minority interests in every instance, as the potential sources of opposition. Among these are the Orpheum Circuit preferred stockholders, who recently retained Isidor J. Kresel, prominent attorney, to represent their interests, a move which, to those close to the reorganization, possesses great significance in the event the views of the Orpheum shareholders are not ameliorated. Independent stockholders' committees and the independent unsecured creditors' committee of which the Karl Hoblitzelle and U. S. Bank of Denver interests are the moving factors, are also seen as potential opposition.

Joint Advisory Board Planned

Indications on Saturday were that the plan would go to Federal Judge William Bondy today providing corrected copies of the document were received from the printers in time.

Although RKO will again participate in the operation of the Music Hall and Center under the provisions for treatment of the Rockefeller Center claim, W. G. Van Schmus is regarded as certain to continue as managing director of the Music Hall. There will be set up, however, an advisory operating board comprised of both RKO and Rockefeller Center appointees which will furnish RKO with an important voice in picture policies for the Music Hall. RKO's participation in profits of the theatres is also placed upon a promising basis, particularly in the event that earnings improve to any significant extent. Fixed charges of the theatres, including rent payable to Rockefeller Center, may be shaved considerably under the new arrangements, according to report.

Indications are that preferred and common stock, rather than debentures as at first reported, will be issued to Rockefeller Center in payment of its claim. The market value of the securities to be thus issued is variously estimated at from $4,500,000 to $6,000,000.

Orpheum Holders Plan Fight

Preferred stockholders of Orpheum Circuit have subscribed $40,000 to finance litigation against RKO and K-A-O designed to set aside the 1933 transaction by which Orpheum assets were absorbed by Stadium Theatres for obligations amounting to approximately $3,000,000. The development is the first result of the retention by the Orpheum stockholders of Isidor J. Kresel, prominent attorney, to represent their interests.

Whether or not the litigation can be brought is still problematical, however, due to the fact that Marcus Heiman, Orpheum trustee, was directed some time ago by Referee Oscar Ehrhorn to bring similar action against RKO and K-A-O. Heiman was prevented by lack of funds from carrying out the order and the $40,000 litigation fund subscribed by the shareholders will be used only on the condition that they be permitted to control the litigation. With Referee Ehrhorn's order still in existence no means have been devised yet of taking control of the litigation away from the trustee and giving it to the shareholders.

The moves being undertaken by the Orpheum shareholders result from the failure of the RKO reorganization plan to make provision for their claims against RKO.

Mexican Holiday

Mexico City, Nov. 22.—Exhibitors in Mexico lost several thousand dollars as theatres were forced to close during the matinee Friday, the anniversary of the start of the 1910 social revolution. The labor unions forced the closing. It is the first time in years the anniversary has hit theatres, since they usually enjoy holiday business.

Year's Profit Equal to $6.79 on Common

Loew's, Inc., and subsidiaries yesterday reported net income of 11,076,822.81 after all charges, for the fiscal year ended Aug. 31, 1936, the highest net figure attained by the company for six years, or since 1930, when the net income after all charges was $14,942,017.21.

The 1936 net is equal to $81.02 per share on the preferred stock, and $6.79 per share on the common stock, which compares with $55.44 per share on the preferred and $4.53 per share on the common in the previous year. Ostrers Intend to Retain G. B. Control, Says Isidore

"The Ostrers intend to maintain control of G. B. and no one else will have it," Isidore Ostrer, president of the company, emphatically declared upon his arrival yesterday on the Normandie for conferences with Joseph M. Schenck and Sidney R. Kent. A. C. Blumenthal, who has been playing an active part in the stock negotiations of G. B., was a passenger on the boat, but would not respond to questions, referring them all to Ostrer.

"We don't intend to sell control," the latter added. "The Ostrers are in the film business to stay. I don't think, personally, that we will sell our 'A' shares in Metropolis & Bradford Trust, the holding company for G. B."

Placing an interpretation on Maxwell's sphere of influence in G. B. which runs completely contrary to lengthy cabled accounts from London, Ostrer minimized the former's importance in the company's affairs with this statement:

"He is a minority stockholder like anyone else. He has 240,000 of the 1,000,000 outstanding "B" shares; doesn't have a single vote and is not a director in either M. & B. or G. B."

Scotching reports current for some time, Ostrer said Maxwell positively does not hold an option on the 5,100 "A" shares in M. & B. That such a deal was part of the sale of the "B"

Proposed Capitalization $33,000,000; Allowed Claims Met in Full

A reorganization plan for RKO was presented yesterday to U. S. District Judge William Bondy and a first hearing for creditors was set for Dec. 23.

The plan proposes an exchange of new securities for allowed creditors' claims on what appears to be a virtual dollar-for-dollar basis.

The proposed new capitilization is $33,000,000, comprised of an authorized $18,000,000 issue of 5½ per cent sinking fund convertible debentures, of which $12,718,500 is to be outstanding on consummation of the plan; an $11,000,000 issue of six per cent cumulative convertible preferred stock of $100 par value, of which an estimated $6,000,000 will be outstanding, and 4,000,000 shares of no par value common stock, of which a minimum of 2,163,148 shares would be outstanding on the consummation of the plan.

The plan offers to holders of old RKO debentures $100 in principal amount of new debentures plus two shares of new common stock for each $100 principal amount of old debentures including unpaid interest coupons amounting to $24.57. The principal amount of such debentures outstanding is $12,718,500.

RKO to Simplify Corporate Setup

Simplification of the corporate structure of RKO is to be undertaken in advance of the consummation of the company's reorganization, with present plans calling for the merging of seven production and distribution subsidiaries with RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., the principal subsidiary.

RKO Distributing Corp. is the largest company to be merged. Ned E.

Both executives expressed enthusiasm over the functioning of the Paramount studio under the direction of Adolph Zukor and William Le Baron.

No meeting of the Paramount board will be held this week, the November regular meeting having been postponed to Dec. 3.

London Films Plans 12 for $7,500,000

London Films will produce 12 "big films" at a cost of $7,500,000 next season, Etienne Pallos, general sales manager, stated upon his arrival yesterday on the Normandie. This is an increase of two pictures and $2,000,000 over the current season's program.

Pallos intends to spend about three months in the United States, particularly to sign writers and directors, he said. He will remain in New York until the next board meeting of United

Giveaways Increase In K. C's Theatres

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 22.—Twenty-five Kansas City subsequent runs, or 68 per cent of the total, are giving away some form of premium one or more nights a week. This is said to be a new high, both in number of theatres and frequency of use.

The past year has seen a shift in extra theatrical promotion from money giveaways to dishes, glassware and the like. Only about seven now have money draws, of which two or three are Bank Night. Representatives of premium companies here report both their volume and the number of theatres up over a year ago.

Most premiums are given away with a double feature program, inasmuch as the dualling policy is practically universal for most nights in the week here.

In Kansas City, Kan., neither the double bill nor the giveaway practice has much of a foothold. Only the Fox Granada is doubling on an all-week basis. Independents are dualling very little, or not at all.

Sued Over Football

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—Edward Herman, for WIND, has filed suit in the U. S. district court against the Chicago Cardinals Professional Football Team, the Chicago Bears, the Standard Oil of Indiana, and WGN of Chicago.

The action alleges that last June WIND purchased the exclusive broadcasting rights for the home games to be played this season by the Chicago Cardinals; that subsequently, WGN, Standard Oil and the Bears advertised that they were going to broadcast part of the Cardinals' schedule. The suit asks specific performance of the contract made between the Cardinals and WIND, and that the Bears, Standard Oil and WGN be enjoined from broadcasting any of such home games.

The suit specifically requests that the Cardinals be restrained from playing their scheduled home games with the Bears at Wrigley Field on Nov. 29, if they are unable to deliver the exclusive broadcasting rights allegedly sold for this event.

Infringement Case Reopened

WILMINGTON, Nov. 23.—A motion to strike out a certain portion of the defendant's answer was held before Judge John P. Nields in U. S. District Court here today in the patent infringement suit filed by RCA and A. T. & T.

The DeForest patent, which was adjudicated as valid in the suit some time ago and on which General Electric Co. had secured preliminary injunction, against the same defendant, is the patent which the Collins Radio Co. is charged with infringing.

The argument today was on a special supplementary bill in which Collins is alleged to have manufactured sets and infringed on the patent after previous preliminary injunction had been handed down against the company involving the same patent.

Ates on Auto Show Program

PORTLAND, ORE., Nov. 23.—Roscoe Ates and 16 girls from Paramount, headed by Belle Richards, are broadcasting their personal appearances at the Northwest Automobile Show here, over KGW, under the supervision of Leroy Prinz.

Radio Sponsors Flood Air With Prizes and Giveaways

While theatre owners have run afoul of various municipal and state laws in their attempts to give audiences something for nothing via Bank Nights, Screeno contests and similar games, radio sponsors are giving away prizes ranging from a ton of coal to $1,000 in cash, without meeting objections from any source, including the strict Federal Communications Commission.

The plan employed by air sponsors is simple. By merely inducing their listeners to expend a bit of effort in order to make them eligible to win a prize, games of chance are automatically converted into games of skill. There is no law which can halt, or interfere with, a game of skill.

At the moment, at least 20 sponsors are conducting contests on the networks and there is little doubt in radio circles but that the list will double itself before Christmas.

Sundays, over NBC, the Hudson Coal Co. is giving away free coal to listeners writing letters about the product; the International Silver Co. is offering sets of silverware for descriptions of incidents deemed suitable for dramatization on the program and the Fitch Co. is awarding wrist watches for jingles subsequently offered on the program.

Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, over NBC, the "Voice of Experience" in the interest of Wasey drug products, is offering cash prizes of $500 each for best letters on the subjects discussed on the program. Mondays through Fridays, over NBC, the "Mary Marlin" program for Kleenex, is offering prizes totaling $10,000 in U. S. bonds for letters on baby uses of product, in addition to 3,000 merchandise prizes. Also on NBC, Mondays through Fridays, Procter and Gamble's "Pepper Young" program is offering a grand prize of $1,000 a year for life or $12,000 cash for best compositions on product. There are also 201 additional cash prizes in each of five prize zones.

Over CBS, on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, Ted Husing, for the Atlantic Refining Oil Co., is giving away an automobile and cash prizes each week for guesses on football scores.

There are many others, including the "Hit Parade" program, the football roundups with Eddie Dolley and Red Grange and the General Shoe "Portraits in Harmony" program offering automobiles as prizes for the best ending given to sentence read on the program, but the list already offered herein is sufficiently well documented to show that radio sponsors are succeeding where some theatre owners have failed.

Now an All-Colored Bill

In the sole expectation of ultimately selling the unit as a stage show, NBC's artists' bureau has completed arrangements to place on the air radio's only all-colored program. The program, to be known as "Good Time Society," begins Friday, Dec. 4, from 10:30 to 11 P. M., E.S.T., over the NBC-Red network.

The show will feature Chick Webb's orchestra, Ella Fitzgerald and Charles Lynton, the Four Ink Spots, and the Juanita Hall choir. Juano Hernandez, negro writer and actor, is writing the script and will portray the chief role in the weekly episodes.

Rubinoff, Inventor

It's here at last—a collapsible or folding violin that really works. The inventor is none other than Rubinoff, and he played his brainchild at the "Patented Dinner" in Washington last night, which commemorated the centennial of the American patent system.

It should be a hit in vaudeville, but the next step should be a collapsible bass fiddle.

WSPD Goes to NBC

Station WSPD, Toledo, will join NBC's basic Blue network on or about May 1, 1937, it was ascertained by MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday. A formal announcement will probably be forthcoming soon.

The addition of WSPD, owned by the Toledo Broadcasting Co., will bring the total of NBC outlets to 109 stations, 90 more than when the company was founded in 1926.

WSPD operates with 5,000 watts power in the daytime and 1,000 at night. At present it is a CBS affiliate. The addition of this unit is one of a number of NBC acquisitions in the recent past. Stations which will join the NBC network on Jan. 1 are WEAN, Providence; WICC, Bridgeport; KFBK, Sacramento; KWG, Stockton; KMJ, Fresno, and KERN, Bakersfield, Cal. The four latter are owned by the McClatchy newspapers. On March 1, WFEA, Manchester, N. H., becomes an NBC affiliate, and WOWO, Fort Wayne, Ind., joins up on May 1.

Swing to Minstrel Show

After seven years of the same routine, Amos 'n' Andy, radio's black-face team, will change their Friday night broadcast into a minstrel show, beginning Friday, Dec. 4. In addition, a prominent guest star will be presented each week.

The change will affect only the Friday night routine; throughout the week the comics will offer their standard act. The first guest artist will probably be Frank Parker.

Announcement of the change in policy will be made on this Friday's broadcast.

"Salem" Broadcast Dec. 4

The postponed "Maid of Salem" reenactment on the "Hollywood Hotel" program, will be offered a week from Friday, Dec. 4. Claudette Colbert and Fred MacMurray will portray the parts they play in the picture.

Muni Cast Hits Peak

Last night's Lux Radio Theatre offering, "The Story of Louis Pasteur," with Paul Muni in the lead role, featured the largest cast ever assembled for any one radio program—76 actors. All told, there were 23 speaking parts.

Braddock Takes Air

James J. Braddock, world's heavyweight champion, has been engaged for a new script series beginning Dec. 1, 7:15 to 7:30 P. M., E.S.T., over either the Red or Blue NBC network.

The new program will offer a dramatization of Braddock's personal career, tracing his rise from a WPA dock laborer to the world's heavyweight champion. The program will be sponsored by Tastyeast candy, and will be heard on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays. J. P. Muller & Co. is the agency.

Lederer, Fay to Vallee

Francis Lederer, and Frances Fay, both on vacation from the studios, have been signed for the Thanksgiving night broadcast of the Vallee Variety Hour. Lederer will be cast in a dramatic sketch, while Miss Fay will sing. Tom Howard and George Shelton, heard frequently on the Vallee program, will offer a comedy routine.

Strouse, Chapman, Et Al

Short Shots: Four new members have been added to NBC's publicity staff. . . . Irving Strouse, of the J. P. Muller ad agency, detailed to handle exclusively the new Jimmy Braddock series. . . . Frank Chapman, husband of Gladys Swarthout, will be heard on his wife's new ice series. . . . The Beaux Arts ball will be broadcast over WMCA and the Inter-City network from 12 midnight on Dec. 4. . . . After a showdown with his sponsor and Young & Rubicam agency, Ed Wynn has been granted permission to write his own script without interference. . . . Frank Healy, NBC press, temporarily transferred to conduct NBC-RCA contest.

Azinsky Goes to KDKA

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 23.—For the last nine years concert master of the Stanley orchestra and assistant concert master of the Pittsburgh Symphony, Harry Azinsky has quit to become the concert master of station KDKA's staff orchestra. Charlie Riley has been named to succeed him at the downtown house and Frank Apter, former concert master at the Penn, will take over Azinsky's violin duties in Dave Broudy's Stanley outfit.

Azinsky will join the KDKA staff Monday.

Seattle Bank in Broadcast

SEATTLE, Nov. 23. — The Seattle Trust and Savings Bank has joined the nationwide group of banking institutions sponsoring the weekly broadcasts of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra by CBS.

Cebert Baillargeon, president of the bank, is conducting a personal publicity campaign by mail and newspapers calling attention to the broadcasts, released locally by KOL.

Take Control of WIRE

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 23.—Control of WIRE will be taken over by Eugene Pulliam of Lebanon, Ind., and Central Newspapers, Inc., a chain of small city dailies, if an application filed with the F.C.C. is approved. At present the station is operated by Indianapolis Broadcasting Co. under the management of P. E. Kendrick.

RKO Plan Is Presented to Judge Bondy

outstanding in the amount of $750,000 and held by Bank of America National Ass'n will be paid off in cash which the plan proposes to raise by the sale of a sufficient amount of new common shares to provide $1,600,000 for this and other financing needs.

Unsecured general creditors, other than Rockefeller Center, are offered three-quarters of a share of $100 par preferred stock and one and one-half shares of common stock for each $100 of claims. The plan estimates that claims in this classification will not exceed $8,000,000 when finally determined.

Provision for Present Holders

Holders of common stock outstanding in the amount of 2,577,554¾ shares are offered one-half share of new common for each share of old.

The part-paid RKO certificates, which represent a subscription to a "package" of old debentures and common stock are entitled to receive such proportion of the new securities which subscribers would have been entitled to receive if their certificates had been fully paid as their payments made bear to their full subscriptions. Subscribers, hovewer, may complete the full payments required under the "package" agreement, provided they do so within 20 days after confirmation of the plan. As of Sept. 26 last, approximately $249,079 remained to be paid by subscribers to complete full payments on the debentures and stock included in the subscriptions.

The plan estimates that allowed claims affected by the plan will not aggregate more than $30,000,000 and states that the plan is not to be made operative in the event that claims, exclusive of the Rockefeller Center claim and others for contingent or indeterminate amounts, exceed $22,000,000. This is taken as evidence that the reorganizers estimate that the settlement of the $9,100,000 Rockefeller Center claim represents in amount approximately $6,000,000.

Center Claim Separated

The Rockefeller Center claim, based on breach of the 20-year RKO leases on the Music Hall and Center plus certain alleged damages involving the costs of construction of the two theatres, is treated apart from other unsecured creditors' claims. The settlement provides for a new 12-year agreement with Rockefeller Center on the Music Hall and Center and office space in the RKO Bldg. at reduced rentals and for the issuance to Rockefeller Center of 500,000 shares of new RKO common stock, no par value.

Office Rental Reduced

In return, the $9,150,000 claim is canceled and RKO again participates in the operation and profits of the two Radio City theatres. RKO is to have three representatives on a committee of seven which will have the operating direction of the theatres for the 12-year period. Rockefeller Center will name the other four. The rental rate for office space is $2 per square foot, representing a reduction from the original rate of $2.75 per sq. foot. RKO will receive a $25,000 annual fee for consultant and advisory services in connection with operation of the two theatres and will participate in the earnings under certain conditions.

Rockefeller Center is to receive the first $700,000 of surplus earnings of the Music Hall and three-quarters of the next $100,000, with RKO receiving the other quarter. The remaining surplus earnings are to be divided equally between the two. If surplus earnings of the Hall are less than $700,000 in any year, the deficiency is to be made up to Rockefeller Center out of any surplus earnings in excess of $60,000 of the Center Theatre for that year. The first $60,000 of annual surplus earnings of the Center go to the Rockefeller Company and the next $100,000 is divided three-quarters to Rockefeller Center and one-quarter to RKO. Any remainder is divided equally, and, in the event the initial $60,000 surplus is not realized, the defiency is to be made up out of any surplus in excess of $700,000 earned by the Music Hall. If the Center is operated on a picture or combination policy, however, RKO may take over the theatre in whole or in part, but if RKO does not do so earnings after the first $60,000 surplus are to be divided equally.

Stipulation on Surplus Earnings

An interesting clause in the agreement provides that RKO is to receive all surplus earnings of the two theatres in excess of $91,000 for the year 1937 in the event that the average market price of the new RKO common equals or exceeds $18.30 a share for any 10-day period between the time of the confirmation of the reorganization plan and Jan. 1, 1938.

RKO assumes no obligation in respect to the operating costs of the houses or their losses. The agreements may be terminated in the event of an RKO or RKO Radio Pictures bankruptcy or a receivership extending for more than 30 days, or in the event RKO earnings for three successive years are insufficient to pay the company's interest requirements on its outstanding obligations.

The plan was filed by Hamilton C. Rickaby of the firm of Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett, attorneys for Atlas Corp.

Atlas an RKO Board Factor

The new board of directors of RKO will consist of a minimum of nine members, who will be named later subject to the approval of the U. S. District Court here, the company's reorganization plan states. The first board will hold office for two years.

The Atlas Corp. looms as the dominating factor on the board. It will receive an estimated 75,000 shares of common stock in connection with the exchange provided for holders of old RKO debentures, probably a like amount in exchange for its holdings of old common, will receive a large block for its services as reorganization manager, will underwrite a $1,600,000 sale of additional new common and undoubtedly will receive an appreciable number of option warrants. In addition, Atlas, with Lehman Bros., holds an option to acquire the approximately $5,000,000 balance of RCA's holdings in RKO. Lehman participated with Atlas in the purchase of the first half of the RCA holdings and in consequence is also an important factor in the new RKO. RCA's interest will be a vital one until and if the option on its holdings is exercised.

Rockefeller Center, which receives 500,000 shares of the new common in the settlement of its RKO claim, will also be a factor on the board for the time being. Indications are, however, that this company's holdings will be liquidated at the first favorable market opportunity.

Delay Hearing to Dec. 22

Hearing on the RKO trustee's motion to pay off an outstanding $725,000 of the company's secured gold notes, held by Bank of America National Ass'n, was postponed by Federal Judge William Bondy yesterday to Dec. 23 on the petition of Atlas Corp. The company's reorganization plan provides for the payment of the notes out of new capital to be raised by the sale of RKO stock, rather than out of cash on hand, as proposed by the trustees.

Judge Bondy also granted leave to an independent unsecured RKO creditors' committee, representing about $1,500,000 in claims, to intervene in the reorganization proceedings. The committee is represented by Carlos Israels of the law firm of White & Case.

Plan No Theatre Leases

No issues are to be made by RKO on the Music Hall and Center under the company's reorganization plan. RKO's participation in the operation and earnings of the theatres is to be based upon a 12-year agreement which relieves RKO of all liability for operating costs and possible losses.

Almost Four Years

It is four years, less two months and a couple of days, since RKO consented to a receivership in equity in the Federal Court for the Southern District of New York.

The company's application was filed on Jan. 27, 1933, but was preceded by three steps leading to the major move. On Jan. 23 of that year, Alfred West, presumably acting on his own, but subsequently established to be an employe of Bancamerica-Blair Corp. by Motion Picture Daily, filed for a receivership in the Federal Court for the Southern District. The following day, stockholders sought similar action in Baltimore and in Newark. Three days later, the parent company filed its voluntary petition.

At no time, were subsidiary corporations, such as RKO Radio Pictures, RKO Export, RKO Distributing and RKO Studios affected.

Following the passage of Section 77B as an amendment to the Federal bankruptcy law the receivership was changed to a trusteeship to permit reorganization under the terms of the amendment.

Consolidated net earnings of RKO for the first 39 weeks of this year, ending Sept. 26, last, were $1,446,922, it is stated in the company's plan of reorganization.

The figure is after payment of interest on the secured notes and old debentures and after normal taxes, but without provision for possible surplus tax on undistributed profits. Net earnings of RKO for the entire year of 1935, after interest on the old debentures, was $684,732.

Depinet is president of this subsidiary and indications are he will become a vice-president of the parent company under the new arrangement. All of the RKO Pathe subsidiaries, acquired in the 1931 purchase by RKO of Pathe assets for approximately $5,000,000, are also slated to go out of existence through the merger route. These companies include RKO Pathe Pictures, Inc., RKO Pathe Distributing Corp., RKO Pathe Export Corp., and RKO Pathe Studios Corp., Ltd. Also to be merged are RKO Studios, Inc., and RKO Export Corp.

Although the plan does not propose the formation of a new parent company it makes provision for such an eventuality should it be decided later to organize a new company. It states that "the Debtor (RKO) may be merged in or consolidated with a new company to be organized under the laws of Delaware." It is assumed, however, that should such a new company be organized the RKO name would be retained.

Bids Total $21,235 For Empire Assets

Assets of Empire Laboratories, sold by auction in West New York, N. J., brought a total of $21,235.05. The sale, by lots, followed the refusal by the sellers of an $11,000 bid for the entire offering in bulk at the opening of the sale.

175 Theatres

RKO theatre expansion reached its peak in 1930 when 175 theatres were controlled and operated directly by its subsidiaries, the company's reorganization plan sets forth. At present its theatre interests have been reduced to approximately 100 houses.

RKO to Have Cash on Hand Of 7 Million

RKO will have estimated cash on hand of $7,358,276 on the consummation of its reorganization, a pro forma consolidated balance sheet based on financial statements as of Sept. 26, last, giving effect to the plan, sets forth. Cash on Sept. 26 amounted to $6,558,276.

The increase of $800,000 indicated is from the sale of a sufficient amount of new RKO common stock to provide $1,600,000 cash, $800,000 of which is to be used to retire the outstanding secured gold notes of the company, according to the provisions of the plan. The cash increase will give the reorganized company total assets of $66,852,329. Current and working assets are listed at $16,630,982, including picture inventories, less amortization of films released, amounting to $7,920,222. Capital assets, including land, buildings and leaseholds are carried at $44,129,781. Investments in affiliated and other companies are listed at $4,014,050.

Sinking Fund Planned

Current liabilities are listed at $4,243,151. There will be outstanding $12,718,500 of 5½ per cent sinking fund convertible debentures of an $18,000,000 authorized issue. With the retirement of the RKO gold notes which are secured by all of the working assets of the company including the studio, RKO would again regain this property. The new debentures are not a secured issue but provision is to be made for a sinking fund for their gradual retirement by applying annually 10 per cent of the net earnings after payment of interest on the debentures. They will mature 10 years after the first of the month following the confirmation of the plan. They are to be redeemable at any time at principal amount and accrued interest plus a premium scaled from five per cent in the first five years to one per cent thereafter. They are convertible at any time into five shares of new common.

Mergers Provided For

Provision is made in the plan for the exchange of the new RKO securities for the securities of any company with which RKO might be "merged or consolidated" at some future date. The reference is reminiscent of reports current at the time Atlas Corp. and Lehman Bros. first acquired their RKO holdings from RCA that the two financial companies planned an eventual merger of RKO and Paramount. They are both heavily interested in the latter company, as well. The reports have been denied a number of times by officials of both financial companies in hearings before the Securities Exchange Commission.

The new preferred stock is convertible into three and one-third shares of new common and, likewise, is callable at any time at $100 plus accrued unpaid dividends.

Of the authorized 4,000,000 shares of new common, 2,163,148 shares will be issued to creditors. Of this amount holders of old RKO stock will receive 1,288,778; 500,000 shares will go to Rockefeller Center, 254,370 shares to holders of old debentures, and 120,000 shares to holders of general claims. A sufficient number of shares to raise $1,600,000 will be underwritten by Atlas Corp., which will also accept common stock in payment for its reorganization services, which included the drafting of the plan. While the common is carried on the pro forma books at $1 per share its market value is unknown at this time and will, of course, be determined only by the company's earnings after reorganization. An indication of the present value placed upon the new shares by the reorganizers is given in a statement in the plan which provides for the issuance of option warrants to executives and employes of RKO to purchase the stock at $10 per share even prior to consummation of the plan. The option price, ordinarily, is figured at less than the anticipated market price.

One share of the new common will be issued for two shares of the old common, which closed at $9 on the N. Y. Stock Exchange yesterday, a loss of three-quarters of a point. The old RKO debentures closed at 102½, a gain of one and one-half.

Out Hollywood Way

"Lloyds of London"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 23.—From out of a boyhood vow, Twentieth Century-Fox has built a stirring story of two of England's greatest institutions, the renowned insurance firm, Lloyds of London, and the British navy. There is quality entertainment in every segment that presages wide, popular appeal and unusual commercial draw. It is a romantic drama of human beings and the forces that preserved the integrity of British financial and naval power.

As it concentrates on depicting events and incidents that established Lloyds as a great world force and adjunct, just as important as the army or navy in extending the British domains, it also tells an emotion-stirring and romantic drama of a man and woman whose lives were wrapped up in the thrilling chain of history-making episodes.

In the beginning, Freddie Bartholomew and Douglas Scott make a pact to always stand together. Years later, after his apprenticeship to Sir Guy Standing, the creator of Lloyds, the boy, now Tyrone Power, is an important factor in the company and John Burton, Douglas grown up, is the famous Lord Nelson. Power's great contribution to the institution is a quick, new semaphore transmitting system. As he becomes head of his own syndicate, Power falls in love with Madeleine Carroll, the wife of George Sanders, a wastrel nobleman. With the dramatic and romantic conflict involving this trio rivaling that of historical incident, Lloyds suffers its first great blow as the French Fleet sinks scores of English merchant vessels, insured by the company.

With the organization driven to panic, bankruptcy demands that the Admiralty split Nelson's fleet to provide merchant ship convoys or increase the insurance rates. Holding out for the old basis and still sticking to their childhood pact of helping the other, Power insists that the old rates be maintained and to allay national fear, spreads the false report that Nelson has defeated the French navy. Sanders, to revenge himself on the man who has won his wife's affection, demands that Standing reveal the ruse. But in the darkest hour for both Lloyds and British naval might, Nelson is victorious at Trafalgar to insure the freedom of the seas for English commerce. Power's next meeting with Burton is when the funeral procession bearing the sea hero's bier passes below his window.

As the romance of history and business is treated with warmth and intelligence, the personal romance-drama is a human interest story of absorbing quality. It serves to give Power an auspicious opportunity to click in his first feature role. Likewise do Miss Carroll, Standing, Sanders, Virginia Field and C. Aubrey Smith contribute potent support. The large supporting cast is of a high calibre, functioning in atmospheric and character parts.

Based on a story by Curtis Kenyon with the screen play by Ernest Pascal and Walter Ferris, "Lloyds of London" is quality merchandise that should meet with no difficulty in engaging the attention of class and mass audiences. A big picture that will thrill big theatre operators, it is also one that has every chance of doing superior business all the way down the line. In handling the story content, the talents of the cast and the production values, Henry King's direction is pointed to blend the human-interest drama and romance of men and women and institutions in a believable, understandable way. William Darling's skillful, dramatic photography and Louis Silver's musical direction are responsible in no little way for the film's power.

Artists which he intends attending on the coast.

Some of the attractions on the current program are "Knight Without Armor," with Marlene Dietrich and Robert Donat and "I, Claudius," with Charles Laughton and Merle Oberon with Joseph von Sternberg directing. "Lawrence of Arabia" in Technicolor will be the big picture on the season's lineup. Zolton Korda, brother of Alexander, will direct.

London's schedule this season has been held up, Pallos said, because the new Denham studio will not be fully completed before next March. Erich Pommer will produce two; Victor Saville, three; and M. Pressburger, two, as associate producers. Walter Reich, director, has just completed "Men Are Not Gods," and will go to Hollywood, after which London hopes to sign him again.

On the same boat were Roland Young, Cedric Hardwicke, Herbert Marshall, Frank Lawton, Martin Beck and Johnny Weismuller.

Young said he had just completed a role in "King Solomon's Mines" for G.B. He will leave for the coast today to report at the Warner studio for "Call It a Day," which Archie Mayo will direct. He also appeared in "Gypsy" for Warners in England. Later Young will return to New York where he will appear in a show for Max Gordon.

Marshall Finishing Vacation

Hardwicke, who also appeared in "King Solomon's Mines," is here to appear in "Promise," stage play which Gilbert Miller will produce. He has no picture commitments. Marshall said his four-week trip to London was a vacation and that he expected to confer with Samuel J. Briskin here before returning to the RKO studio where he has a three-year contract. He is also under contract with Columbia for two years.

Lawton is here for a role in "Promise," following which he will go to the coast. Evalyn Laye, his wife, is due next week on the Queen Mary. She may do a play here.

Beck stated he saw six plays in three days in London. He also spent three days in Paris and will produce one of the six plays he saw there with Gutherie McClintic on Broadway.

Weismuller spent his six weeks' vacation visiting his wife, Lupe Velez, who is making a picture in England. He plans to leave today for the M-G-M studios where he has a two-year pact.

Ask "Scarface" Permit

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—Attempts to secure a permit for "Scarface," the Howard Hughes picture which was never allowed to be exhibited in Chicago, will be made shortly, it is learned. The film has been exhibited in outlying towns the past few months through the Ben Judell exchange.

Del Ruth Busy

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 23.—Roy Del Ruth, with the cutting of "Born to Dance" virtually a matter of hours behind him, immediately stepped into direction of "On the Avenue," Irving Berlin story, at 20th Century-Fox. Dick Powell and Madeline Carroll are co-featured.

Ostrers Intend to Retain G.B. Control, Says Isidore

stock also was emphatically denied by Ostrer.

Asked whether his trip to Palm Springs in the next few days was for the purpose of conferring with Schenck and Kent on a possible sale of the Ostrer "A" holdings to Twentieth Century-Fox, which for some years has had the remaining 4,900, Ostrer said this was not the case.

"The trip really is for the purpose of getting the complete views of Schenck and Kent, purely a vis-a-vis on the Twentieth Century-Fox association with G. B.

"I'm satisfied Twentieth Century-Fox is going to hold its stock in our company and that it has no intention whatsoever of selling," he declared.

"Are you going to Palm Springs to ask Kent to either approve the sale of your 'A' shares to Maxwell, or sell your interest to Twentieth Century-Fox?"

Silent on Deal Status

"I wouldn't dream of asking Mr. Schenck or Mr. Kent to do anything of the kind!"

"What is the status of the deal made with Twentieth Century-Fox and M-G-M before you left for London?"

"I cannot answer that question until I return from my talks with Messrs. Schenck and Kent."

"The story has been credited that the Twentieth Century-Fox and M-G-M deal will be modified. Is this true?"

"Our position is so complicated, I cannot answer this truthfully."

"Is it complicated because of Maxwell?"

"No, generally."

"Was it that way before the Maxwell purchase of the 'B' stock."

"Yes."

"Isn't your trip to the coast to sell Twentieth Century-Fox your 'A' holdings in M. & B.?"

"Not necessarily. I personally have a great belief in close cooperation with Mr. Schenck. Cooperation is of great value to everybody. I am going to see Mr. Schenck in an effort to work out our problem."

Seeks "Cooperation"

"Is the sale of the 240,000 'B' shares in M. & B. any indication of a merger with Associated British Pictures?"

"There will be no merger."

Ostrer said he had not heard that Michael Balcon, G. B. production head, was dickering with M-G-M to become top man in the English production unit planned by the latter company. He added Balcon's contract has another year to run.

G. B. has not given thought to establishing its own exchange system here, he said in answer to a question, and it is unlikely that the G. B. and B. I. P. exchanges in England will be combined. The Ostrers hold about 300,000 shares in A. B. P., Maxwell's company. This was part of the deal whereby the Ostrers disposed of the 240,000 "B" shares in M. & B., Ostrer explained.

"Is it likely that Twentieth Century-Fox and M-G-M, or either company, may take over G. B.'s exchanges, or theatres in Great Britain.

"No."

"Will you confer with Nicholas M. Schenck while you are here?"

"I don't know. At present I have no such plans."

"Is it possible Maxwell will buy your 'A' shares, despite the fact you say he has no option?"

"It is most unlikely Maxwell will ever control G. B. I can't conceive of him getting control of the company. We will not sell our stock to anyone."

"What particularly do you intend to bring up with Schenck and Kent? Isn't it a fact you are going to discuss the previous deal with the possibility of modifying it?"

"As far as I'm concerned we are always interested in anything that is commercially sensible and sound. Anything can happen. Nothing is impossible."

"Why did G. B. pass the dividend recently?"

"We have not taken in any revenue from the American market. This is responsible for passing the dividend."

"When is the next board of directors meeting at which the dividend will come up?"

"Next September or October."

International Viewpoint Maintained

There is no intention of discontinuing the international perspective in G. B. pictures, Ostrer replied in answer to reports that such a plan was discussed at the recent stockholders' meeting in London.

When Ostrer and his wife leave for Palm Springs in two days, Blumenthal will accompany them. Ostrer was asked about Blumenthal's commission. He passed it off with a smile.

Blumenthal would not answer questions about the Twentieth Century-Fox and M-G-M deal, giving as his reason the fact that he was "blamed" for certain stories leaking out during the negotiations.

While not officially expressing his opinion, he is understood to have told some of the trans-Atlantic passengers that the original deal will go through, possibly with changes.

Schenck Expected to Buy

From reliable sources at M-G-M, it was learned that Schenck will go through with the transaction to purchase half of the Twentieth Century-Fox interest in M. & B. This is scheduled to take place this week as top executives are understood to figure the stock deal a good buy.

This angle, however, does not bear on the conferences Ostrer will have with Joseph M. Schenck and Kent. The deal is between Twentieth Century-Fox and M-G-M. While no appointment has been set, it is likely that Ostrer will convene with Nicholas M. Schenck on his return from the coast. Ostrer does not plan to be away more than a fortnight.

G. B., which last week took over the American distribution of "Weekend Millionaire," has closed for a second B. I. P. picture. It will be announced in a few days. Arthur Lee yesterday stated that these pictures will not increase the announced schedule of 24; that they are replacing a group of other English pictures contracted for and not delivered.

Collected $5,000,000 Here

While Isidore Ostrer yesterday declared G. B. had passed its dividend because "we have not taken in any revenue from the American market," Mark Ostrer declared at stockholders' meeting in London on Nov. 2 that G. B. had grossed $5,000,000 in the domestic field.

If Isidore Ostrer's statement of yesterday that G. B. had no intention of discontinuing the international slant in future product is construable as a conclusive statement, it indicates that a definite decision on this point must have been reached following the same meeting. Mark Ostrer then had stated it was impossible to recover from the home market alone the full cost of quality product.

"We are, therefore, faced with the choice of abandoning our efforts in the American market in favor of a program of cheaper films for the home market only, or abandoning film production altogether," he had stated. "Either of the two latter alternatives would greatly assist our financial position but, on the other hand, it would mean giving up a great potential source of income. It would, at the same time, however, make dividends assured. This problem is now receiving the careful consideration of your directors."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Bold Caballero"

(Republic)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 23.—The legendary Zorro character, returned to the screen through the medium of Magnacolor, is Republic's first venture in the color field. The film is an average western drama-romance drawn against a historical background. The obvious intention of the producers was to counterbalance the worth or color and thrill action, but it seems that both have been sacrificed needlessly.

In the story, Robert Livingston, playing the dual role of bandit and Zorro, friend of the populace, falls in love with Heather Angel when she assumes the duties of her father, the Governor, who has been slain. The theme of the story has Livingtson seeking to deliver the peons from the yoke of oppressive taxes imposed by the land-grabbing white invaders. Marked by the usual routine mechanics common to the typical thrill-action western, with the characteristic display of great personal valor, Indians, in the usual excitement-provoking way, rescue Livingston from death and Miss Angel from a loveless marriage.

Livingston, Miss Angel, Sig Rumann, Ian Wolfe and Robert Warwick contribute respectable performances despite the handicaps of faulty story construction and the shortcomings of the plot. Wells Root authored the story and directed the film.

"Hats Off"

(Boris Petroff—Grand National)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 23.—This first musical offering from Grand National does not come up to expectations. Sincere effort has been put into the production, acting and direction, but a weak story keeps the picture down to the average entertainment classification.

The plot concerns the efforts of Mae Clarke and John Payne, press agents for rival communities, to obtain the services of Luis Alberni for their respective clients. Alberni is sought to produce an exposition for the cities. In the course of events, Miss Clarke and Payne fall in love, are separated and come together again for the finish.

The story also allows the introduction of specialties by the three Radio Rogues, Val and Ernie Stanton, Jimmy Hollywood and others, none of which, however, is strong enough to make the film a top attraction. Boris Petroff directed the script which was written by Sam Fuller and Edmund Joseph. Four musical numbers have been contributed by Ben Oakland and Herb Magidson.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 68 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Come Closer, Folks"

(Columbia)

Lively, entertaining fare of the unpretentious, double bill type, this should fill a spot on the dual program. Telling a yarn of the pitchmen, those lads who sell anything for nothing on the streets, it is featured by a fast-stepping performance by James Dunn, as the best of them. When he meets the girl, Marion Marsh, he decides to go straight, via the operation of a small city department store, almost hits a snag, but gets by to a happy fadeout.

There is an entertaining spark of comedy running through the yarn, and some possibilities for exploitation tieups locally in that the story has much to do with department store operation.

When things get tough in the big town, Dunn hits the smaller jumps with Wynne Gibson as his partner. When he meets Miss Marsh, operator of a large department store, he joins up, with the original intention of selling her out, but when romance dawns, he straightens out, and although Miss Gibson tries to ruin him with Miss Marsh, it all comes out when Dunn stages a play that beats the serious competition in the town.

Production Code Seal No. 2,536. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

May Not Start The New RKO Until March 1

Finish of Court Action Not Expected Earlier

Court approval for the RKO reorganization plan does not appear to be probable for earlier than March 1, according to present indications.

The first creditors' hearing on the plan will not be held until Dec. 23 and indications are that an adjournment until after the holidays may be asked at that time. With indications that opposition to the plan will be registered from several creditor quarters when the hearings finally get under way, if not sooner, the issues raised may not be resolved finally for a month to six weeks thereafter. Following these hearings the court would take the plan under advisement with but slight probability of a modifying order or confirming decision being handed down for another several weeks. The company is almost certain to be free of court supervision by

RKO Debentures Up 12½, Close at 115

RKO debentures gained 12½ points yesterday to close at 115 on the N. Y. Stock Exchange. RKO common stock sold off another three-quarters of a point to close at 8¼, for an aggregate loss of two points in as many days.

The movements of the company's securities are viewed as a process of "evening up" values in the light of the proposed reorganization plan for RKO and furnish an indication of the market value that Wall St. traders place now on the new common stock which would be issued under the plan. It is proposed to exchange one share of new RKO common for two of the old, which would indicate a speculative value of approximately $16 per share for the new common, according to present market estimates. The plan provides for the exchange of the same face amount of new debentures for the old debentures, plus two shares of new common stock in exchange for unpaid interest coupons.

His First Contract

Stockholders of Loew's will approve a five-year employment contract for Nicholas M. Schenck, the first he has ever had, at the annual meeting to be held at the home office on Dec. 8. In addition, action will be taken at this meeting on the transfer to Schenck of the unexpired five-year option held by the late Irving G. The employment pact provides for the same compensation and percentage of the profits now being enjoyed by Schenck. The contract will begin Jan. 1, next. No other agreements will be considered at the session.

Schenck, David Bernstein, J. Robert Rubin, Charles C. Moskowitz, Leopold Friedman, Isidor Frey, David Warfield, William A. Phillips, George N. Armsby, William A. Parker, John R. Ostrer Denial Of G. B. Shift Dazes London

Persons Near Maxwell Call It "Hot Air"

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Isidore Ostrer's statement, upon his arrival in New York on Monday, that John Maxwell does not hold an option on the 5,100 shares of "A," or voting, stock in Metropolis and Bradford Trust, which controls G. B., alternately startled and amazed London today.

Maxwell was inaccessible in the face of a widespread newspaper request for official comment. While he continued to be reticent, those close to him and to the entire situation were not.

A source regarded as an official spokesman for the B. I. P. executive, in no uncertain terms described Ostrer's statement as "hot air" and added that Maxwell, not only had purchased 240,000 of the outstanding "B" stock in G. B., but the 5,100 shares of voting "A" which Ostrer declared are still in possession of himself and his brothers.

"Maxwell has a five-year option on the transfer of the "A" shares, giving the Ostrers that extended period of time to make their own settlement with Twentieth Century-Fox," this source declared.

It was pointed out on the most reliable of authority that, after all, Twentieth Century-Fox cannot make

20th-Fox Lease for "Lloyds" 7½ Weeks

Twentieth Century-Fox has leased the Astor from Loew's for seven and a half weeks for the two-a-day run of "Lloyds of London," which opens there tonight. The deal expires Jan. 17.

John D. Clark has closed a three-picture deal with Howard Cullman for the Roxy. The first picture to be booked will be "Stowaway," which will open either Dec. 17 or Dec. 24, depending on when the print arrives from the coast. Shirley Temple, who is ill with a cold, is scheduled to make

Coward and Miss Lawrence Brilliant in Clever Plays

"Tonight at Eight-Thirty" actually began its evening 25 minutes past its name at the National last night. But no matter. What the smart playgoer in New York had been awaiting impatiently finally arrived, late, yet very welcome to lift a palsied season out of its jitters, its shivers and uncertainties.

For, in case you don't know, "Tonight at Eight-Thirty" is a general designation for a cycle of nine one-act plays written by Noel Coward, of which the first three had their say last evening. They had a great deal to say. Not all of it was important, since not all of it was supposed to be. But they had much to say that was witty and smart, scintillating and clever, dramatic and heart-wrenching. There you have a floodtide of adjectives to embrace the works of one playwright in one evening. However, Coward ran the scale from frothy nothingness in "Hands Across the

General Film Sells Long Franchise Here

Mack D. Weinberger, general sales manager of General Pictures, yesterday sold a five-year franchise for the Greater New York territory to Melvin Hirsch, who operates Syndicate Exchanges, but will handle this product independently of his other interests. Although a number of franchises will be sold, General yesterday maintained its plan to establish a number of its own exchanges will go through.

Fenn Kimball, president of the company, who figured in on the deal, left for Chicago yesterday. From there, he will proceed to Hollywood.

Meehan In Hospital

M. J. Meehan, broker, and majority preferred stockholder in Keith-Albee-Orpheum, was reported yesterday confined to a hospital in White Plains. "Romeo" Three Days Tops Full Week of "Ziegfeld"

Box-office news of the last week uncovers outstanding results in the "Romeo and Juliet" roadshows, with several towns giving the Norma Shearer vehicle more business in three days than "The Great Ziegfeld," M-G-M's previous roadshow, received in a full week, the home office announced Saturday.

At the College Theater, New Haven, "Romeo and Juliet" in three days topped the previously successful full week engagement of "Ziegfeld" by $400. In Columbus, at the Broad Theater, "Romeo" in a three-day engagement likewise topped the full week business of "Ziegfeld's" road-showing. At York, Pa., "Romeo" did a third more business at the Strand than was done by "Ziegfeld."

General Mills Radio Plan Up to Studios

of the Hays organization's new radio committee to approve the flour company's proposal for exclusive Hollywood rights to such broadcasts.

The Producers' Ass'n today notified Bagley, Horton & Hoyt, Chicago advertising agency in charge of the negotiations for General Mills, that it is free to continue attempts to work out deals with individual studios even though its blanket proposal for exclusive rights was not approved by the major studio organization's radio committee. Indications are that further negotiations on behalf of the flour company will be conducted by Paul Harrison, NEA correspondent here, who was scheduled to have charge of the broadcasts.

E. J. Mannix is one of the members of the studios' new radio committee, the complete personnel of which the Producers' Ass'n has refused to disclose.

KJBS Studio to Move

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 24.—KJBS, owned by Julius Brunton, pioneer silent film producer, will move in January to bigger studios at 1454 Pine St., where he has leased an entire building. Extensive alterations will be made.

The present studio is at Bush, near Polk, not far from KFRC. Ralph Brunton is general manager for his father. Shell Chateau to Originate From New York After Jan. 2

Confirming information contained in this department some weeks ago, the Shell Chateau program, currently heard from Hollywood, will move Radio City-ward on Jan. 2 for an indefinite stay. The last Hollywood broadcast will be heard on Saturday, Dec. 26.

Edward Everett Horton, Smith Ballew, and Victor Young's orchestra, mainstays on the program for the past few months, will be dropped immediately after the last coast broadcast to make room for a new unit, headed by Joe Cook.

The loss of Horton to radio is regrettable, in the opinion of most observers for the wide-eyed, nimble-witted comedian had proved as effective on the air as he usually is in pictures. There appears to be little doubt, however, that Horton will be able to write his own ticket any time he elects to return to the air.

As long as six weeks ago, it became evident that the Shell program would be recalled to its eastern base for a considerable overhauling, for with the exception of Horton's work, the program is viewed as having slumped badly. It was then that MOTION PICTURE DAILY reported that the program would be transferred back to New York, only to have the story denied by J. Walter Thompson, the agency handling the show.

The revised program, with Cook at the helm, will be broadcast at the same time and over the same network as the present show—Saturdays at 9:30 P.M., E.S.T., over the NBC-Red.

Elsewhere has been told what the film personalities are thankful for on Thanksgiving. Now it's this department's turn to reveal what the radio stars are thankful for:

PORTLAND HOFFA—Fred Allen.
KATE SMITH—The moon.
PHIL BAKER—The spirit in Bottle, according to Crosley.
BOB BURNS—Bazooka, the horn of plenty.

SHEP FIELDS—The deep money derived from still water.

RIPLEY—A sponsor, believe it or not.

JACK PEARL—Cigarettes.

Ostrer Denial Of G. B. Shift Dazes London

a move of any description until the Ostrer stock actually is transferred. This, of course, has not taken place.

Maxwell is understood to have checked Isidore's statement with Mark Ostrer who is declared to have stated he could not believe his brother would have made the statement attributed to him. Furthermore, Maxwell, it was learned today, views Isidore's comment as damaging to him and to his interests and is reported pondering his future course in the light of the shipboard interview from New York.

Creditable sources today interpreted Ostrer's mission to America as one designed to personally outline to Joseph M. Schenck and Sidney R. Kent G. B.'s financial position. Financial circles here incline toward the opinion that the consolidated balance sheet will reveal heavy losses, due largely to high negative costs. A depressing effect on Gaumont securities is not unexpected, therefore. Whether this will have any bearing on the attitude of Twentieth Century-Fox toward its 49 per cent interest in M. and B. is, of course, purely conjecture.

Beaverbrook Seems Involved

Another angle concerns Lord Beaverbrook. Despite the newspaper publisher's statement, made by his secretary in New York last Friday, that Beaverbrook's interest in the film industry was receding, the report was revived today that he had made a recent offer to Kent to buy 20th-Fox's interest. He, furthermore, is said to have been slated to act as a friendly intermediary between Isidore and Joseph M. Schenck in the American negotiations. Any such plan, however, has been abandoned with his return to London. He is aboard the Bremen, now Europe-bound.

Maurice Ostrer is sailing for New York on the Queen Mary Wednesday, but, as in the instance of Isidore's departure, no statement as to purpose is being advanced by G. B. The assumption appears obvious, however, that he will participate in whatever discussions his brother may hold with Schenck and Kent. It was Maurice who is popularly believed to have raised objections after the initial negotiations had been made by Isidore with 20th-Fox and Loew's.

Maxwell Solution Sought

If the purpose of Isidore's visit to the states were to be summed up briefly, authoritative opinion here leans strongly toward the impression that it is designed to have the Ostrers straighten out with their partners, 20th-Fox, difficulties besetting consummation of the "A" stock deal with Maxwell.

In other words, those who subscribe to this theory maintain that it is not Maxwell's task to bring about an accord with 20th-Fox, but the Ostrers'. In the meantime and without official reaction, the impression is very firm here that Maxwell actually does hold an option on the disputed 5,100 shares and that, finally, he will acquire the possession of it and thus control of G. B., a situation never doubted here until Ostrer arrived in New York and issued statements for publication.

Calls London Slant "Rubbish"

Advised of the London cable yesterday over the telephone, Isidore Ostrer, president of G. B., said he was not interested, and that "the statements by supposedly close friends of John Maxwell are rubbish."

"Wait until Mr. Maxwell makes a statement," he said. "If he made the statement that he had a five-year option on the 5,100 'A' shares of M. & B., there would be some point to it.

"I am not interested, because it is nonsense," he added. "I know the facts as they are."

He plans to leave for Palm Springs tonight.

treasurer. The elections are for a one-year term.

Bernstein and Rubin are the only two officers now holding long term contracts. They were voted by the stockholders in 1932.

Action for the purchase by Loew's of half of the 49 per cent interest Twentieth Century-Fox held in Metropolis & Bradford Trust, holding company of G.B. has been deferred until S. R. Kent returns from the coast studios.

Particular object of the Federation's attentions will be Fascist propaganda films, especially pictures of Mussolini and Hitler.

some time in March, it is believed, however.

The dominating creditor groups, significantly, have already given their tentative approval to the plan as it now stands and, under the provisions of Section 77-B of the Bankruptcy Act, which govern the RKO reorganization, the approval of the majority claimants of the debtor company, must be fully recognized by the court. The groups in tentative agreement on the plan as it now stands include the major RKO debenture and stockholders' committees, in both of which the Atlas Corp.-RCA-Lehman Bros. interests are dominant factors. In addition, Rockefeller Center has approved the plan with certain contingent provisions and, although its claim is treated separately in the plan, it is the largest unsecured creditor of RKO. It is also known that other important unsecured creditors have given tentative approval to the plan.

Opposition Likely

Opposition to the plan can come only from minority interests if the present situation remains unchanged. The probable sources of opposition are the independent stockholders' committee, a committee of preferred stockholders of Orpheum Circuit for whom the plan makes no provision, and one or two independent committees of general creditors, including the one which represents the claims of the Karl Hobitzelle interests and the U. S. National Bank of Denver, and holding in all about $1,500,000 of claims.

An attack on the treatment accorded holders of old RKO debentures, to whom the plan offers a new debenture of the same face amount and two shares of new common stock for accrued unpaid interest of $24.57, is expected to be made by the independent stockholders and other opposition forces. The contention will be, it appears, that if the RKO secured gold notes outstanding in the amount of $725,000 are paid off by the RKO trustee in advance of the reorganization, the old debentures would be deprived of their secured position and in consequence would not be entitled to the favorable treatment accorded them by the plan. It would be urged also that RKO stockholders, to whom the plan offers one share of new common for two of old, would then be entitled to better treatment than that now accorded them.

The opposition would also urge that reorganized RKO would be benefited by an elimination of the secured position of the old debentures as no issue of new debentures would be required, as a result, and the company would be relieved for the future of the obligation of meeting fixed interest requirements. The question of whether or not the old debentures would be deprived of their secured position by an immediate retirement of the outstanding gold notes appears to have but little legal foundation, however. Nevertheless, the issue, if raised at the hearings on the plan, would have to be decided and could have, at the least, the effect of delaying court confirmation of the plan until the question was out of the way.

A motion by the RKO trustee to pay off the gold notes has already been made to the court and a hearing set for Dec. 23, jointly with the creditors' hearing on the plan.

The opposition from the preferred stockholders of Orpheum Circuit, if it materializes, would be led by Isidor J. Kresel, recently retained as attorney for the committee.

Toronto Board Files Copyright Objection

TORONTO, Nov. 24.—The Toronto Board of Control, municipal licensing organization, has filed a blanket protest against the new schedule of music taxes for public amusement places for 1937, which were adopted recently by the Canadian Performing Rights Society, an Ascap affiliate, and Canadian theatre operators.

No exhibitor organization or individual theatre operator has protested the new rates yet, although appeals from the schedule will be received by the new Dominion music rate commission up to Dec. 1. The only other protest made to the commission so far is that of the Civic Railway Commission of London, Ont., which operates several public amusement enterprises. The commission itself posted the schedule agreed upon by the music licensing organization and the exhibitors, but will pass upon the fairness of the rates in the light of any appeals received within the time specified.

E. C. Mills, general manager of Ascap, who returned the first of the week from a trip to the coast, said yesterday that no exhibitor protests against the new Canadian music tax rates had been brought to the attention of his organization yet. Mills said he had never heard of the Toronto Board of Control and could cast no light on its interest in the schedule.

Overseas Previews

"Strangers on Honeymoon"

(Gaumont-British)

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The British film invasion of the States goes a stage further in this comedy from Shepherd's Bush. Using a mixed British-American cast, it presents these players against backgrounds representing not the British, but the American scene. It appears to be the first instance of British enterprise in a field frequently and successfully exploited in Hollywood presentations of "British" backgrounds.

On this side it appears quite a considerable success in the lighter vein. There is a very amusing story basis in Edgar Wallace's "The Northing Tramp," the essence of which is that a girl, Constance Cummings, disgusted by a drunken groom, marries instead an equally drunken tramp, Hugh Sinclair, who turns out to be a real English lord making for Canada with thugs after him, instructed by his murderous woman-cousin. There is a little matter of a torn plan of an oil-field as basis for the "thriller" element, but it matters much less than the incidental humors of the journey of the strange newlyweds over the Canadian border.

There is a delicious piece of comedy from Anne Tucker McGuire and James Arnold as two millionaire honeymooners who are simply tickled to death to be robbed by a lord.

It looks like good entertainment for all classes.

Running time, 69 minutes. "G."

"This'll Make You Whistle"

(Wilcox-British)

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Currently a stage attraction at the Palace, this Jack Buchanan musical comedy melange is a very effective mixture of ingredients, well tried it may be, but certainly handled with more deftness, speed and understanding of audience needs than this sort of material always receives.

The comedy heavily outweighs the music and this is all to the good, as the situations presented are definitely humorous. There is no particular need to detail them, for in essence they are traditional. What they prove is that there are still laughs to be obtained from a couple of comedians dressing themselves as girls, disguising themselves as bearded policemen and joining in a very absurd and very laugh-provoking search for themselves. Laughs also in the old expedient of a puritanical elder who, when he does cut loose with the women and the wine, does so with the vim accumulated through years of virtuous restraint. A very well-danced rhumba. Plenty of girls. Dances from Buchanan and Elsie Randolph.

In short, a first class British film romp. There are plenty on your side who will enjoy it.

Running time, 78 minutes. "A." ALLAN

Union Cinemas Net Up

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Union Cinema Co., Ltd., in the year ended March 31 last, made a net profit of £45,731 against £30,245 in the previous year. A final dividend of 15 per cent on the ordinary shares makes the distribution for the year 22 per cent. Also received by shareholders is a bonus of £1 ordinary share for every 20 held. Recently announced was an amalgamation plan between Union and the associated companies National Provincial Cinemas, Ltd., and Oxford and Berkshire Cinemas, Ltd.

Short Subjects

"You Can't Get Away With It"

(Universal)

This is a special 25-minute short subject produced tellingly by Charles Ford, editor of the Universal Newsreel, picking out and highlighting much of the inner workings of the Bureau of Federal Investigation in Washington. More popularly, this is that arm of the Dep't of Justice known to the public as the home of the G-men.

With a foreword by J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the bureau, the film takes the spectator through the routine and shows the various steps and equipment used in setting the Federal men on the trail of dangerous public enemies. Student G-men are shown perfecting their shooting aim, while cut in are newsreel sequences of former and famous raids on criminals-at-large who were run to earth and justice, and sometimes death, by these relentless pursuers of law violators.

Well done and always interesting, "You Can't Get Away With It" emerges as an engrossing short and seems worth screen time in any exhibitor's theatre. "G."

"Fibbing Fibbers"

(Columbia)

With labored humorous sequences and routine comedy dialogue, this short, featuring Walter Catlett, is mild entertainment. Situations arise due to Catlett's absent-mindedness and he must lie to clear himself. This works against him and his difficulties seem righted again only to have more pile on. Production Code Seal No. 2,600. Running time, 18 mins. "G."

"Loony Balloonists"

(Mintz-Columbia)

Scrappy and his brother, Oopy, engage in airial gymnastics as they race their balloon with the aid of an old man. Oopy stows away and is found when Scrappy is dumping ballast. There is clever invention and pleasant entertainment. Production Code Seal No. 2,483. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

Theatre Checking Is Up 30%, States Ross

Theatre checking has increased more than 30 per cent during the past year, with every indication that that gain will be maintained, Harry Ross, head of Ross Federal Service, said yesterday on his return to New York. He had conducted meetings with his district managers in Chicago, for the west, and Detroit, for the mideast, last week. He saw in the increased use of the company's research business an indication of general pickup in business. Films, and other business generally, is showing a high degreee of optimism, Rose declared.

He noted that the new radio service is increasingly in demand. Plans are being completed for a new type of service designed for the advertising industry, especially that phase which handles outdoor advertising.

Within a few days Ross will set the date of a meeting of district managers of the east and south. The session will be held in New York, probably during the second week in December.

Legion of Decency Formed in Holland

By PHILIP DE SCHAAP

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 14.—A Legion of Decency has been formed in Arnhem, Holland, by a Roman Catholic board. In the past the Catholic Church in this country has limited its action on product to be released to the same type of regulation exercised by the Government censor board, but at its first meeting the new group determined upon positive as well as negative action on films.

The negative phase is expected to take the form of urging the Catholic people to refrain from attending such films as are deemed unsuitable by the Catholic board. The board's action is seen as of considerable importance to the film trade of this country, since approximately 35 per cent of the nation's population is Catholic.

The Dutch M. P. Federation is expected to take specific action shortly in an effort to prevent further lowering of admission prices and to establish a minimum scale. With the depreciation of the Dutch guilder, the plan to establish a minimum, originated some time ago, was dropped as being unnecessary, but recently it has become apparent that some such action is vital.

Archbishop Writes On Picture Rating

CINCINNATI, Nov. 24.—Concurrently with a letter which Archbishop John T. McNicholas, chairman of the Episcopal Committee on Motion Pictures, has sent to heads of all dioceses instructing members of the Legion of Decency to renew their pledges Sunday, Dec. 13, the archbishop has released a pamphlet titled "How to Judge the Morality of Motion Pictures."

The pamphlet states:

"It is generally recognized that entertainment is either helpful or harmful. A clear distinction must therefore be made between

"(a) Entertainment which tends to elevate or to relax men and women physically or mentally, tired with the duties or occupations of everyday life, and

"(b) Entertainment which tends to lower their ideals and moral standards of life."

The pamphlet enters into a discussion of the influence of pictures on personal morality, the archbishop pointing out that a picture "must inevitably imply or present a moral thesis."

Included is a quotation from the encyclical of Pope Pius XI on motion pictures.

Sea" to tragedy in "The Astonished Heart" and to broad comedy in "Red Peppers" and encountered nary a stumble as he went.

In order. "Hands Across the Sea," a 27-minute sketch pokes gentle and not so gentle fun at the British social system which might and could be and actually is the social system of any other land as well. It has merely the whisp of a plot and has to do with the unexpected arrival in London of a British rubber planter and his wife, both of whom had entertained Gertrude Lawrence and friend on a Far Eastern tour 'way back yonder. Everybody at one time or another has been in the identical fix. Miss Lawrence fails to remember them, of course, finds them on her hands and carries off the situation embarrassingly, but well, only to discover she had confused the pair with another couple who also entertained in the Orient and happened to be back home at the same time. Nothing happens, but nothing is supposed to. It is a delightful and extremely amusing skit with the honors gathered up in one large bouquet for Miss Lawrence and her high comedy sense. Coward here is merely the husband, has little to do yet does that little with insouciance and charm.

Love, as Laboratory Study

"The Astonished Heart," magnificent in title and excellent in the writing, is in six scenes and 52 minutes. The author here uses a straight motion picture technique in a series of flashbacks. A noted psychiatrist, Coward meets Miss Lawrence, a school chum of his wife, Joyce Carey. They fall in love with each other, he unintentionally and she, by design. Caught up in his own knowledge of the complexities of human behavior, Coward wrecks Miss Lawrence's affection and desire for him through the fatal error of allowing his science to dissect her emotions. Wracked by his own internal conflict between desire and cool reason, the fury of the struggle proves beyond him. His wife, involved and fighting, attempts to remain detached long enough to aid him reason things out. Her effort fails, Coward commits suicide and Miss Lawrence is left to whatever memories may comfort her. This play, intelligent and psychological, is essentially Coward's. He has a long and difficult soliloquy and acquits himself with distinction. Here, Miss Lawrence's mood changes abruptly from comedy to drama, a gap which she bridges in a manner that, also, bespeaks much for her histrionics.

Also as Vaudevillians

"Red Peppers," the final half hour, is widely apart from the preceding two. Coward and Miss Lawrence here are the worst kind of English vaudevillians, playing the northern provinces in the days immediately preceding the onrush of motion pictures. They fight, they ham, they sing, they dance, they tell old chromos for jokes, they remain true to themselves and their profession and provide two characterizations which, when sum totaled to the initial two, leave an impress about their wholesale cleverness which is perhaps ineptly described as amazing.

These three plays are to be followed by three more on Friday and a final trio on Monday. "The Astonished Heart" might make a film, but a dubious one commercially. Aside from the brilliance of the premiere, last night had a special significance for Hollywood and that significance has its orbit and its firmament in Coward and Miss Lawrence. Both, of course, have done picture work.

They can do much more. Such talent should be harnessed, if only it could be made willing to enlarge its horizon for the greater audience of the films to enjoy.

20th-Fox for Cancellation, Conciliation

Kent Offers Liberalized 10% Cuts to MPTOA

Twentieth Century-Fox has subscribed to a liberalized 10 per cent cancellation privilege and full support of the national system of local conciliation boards, it was disclosed on Wednesday with the release of a communication from Sidney R. Kent, president, to Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, which sets forth the distributor's position in reference to the 10-point trade practice program sponsored by the M.P.T.O.A.

The reply is the second to be made by a national distributor, Universal having first defined its concessions on the program three weeks ago.

Twentieth Century-Fox offers no change in its policy on collection of the score charge, which, Kent's letter states, will continue to be based on "individual policy" as in the past. A flat refusal to refrain from demanding preferred playing time for percentage pictures is set forth in the letter and no change in the company's policy of selling short subjects and features on a related percentage of playing time is offered. In addition, Kent's letter offers no encouragement for the setting up of uniform protection and clearance schedules and casts doubt upon the legality of the M.P.T.O.A.'s

Talk Colored Operators

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—A decision concerning the use of colored operators in theatres catering to negro trade exclusively will be forthcoming next week, according to Frank Clifford, head of the local operators' union.

The forthcoming decision will affect about six local houses in the colored district.

McLaglen and Troop Again Draw Protest

Victor McLaglen is incurring the active opposition of many varied interests in the country for his activity in his Light Horse troop in Hollywood, according to Motion Picture Herald, out today. The purpose of the group, said the actor, is to "fight for America," but its militaristic character has not met with complete sympathy.

An initial organized exhibitor protest came from Allied Theatres of Connecticut, which wrote of its disapproval to Will H. Hays, president of the M.P.P.D.A., and saw the McLaglen group conception as potentially "a political subterfuge as dangerously expressed by a few maniacs during our recent presidential election."

McLaglen, speaking to the Associated Press, declared the original purpose of the organization was not militaristic. "It is no more militaristic in intent than any fraternal organization," he insisted. The Light Horse was organized three years ago in Hollywood, and is the only unit of its type in the state. A rival group, the Hollywood Hussars, was formed two years ago but was disbanded some time ago. An air force unit of the Light Horse was organized recently with branches in San Diego and Long Beach, a private field in San Diego, and 50 private planes and 120 men at its disposal. The whole group, said McLaglen, is non-profit and self-supporting.

Honor Roll of 10, the winners being these:

"Tale of Two Cities"—M-G-M.
"White Angel"—Warners.
"To Mary—with Love"—20th Century-Fox.
"Nine Days a Queen"—G. B.
"Rose Marie"—M-G-M.
"Dodsworth"—Goldwyn-United Artists.
"Swing Time"—RKO.
"The General Died at Dawn"—Paramount.
"San Francisco"—M-G-M.
"The Big Broadcast of 1937"—Paramount.

Because of lateness of release, the air critic has not considered "The Garden of Allah" (Selznick-U. A.), "Winterset" (RKO), "Camille" (M-G-M), "Lloyds of London" (20th Century-Fox) which opened simultaneously last night at the Astor, New York and the Carthay Circle, Hollywood, and "The Charge of the Light Brigade" (Warners).

Mrs. Schallert's selections are based on:

1. The contribution of each film to the highest advancement of the screen.
2. The general artistic quality of each production.
3. Their popular appeal.

M-G-M and Warners capture principal honors in the first bracket, each winning three awards. In the Honor Roll, M-G-M leads all others with three.

Mrs. Schallert's selections are based on more than 300 films over the air during the past year.

Two Masters and None

As a result of trying to serve two masters at one time, Phil Regan, film and radio tenor, has found himself in the embarrassing position of having no masters at all to serve.

Regan, some while back, was signed for the air by Lever Bros., sponsors of the Ken Murray program. His success on the soap show attracted the attention of Republic which signed him for "Happy-Go-Lucky." The deal involved a temporary leave of absence with a return to the air program upon completion of the picture.

"Happy-Go-Lucky" was completed recently and Republic tried to obtain a time extension from Regan's sponsor for another picture, "Join the Marines." The sponsor refused. Some weeks ago, Regan returned to New York and the program not, however, before obtaining a promise from the studio that his part in the picture would be kept open for him, pending the fulfillment of the air contract.

The other day, Regan received the double bad news that the studio, unable to hold up production any longer, had signed Paul Kelly for his role and that the Ken Murray show was fading from the air to make way for a new series, starring Al Jolson.

Regan may be signed by the studio to make a personal appearance tour in key city theatre showing "Happy-Go-Lucky."

Kettering, vice-president of General Motors Co., and Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, vice-president of Eastern Air Lines.

The fluttery-voiced comedian has signed Rudy Vallee to join his troupe as guest artist for Saturday night's broadcast and, while Rudy plays the saxaphone, Wynn will accompany him on the violin. Considering that the "Perfect Fool" has never taken a fiddle lesson in his life, the results are expected to be funny, if not exactly professional.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Conflict"

(Universal)

Hollywood, Nov. 26.—In this adaptation of Jack London's "The Abysmal Brute," comedy replaces that story-telling quality that provokes sympathetic emotions and romantic love interest expected in elemental drama. Substantially, the story is a prizefight yarn with a human interest tinge. While probably not an attraction that will stand patrons in line, it, nevertheless, is one that will entertain. Actually the film is an adaptation of tried and proved entertainment elements. It heroizes a prizefighter who is the stooge for a world's champion. The motivating premise is the offer of $1,000 for any one who can stay in the ring with the champ for four rounds.

In the hero's role, John Wayne has taken the fall many times. But when he arrives in a lumber camp, beats up the bruiser, saves little Tommy Bupp from death and becomes romantically acquainted with Jean Rogers, a newspaper girl who has been assigned to ferret out the fraud and has won the confidence of the miners and lumber jacks, a regeneration works within him. Still believing a setup is in prospect, Ward Bond and his manager, Frank Sheridan, arrive in town. The betting is intense and the invaders, suspicious that things are not all according to Hoyle, put the pressure on Wayne. But the fight is staged, to the tune of much exciting action, and Wayne wallops the champ to save his buddies' money, make himself the boy's idol and win the girl.

Well done for a picture in its class, the film should serve effectively to round out a program which features some more pretentious offering.

Production Code Seal No. 2,173. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"White Hunter"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

There is a good combination of selling names for the marquee in this picture, Warner Baxter and June Lang, the team who did outstanding work in "Road to Glory," and it is to be regretted that in this instance, the players are so far superior to the story and the picture itself of the type best classed as routine, despite earnest efforts of the cast.

Gene Markey's story, set in Africa against a background of animal shots strongly reminiscent in certain panoramic shots of one or two of Martin Johnson's camera expeditions to that continent, recounts the story of Baxter's opportunity for revenge on the man who had once wronged him and the development of a romance that prevents him from carrying out his plan.

The film has its moments of drama, suspense and action, but on the whole falls short of what might have been anticipated. Gail Patrick and Wilfred Lawson are good in the chief supporting roles, Lawson as the man whose death Baxter plans and Miss Patrick, Lawson's wife.

Baxter, a white hunter, or leader of safari, takes a hunting party consisting of Lawson, whose activity has ruined him in London eight years before, Miss Patrick and Miss Lang, Lawson's daughter by a former marriage. As animal attacks, a violent wind storm in the jungle and the expectation of Baxter's revenge complicate the situation, Miss Lang is lost, Baxter finds her, and their love saves Lawson and his wife, who leave the girl with Baxter. Irving Cummings directed.

Production Code Seal No. 2,787. Running time, 64 minutes. "G."

"Stampede"

(Columbia)

As westerns go, "Stampede" is satisfactorily replete with the proper ingredients to satisfy that audience which appreciates and enjoys this form of entertainment.

Charles Starrett, a cattle buyer, stumbles across a plot which, when accomplished, will result in the foreclosure of Finis Barton's ranch. The piece goes its way, following methodical formula style, interspersed with moments of violent action, sorrow and with a proper and clever ending, culminating in romance for Starrett and Miss Barton.

The scenario was adapted from a Peter B. Kyne story by Robert Watson. Ford Beebe's direction keeps things moving. Miss Barton is charming as the heroine. The support includes J. P. McGowan and Lestrange Millman.

Production Code Seal No. 2,202. Running time, 55 minutes. "G."

Short Subjects

"March of Time—No. 4"

(RKO)

Perhaps lacking some of the dramatic intensity which was outstanding in many of the previous issues of this series, this number of the March of Time none the less is of real interest, offering three episodes executed with the same excellence which has characterized the reel from the first.

First is a brief, significant review of the situation in which Belgium finds itself as a result of young King Leopold's declaration to the world that his country henceforth will drop its traditional alliance with France and go it alone with a policy of armed neutrality. A problem is cited in the activities of Fascist Leon Degrelle, with his hordes of anti-Leftists.

With map, diagram and picture is told next the story of the nearly completed last link in what will be the great St. Lawrence seaway, giving the midwest a direct outlet to the sea via the Great Lakes, possible by virtue of a treaty with Canada. Leading the opposition to the ratification by the Senate of that treaty are New Orleans interests, seeing in the seaway a hard blow at the commerce they now derive from the midwest, via the Mississippi.

In a light and fast-moving sequence is pictured the U. S. Government's entry into the theatrical business, with the WPA Federal Theatre Project designed to give employment to the thousands of players tossed into the unemployment ranks by the collapse of the "road" and of vaudeville. The culmination thus far is the production of Sinclair Lewis' "It Can't Happen Here," simultaneously in 21 cities.

No production code seal. Running time, 21 minutes. "G."

"A Spanish Interlude"

(J. H. Hoffberg)

An interesting short depicting the highlights of a toreador's career with some amazing shots in the bull ring. Forced to lead a sedentary life due to a paralyzed condition resulting from an injury, the bull fighter, after unsuccessfully attempting suicide, finally gets his wish when his daughter, a dancer, unwittingly replenishes the gas meter with the necessary coin to do the trick.

Produced in Barcelona, a few subtitles are flashed on the screen for purposes of local distribution. It is said to be a true story, and probably is, but there is plenty lacking in the way of production standards.

Previewed without a production code seal. Running time, 18 mins.

suggested short form of uniform contract.

The distributor pledges itself to a strict policy against licensing non-theatrical accounts "where there is even a remote possibility of competition with a motion picture theatre" and, while stating that it believes the remaining two points of the program —cut-throat competition and overbuying—to be exclusively exhibitor problems, it indicates a sympathetic attitude for attempts to cope with them.

In this regard it has been pointed out by the M.P.T.O.A. that overbuying and unfair competition are regarded by the exhibitor organization as proper subjects of complaint for handling by the proposed local conciliation boards.

100% Buyers May Cancel

Kent's letter stipulates that the company's 10 per cent cancellation privilege will apply only to exhibitors who have purchased the entire feature schedule, exclusive of "foreign or outside producers' subjects." A selective contract "is the usual result of negotiations" with an exhibitor who takes less than the entire company lineup, the letter says. The distributor asks for notice of cancellation within 10 days after a picture's availability. Apparently the cancellation privilege is intended to apply to all of the company's pictures, regardless of price, as the letter describes it as an "unrestricted" cancellation and does not specify price limitations.

The letter makes the further suggestion in regard to the local conciliation boards that a central appeals board be established in New York, presumably to pass final judgment upon the results of the local board's efforts where complete satisfaction for the parties involved in a complaint is not attained. It asks for limitation of the subjects which local boards may be asked to consider in order to conserve the time of board members and holds that further discussion of the jurisdiction and machinery of the boards by exhibitor and distributor representatives is necessary before the conciliation system is set up.

Objections on Clearance Stated

Two reasons are given by the distributor for its refusal to consider uniform protection and clearance schedules, one being their doubtful legality and the other the distributor's belief that they are properly matters for individual negotiation between the exhibitor and distributor in the course of selling.

The letter states that while Twentieth Century-Fox is "against" overbuying, it does not believe control of the problem lies with an individual distributor. Under the same problem heading the company asserts that it is against double features but that it believes that the problem will solve itself if exhibitors do not.

While questioning the legality of its becoming a party to a uniform contract, Kent's letter asserts that the company favors a clear, short form of agreement and is willing to make as "short a contract with any exhibitor as is practical."

"The practice of exacting score charges has been for a number of years a matter of individual policy and will continue to be so as far as this company is concerned," Kent declares. In the next paragraph he states: "We will not pledge ourselves not to demand preferred playing time on percentage pictures. However, we will not be obnoxious about this, but will base our demands for preferred playing time on the quality of our product."

Pledges Cooperation

Of the forcing of shorts with features he says: "It has never been the practice of this company to force shorts with features. As a practical matter of distribution they are sold at the same time but under separate agreements. We do feel that if our feature product is desired by an exhibitor we are justified in insisting upon the same percentage of his short subject playing time as we receive of his feature playing time."

Concluding, Kent says that he and John D. Clark, Twentieth Century-Fox general manager of distribution, with whom the policy was decided, "are in sympathy with your efforts to eliminate some of the matters that have been the cause of disputes between exhibitors and distributors and assure you of our desire to cooperate to that end in every possible way. Mr. Clark will be glad to discuss with you more in detail at any time the matters outlined in this letter."

Kuykendall Calls Kent Reply "Step"

disappointment over the distributor's failure to liberalize its policy in regard to collection of the score charge and asserted that the M.P.T.O.A.'s recent analysis of the concessions granted by Universal would apply to those of Twentieth Century-Fox with the "notable exception" of the latter's score charge policy. Universal declared that it had not and would not levy a separate score charge.

Kuykendall's letter follows:

"We have not had the opportunity to analyze in detail these proposals nor to confer with Mr. Kent on them as yet. However, it appears that with one or two exceptions they are essentially the same as those announced recently by Universal which were analyzed in some detail by letter to R. H. Cochrane which letter was given out for publication, and the analysis then prepared will therefore apply to Mr. Kent's letter. The notable exception is in connection with the separate score charge, which, we understand from Mr. Kent's letter they have no intention of abolishing except where they are forced to do so by exhibitors who have the buying power, as a matter of individual policy to refuse to permit the distributor to exact a separate score charge.

"We believe that the general acceptance of most of the M.P.T.O.A. proposals by Mr. Kent and his company is a definite step in the right direction and will afford immediate benefits to independent exhibitors."

Separate Film Conference Is Capital Plan

the general conclave, it is planned. Film and theatre spokesmen will be given an opportunity of learning the Administration's general aims in regard to industry at the meeting and to state, as well, what the film industry wants from the Government. If anything specific is proposed in this respect methods of gaining it either through the council's conference or other Federal agencies would be explored, it was indicated.

The National Counsel is not considering the re-establishment of industrial code structures such as were invoked under NRA, but rather hopes to attain enabling and enforcement measures for voluntary trade agreements which would benefit labor and correct competitive abuses within industries, it is learned. Whether these are necessary to the film industry and, if so, how they might be achieved, would be the principal subjects of discussion at the Washington meeting.

Another "Blue Eagle" Likely

The plan for holding a separate meeting for this industry was taken under consideration by the National Council after recent conferences with industry representatives at which it was indicated that more interest in the Washington meetings might be created within this industry through such a procedure.

With trade agreements once set up, brand insignias similar to the NRA Blue Eagle would be authorized for subscribing industry members. Unauthorized use of the insignia could be subject to prosecution by the Federal Trade Commission under the powers it now has for proceeding against instances of misbranding, it was pointed out. The potency of the insignia would, of course, be only as effective as public opinion and support make it.

Film Concessions Reported in Italy

dispatch had been received up to a late hour Wednesday from either Will H. Hays, who was reported as having left Rome for Paris on Wednesday, or from other official Italian sources.

The A. P. dispatch credited the lifting of the restrictions to Hays and Ambassador William Phillips who were reported as having conferred with Premier Benito Mussolini and other Fascist officials. The dispatch said that the restrictions limiting the importation of American films into Italy to 48 for the current year had been lifted entirely, and that the amount of money which American companies would be authorized to take out of Italy would be "appreciably increased." The limitation originally imposed permitted the removal of one-third of a company's Italian revenue.

What, if any, concessions were made on behalf of American companies to Italy was not suggested in the dispatch. The restrictions were conceived as a means of encouraging film production in Italy and of supporting the large new Italian studios which will be opened near Rome next spring. Intimations were that American companies would be expected to actually participate in or cooperate with Italian production activities.

Hays Goes to Paris After Talks in Rome

ROME, Nov. 26.—Will H. Hays leaves today for Paris after 10 days of conferences here in an effort to secure quota modifications and relaxation of other Italian restrictions.

It is understood further negotiations will be carried on by American Ambassador William Phillips, with whom Hays has had a number of conferences. He also has talked with Premier Mussolini, Count Galeazzo Ciano, Foreign Minister; and Dino Alfieri, Minister of the Press and Propaganda.

Moyne Committee Asks 50% Quota in 10 Years

British Government Urged to Guard Against Foreign Control

London, Nov. 27.—One recommendation of the Moyne committee report on revision of the Films Act, interpreted as being aimed specifically at American film interests, urged that the Government, through the proposed Film Commission, watch the danger of transfers of British interests to prevent control passing abroad.

Another part of the report of outstanding interest was that urging the British Government to "encourage financial interests to constitute one or more organizations to finance British production on reasonable terms."

Report Calls For a New Film Commission With Parliament Voice

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The continuance of the British quota principle for 10 years, with the ultimate institution of a 50 per cent quota, was recommended today in the report of the Lord Moyne committee which has been studying revision of the Films Act for many months.

Under the plan of new film legislation as proposed by the committee, the opening quotas on features on the new basis would be 20 per cent for distributors and 15 per cent for exhibitors. The present quota is 20 per cent for both exhibitors and distributors.

Of high significance with respect to the British Government's concern in the interests of the industry, is that part of the recommendation which calls for transfer of the administration of the Films Act from the Board of Trade to a new Film Commission, which would consist of a chairman and two to four others to be appointed by the Government and to be adequately paid, and with respresentation in the House of Commons through a

Plans Legislation in 44 States in January

Legislation providing for jail terms and heavy fines to be imposed on each individual officer of any producing or distributing company operating a theatre is planned by Allied States Ass'n as a method of forcing producer-distributors out of exhibition, according to Motion Picture Herald.

Allied is secretly planning to introduce legislation into each of the 44 state legislatures convening this winter which would prohibit the operation of theatres by any producer or distributor, according to a confidential memorandum to "Allied leaders" from national headquarters in Washington, the Herald says. The field men are asked to concentrate chiefly on legislators elected last November.

The model bill was drafted by Abram F. Myers, general counsel and chairman of the board of Allied, in October, and sent to the leaders in the field, who are expected to seek action in each state prior to the opening of state sessions in January.

Italian Accord Is Reached on Funds

ROME, Nov. 27.—Film companies of American ownership will be permitted to withdraw approximately 50 per cent of their Italian revenue under the liberalized agreement resulting from the understanding reached by Ambassador William Phillips and Will H. The latter restriction also has been removed.

Italian film circles are pleased with the results of the accord, which included also the lifting of all quota

Blank and Freeman To Talk Agreement

Discussions on a new operating agreement for the A. H. Blank circuit are scheduled to get under way here next week between Blank and Y. Frank Freeman, Paramount vice-president and head of the company's theatre interests.

Under the current operating agreement, which expires at the end of the year, Paramount is privileged to repurchase the 50 per cent stock interest in the circuit held by Blank. Whether the option will be exercised, the current agreement extended or a new one negotiated has not been determined within Paramount and the decision waits upon the scheduled conferences with Blank, Freeman said.

"Go West, Young Man" and a stage show at the Paramount netted $52,000 for the first week of the theatre's tenth anniversary. Indications are the combination show will do around $45,000 the second week.

2nd Coward Cycle Amuses; Honors to Miss Lawrence

Further evidences of the infinite cleverness of Gertrude Lawrence and Noel Coward went on display at the National last night when the second movement of the British playwright's three-part entertainment surge, "Tonight at Eight-Thirty," was seen and heard. Your first-nighter, he asks you to note, wrote Gertrude Lawrence and Noel Coward.

This is no error in the billing. This talented pair again performed charmingly in "We Were Dancing," "Fumed Oak" and "Shadow Play," but the evening, it will be argued through fire and with sword, was chiefly Miss Lawrence's. Probably, the material given her furnishes the answer, which is of no especial import anyway, the facts being what they are.

The three one-act plays were uneven in writing and effect. Once more, the program launched itself with a comedy skit. "We Were Dancing," as fluffy as a powder puff, goes to the Orient for its locale. There, Miss Lawrence meets Coward and both immediately are bewitched by the mellowness of the moon. They hardly know each other's name, but it matters not at all. Alan Webb, the husband, and Joyce Carey, the sister-in-law, talk it over in the kind of stolid, sportsman-like and sensible manner you read the English go in for and it's

Ascap Case May Not Be Set Until Spring

Although steady progress is reported on the stipulations of fact in connection with the Government's monopoly action against Ascap, present indications are that the stipulations will not be in readiness to return to the Federal court here until some time next spring, Arthur Schwartz, of Schwartz & Frohlich, attorneys for Ascap, said yesterday.

Work on the stipulations has been in progress for several months. While much has been accomplished, a great amount of work still remains to be done. Complete agreement on the stipulations may mean that the court will be able to decide the case without a resumption of trial or the taking of any additional testimony.

Warner "Gold Diggers" Get In; Sirens Sound; They Eat

By J. M. JERAULD

Breakfast at Boston, lunch at Providence with Governor Theodore Francis Greene and the Mayor of Providence and luncheon at the Warwick, New York, was the schedule of the "Gold Diggers of 1937" yesterday.

It sounds like quite some territory to cover in half a day, but it was all in the half-day's work for the Gold Diggers. They left California two weeks ago, and they have covered so many cities since that they can't even remember their names. One of the blondes remembered she had been in Dallas, El Paso, Memphis, Philadelphia, Boston and Providence, but she was hazy about the other places.

S. Charles Einfeld, sometimes called Charlie; Sid Retchetnik, an authority on blondes; Herbert Crooker and assorted newspaper men, gathered at the Newark Airport at 10 A.M., E.S.T. The E.S.T. means Eastern Standard Time, but you could never tell it from the American Airlines clock, which said 8:20. The temperature was -0 11, F., which means 11 below zero Fahrenheit. Monsieur Retchetnik stayed out on the field for 57 seconds and gazed at the horizon, but joined the assembled multitude inside the waiting room at 58½ seconds and announced that the "Gold Diggers" plane was over the G. Washington bridge.

Inevitable Plea Is Heard

Three hundred seconds later the plane bounced onto the airport and a lot of "Gold Diggers" emerged.

"When do we eat?" inquired three of them. "We've had chicken a la king ever since we left the coast. How about some roast beef?"

Einfeld assured them the New York roast beef was a la mode, or words to that effect.

After the mounted policemen had pushed the crowd back and the motorcycle policemen had blown their sirens the visitors bussed to Newark and passed the main entrance to the Branford, which happened to be a Warner theatre. Then they went through Jersey City over the Pulaski Skyway with eight motorcycle policemen in advance. Einfeld advised the girls to hold their breath passing through the Holland Tunnel and some of them tried.

After passing the Strand and the Warner home office, where they threw rice, confetti and telephone books out of the windows the "Gold Diggers" arrived at the Warwick where they ate and were interviewed.

They were due for a quiet weekend —an appearance at the Strand at 9 P.M., last night, an appearance at the Center for "White Horse Inn" tonight, visits to the Stork Club, the Cotton Club, and a couple of other spots tonight; lunch at the H. M. Warner estate tomorrow in Mt. Vernon, then a couple of more night clubs, and on Monday morning they're due in Albany for the first stop of the return trip.

Some of them admitted they had two or three hours sleep since leaving the coast, but they were holding up well, in spite of it all.

"General" Foreword Raises China's Ban

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—A 40-day stay of the order issued by the Nanking Government barring Paramount from doing business in China has been granted the distributor, according to advices received here. The stay is understood to have been granted as a result of the addition to "The General Died at Dawn" of an explanatory foreword satisfactory to the Nanking Government, which will be included in all prints of the picture exhibited in the Far East.

The order barring Paramount from doing business in China was issued after the Nanking Government's request that "The General Died at Dawn" and "Klondike Annie" be withdrawn from world exhibition was not complied with. The State Department interceded on behalf of the film company with the result that the explanatory foreword was added to the film and the stay granted for further discussion of the Chinese Government's objection to the two films.

Lasky, in Air Talk, Sees Output Increasing to 825

Hollywood anticipates a production increase this season of more than 300 pictures over last season's mark of 525, Jesse L. Lasky yesterday stated in a talk over the NBC-Red network. He represented the film industry as one of six major businesses in an air program designed to stress America's great upswing in industrial recovery.

The sharp increase in production, according to Lasky, will mean an additional expenditure of $150,000,000 a year and the re-employment of electricians, carpenters, engineers and other skilled workers in more than the 250 different industries, arts and crafts which he declared were involved in the making of a picture.

Speaking from the RKO lot in Hollywood, Lasky said that the rise in prosperity was markedly reflected by the strong increase in studio activities and box-office grosses. In 1930, he stated 110,000,000 people attended picture theatres regularly. In 1933, the figure had dropped to 60,000,000. In 1935, it rose to 80,000,000, and is still rising, he added.

"These figures indicate more than mere motion picture recovery; they mean that industry everywhere is again moving forward, for unless there is prosperity in other lines, the motion picture industry is checkmated. Unless the factory workers, the coal miners, the butcher and baker are employed, our efforts go for naught. Because of this, our attendance record is a barometer for all industry," Lasky said.

is chairman of the special "defense committee" which will conduct the legislative campaign, his aides being Sidney Samuelson, New Jersey; James Ritter, Detroit; Col. H. A. Cole, Texas, and Henry M. Richey, Detroit. Ritter is treasurer of the defense fund of $250,000 which Allied has been seeking to collect since the national convention in Cleveland last June. Thus far, it is said, only $15,000 in cash and about $20,000 in pledges has been collected.

Under the proposed legislation, no producer or distributor could have any direct or indirect interest in a theatre. The penalties would be a $10,000 fine and one year in jail for violations.

An exhibitor permitting such producer or distributor activity in his theatre also would be liable, facing possible loss of his right to operate a theatre in the state.

all arranged. But by this time it is morning and the spell is gone, and with it the romance. Coward goes on his way and that appears to be that. Yet, it is very clever, adroitly stage-managed and flawlessly acted with Miss Lawrence leading all.

"Fumed Oak" tells of a cockney family, composed of a slatternly and disagreeable wife, played by Miss Lawrence; her husband, Coward; his mother-in-law, Miss Carey, and his child, Moya Nugent. For 15 years Coward has held his peace and his words. Then one night he returns with a couple of whiskies under his belt, about $1,500 secretly saved from salary and a determination to tell his family where it gets off. He does, one by one, and walks out on their lives, bound for the high road to adventure. The program describes this as an "unpleasant comedy." It is, but it is effectively done in keeping with its sorry people and their cheerless and bedraggled existence. Coward has the fat part here and plays to the limit the emergence from his Milquetoast innards to the full estate of his asserted manhood. Miss Lawrence, however, runs him a very close second.

Again the Flashback

"Shadow Play," reverting to the flashback technique as in "The Astonished Heart," is utterly pleasing and a trifle obscure, which may be a pointless criticism about an endeavor which is not supposed to have much point beyond its nostalgia. Married to Coward, Miss Lawrence is about to lose him for another woman. A third sleeping powder proves too much. In her delirium, she re-lives their romance and their honeymoon and, as she does, the stage transcribes into lilting and lovely scenes and dancing the combined unrest and happiness of her memories. Finally, she wins back her husband.

"Shadow Play" is charmingly done. Miss Lawrence is entrancing and thoroughly captivating and the well-known Coward charm and suavity, of course, are present.

It is this reviewer's impression last night ended up a trifle further down the scale than the exciting evening which was Monday. Nevertheless, it was playgoing emphatically worthwhile and time assuredly well spent if lacking in discovery of material of interest to Hollywood.

Moyne Group Asks 10-Year Quota of 50%

Minister or some other appointee for the purpose.

In the hands of this body would fall the important principle of establishing a quota for each year "on the basis of the actual output of British long films of a good standard of quality in the calendar year immediately preceding."

The report stressed that there will be a statutory obligation on the Commission in fixing the quotas to have regard to the past year's quality of films "from the point of view of the public who sees them."

Separate quotas for features and shorts are recommended, beginning with a quota for shorts of 15 per cent for distributors and 10 per cent for exhibitors. Both features and shorts, to qualify for the distributor quota, must pass a quality test "based directly on the viewing of the films."

Blind Booking Rules to Remain

Pictures not accepted or not submitted for registration for the distributor quota still will rank for the exhibitor quota. The exhibitor quota will be computed on a three-month basis, and the distributors' on a six-month basis, with a default in one period to be made good in the next.

The blindbooking provisions of the present Films Act would be retained, the report declared, and would be strengthened by the demand that distributors shall make a statutory declaration on the registration of a film that it has not been blind booked. The penalty for blind booking would apply to distributors only, with the maximum penalty increased to £250. On a second conviction the distributor would be liable to a cancellation or suspension of license. Restrictions on advance bookings would be abolished.

A statutory declaration would be required from each distributor at the end of each year that no exhibitor was forced to take unwanted films as a condition of booking any picture. All penalties attaching to blind booking would apply to block booking.

The report also recommended abolition of the British scenarist clause. Ten per cent of total footage or 20 per cent of studio scenes, whichever is less, may be foreign in any registered British film.

Three tryouts would be allowed before registration. Exhibition up to 12 weeks of specially approved foreign films outside of the quota obligation would be permitted to take care of the art film problem.

The Commission would take care of such problems as redundancy (overbuilding), oppressive trade combinations, problems of capital and liaison with local authorities. The Moyne committee specifically recommended that the Government should watch the danger of transfers of British interests to prevent control passing abroad, and also should "encourage financial interests to constitute one or more organizations to finance British production on reasonable terms."

Production Census Suggested

A census of production, to be taken yearly, is also recommended in the report.

Important in the report are the committee's rejection of the cost-footage basis of the quota and its adoption of the quality clause.

The committee proposed a small increase in the import duties on films to provide for the expenses of the proposed Films Commission not covered by registration and license fees.

In the preamble the report emphasized America's advantage in the short release period and suggested a move for the establishment of similar conditions in this country.

It appears initially that the Kinematograph Renters' Society lost out badly in its recommendations, the F. B. I. won a half-loaf, and that the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n came off best, with a reduced quota as compared to the distributors and the quality clause.

Boettiger Successor Awaits Hays' Return

No successor to John Boettiger, who has resigned as assistant to Will H. Hays, will be named until the latter's return from Europe about Dec. 10. Boettiger, son-in-law of President Roosevelt, leaves Sunday for Seattle to assume his new post as publisher of William Randolph Hearst's Post-Intelligencer there.

Boettiger came to the M.P.P.D.A. two years ago, just prior to his marriage to Anna Roosevelt Dall. He was formerly Washington correspondent for the Chicago Tribune, with which he was associated for about 12 years. He brought with him to M.P.P.D.A. public relations posts two former newspaper associates, Tom Pettey, now with the Producers' Ass'n in Hollywood, and Kenneth Clark, with the Hays office here. Boettiger said yesterday that Pettey and Clark would remain in their present Hays organization posts.

Anticipate Three Groups Will Urge Inquiry

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—The renewal of efforts to obtain an investigation of the Federal Communications Commission is expected when Congress reconvenes in January. Three groups, each with its own grievance, are understood planning an attack on the commission, after having failed to obtain an inquiry last session because of its possible effect on President Roosevelt's campaign.

While one Congressional group charges that the commission has wasted time and money in its investigation of the A. T. & T. without any results, a second group, headed by Congressman Connery of Massachusetts, will continue the fight initiated last spring to have the licenses of a number of radio stations revoked because of the broadcasting in a Mexican program of a song contended to be obscene. A third group has been

Chicago Games Threatened by Business Men

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—The Chicago Exhibitors Ass'n. and Allied Theatres of Illinois yesterday received a letter from Kenneth Barnard, general manager of the Chicago Better Business Bureau, warning them that unless they do not end prize-drawing activities in approximately 300 local theatres the Bureau will seek police action to halt the practice.

Barnard's letter said that counsel for the Bureau found that the drawings are in violation of the state lottery laws which prohibit all lotteries and provide for fines and jail sentences for those advertising them.

When questioned as to the motive for the Bureau's action Barnard said that he had received numerous complaints from both individuals and independent exhibitors asking that the chance games be stopped. He said that exhibitors with small theatres protested because they knew the prize awards were illegal and wanted to do away with them. These exhibitors, he said, claimed they had to use the games themselves for the protection of their own businesses.

Barnard said he would give theatre organizations whose membership covers practically all local circuits and Negotiations are under way with a number of stars and players and will probably be completed on Alperson's next trip west.

Fear Added Danger in Virtual Government Film Control

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Nov. 29.—"Sensational," was the initial reaction of the British industry to the report yesterday of the Lord Moyne committee which has been working on revision of the present Films Act since its appointment on March 26.

The startling recommendation in the report which called for scaling the quota up to an ultimate 50 per cent in 10 years was seen in many quarters as dangerous in principle. Likewise viewed as fraught with potential danger to the industry's future was the suggested establishment of a Film Commission, which in effect would amount to Government control.

In general, the report was taken at this early stage of its general consideration to be a big disappointment to the industry. The extreme quota provisions came as a distinct surprise. It was evident from an examination of the report that the footage basis for determining the quota is now considered obsolete.

Many comments noted the absence of any consideration having been given the plan of Simon Rowson for American reciprocity and the absence of any concessions to the Kinematograph Renters' Society (distributors).

The press, trade and general, reacted sharply to the report, for the most part scoring the recommendations which called for virtual Government control, and the suggestion that British financial interests arrange to finance British production.

"Onlooker," well known film commentator writing in the Daily Cinema, declared that the proposals will increase the playing time on British

Legion Approves All Of 9 New Pictures

The Legion of Decency, in its list for the current week, has approved, for general patronage or adults, all of the nine new films reviewed and classified. Six of the nine were approved for general patronage, and three for adults. The new films and their classification follow.

Class A-1, Unobjectionable for General Patronage—"Born to Dance," "Lawless Land," "Mandarin Mystery," "Pennies from Heaven," "West of Nevada," "White Hunter." Class A-2, Unobjectionable for Adults—"Das Lockende Ziel" (German), "Smart Blonde," "Weekend Millionaire."

Beginning Dec. 10, the Legion's weekly release list form will be altered. The special estimate will be omitted. New pictures will be listed in the four classifications, with the name of the producing company, and in the case of films classed as objectionable in part or condemned, the reason for the classification will be stated.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

DR. JOSEPH GOEBBELS, Nazi propaganda minister, in Berlin:

> "We employed every means to bring the critics to their sole and proper rôle of art observation, giving them with it the possibility of continued existence. All these efforts have failed. It sometimes looked as if all the scolds who could no longer exercise their faculties in other fields centered on the arts.
> "We had to call a halt. I therefore found it necessary in the decree announced today to forbid all criticism and replace it with art observation or art description. That does not mean the limitation of free expression of opinion."

And so, in the eyes of Goebbels, who is minister of public enlightenment as well as chief propaganda water-carrier, this fails to impose any "limitation of free expression of opinion." The world today understands, of course, that there can be no crossing of paths with Nazi doctrine. It gets inspiration by streamlined endowment directly from Heaven and it brooks no counter argument. Motion pictures, quite naturally, are embraced in the sweep of this latest decree with ultimate consequences apparent to even a slow-thinking mind. Without fair criticism, the German film industry will decay and ultimately it will die. So the course of history has decreed and so will it decree again. . . .

With somewhat a different kind of spots, the business in England will be speckled with much the same eventual outcome if the Moyne committee recommendations for a fifty per cent quota in ten years replace the expiring Films Act. British production is gaining ground with the distance to traverse yet considerable. But a most serious doubt might well be voiced if work in progress is traceable to the first quota law. It might indeed be that English production has been hampered by subsidy which is what the quota legislation is tantamount to through the enforced outlet it guarantees pictures made there regardless of merit or point. The more significant among British producers feel exactly this way about the current situation and are very apt to voice such criticism much more sharply in the light of Lord Moyne's proposal for the decade starting with 1938.

The quota has skyrocketed English production into a mushroom growth. It has encouraged public stock flotations with little to back them in many cases, as all who are honest with themselves in London know full well. It has endowed poor and indifferent home-made product with a guaranteed outlet which, on the basis of fair competition, certainly it does not deserve. It has placed on the maker of the usually superior product, which is to say the American, an unfair and an unreasonable burden as his reward for keeping British theatres prosperous. The first quota law was an out-and-out piece of discriminatory legislation and the second is even more definitely etched along identical lines. . . .

We wonder what the producers here will say and do about it. We are curious to see what the State Department in Washington which is supposed to step into matters such as these will say and do. We shall more than interestedly await what, if anything, reflects itself in the free and untrammeled sale of British pictures in this market. If American and other foreign product are stifling and retarding the growth of the production industry in England, why doesn't each playdate accorded British product here keep American dollars out of the hands of American companies?

Rebuttal, you have a chance to speak your mind. . . .

If "Lloyds of London" is approached from the angle of that which the cast has to offer, the standout, by any calculation, is Tyrone Power who plays the romantic male lead. Endowed with carriage, voice and appearance, here is a young actor, virtually unknown, whose work points the way toward things to come. We'll be matching this one of these years with the results, but, at the outset, are sufficiently set in our appraisal to turn quite positive about the forecast, always allowing for proper handling and material. The picture itself is extremely interesting and done on the big scale, slows up for a time, regains its tempo and holds thereafter and until it has had its say. On paper or in conversation, it would have been simple indeed to conclude that in the story of Lloyds, the world-renowned insurance firm, no straight entertainment, in the accepted sense, might be found. But dramatic characters have been dropped between the historical and a personalized love tale moved in front of the background. It worked and the evidence is on display at the Astor Theatre. "Lloyds of London" is interesting and even ironic in the light of the latest fuss from London. It demonstrates again and as did "David Copperfield," "Tale of Two Cities," "Cavalcade" and others before it that the best job of Union Jack waving is being done consistently and constantly in Hollywood. . . .

MGM Says "Dance" Betters "Ziegfeld"

M-G-M reported on Saturday "Born to Dance," on the basis of its first dozen openings Wednesday and Thursday of last week is running far ahead of "The Great Ziegfeld" and "Broadway Melody" in identical situations.

In Denver in two days, the picture did twice "Melody" business and ran $600 ahead of "San Francisco." In Albany, the opening day was reported as five times the take of "Broadway Melody" and double that of "San Francisco." Pittsburgh checked in with two and one-half times ahead of "Ziegfeld" and more than twice ahead of "San Francisco." Philadelphia's opening on "Born to Dance" was a trifle more than twice that of "Ziegfeld" and "San Francisco." Harry Zeitz of the State, New Bedford, wired the debut there broke all house records which have been registered in the last seven years.

A Statement to the Trade

Hollywood, Calif.

On my periodic visit to our studio, I have seen a number of new pictures. While I have made it a rule to be sparing in personal endorsements of pictures, I feel you should know that "Banjo On My Knee" is one of the truly great productions of the season.

No picture has ever before told the real story of the singing, dancing, brawling, foot-loose and happy Mississippi River folk. This tells about them with a power that spells bigness.

The story has all the dramatic force of "Tobacco Road" and the mellowness of "Steamboat Round the Bend", with a quality of its own that makes "Banjo On My Knee" refreshing and different. Added to that are the songs and dances which faithfully reflect the fascinating lives of the river people.

Darryl F. Zanuck and everybody else connected in any way with "Banjo On My Knee" can be proud of an exceptional job.

I most strongly urge exhibitors who play this picture to handle "Banjo On My Knee" with the enthusiasm it so richly warrants.

M-G-M Reich Cost Is $36,750 Per Film

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—The expense of the M-G-M branch in Germany amounts to approximately 175,000 reichsmarks ($36,750) per picture imported in the course of a year, according to F. D. Strengholt, managing director here. The company has 170 employes, with the payroll and maintenance of distribution channels costing 1,000,000 reichsmarks. If 10 films are imported the cost will be 100,000 reichsmarks each. The sum is increased to about 175,000 reichsmarks by the cost of post-synchronization, of 40 prints and the import license.

Admission was made that portions of the film were stock shots, but other parts were filmed by the company. The bill of particulars stated that the picture was shown to Warners in the summer of 1933 with a view to distribution.

a majority of the independents several days to reply to his letter and explain what action they would take before presenting the matter to the police department and Mayor Edward J. Kelly.

This action by the Better Business Bureau is the most direct blow that chance games have received here. Bank Night, which is used in approximately 250 local theatres with weekly awards totaling over $100,000, is regarded as being the most vitally affected. The game as run here is generally conceded to be a lottery as the participants must buy a ticket to be eligible for the prize. Two theatres which will be significantly affected if the Bureau's action results in the banning of the game are the State-Lake and the Oriental, both Loop houses with awards now totaling more than $3,000 apiece.

A decision handed down in municipal court here last week by Judge John Lyle declining a judgment in favor of a woman plaintiff who sued for a giveaway award on the ground that she found the game to be a lottery, is understood to have been the forerunner of the Bureau's action. An expected police investigation following Lyle's decision did not materialize, however.

B. & K. and other exhibitor officials here declined comment on the Bureau's letter but are understood to be conferring on a reply.

B. N. Arrests in Denver

DENVER, Nov. 29.—Managers of four of the seven of the "Lucky 7" theatres were hailed before Police Judge Phillip B. Gilliam on charges of running a gambling game in connection with Bank Night. The specific charge was that purchase of a ticket was required in order to secure a courtesy matinee registration card, which permits participation in the drawing without attendance at the time.

The case was taken under advisement and attorneys for the managers and the city will file briefs. The judge said he would not hand down a decision for about two weeks. This is the first time the validity of Bank Night has been tested in court here.

Reach Bank Night High

DES MOINES, Nov. 29.—Bank Night reached an all-time high peak here when the Tri-States first and second prizes each reached $1,000 and the Independent Theatre prizes were $600 and $400 each. Tri-States are raised $250 a week, while the Independents are raised $50.

Bank Night Denounced

NEW BERN, N. C., Nov. 29.—Bank Night, used by some theatres here, was referred to as gambling and denounced at the closing session of the North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, by Bishop Paul B. Kern, who called for action against the practice.

assailing the commission for its alleged refusal to provide adequate facilities for educational broadcasting. These criticisms of the commission are of long standing.

During the coming session, politics will be less important, Congress will have more time on its hands than it did last winter, and it is possible an investigation may be obtained. However, Congressional leaders feel the F. C. C. is doing all right with the Telephone inquiry and that other complaints can be ironed out .

Use Television Camera

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Baird Television for the first time has just used a new electron camera for direct transmission purposes in a B. B. C. television program. Previously, all Baird transmissions have been through intermediate film. The new apparatus permits dissolving without a black-out and is generally the equivalent of the Emitrone camera used for the E. M. I. transmissions, by direct methods.

Kathleen Addison Assigned

BOSTON, Nov. 29.—Kathleen Addison, daughter of H. M. Addison, division manager for Loew's, who made her radio debut over WMEX recently, is now featured on the weekly program known as "Moments of Poetry."

Miss Addison is a student at Emerson College and comes into her radio and stage talent from her parents, both having been identified with the stage, her mother being the former Kitty Barry, at one time one of the most brilliant stock actresses in the country.

New Antenna for WBOW

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Nov. 29.—William W. Behrman, manager of WBOW, has let a contract for the erection of a new broadcast antenna. The new tower will be a vertical radiator, 215-feet in height. The reason for installing this expensive type tower, according to Behrman, is that the station's business is growing by leaps and bounds and that the new tower and modernization of other equipment will give better reception to the listeners of the Wabash Valley.

WLBF Changed to KCKN

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 29.—WLBF, recently acquired by the Kansas City Kansan, has changed its call letters to KCKN, and its place on the dial from 1,420 to 1,310 kilocycles. KCKN has inaugurated a new series of Wednesday morning (11:45) programs, "Keeping Hubby Happy."

Plans New Station

SCRANTON, Pa., Nov. 29.—Lou Poller, of Jessup has applied to the Federal Communications Commission for permission to establish a 250-watt station, operating on 930 kilocycles during the day only. It will be a commercial station if the permit is granted, Poller said.

RCA Sponsors Metropolitan Opera Series on NBC-Blue

For some time it appeared that NBC would have to place the Metropolitan Opera broadcasts on the air as a sustainer, but late Saturday RCA came through with an offer. As a consequence the series will be broadcast under the RCA aegis, beginning Saturday, Dec. 26 over the NBC-Blue network. The air time for the broadcasts is indefinite, but it is expected that the operas will be heard each week between the hours of 1:30 to 2:30 P.M., E.S.T.

There will be a special pre-Christmas broadcast on Thursday, Dec. 24, probably at 2 P.M. of "Hansel" with the usual pick-up of the performance direct from the stage of the Metropolitan.

Less than two seasons ago, sponsors were engaged in a mad scramble to sign operatic programs with the result that the airways were surfeited with sponsored programs of a "heavy" musical nature.

But apparently the programs were profitless to the sponsors, for it has become increasingly difficult for network salesmen to find backers for operatic programs.

Perhaps it is of no significance, but the fact remains, nevertheless, that David Sarnoff, president of RCA, is also chairman of the board of the Metropolitan Opera Ass'n.

The operatic series will not affect the RCA "Magic Key" program, the Sunday afternoon NBC feature.

Network Gross Gaining

Network business continues to break all preceding records. The gross revenue from national spot and local advertisers (non-network) on NBC-operated stations in October is estimated at $373,986, which is 22 percent higher than the same month last year. This represents the largest revenue from this source for any October and the largest figure for any month in the history of NBC.

National spot advertisers accounted for $231,042, an increase of 19 percent over October, 1935. Local advertisers accounted for $142,944, with the political parties responsible for part of this amount.

Coward and Lawrence Next

Noël Coward and Gertrude Lawrence will make their twice-postponed appearance on Rudy Vallee's Variety program this Thursday (NBC-Red, 8 P.M., E.S.T.). They will offer a sketch from their Broadway vehicle, "Tonight at 8:30."

Other guests on the program will include Ed Wynn, who is returning the call Rudy made on his program last Saturday, Don Cossack's chorus, Doris Hare, English comedienne, and Eddie Peabody, banjoist.

Telephone Co. Goes Radio

The New York Telephone Co., up to now a stranger to radio, begins sponsorship of a new series on Dec. 9, featuring Martha Deane in talks to housewives. The series will be heard thrice-weekly, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 2 to 2:45 P.M., E.S.T. Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborne, New York, is the agency.

Another new WOR program, sponsored by the Vick Chemical Co., bows in tomorrow at 5:10 P.M., E.S.T., through Morse International, Inc.

Heidt to Originate in N. Y.

After an absence from New York of more than three years during which time they have been broadcasting from Detroit, Horace Heidt's Brigadiers return to their weekly program over CBS starting Monday, Dec. 7, at 8 P.M., E.S.T.

The Brigadiers are now on tour and will arrive here Dec. 4. The orchestra broadcasts for the Alemite Corp., a division of Stewart-Warner.

Selassie Over WHN

Haile Selassie, Emperor of Ethiopia at present making temporary headquarters in London, will be heard over WHN on Dec. 3 at 11 P.M., E.S.T. The address, direct from London over transatlantic short wave, is an exclusive WHN feature.

As far as is known, this is the first transoceanic broadcast exclusive with an independent station. Selassie will thank Ethiopian sympathizers for their support in his fight against Italy.

East-West "Bakers" Show

The Dec. 6 "Bakers" broadcast, featuring Robert Ripley, and Ozzie Nelson's band, will be aired from both ends of the nation with Nelson performing from Radio City and Ripley from Hollywood. The "Believe It or Not" cartoonist is now enroute to the coast for a series of personal appearances and is expected back in New York for the Dec. 13 broadcast.

Film Players, Cooper Guests

Ralph Bellamy and Patsy Kelly will be Jackie Cooper's guests on the "WOR Lessons" in Hollywood program this week. Miss Kelly will be heard tonight and Bellamy on Wednesday, from 8 to 8:15 P.M., E.S.T.

Victor Young and his orchestra provide the musical background.

Thibault, Schipa, Et Al

Short Shots: Conrad Thibault will remain on the Packard program for at least another 15 weeks. . . . Tito Schipa signed for guest shot on the Nash-Lafayette speed show on Saturday, Dec. 5. . . . Martin Starr's "Movie Star Dust" program, heard over WMCA, shifts to a new day and time—Sundays, 8:45 P.M., E.S.T, beginning this Sunday. . . . The "Ma Perkins" NBC serial, is the heaviest mail puller in radio, according to a network survey. . . . Gloria Grafton will make her first appearance on the air since the death of her husband, Orville Knapp, tomorrow night at 10:30 P.M., when she guest stars with Eddie Duchin on the latter's NBC-Red network program. . . . Frank Knight of New York and Jerry Lawrence, formerly of the Don Lee network, join the announcing staff of WOR this week. . . . Morton Downey guest solos with Mark Warnow tonight at 10:30 over the CBS network. . . . The sponsors of the Ted Husing-Dal Sharbut "Sport Talk" series over CBS have renewed the pair for another 13 weeks, with personality chatter instead of sports talks to be the new feature.

"Turkey Dinner"

(Universal)

Meany, Miny and Moe, the cartoon characters, are preparing for their Thanksgiving dinner and while doing so encounter all manner of difficulties when the turkey outwits them at the chopping block. There is much destruction and spectacular action combined with cleverly invented sequences, finally resulting with the bird, denuded of its tailfeathers but still intact, escaping. It is amusing. Production Code Seal No. 2,601. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"Royal Cafe"

(Mentone-Universal)

"Lazy Dan" Kaufman, in a restaurant, is trying to land an engagement by demonstrating to Eddie Bruce. While doing this he also introduces various acts among which are the Cecil Mack Choir, Kay Mayfield, the Dunn Brothers and Dotty, and Powers' Chorines. Light, tuneful and entertaining, the film concludes when Kaufman discovers he has been talking to the head waiter. Average material. Production Code Seal No. 01,288. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Banjo On My Knee"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 29.—To make folksie entertainment plenty has been put into this. A Mississippi River love story, it moves to the pitch of comedy, romance, melodrama, music, dancing, excitement and a whole welter of fights. Different from anything occupying the screen, it is slam-bang amusement, leavened by considerable human interest that promises to surprise first run audiences and give a worthy account of itself in the subsequents.

The marriage of Joel McCrea, a river boy, to Barbara Stanwyck, a land girl, starts the ball rolling. Walter Brennan, as McCrea's father, visions the union as a medium for perpetuating the lineage, and is disappointed when his girl friend, Katherine DeMille, sets off the first fireworks. Believing himself to be a murderer, McCrea flees. Miss Stanwyck, falling for Walter Catlett, a photo peddler, goes to New Orleans. Always awaiting for her never-returning spouse, McCrea, who in the meantime beats up Catlett, Miss Stanwyck then becomes interested in Tony Martin, a honky tonk singer. Brennan, with a ridiculous music contraption, is the backbone of a floor show which includes Martin, Miss Stanwyck and Buddy Ebsen.

McCrea returns to see Catlett passing money to Miss Stanwyck, which impels him to stage a one-man riot, wrecking the cafe. Bailed out by Miss DeMille, McCrea is ready to marry her when Miss Stanwyck returns to break up the party. With the river surging in flood, McCrea, Miss Stanwyck and Brennan are adrift. The latter barricades the couple in a cabin where, as calm replaces the turmoil, he settles down to await his grandchild.

Miss Stanwyck, McCrea, Ebsen, Miss DeMille and Brennan come up with high calibre performances, always in keeping with the mood of the story. The support, including Martin, Helen Westley, Minna Gombell, the Hall Johnson Choir, Spencer Charters and George Humbers, is effective.

Based on a novel by Harry Hamilton. Nunnally Johnson did the screenplay. Jimmy McHugh and Harold Adamson contributed the music and lyrics. John Cromwell directed.

Production Code Seal No. 2,848. Running time, 93 minutes. "A."

"Ellis Island"

(Invincible)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 29.—With melodrama and comedy nicely balanced, this is good average entertainment. The story, although weakly constructed in many sequences, nevertheless sustains interest, and the fact that a great deal of the action hinges on coincidences does not mar the general effect.

The plot concerns a million dollar holdup. Jack LaRue and his mobsters cache the loot, but are caught and are sentenced to 10-year terms. Upon their release they are sent to Ellis Island for deportation and the complications center around the recovery of the hidden money which is eventually retrieved through the efforts of Donald Cook, immigration official. Two romances run through the story, one involving Cook and Peggy Shannon, the other Johnny Arthur and Joyce Compton.

Phil Rosen's direction is speedy and manages the transitions from comedy to drama well. Supporting players include Bradley Page, Maurice Black, Bryant Washburn and Matty Fain. Arthur T. Horman wrote the original story and screenplay, and Maury M. Cohen produced. The picture will sustain dual bill programs satisfactorily in most situations.

screens, but he doubted the adequacy of the proposals to help in America, "supposing that the Americans consider that if to lose 50 per cent of the British market they must take greater precautions to retain their own."

Ernest W. Fredman of The Daily Film Renter declared that the proposed Film Commission "beyond any dispute is the outcome of the recent negotiations on the G.B. deal." He said the commission will be the "old man of the sea" to the industry and he regards the report generally with misgivings, since he sees it definitely to the disadvantage of distributors.

The Times, in its leading editorial, praised the commission idea, but on the phase which urged the Government to guard against British company control passing to foreign hands, said, "This would be a deplorable development and of the alternatives, the one most immediately in prospect is scarcely less to be desired."

Inference Touches GB Deal

The statement was interpreted in most quarters as having specific reference to the deal by which John Maxwell would gain control of G.B., the alternative being the American deal for G.B. control.

The Times continued, "This (Maxwell control presumably) is the gradual acquisition by one British financial group of a controlling interest in the industry, amounting to a monopoly."

A further interpretation took the latter statement as referring to the Moyne committee suggestion that British financial interests support the industry's production programs.

The Financial Times lauded the report, taking an opposing view to The Times with the statement, "The recent G.B. negotiations stress the importance of the film industry as a national asset and the desirability of thwarting foreign control."

The Daily Telegraph declared that the quality test for quota determination, as recommended, is the most valuable suggestion.

Plain Speaking from Post

The Morning Post praised the quota provisions, but said, "The suggestion that the Government should encourage the financing of British films is a lamentable reflection on the timid outlook of some British producers. It is pernicious nonsense to suggest that British companies would be able more easily to compete with America if it paid salaries on the fantastic scale of Hollywood. It is doubtful whether the British industry has lacked money during the last few years. What it has lacked is sufficient initiative to leave the film track which was beaten dead flat years ago."

Lord Moyne, chairman of the committee, broadcast an exposition of the report last night.

and happy visit with Il Duce and we discussed the film question at length," he said, "but any statement will, of course, have to come from the American ambassador."

Thanksgiving morning Hays and Mrs. Hays attended services at the American church and began the first of his conferences with American representatives in the afternoon. These were continued Friday.

Relations of the American industry with the French Government are fixed in the recently negotiated trade treaty, he said. There are no Governmental questions pending at this time, he asserted.

British Government Critical of B. F. I.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Malcolm MacDonald, Lord President of the Council, stated in a written reply to Sir Arnold Wilson, M. P., that changes in the constitution and working of the British Film Institute were called for "if the Institute is to have the continued assistance from the Cinematograph Fund."

The question from Sir Arnold Wilson, who is a member of the Advisory Committee under the Films Act and also of the Moyne Committee, referred to evidence in a recent libel case, in which the activities of certain members of the Institute were severely criticized.

The Cinematograph Fund was set up to receive contributions from licensing authorities, as a percentage of the amounts paid by exhibitors to "Charity Levy," authorized by the Act permitting Sunday opening. During the last three years the Treasury has received from licensing authorities the amounts of £3,367, £7,620 and £9,117, and has used a proportion of these amounts as a subsidy of the British Film Institute's work in connection with cultural, teaching and non-entertainment films.

Shape British Plan To Register Titles

LONDON, Nov. 18.—M. Neville Kearney, secretary of the Film Group of the Federation of British Industries, is shaping a plan for the registration of film titles by British producers. The aim is to prevent such situations as that which has arisen in connection with "Calling All Stars," claimed as a musical title by both British Lion and Joe Rock.

On completion of an agreement the F.B.I. will invite the cooperation of American organizations to place it on an international basis, so that a title registration in either New York or London would establish priority in both countries.

Details Asked On "U's" 10% Cancellations

Kuykendall Inquires on Two-Way Splits

An inquiry as to whether or not Universal's 10 per cent cancellation will apply to situations where the company's product is split between two or more exhibitors and each takes all of the pictures thus offered him has been addressed to the distributor by Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, it was learned yesterday.

Universal's grant of a 10 per cent cancellation in line with concessions made to exhibitors under the M.P.T.O.A. 10-point trade practice program stipulated that the exhibitor had to purchase Universal's entire lineup in order to qualify for the cancellation privilege. Kuykendall's letter points out that a distributor's product frequently is divided between two exhibitors and asks whether such exhibitors, who take all the product offered them, although it may be less than the distributor's entire lineup, are eligible for the 10 per cent cancellation. Universal's reply has not been received.

The cancellation policy defined by Twentieth Century-Fox last week in replying to the M.P.T.O.A. specified that it would apply to exhibitors who

Stockholder Opposes Option for Schenck

Frank A. Harden, a Loew stockholder, has written a letter of protest to Leopold Friedman, secretary of Loew's, Inc., against the proposal to give Nicholas M. Schenck an option on 9,600 shares of stock per year for five years at a discount below the market price.

Harden insists that unissued stock belongs to all the stockholders and that Schenck should be on a straight salary.

Second Ostrer Says Maxwell Has No Option

Admits He Must Sell If 20th-Fox Does

John Maxwell does not hold a five-year option on the 5,100 "A" shares of Metropolis & Bradford Trust held by the Ostrers, Maurice Ostrer, managing director of G. B., declared on his arrival yesterday on the Queen Mary. This substantiates the statement made last week by his brother, Isidore.

Ostrer added some light to the confused reports emanating from London when he stated that "in the event Maxwell is successful in purchasing the 4,900 'A' shares owned by Twentieth Century-Fox, then Maxwell has an option to buy our stock."

"So long as Twentieth Century-Fox doesn't sell, we can't sell Maxwell anything," he added. "It doesn't look as if Joseph M. Schenck and Sidney R. Kent will sell, from what I understand." Ostrer said he referred to published statements by Schenck and Kent that they did not intend to dispose of their M. & B. holdings.

"Maxwell doesn't hold an option with us, but if Twentieth Century-

Hollywood, Nov. 30.—Sidney Kent and Joseph M. Schenck, who met today with Isidore Ostrer and Darryl Zanuck on the G. B. deal, stated:

"We met with Ostrer for preliminary discussions concerning the deal. Further talks await the arrival of Maurice Ostrer who leaves New York tomorrow. We will be joined by Nicholas Schenck next week when the matter will be more fully considered.

"There will be no definite announcement until the middle of next week at which time the negotiations probably will be completed."

RKO's Net May Go Up to $2,250,000

RKO's consolidated net earnings for 1936 will pass the $2,000,000 mark and may approximate $2,250,000 if the seasonal December recession is no greater than usual, it was indicated yesterday. Net for the first two months of the current and final quarter is estimated at $600,000.

RKO's net for the entire year of 1935 amounted to $684,732. Net for the first three-quarters of 1936 was $1,446,922. The anticipated $800,000 net for the final quarter would give the company earnings of approximately $2,250,000 for the year.

Wagner Play Interesting; Might Have Been Better

The playwright is bold, indeed and courageous, who would attempt to transform onto any stage and in broad strokes make live again renowned figures in history and art. It is at best a speculative enterprise and an experience in dramaturgy which invites criticism to bowl in, full sail and with all canvas flying.

For its second offering of the season, the Theatre Guild tried it last night at its namesake playhouse with an effort based on the life of Richard Wagner by William McNally. An interesting venture, with music on and off stage from Lohengrin and Tristan und Isolde and with good and something less in performance, the evening was not quite as satisfying as it

CEA-KRS May Jointly Fight Moyne Report

United Moves Indicated At Hays Luncheon

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Joint action by Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n and the Kinematograph Renters' Society (distributors) in opposition to the report of the Lord Moyne committee recommending revisions in the Films Act, was foreshadowed here today in remarks at the British industry's luncheon for Will H. Hays at the Trocadero.

The elements in the report which recommend virtual Government control of the British industry and the flexible quota which would carry the figure to 50 per cent in the course of a 10-year period, are seen as particularly objectionable by both branches of the industry.

The exchange of remarks which was interpreted as indicating the opposition to the Moyne report had Theodore H. Fligelstone, president of the C.E.A., on the one side, and John C. Graham, speaking for D. E. Griffiths, president of the K.R.S., on the other.

Fligelstone, quoting the Moyne report reference to the differences among the three branches of the industry, and the failure of attempts at self-government, said the C.E.A. always had sought the cooperation and assistance of the other sections, but that such cooperation was not always

Arthur Menken Back From Spanish Front

Arthur Menken, Paramount News cameraman, sat by his camera and watched the bombing of Madrid by planes while the cap of a censor covered his lens, he said yesterday upon arrival aboard the Queen Mary. He has no use for censors, especially General Franco's rebel censors.

They wouldn't let him photograph foreign military equipment or operations, or executions, or horror scenes. Most of the other scenes didn't interest him, although he got some fine shots of the rescue of 1,200 rebels at the Alcazar.

Menken was shot in the leg some months ago.

At first he used chartered planes to ship exposed film out of the country and raw stock and money in. This became too dangerous for the flyers, however, and motor cars were used as far as the French border. Then the censor troubles became more acute.

Feist Here for Talks

Felix Feist, Jr., short subject producer for M-G-M, will produce two shorts with Bob Benchley in the east. Feist arrived from Hollywood over the weekend to confer with Benchley. He will be here 10 days.

The shorts will be produced here after the first of the year, Feist stated yesterday. He will return after New Year's to supervise production. Meanwhile, Feist is on a hunt for material for "Crime Doesn't Pay" and musicals.

Neilan Acts Again

Hollywood, Nov. 30.—Marshall Neilan is back acting after directing for 15 years. He plays the role of a director in "A Star Is Born" for United Artists.

Johnston Will Tour; No Studio Deal Yet

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 30.—W. Ray Johnston will leave here tomorrow night on a tour of the exchange centers. Denver probably will be the first stop.

Johnston has decided not to select studio space for Sterling at this time. His decision resulted from the unavailability of desirable quarters.

Sterling Budget $2,300,000

W. Ray Johnston, president, and Scott R. Dunlap, recently named vice-president in charge of production for Sterling Pictures, have set a production budget of $2,300,000 on 26 features and eight westerns. The serial end of the program has not been set.

Dunlap will begin work with his editorial and writing staff Jan. 1. Ten writers will be used, with five unit supervisors for the 26 features and a special unit for the westerns.

New Erpi Pacts Near

Erpi's new recording license agreements with producers may be closed by the year end, Whitford Drake, executive vice-president, said yesterday on his return here from a month's visit to the coast. The new agreements have been the subject of lengthy negotiations but only two points of difference now remain to be settled, it was said.

Cecil B. deMille here delivers a super-western that has had few if any equals in the history of pictures. It condenses a whole period of our most romantic history into two hours of glamorous entertainment, superbly presented, excitingly realized. There is not the least doubt that it will take the boxoffices of the world by storm and roll up a magnificent record.

To the magic of the deMille name is added that of Gary Cooper in a role to which he brings all the best qualities of his recent work and which gives him one splendidly realized opportunity after another. And teamed with him for a gorgeously effective portrait of the famous frontier woman, Calamity Jane, is Jean Arthur, doing the most characterful work of her career and winning high acclaim.

DeMille may have romanticized his history as well as condensed it but he has done it to exceedingly good purpose. The picture makes no claims to be documentary and it does introduce such romantic figures as Buffalo Bill Cody, Wild Bill Hickok and General Custer with sufficing accuracy. It even sacrifices a happy ending to follow history in ending Wild Bill's career with a bullet in a finale that is the one draggy sequence.

All the ingredients of every good western are present in ample measure and have, of course, been glorified under deMille's magic touch. Oddly and wisely he has concentrated on the personal drama so that the mass scenes are kept to an unexpected minimum. Even the Custer massacre is told in a few shatteringly effective feet.

The story concerns itself with the army's campaign to make the west safe for settlers immediately after the Civil War. And it pits Hickok (played by Gary Cooper) and Buffalo Bill Cody, scouts extraordinary, against a gang led by Charles Bickford which was selling rifles to the Indians. Cody has brought his young bride from the east. Hickok is girl-shy but is pursued with frankness and determination by the boisterous and heroic Calamity Jane. The laughable and delightfully sympathetic interplay between these two through the most blood-curdling adventures is the heart of the story—and what a love affair!

The very youthful but vigorous and winning Bill Cody, in the competent hands of James Ellison, takes second-ary place but scores high for Ellison, and his timid eastern wife is charmingly realized by Helen Burgess, an interesting newcomer.

Among the many outstanding portrayals in support are Porter Hall as a cowardly stool-pigeon for the heavies, John Miljan as Custer, Paul Harvey and Victor Varconi as Indians, Fred Kohler Jr., George Hayes and Fuzzy Knight as western types and Frank Albertson, Purnell Pratt, Pat Moriarty, Harry Woods, and George MacQuarrie as soldiers.

DeMille's gifted technical staff must share high honors with him. For direction there is Edwin Maxwell on dialogue and Arthur Rosson, associate, contributing admirable guidance to an outstanding job. The writing, with emphasis on the screenplay of Waldemar Young, Harold Lamb, and Lynn Riggs, is keen, clear, and admirably direct. Brilliant photography that is frequently breath-taking has been delivered by Victor Milner and George Robinson, with effects by Farciot Edouart and Gordon Jennings. George Antheil's vigorous and dramatic music has been built into a highly effective scoring by Boris Morros, and the accoutrements of production are obviously studied with care and are richly contribute... grand pictorial...

Gary Cooper and Jean Arthur in
"THE PLAINSMAN"
with James Ellison, Charles Bickford, Helen Burgess, Porter Hall, Paul Harvey, Victor Varconi

(HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW)

Paramount 115 mins.

STIRRING PICTURE OF THE SETTLEMENT OF THE WEST IS GRAND B. O. MATERIAL.

Cecil B. DeMille has drawn the well-known historical characters, Wild Bill Hickok, Calamity Jane and Buffalo Bill Cody as such dynamic figures in the settling of the West that one cannot help but be fascinated by them. With Gary Cooper, Jean Arthur and Jimmy Ellison as those characters, more perfect players could not have been chosen. The piece is a stirring one with battle scenes that are terrific. Everywhere the DeMille touch for the spectacular is to be found. It is a big production of the "Cimarron" "Covered Wagon" type and its appeal should be to the same kind of audience, and its box-office returns should therefore be great. Cooper in one of those he-man roles which made him famous and which are tailor-made to his talents is superb. A more perfect Calamity Jane could not be dreamed of than Jean Arthur. The handsome Jimmy Ellison as the youthful Buffalo Bill is a natural. While injecting his very likeable qualities into the characterization, he still gives it forcefulness. His acting is of the calibre that stamps him as one of the better of the younger players. Helen Burgess, as his youthful wife, is very capable, and Charles Bickford, as the white man who sells rifles to the Indians, is all that the villain should be. Porter Hall, as a stool pigeon for Bickford, is excellent, and Frank Albertson's work as the hysterical soldier is praiseworthy. Victor Varconi, John Miljan and Purnell Pratt are others who do well in important parts. With data from stories by Courtney Ryley Cooper and Frank J. Wilstach, and material compiled by Jeanie MacPherson, the continuity writers, Waldemar Young, Harold Lamb and Lynn Riggs, have fashioned a screenplay... interesting in historical material, characterizations and situations. Their dialogue is most fitting. As director, Cecil B. DeMille, has injected a fast moving tempo to the proceedings, something worthwhile is always on the screen, and the performances of the players are of the highest order. As producer, he has come through with a big scale production of merit. Victor Milner and George Robinson have done fine work on the photography, especially on some of the scenery. The music, as directed by Boris Morros, is important; in the battle scenes especially it is very effective in gaining the effect. With the end of the Civil War, Cooper returns to the West as a scout. Ellison has married and wants to settle down. The Indian raids make it imperative that the latter return to scouting. Jean Arthur is in love with Cooper and even though he refuses to admit it, he loves her. Cooper and Ellison take part in Indian battles and Cooper learns that Bickford is selling guns to the redskins. Cooper, in self-defense, kills three Army men who really are deserters associated with Bickford. He becomes a hunted man and his old pal, Jimmy, is the one assigned to bring him in. Following the gold strike to Deadwood, Cooper meets Bickford there, where in a gun battle he kills him. While holding Bickford's henchmen awaiting the arrival of the Army Cooper is shot in the back and dies in Jean's arms.

Uses Radio in Reply On Film Guide Fight

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 30.—Declaring that the entire position of Theatre News is misstated in a recent article in the Bridgeport Herald, Jack Schaefer declared in the regular weekly radio broadcast over WELI that the local film guide has no "murderous intentions" or desire to "rule the local movie situation some sweet day." The editor insisted the work of the magazine is "not a crusade against anything," but rather an attempt to get people to spend more money on entertainment and to do so with the basic idea that they have a right to shop for films, as they would for an article in a store. The policy, he stated, is nothing more than to give an "accurate, impartial" description of the current pictures in a compact form which also includes all other available information on events in the territory.

The Herald article is believed to have originated when a manager complained that Theatre News had given his feature an unfavorable review.

Explain Deal with NBC

TOLEDO, Nov. 30.—Contending that this area is being adequately covered by nearby WJR, a CBS affiliate at Detroit, and that there was a definite demand for NBC programs over local WSPD, which conditions were verified by Herbert Akerburg, vice-president of CBS in charge of studio relations, who recently visited here, WPSD will join the NBC-Blue May 1 next, under a five-year agreement.

Contract with CBS, from which WSPD will be released, was on a three-year basis.

Film Producers Tie in on NBC South American Talks

Film producers, business ears and eyes keenly attuned to the South and Central American markets, are tying in heavily on a new program especially arranged for those areas by NBC.

To date Francisco Barrionuevo, Mrs. De Pinilloe and S. Adelantavo, of the Spanish divisions of United Artists, M-G-M and Paramount respectively, have made addresses on the series lauding their respective outputs. Others are to follow.

Two Spanish-speaking members of the NBC staff, Dan Russell, announcer, and Charles Carvajal, production man, are in charge of the program, which is broadcast over W3XAL, NBC's short wave transmitter at Bound Brook, N. J. The program, originally a thrice weekly presentation, has now been extended into a twice daily presentation, 6:20 P. M. on the Red network, and 11:15 P. M., E. S. T., on the Blue.

The series has met with such favorable reception in South and Central America that NBC is now having constructed a new directional-beam antenna, which will be completed sometime in January. The beam will have a spread sufficient to cover all of the South and Central America regions.

It is understood that John Royal's current trip to Latin-America was made specifically to arrange an exchange of broadcasts between this country and the other Americas, rather than for the Pan-American Peace Conference, as has been announced by NBC.

Henceforth, a standing feature on the series will be Edith Ortega, daughter of the publisher of Cine Mundial, Spanish film publication. Miss Ortega will conduct a series of film chats and will present stars from the various production firms. The first picture guest will be Helen Lynd, a principal in Grand National's "Hats Off."

Drop Jessica Dragonette

The Cities Service Concerts, unchanged in pattern or personalities since 1930, will undergo a radical alteration within the next broadcast or so, it was reliably learned by MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday. Jessica Dragonette, the program mainstay for the past seven years, will be replaced by Lucille Manners in the initial shake-up.

Lord and Thomas admit that Miss Manners had been signed for the series and that Miss Dragonette has received notice that her option will not be taken up. The change becomes effective on Feb. 5.

News of the impending change will probably come as a shock to Radio Row and listeners, for the program and Miss Dragonette have always placed fairly high in the official popularity polls.

The series is one of the oldest on the NBC books, having begun shortly after the inception of the network in 1925. It started unostentatiously with a quartet and two years later, in 1927, added the Goldman concert band. In 1927, Rosario Bourdon's band replaced Goldman's, and in 1930 Miss Dragonette joined the troupe.

The series always has been an NBC-Red presentation, 8 to 9 P. M., E. S. T.

Still Pending

No official action has been taken yet on the Fred Waring-Ford Motor Co. renewal, but it was ascertained yesterday that the orchestras of Red Nichols and Paul Whiteman have been auditioned sotto voce for the berth.

The Waring contract expires on Dec. 25; Whiteman leaves the Woodbury program on Jan. 3; and Nichols is currently off the air.

Crosby Anniversary Nears

Bing Crosby will celebrate his first anniversary on the Kraft Music Hall program next Thursday, Dec. 3. Bing made his first appearance on the series on Dec. 5, 1935, when he sang over the air from Hollywood with the rest of the show originating from New York. Early in January of this year he took over the full-hour variety program, originating in Hollywood.

Crosby will begin his second season by featuring as guest artists Gene Raymond, Alice Faye, and Gregor Platigorsky, cellist.

May Use Hal Kemp

Pall Mall cigarettes yesterday afternoon auditioned Hal Kemp's band for a proposed new series which is expected to be placed on the CBS channel some time next month. The series will be in the interest of the new popular priced package of cigarettes the company recently placed on sale.

KSTP Takes to Air With New Equipment

ST. PAUL, Nov. 30.—Backed by a heavy promotion campaign, KSTP went on the air today with its new $300,000 transmitter.

In addition to the promotion drive to acquaint the Northwest with the opening, a followup campaign is being planned by Ray Jenkins, KSTP general sales manager. It will run far into 1937 and will include a new type of listener survey, developed exclusively by Jenkins; issuance of a new standard market data book for the Northwest; a 10-day broadside on "Sales Tales," the station's publication, which will feature the new transmitter; and the placing in stores throughout the area of a new series of listen-in posters, featuring the new installation.

The new transmitter, centrally located between the two cities includes among its features a 363-foot vertical uniform cross-section antenna, an auxiliary transmitter for emergency use, a specially designed trouble supervisory system for location and automatic rectification of any sort of trouble and inclusion of room for additional transmitters.

Another Theatre-Radio Co-op.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 30.—The Mary Anderson is co-operating with WAVE in the airing of a "Man on the Street" broadcast in the interest of Minute-Rub. to eliminate all giveaway games in this city's theatres. It is understood that the exhibitors will try to strike a compromise in order that the prize games may be continued.

The latest attack on the giveaway policy was made today by Irving S. Roth, president of the Lawyers Legislative League of America, who sent a message to Attorney General Otto Kerner requesting that he seize all cash prizes now offered at theatres and recover for the state all prizes won by patrons since the drawings started. This demand may result in a ruling by the attorney general regarding the games since the police commissioner here has refused to take action, saying that the attorney general is the only one with power to act in the matter.

In the meantime, theatres are continuing the drawings and games. Theatre executives are non-committal other than to say that they are doing nothing which is illegal.

Action Against Game Filed

San Francisco, Nov. 30.—Ten-O-Win Amusements has filed suit in Federal Court here against Blumenfeld Theatres and Edward LaMontagne, operator of Rolleo Amusement Co., charging infringement of the Ten-O-Win copyright, and unfair competition. Ten-O-Win is a wheel device used as a theatre promotion.

Blumenfeld's DelPaso Theatre in Sacramento is declared to be the scene of the infringement against which a restraining injunction is asked. A temporary injunction pending trial of the case also is asked, with damages claimed said to be "more than $100,000."

Ten-O-Win is now being distributed nationally through National Screen Service, and it is claimed Rolleo is identical with it except that Rolleo uses three separate wheels to be employed on the theatre stage, while Ten-O-Win uses three wheels on the same center pin. It is claimed in the action that LaMontagne obtained the Ten-O-Win plans while seeking employment with that company, according to Arthur Miller, manager.

Allied Fights Bank Night License

Minneapolis, Nov. 30.—The squabble over the legality of a copyright to Bank Night is still on in Minneapolis with Northwest Allied fighting the attempt by Affiliated Enterprises to collect payment from users of the cash giveaway.

Not opposed to the system itself, Allied is endeavoring to clarify the system and to determine whether or not Affiliated Enterprises legally can collect a license fee from users of the system which it allegedly owns through copyright. Allied has suggested a suit by Affiliated against an exhibitor to develop a test case.

Advertise Games in N. O.

New Orleans, Nov. 30. — Bank Night is now being advertised here on billboards and the radio, while Broadway Handicap users employ half-sheets. Bank Night users are covering their fronts with banners. Insurance companies, "insuring" the payoff, charge 10 cents a night.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Gold Diggers of 1937"

(Warners)

Hollywood, Nov. 30.—Maintaining the "Gold Diggers" tradition, the 1937 version is an elaborately staged musical comedy. The expected quota of girls and glamour makes up the gackground, with plenty of music and dancing, and comedy is, of course, the keynote of the yarn.

A life insurance company suddenly finds itself in the show business, with the wild agent, Dick Powell, aided by Joan Blondell, Glenda Farrell, Lee Dixon and Rosalind Marquis, trying to keep Victor Moore, $1,000,000 policy-holder, alive, while the heavies, Osgood Perkins and Charles D. Brown, seek to finish him.

About that premise is woven the laugh-provoking comedy, the dancing culminating in a black and white military silhouette scene which is an elaborate feature of the production.

Moore almost steals the show as he introduces a new character in the "Gold Diggers" series. Miss Marquis and Dixon are excellent, and the standbys, Powell, Miss Blondell and Miss Farrell, measure up to their previous work. Perkins and Brown add pace to the story as the pair of chiselers out after Moore. William Davidson, as a motto-slinging insurance executive, contributes a high caliber performance.

Harry Warren and Al Dubin and Harold Arlen and E. Y. Harburg did the music and lyrics, three of which are Powell solos and one a duet with Miss Blondell.

The dance numbers were created and directed by Busby Berkeley, and Leo Forbstein directed the musical arrangement of Ray Heindorf. Based on a play by Richard Maibaum, Michael Wallach and George Haight, the screen play was by Warren Duff and Lloyd Bacon directed.

There are one or two spots where the dialogue becomes a bit intimate, but not to the extent where it should cause any serious difficulties.

Looking 'Em Over

"Three Smart Girls"

(Universal)

Deanna Durbin, 13-year-old radio singer heard with Eddie Cantor, and Charles Winninger, that pleasant old veteran of musical comedy, pick up most of the available fun and honor in "Three Smart Girls" and send it over the line neatly as a refreshing and extremely likable comedy with slight, but unimportant dramatic overtones.

This is the young Miss Durbin's first picture. In the light of it, she does an extraordinarily good job. Not only has she a voice with a quality that is astonishing for her tender age, but she also has on her credit side acting ability of a stature that surprises along with her abilities as a singer. Winninger, of course, has long since established his reputation as a comedian. But here, he demonstrates he can induce sympathy without turning maudlin.

It appears he has been divorced from his wife, Nella Walker, for 10 years. In that time their three children—Deanna, Nan Grey and Barbara Read—have grown old enough and sensible enough to understand that their mother continues to love their father. When word reaches them in Switzerland that he is about to be encompassed by the foils of an old-fashioned gold digger, played extravagantly by Binnie Barnes, the three girls leave for New York determined to stop the romance. They do and they do it smartly after several amusing mixups which bring Ray Milland into the picture as the man Miss Reade falls in love with, and John King as the stalwart with whom the other older girl, Miss Grey, seeks her happiness. It is Deanna, however, who pulls the final coup via a runaway which blocks the Winninger-Barnes nuptials and clears the way finally to the family reconciliation.

There is Alice Brady in the cast. She is the grasping mother ferreting out a wealthy match for Miss Barnes and is splendid in her usual way. Mischa Auer does a fine, perpetually drunken Hungarian count and the remainder of the cast is effective.

"Three Smart Girls" ought to please mightily. It is good and wholesome fun based on an original story and script by Adele Comandini. Joseph Valentine photographed expertly and Henry Koster directed under Joseph Pasternak as associate producer.

Production Code Seal No. 2,730. Running time, 84 minutes. "G."

Poem

'Twas the month before Xmas
And all through the industry not a creature was stirring Except Leo the M-G-M Lion who was gifting exhibitors with "Born To Dance" and
"Love On The Run" "Tarzan Escapes" and "Libeled Lady" and lots of other nice things to make Everybody forget Christmas Shopping
And go to theatres playing
M-G-M Pictures.

Looking 'Em Over

"Ride 'Em Cowboy"

(Universal)

With a story that departs widely from the routine, although it follows a familiar pattern, "Ride 'Em Cowboy" is an excellent western. The story by Buck Jones, the production, photography and melodrama and comedy, are well blended. It is a fine item for all western picture audiences.

Briefly, the story concerns Jones' adventures after he leaves his home town pursued by a posse. When he hops on a freight train his neighbors are glad to be rid of him because of his mischief on pay day visits to town. In a box car he teams up with George Cooper, who poses as a racing car mechanic. Persuaded by Cooper, he learns to handle the machine which is being delivered to a ranch owner who will race it to forestall attachment of his holdings. After many amusing situations Jones comes through, wins the race and Luana Walters.

Herbert Kirkpatrick and Allen Thompson have turned in a fine photographic job, particularly in riding scenes. A strong supporting cast includes William Lawrence, Joseph Girard, J. P. McGowan, Donald Kirke and Charles Lemoyne. Les Selander directed.

CEA-KRS May Jointly Fight Moyne Report

forthcoming. The exhibitor leader expressed the hope that the same mistake would not be made now as was made in 1926.

Graham, speaking later, said, "The K.R.S. is ready and willing to stand shoulder to shoulder with the C.E.A. to discuss things for the common good."

Fligelstone's reference to 1926 was to the failure of the Americans at that time to help exhibitors in their fight against the quota bill.

The general feeling in informed circles here is that the exhibitors and distributors will fight the Moyne report, while producers appear to be divided. It is seen as highly unlikely that the Government will adopt the full report.

Talks Resume Dec. 8

Meanwhile, the General Purposes Committee of the C.E.A. adjourned the meeting held today on the Moyne report until Dec. 8, presumably to permit a contact with the K.R.S. in the interval.

Approximately 20 attended the luncheon for Hays, including Sir Walter Womersley, assistant Postmaster General; Arthur Loew and George Hall, M.P. C.E.A. and exhibitor leaders included Sir Arthur Clavering, Richard Dooner, former C.E.A. president; Arthur Jarratt, Joseph Pollard, R. E. Richards, A. J. Gale and Kenneth Nyman, chairman of the London and Home Counties Branch, C.E.A.

Distributor representatives included: Graham, Paramount managing director; Maurice Silverstone, head of United Artists here; Sutton Dawes, W. J. Gell, managing director for Pathe, Ltd., Samuel Eckman, M-G-M managing director here. Others included: James M. Beck, Hays office representative here; Harold Smith, Paris representative of the Hays office; J. Neville Kearney, secretary of the F.B.I. Films Group, and Harry Marks.

Fligelstone in Tribute

John Maxwell was out of town, and Lord Tyrell, Griffiths and Thomas Ormiston also were absent.

Fligelstone, acting as chairman of the affair, referred to the frequent British cry in crises, "We want a Will Hays." In welcoming the guest of honor as a model of leadership for all trade officials, Fligelstone called Hays an ambassador extraordinary of a very great nation, and expressed the hope that his visit here would further bind together English-speaking races.

If Hays could give the British industry a lead in self-government his visit would go down as one of the greatest events in the history of the industry, Fligelstone indicated.

Hays, in a lengthy address, said it was not his purpose to discuss potentially controversial matters, but to advocate confidence and cooperation. He prophesied third dimension and more progress in color work as film's next developments, saying that although the screen's major objects were entertainment, "to use films for that purpose only would be as intelligent as to use English only for novels."

The screen's 250,000,000 patrons each week are a challenge to the teacher, to science and to art to use the power of the screen, he said. Hays found a strange parallel in the fall of civilizations and the decadence of their amusements. He did not know which was cause and which effect, he said, but their effort was to improve films in the belief that they might be riveting the girders of society. Films might be a definite contributing factor to the advancement of our own civilization, he said.

Hays Reception Cordial

Pointing to the improvement in films in the last three years, Hays said America's reply to criticism was to say it with pictures. "I am a friend to everyone in the business and I want everyone in the business to be a friend of mine."

The president of the M.P.P.D.A. received a hearty reception. Graham, acting for the distributors in Griffiths' absence, presented several other of the notable guests, mentioning specifically Loew as the son of the greatest pioneer in the business. Hays will sail for New York on Wednesday.

One comment concerning the quota provisions of the Moyne recommendations was to the effect that American "B" pictures could not be imported if the quota cover for them is too expensive, which would have the result of leaving British exhibitors with a shortage of product.

Maxwell was quoted in the Daily Film Renter as being generally in favor of "a fair attempt at compromise on conflicting viewpoints." He was quoted as believing that the quality test recommendation for the quota and the Film Commission proposal called for considerable thought.

Korda Talks on Quota

Alexander Korda viewed the report as highly satisfactory, praising the quality clause and Film Commission, and on the 50 per cent quota said, "If we can do it, why not? I would not keep out a single good American film and there is nothing hostile to American producers in the recommendations."

Capt. Richard Norton, B. & D. directed the practicability of the quality test, favored the continuation of the quota, but refused comment on the 50 per cent eventual figure.

Basil Dean declared the Film Commission would be highly dangerous, believing it might permit control of the industry to pass to the Government. Max Schach was entirely in favor of the report, praising the quality clause.

Editor Likes It

Half the nation's crime battle might be won if present and prospective racketeers saw and learned the lesson of the picture "You Can't Get Away With It," the N. Y. -Herald-Tribune observed yesterday in an editorial entitled "Law Enforcement on the Screen."

The picture, made with the cooperation of J. Edgar Hoover, depicts highlights of the work of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Second Ostrer Says Maxwell Has No Option

Fox sold out, then we would be forced to sell," he said. Ostrer explained that the 240,000 non-voting shares recently purchased by Maxwell were the balance of this classification held by the Ostrers.

Contradicting his brother in part, Ostrer said Maxwell is a director of G. B. and has been on the board for the past two months. "However," he continued, "Maxwell has nothing at all to say about running the company." Isidore, when he arrived last week, claimed that Maxwell was not a member of either the G. B. or M. & B. directorates.

Ostrer denied he was here on the Twentieth Century-Fox-M-G-M deal, throwing a bouquet to his brother at the same time time. "Isidore is very capable and doesn't need me on it." He also said he was not acting as liaison for Maxwell. "You don't think I would come all the way for that?" he asked. He explained he was here on a talent hunt, mostly stars, and planned to remain three weeks.

Queried on Conferences

Asked if he would confer with Schenck and Kent when he arrived on the coast, he said he had no such plans "although we are very friendly." Later in the interview, he intimated he may confer with his brother and the Twentieth Century-Fox executives during his contemplated 10-day stay in Hollywood. Notwithstanding, he insisted he was not concerned with the three-way alliance. He admitted Isidore was here to try to conciliate Schenck and Kent and believes "he will patch up" the ill-feeling which is said to have existed since the tri-company pact fell through.

Queried on whether there was a possibility of reviving the original deal, Ostrer smiled and evaded the question. It was repeated. The smile disappeared, he talked.

"There may be," he said.

Leaving for Dallas

Accompanied by Arthur Lee, Ostrer and his wife will leave tomorrow via American Airlines for Dallas, where they will spend a day and then head for the coast where Isidore Ostrer and A. C. Blumenthal arrived late last week.

Ostrer admitted he knew Michael Balcon was leaving G. B. at the end of the year. He said he had heard reports that Balcon was joining M-G-M as head of British production. When Isidore was interrogated on this point, he said Balcon's contract would not end for many months and that he was not aware of reports that he would join M-G-M.

Sam Eckman, head of M-G-M activities in England, cabled a denial of the Balcon report. He said: "Balcon is still under contract to G. B. and statements that he is under contract to M-G-M are premature at this time."

Ostrer indicated he may be appointed G. B. production chief when Balcon leaves. He now has charge of Gainsborough studios. Balcon is head at Shepherd's Bush, which turns out the bulk of the G. B. program. The board of directors, he said, first must approve the appointment. G. B. will make 24 next season, the same as the current year, he said. London has reported several times that production would be trimmed to 12.

Maxwell Maintains Silence

LONDON, Nov. 30.—John Maxwell today refused to comment on Isidore Ostrer's New York statement that the former held no option to buy the latter's "A" stock in M. & B. Maxwell is believed awaiting copies of the interview published in America.

Phillips in New Firm

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Sam Phillips, former general sales manager of G. B., has become associated with a producing and distributing company handling Sound City product.

British Censors End Clause in Agreement

LONDON, Nov. 20.—The British Board of Film Censors has deleted from its agreement with distributors the clause by which the latter agreed only to handle films passed by the board.

The change gives formal recognition to the legal situation that an appeal from a B. B. F. C. ruling to the local licensing authority has always been open and has, in fact, often been exercised. The B. B. F. C. clause was regarded as illegal by many.

The change now announced was reported many months ago. It means that a distributor can exercise his legal right of appeal against the B. B. F. C. without disloyalty to an agreement between the K. R. S., representative distributors' body, and the censorship body.

The change is credited to the entertainments committee of the London County Council which made the representations to the censor board.

English Court Gives "Kleig Eye" Verdict

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Justice Porter, in the King's Bench Division, has handed down a decision which amounts to a declaration that producing companies are responsible for "Klieg Eye" in artists working in their films.

Peggy Crawford sued Criterion Film Prod., Ltd., and Gunther Krampf, cameraman, alleged that her eyes had been seriously injured by the studio lights used in a ballroom scene for "The Amateur Gentleman."

Awarding her £126: 19 s., the judge said Miss Crawford's eyes were severely burned. He did not find the lights were kept on for too long a period or that they were of supra-normal power or intensity.

The action against Krampf was dismissed, the judge finding no proof that he had control of the lights.

Wagner Play Interesting; Might Have Been Better

should have been considering the potentialities of the subject.

There were lofty moments, such as when Wagner, believing he had found another true love in the person of Mathilde Wesendonck, the wife of his patron on The Green Hill near Zurich in 1858, actually found in her image the inspiration of the famous rapture theme for Tristan.

From time to time and, significantly enough to this reviewer on those occasions only when stirring passages from the Wagnerian genius undertoned the dialogue, the play stepped out of the thongs that seemed to tie it down. But it was the grandeur of the music with which the author had nothing at all to do and the occasional excellent duets of Beal Hober and Arthur Gerry that provided the emotional lift, not anything that had emerged from the McNally workshop.

"Prelude to Exile" was the title. It confined itself to that portion of Wagner's active and stormy career when the plan for his impassioned and lyrical Tristan had begun to take form. He drew his inspiration largely from his attraction for Frau Wesendonck, who collaborated with him, but more importantly furnished the spark that fired his imagination into music.

The Rienzi opera, The Flying Dutchman, Tannhauser and Lohengrin had been written by this time. There in Zurich, an exile from Dresden, he had plotted part of the Nibelungen trilogy, but had temporarily abandoned it for this new work, drawn from the immortal love tragedy out of the mists of the past. With his wife, Minna, Wagner had been constantly quarreling, yet her sacrifices of 20 years and the disregard and almost open contempt in which Wagner viewed them and her make of Evelyn Varden's role perhaps the most sympathetic in last night's play.

Versatility Unequaled

Frau Wesendonck eventually agrees to leave with Wagner. Then, at the last minute and recognizing what the composer did not, that she actually was an artistic mirror from which he drew his notes, decides to stay. Off Wagner goes, history telling that Das Rheingold, Die Walkure, Siegfried and Goetterdammerung were eventually to come.

Wagner was a poet, an essayist, a student of the classics and an omniverous reader. He had mixed in politics, was forced to leave Germany through the assistance of Franz Liszt. Wagner was arrogant, a charlatan, in debt. He used his friends. He was impatient, violent and inclined to fake. He was inconsiderate, but he never deviated one iota from the integrity of his purpose as a musician in the purist sense of the word.

Much of this has been written into the characterization and considerable in Wilfrid Lawson's interpretation grasps it. As Mathilde Wesendonck, Eva La Gallienne returns to the Theatre Guild in a part played well enough technically, but leaving something to be desired. Miss Varden as Minna Wagner, this reviewer thought to be very good, as was Lucile Watson as the Countess Marie D'Agoult, mother of Cosima who eventually, but not in the play, became Wagner's second wife.

There are variations from the authorities, too. Wagner did not part with Minna in 1859, as the play tells but two years later. Yet, in the outline and in much detail, the character is essentially accurate. It is regrettable that the play construction itself did not ramble less, for in a tighter version this corner-lifting chapter into the life of the great musician might have been a better endeavor.

The Coward Plays

The third trio of short plays presented by Noel Coward, triple threat man of the three-sided theatre, in his three-ply program under the bracket title of "Tonight at 8:30," is as barren of picture material as it is rich in the sin and talk of sin sweet enough to the ear of his silk-hatted and sabled public to pack the National theatre with them and rattle its rafters with their applause. Which is, by no means, to say that they are not, in their way, all that they are cracked up to be, which is not, after all, screen material.

The first of the third three offerings is a modern, merry little item entitled "Ways and Means." It is boudoir stuff, first, last and always, played for the most part in bed and for the whole part playfully. In essence, it's the story of stranded young dulyweds who suborn a burglar to steal for them from another house guest enough money to take them on to their next weekend. The lines are good, occasionally hot, and Coward and Gertrude Lawrence, his first aide in all these matters, are what people like Coward and Miss Lawrence call ripping.

The second number, "Still Life," is less sprightly. Under other auspices it would be pronounced dull. It is dull. For several scenes, in the restaurant of a railway station, the principals discuss an imminent act of adultery, go forth to commit it, return to announce and mourn its rude interruption, going their separate ways ultimately while even a worshipping audience yawns. This undoubtedly is Coward's net low for the nine-hole course.

Coward Not Helped by "Album"

The third play, "Family Album," is a kindly caricature of English life in 1860 and quite a lot of engaging humor is dealt with, decorously and in impeccable taste, before sin, represented by the ashes thereof in this instance, raises its reputedly ugly head as the heirs of the paternal deceased, having met to mourn his end, remain to celebrate it in the blood of the grape and toast the kindly servitor who has destroyed his last and overconscientious will and testament. This may also be set down in the history books as the play in which Coward, knowingly or not, conducts himself in the manner of the ham and, for that matter, to the nines.

Of the three, together, it is to be said that they comprise a large evening in the theatre, that they are magnificently mounted, superbly directed, consummately acted plays. That they are not for the screen, were not intended for it, and that no amount of pruning, editing, rewriting and translating—that is, no amount short of that which would make of them something quite different than what they are—would render them suitable screen material, for this or any nation, is perhaps a loss to the filmic medium. After all, the stage, it may be admitted, is entitled to have this much for itself and its faithful if few staunch supporters.

Chicago Group Moves Against Theatre Games

Business Bureau Sends Letter to Officials

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—Kenneth Barnard, general manager of the local Better Business Bureau, tomorrow will send letters to Mayor Edward Kelly, Police Commissioner Allman and Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes, directing their attention to the use of Bank Night and other games by local theatres, which is characterized by the bureau as in violation of the Illinois anti-lottery laws.

The planned action by Barnard followed a lengthy conference today among Barnard, Morris Leonard, head of the Chicago Exhibitors' Ass'n, and Aaron Saperstein, president of Allied Theatre Owners of Illinois. The conference in turn followed an identic letter addressed by Barnard to the two groups pointing out that the use of games is a law violation.

Barnard said after the meeting that no decision was reached for a settlement of the controversy on drawing in Chicago theatres, that the theatre operators claim they are not violating

Film Workers and Salaries Exceeded 1929 Total in '35

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The number of persons engaged in the production branch of the industry exceeded even the figure of pre-depression days and total salaries and wages paid was in excess of $100,000,000, it was revealed today by the U. S. Census Bureau.

Making public a summary of its census of film production for 1935, the bureau reported 129 establishments as compared with 92 in 1933 and 142 in 1929. The total number employed today is given as 27,417 as against 19,037 in 1933 and 19,602 in 1929. Of the total persons engaged in the industry, salaried employes number 12,500 compared with 8,260 in 1933 and 8,818 in 1929.

Total salaries and wages paid last year amounted to $101,754,426. The figure two years earlier was $71,343,941, while for 1929 it was $85,027,612. Classifying these totals, $77,068,021 last year went for salaries and the remainder for wages. This compares with $52,948,452 for salaries in 1933 and $60,167,520 in 1929.

Contract work let out by the studios in 1935 totalled $5,144,976. In 1933 it was $4,027,665 and in 1929, $11,311,716. The cost of studio supplies, film

"Square Deal" Promised ITO By Lichtman

Producer-Exhibitor Peace Asked in Address

COLUMBUS, Dec. 1.—"A square deal from M-G-M" for every exhibitor was promised by Al Lichtman in the course of an address delivered at the fourth annual convention of the I.T.O. which opened at the Wallick Hotel here today.

Lichtman, whose talk was the highlight of the session, stated that he welcomed the opportunity to clarify the sales policy of his company in an effort to create a better understanding between producer and exhibitor. The day is gone, he said, when the exhibitor and distributor are out to cheat one another and "M-G-M will be no party to the infliction of an injustice on any exhibitor."

Lichtman quoted figures to prove that the tremendous increase in production cost during the past two years is out of proportion to the increased income from domestic business. Only the foreign outlet, he stated, made it possible to exist. He added that production losses were compensated by the profits of Loew's theatres and defended the high salaries paid to executives on the ground that their business is a creative one for which no precedent exists.

M-G-M's policy, Lichtman explained, is that the cost of every M-G-M picture must be justified at the

Canada Sets Appeal Board on Copyright

TORONTO, Dec. 1.—Not until the closing date for complaints on the fees fixed for the Canadian Performing Rights Society for 1937 did the Canadian Government make known the personnel of the Copyright Appeal Board which was created under the amended Canadian Copyright Act for the hearing of protests by theatres and other amusement operators.

A man of high judicial office has been appointed chairman of the board in Justice A. K. McLean of the Exchequer Court of Canada. The two other members are E. H. Coleman, under Secretary of State, and Paul Fontaine, K. C., of the Federal Dep't. of Justice.

According to Fernand Rinfret, Secretary of State, the office of the board will be maintained at Ottawa, but sittings of the tribunal will be held in the larger centers of Canada. Although it had been announced that appeals against the society's rates would not be accepted after Dec. 1, Rinfret stated that the board would sit from time to time wherever and whenever complaints are received.

Will of A. J. Small Is Upheld in Canada

TORONTO, Dec. 1.—Perhaps the last legal echo has been heard of the mysterious disappearance 17 years ago this month of A. J. Small, Toronto theatre magnate, just after he had received $2,000,000 for his circuit in Ontario.

The final chapter is the dismissal by Justice Nicol Jeffrey of the action by Mary Florence Small, sister of the missing theatre man, to upset the will of Small's widow involving a $2,000,000 estate, much of which had been bequeathed to the Catholic Church. During the recent eight-day trial, an alleged murder confession by Small's widow was thrown out as being an "unquestioned forgery" and the will was allowed to stand.

C B S to Have Coast Traffic Department

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 1.—Hugh Cowhan, traffic manager for CBS, arrived today to establish a coast traffic department. In the past the western schedule has been handled by the KHJ Don Lee network. This will be lost in a changeover to KNX necessitating the local department.

Whether the office will be located in Los Angeles or San Francisco has not been decided but it is known that it will be a sub-division of the New York traffic department with Donald W. Thornburgh, coast CBS head, in charge.

Anticipating the KNX national network affiliation, 17 medicine and religious program accounts now running have been ordered cancelled because of the CBS policy in this regard.

Thornburgh is now in San Francisco on company business.

FCC Assigns Station Permits to CBS, Inc.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The assignment of several Columbia Broadcasting System station licenses to CBS, Inc., which is to operate all the stations, for tax purposes, was approved today by the Federal Communications Commission.

At its weekly meeting the broadcast division consented to the voluntary assignment to CBS, Inc., of Stations WABC-WBOQ, New York, heretofore operating as the Atlantic Broadcasting Corp.; KNX, Los Angeles, operating as the Columbia Broadcasting System of California, Inc.; WJSV, Washington, operating as Old Dominion Broadcasting Co.; WEEI, Boston, operating as WEEI Broadcasting Corp., and WKRC, Cincinnati, operating as WKRC, Inc.

Charlesworth Quits Radio

TORONTO, Dec. 1.—Although he had been invited to continue with the new Canadian Broadcasting Corp. in an advisory capacity, Hector Charlesworth, chairman of the previous Canadian Radio Commission for four years, has confirmed his retirement from public service to return to his journalistic career here. For many years prior to his appointment to the Government commission Charlesworth had been an outstanding film and dramatic critic and he plans to resume this work.

Cut Sports to Three Days

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 1.—J. Roy Stockton, sports reporter for the Post-Dispatch, and Jimmy Conzelman, director of athletics for Washington University, are now doing a three-day sports review schedule over KSD, at 9 P. M. Sundays, and at 6:45 P. M. Tuesdays and Thursdays. They will continue on that basis throughout the winter, resuming their six-days-a-week schedule when the baseball season reopens.

thus stepped into the honor spot for the first time in over 18 months.

The report was a surprise in other respects. It noted improved ratings for the Bing Crosby "Kraft Music Hall" series and included among the first 10 the Ford Sunday Night Symphony Hour in the full hour show classification. In the half-hour ratings the Phil Baker series reflected a sharp leap forward.

Leaders in the hour show division follow:

Program	Full-Hour Programs
Town Hall Tonight	22.5
Major Bowes Amateurs	22.4
Good-Will Court	21.4
Hollywood Hotel	20
Lux Radio Theatre	18.8
Bing Crosby Music Hall	17.5
Vallee Variety Hour	17
Packard (Fred Astaire) Program	16.2
Hit Parade (Lucky Strike)	14.9
Ford Sunday Night Symphony	14
Shell Chateau	12.6

In the 30-minute category, the first 10 were these:

Program	Half-Hour Programs
Jack Benny	31.3
Eddie Cantor	22.3
Burns & Allen	21.1
Phil Baker	17.1
Bob Ripley	14.8
One Man's Family	14.7
Vick's Open House (Nelson Eddy)	13.5
Ben Bernie	13.1
Pick and Pat	12.1
Fibber McGee & Molly	11.9

Among the quarter-hour four and five times weekly programs, Amos 'n' Andy were rated first with an average of 13.7; Lowell Thomas second, 12.4, and Boake Carter third, 11.1. The once-a-week quarter-hour programs were led by Walter Winchell, 10.1, and Jimmy Fiddler, 5.

The official report holds the average rating of all 60-minute programs to be 14.0; all 30-minute programs, 7.0; the quarter-hour programs broadcast four or five times weekly, 10.4, and the quarter-hour once a week programs, 3.3.

"Lloyds" Principals Signed

Freddie Bartholomew, Madeleine Carroll and Tyrone Power, Jr., of the "Lloyds of London" cast will re-create scenes from the picture on the Dec. 11 "Hollywood Hotel" broadcast.

Oddly enough, young Freddie is the only member of the cast with any radio experience. He has broadcast on many network programs and last summer, while in New York on personal appearances at the Capitol, spoke quite frequently on the Loew-owned station, WHN. Miss Carroll and Power are newcomers to the microphone.

Cantor to Ham "Hamlet"

The silly season in radio is now in full swing. Ed Wynn set the pace some two weeks ago by offering a version of "Hamlet," and now Eddie Cantor, not to be outdone, has decided also to portray the Melancholy Dane on his program this Sunday, when Leslie Howard will be Cantor's guest for the evening, but instead of sticking to serious drama, Howard will step into Cantor's shoes and assay the role of comedian.

Champ on the Air

Champion Jimmy Braddock turned radio actor for the wife and kiddies last night in a new script series based on the title holder's real life story. The program is sponsored by the Tastyeast Candy Co. thrice weekly on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays at 7:15 (E. S. T.) over NBC-Blue network.

The series is frankly aimed at the youngsters and as such it scores. Last night the champ had an easy time of it because most of the script was taken up with his childhood, a part effectively portrayed by Gabriel Dell, a young character actor recruited from "Dead End," current Broadway stage production. But the little that Jimmy had to do he did well enough, considering his acting limitations. He was surprisingly free from mike shyness, and while he will never have to worry about winning a radio diction award, his readings were blessedly free from affectation.

The only marring note struck during the broadcast was the too wordy commercials.

BANNER.

Francis Lederer, Too

Another film player who will face the microphone this week is Francis Lederer, who has been signed as Radie Harris' guest on WHN this Friday from 8 to 9 P. M., E. S. T.

An additional film feature of the broadcast will be a presentation of a tabloid version of the "Big Broadcast of 1937," with WHN players enacting the roles of Jack Benny, Gracie Allen, Bob Burns and Shirley Ross.

Confirming MOTION PICTURE DAILY's story of last week that internal dissension and feud were rending the Sealtest Saturday Night Party program, Walter O'Keefe, the program's star, yesterday walked out of the show, leaving the series minus a feature name. N. W. Ayer & Co., agency handling the show, will carry on with guest stars each week.

Beery on Air Tomorrow

Wallace Beery and Josephine Huston will appear on tomorrow night's Sears "Then and Now" program, heard over the CBS network at 10 P. M., E. S. T. Beery will be featured in a dramatization and an interview, while Miss Huston will sing.

Kelly, Niesen, Et Al

Short Shots: Patsy Kelly on Dec. 22, Gertrude Niesen on Dec. 29, and Henry Armetta and Herman Bing on Jan. 5, will guest star on the Ben Bernie American Can programs of the aforementioned dates, it was stated yesterday by Herman Bernie, the program's booking agent. Broadcasts are carried Tuesdays at 9 P. M., E. S. T., over the NBC-Blue. . . . Also signed by Herman Bernie to collaborate on the Phil Baker program were writers Lee Sands and Bob Marco. . . . Lucille Manners, yesterday signed to replace Jessica Dragonette on the Cities Service program effective Feb. 5, was added yesterday to the cast of "Rising Star," forthcoming Shubert production. Others who will be featured in the Frantz Lehar operetta are Dennis King and Ernest Truex. . . . Engineer Charley Coleman, of WFIL staff (Phila.) yesterday became the father of a baby boy. . . .And John Cummings, former technical advisor of WCAM, Camden, this week joins the engineering staff of WFIL. . . . Acts signed for tonight's WPA "Professional Parade" program include a return appearance of Swor and Luden; Rome, Fisher and Talace, singers; Isabel Rook and choral group; Irving Fisher, and Mara Alexander. . . . Lily Pons will be heard with General Motors Symphony Hour this Sunday at 10 P. M., over the NBC-Red. . . . Frank Morgan added to Saturday night's Shell Chateau period. . . . Elissa Landi will appear opposite Robert Montgomery on the Dec. 7 Lux Theatre program.

Oakie Replacing "Caravan"

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 1.—A program starring Jack Oakie to replace the Hughes' "Caravan" will start Dec. 29 with Oakie cast as the president of a mythical college. Guest stars will be limited to top name comedians and singers. A glee club will be featured each week.

Air Turning More to Cartoon Strips; McNaughton-CBS Deal

Script shows based on newspaper cartoon strips ever have been popular with juvenile listeners and apparently profitable to sponsors, for the demand has far exceeded the supply. As a result of the numerous calls from prospective sponsors asking for cartoon strip programs, the CBS Artists' Bureau yesterday closed a deal with the McNaughton Syndicate whereby CBS acquired the exclusive rights to a number of nationally known cartoon features.

Cartoons covered by the agreement include "Dixie Dugan" by J. P. McEvoy; "The Bungles" by Harry Tuthill; "Mickey Finn" by Lank Leonard, and "Ollie of the Movies" by Julian Ollendorf.

Under the terms of the deal, CBS also acquired rights to a number of McNaughton columnists, including Albert Payson Terhune, Neal O'Hara, Roe Fulkerson, Charles Driscoll, and Art McGovern.

Short Subject

"Amuse Yourself"

More of the insane antics of Jefferson Machamer and his bevy of girl models. They act out an entertainingly half-witted story which revolves about Machamer's efforts to land a cartoon with an agency headed by a screwy trio of morons. He succeeds and there follows a celebration with clever and snappy entertainment furnished by the females and a rumba orchestra composed of the Seven Loria Brothers, their ages ranging from about 20 to 5 years. Production Code Seal No. 01,324. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"Touring Brazil"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

A nicely turned out issue of the Magic Carpet. With splendid photography it takes the audience to the interesting points about the South American country delving down into a mine, into the jungle for the rubber industry, an alligator slaughter and the gay time of a carnival in Rio de Janeiro. Also, there are many beautiful scenic shots, the last of which reveals dawn coming over the still lighted city. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Gopher Trouble"

(Universal)

Billy Gopher is annoying Miss Henrietta Hen, in this cartoon, by cutting up in his underground fashion beneath her garden. Hysterical, Miss Hen calls Oswald, who, with the help of his dog, Elmer, proceeds to track down the rodent. There follows spectacular comic business, much of which is old stuff, with the final result when Oswald, using dynamite, blows up Miss Hen's Mansion. The gopher is finally taken care of with a flower pot. Fair stuff at its best. Production Code Seal No. 2,729. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Legend of the Lei"

(Treasure Chest-Educational)

The idea why departing travelers cast the famous Hawaiian wreaths when they leave the islands is given exposition here. The legend of the princess who was forced to marry a visiting noble rather than her real love is played against authentic settings and reproduced in glaring and splotchy color. It is sentimentally interesting. Production Code Seal No. 0870. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Television Highlights"

(Mentone-Universal)

A trick television set is used for the introduction of a collection of acts among which are Gogo De Lys, Roy Smeck and Patsy Wynn. It has novelty and is moderately amusing. Production Code Seal No. 01,292. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"The Village Smithy"

(Vitaphone)

A cartoon parody on the famous poem done with clever and humorous situations and comic relief. It features "Porky." Should make a pleasing item on any program. Production Code Seal No. 2,807. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"More Than a Secretary"

(Columbia)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 1.—Premised on the "you can't mix business with love" idea, "More Than a Secretary" is a comedy-romance that looks like an audience pleaser. With cleverly contrived situations and smart dialogue, which is occasionally a bit zippy, and high class individual performances by the cast against a background of worthy production detail, the film matches the standard of Columbia's better pictures.

Fresh and novel in theme, the show is built of popular stuff and is gay, airy amusement. Handling his role understandingly, George Brent plays a physical culture magazine publisher and is a nut for all health food fads. As the chief patron of a secretarial school run by Ruth Donnelly, Jean Arthur, because of her inability to keep the stenographers, decides to take a job with Brent herself.

It is love at first sight for both. Because she turns the financially weak magazine into a money-maker while Brent is vacationing, Miss Arthur is made editor when he returns and Dorothy Kent, a dizzy blonde, is hired as her secretary. There ensues a gay series of misunderstandings causing Brent to think he is in love with Miss Kent and other incidents causing Miss Arthur to rise in womanly wrath. In the hilarious climax Brent, waking up to the true state of his business and romantic affairs, chases after Miss Arthur to pop the question which will make her his wife as well as his editor.

With fun the principal quality of Brent's and Miss Arthur's work, their efforts are accentuated by the contributions of Miss Donnelly, Miss Kent, Lionel Stander, Reginald Denny and Charles Halton. Composed of elements calculated to please audiences and exhibitors, the film is based on "Safari in Paradise" by Matt Taylor with the screen play by Dale Van Every and Lynn Starling. Alfred E. Green directed.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

"Racing Lady"

(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 1.—The sole distinction of this offering is the exciting horse race finish which, if it were built up for greater suspense, might have raised the picture above average. However, events leading to the race are so dull and the characters so artificial that interest lags until that scene starts and the picture concludes when the race ends.

The central characters are Ann Dvorak; Harry Carey, her father, who trains horses; Smith Ballew, a wealthy automobile manufacturer who races his stable to advertise his cars; Berton Churchill and Ray Mayer, touts, and Willie Best, Alex Hill and Hattie McDaniel, colored aides to Carey's family. Ballew tricks Miss Dvorak into training his string and differs with her on racing etiquette, but unites with her romantically after Miss Dvorak wins the arguments and the big handicap race.

Dorothy Yost, Thomas Lennon and Cortland Fitzsimmons wrote the screen play from two stories, one by Damon Runyon and the other by J. Robert Bren and Norman Houston, which Wallace Fox directed.

Ballew, making a poor showing in his first appearance, may console himself that the part would probably have defeated a more experienced actor. Suitable only for dual billing, the picture can best be plugged by stressing the race sequence.

Production Code Seal No. 2,664. Running time, 59 minutes. "G."

"Winterset," opening tomorrow morning at the Radio City Music Hall, was previewed from the coast on Nov. 14.

"Tundra" and "King of Hockey" open this morning at the Criterion. The former was previewed by wire from Hollywood on Aug. 22 and the latter on Oct. 31.

"Rembrandt," another picture opening this morning, but at the Rivoli, was reviewed by cable from London on Nov. 17.

Vancouver Firm on Sunday Film Point

VANCOUVER, B. C., Dec. 1.—The Vancouver City Council remains firm in its belief that films on Sunday are immoral influences on the life of the city. Even free previews are now banned as a matter of precedent.

J. R. Muir, manager of the Strand, asked the City Council for permission to hold a special Sunday showing of "Nine Days a Queen," on the ground that the picture was "historical and educational." No admission was to be charged. The Council refused, calling it an advertising stunt. If Muir promised not to show the picture later with admission charges, the Council agreed to let him hold his free Sunday showing. Muir turned down the offer.

Midwest Hopes for Snow to Clear Dust

OMAHA, Dec. 1.—Dust storms are becoming as detrimental to business for midwestern theatres as snow and rain, a survey in Omaha indicates. After the third storm in less than a week struck Omaha, inquiries revealed that business had fallen off noticeably.

Exhibitors now are looking forward to a beneficial snow to settle the dust and hope last year's experience, when several Kansas houses had to close, will not be repeated. Increased installation of air conditioning units last summer are proving helpful, however, in keeping the interior of theatres clear of the penetrating dust.

Reserve Bank Study Shows Big Ohio Gain

COLUMBUS, Dec. 1.—Gains in practically every line of trade and industrial activity were in evidence in the Fourth Federal Reserve District during late September and early October, and in some instances production was at record high levels, according to a survey just released by the Federal Reserve authorities in this district.

In comparison with a year ago, gains in employment ranged from a slight increase at Akron, eight per cent at Cleveland and Canton, to 19 per cent at Springfield, 21 per cent at Dayton and 32 per cent at Toledo. In the entire state of Ohio the index at over 2,000 plants was only slightly under the 1926 average, while the gain in the past year exceeded four per cent.

Residence construction in September was the highest since 1929. Department store sales during September were nearly 20 per cent larger than in September, 1935. Furniture store sales were up 31 per cent. Estimated cash income to farmers is larger now than in the past several years, the survey shows. The Fourth Federal Reserve District covers Ohio, northern Kentucky and western Pennsylvania, including Pittsburgh.

Terry, president, and William M. Weiss, secretary, of TerryToons, Inc., and Hammons, as head of Educational.

The suit has been pending for some time. Moser charges that he was misled into a sale of his half interest in TerryToons.

Bain Sues Garrison

Leslie Bain, independent producer, filed a suit yesterday in Supreme Court for $3,150 against the Garrison Film Distributors, Inc., Ludwig Landy, president, and Irving Franklin, an officer of the corporation. In November, 1934, the plaintiff charges he entered into a contract with the defendants to produce a number of shorts which were to be propaganda films for the Communist party. Bain contends he was told by the defendants that they had an outlet for these films in the U. S. and Europe and that they could arrange for huge masses to attend the showing of these pictures. He was to receive $1,000 for each picture. He made two shorts costing $2,800, for which he has not been paid, he says.

Decision Hits Trust Law

Possible significance to the film industry was seen yesterday in a decision by N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Rosenman that the exemption of labor unions from the provisions of state anti-trust laws might be extended to a trade association concluding an agreement with a union. Involving the fur trade in New York, the agreement in question provided in part that "there shall be but one collective labor agreement in the fur manufacturing industry in the greater city of New York."

File a Tax Suit

SPOKANE, Dec. 1.—Northwest Film Service of Seattle has filed suit in Superior Court against the State Tax Commission for a return of $720 which, company officials contend, they paid as a tax on a business which should have been exempt.

The exemption is sought on the ground that the transportation of films is interstate commerce.

Czechoslovak Films Subsidy Is Revised

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—New regulations governing the granting of subsidies to Czechoslovak producers of features in the Czech language have been adopted by the Film Advisory Board, according to a report to the U. S. Dept. of Commerce from Acting Commercial Attache Jule B. Smith in Prague.

The board, under the revised subsidy plan, divided contemplated Czech productions into four groups: (1) those which the board does not recognize and, therefore, grants no subsidy; (2) those which the board recognizes and accords a subsidy of 70,000 crowns (about $25,000); (3) those which the board recognizes and recommends and accords a subsidy of 140,000 crowns (about $50,000); and (4) those which the board considers of exceptional quality and accords a subsidy of 210,000 crowns (about $75,000).

The recent plan to accord Government guarantees on approved Czechoslovak productions up to 50 per cent of the calculated cost, within a total available amount of 10,000,000 crowns (about $350,000), remains intact and supplements the subsidy provisions.

The proposed legislation would also create an Academia de Cinematografia (Motion Picture Academy), which would engage the services of cameramen, makeup artists, electricians, etc., organize a section for speaking for film work, provide dancing masters, and so forth. The bill also states that the Board would lend financial assistance to Cuban individuals or companies set up for the production of films. A lottery and postage stamps will be used to raise finances.

box-office and he told how branch managers have been instructed to sell all pictures for what they are worth at the box-office in order that every exhibitor may be a satisfied customer.

Referring to the Kuykendall 10-point plan, Lichtman said that M-G-M will publish its official decision the latter part of this month.

The attendance at today's meeting represented approximately 100 theatres, and comprised branch managers from all exchanges including M-G-M, Paramount, United Artists, Republic, Grand National and G. B.

Arthur C. Lamneck, congressman from the 12th District and member of the Ways and Means Committee in Washington, addressed the gathering, advocating the raising of the theatre tax exemption to 50 cents instead of the present 40 cents on the presumption that the increased attendance would result in larger income tax returns than are now realized.

Other speakers included P. J. Wood, secretary of I.T.O., Carlton S. Dargusch, vice-chairman of the tax commission; Al Steffes, who spoke on the Allied defense fund, and H. M. Rickey of Detroit, who utilized Lichtman's reference to the Loew theatre profits in order to fortify his plea for the elimination of the producer from the exhibition field on the ground that the competition is of an unfair nature.

Martin G. Smith of Toledo presided at the meeting.

At a banquet held last night the speakers were John A. Connors, toastmaster; Governor Davey, Lieutenant Governor Mosier, Dargusch, Abram F. Myers and Lichtman.

Hays, he said, was a visitor "from Olympian heights" and he called upon the British industry for a greater measure of cooperation with America and with Hollywood, "the first film city capital of the whole world."

Hays, replying to the Maxwell address, offered the cooperation of the American industry to assist in building archives of historical news films in England. He quoted passages from the Thanksgiving Day message of President Roosevelt and added, "My personal business is to see that nothing in American films will offend the sympathy, traditions and customs of England."

Considering Drafts Of Union Agreement

The initial drafts of the agreement whereby the Allied Union will be absorbed by Local 306, A. F. L. affiliate, with wage increases for Allied members, in a settlement of the multiple union situation in New York, have been completed, it was learned yesterday. A round table discussion of the drafts is expected to be held on Monday among the attorneys for the three parties involved, the two unions and the I. T. O. A. At that meeting, any points which still remain undetermined after the current consideration of the drafts will be ironed out.

The Mayor's survey board, under whose auspices the agreement was initiated, is not expected to be brought into the situation unless there are elements of the contract upon which a complete agreement cannot be reached. It is not anticipated that the contract will be concluded in its final form, ready for signatures, until the end of next week at the earliest.

The Empire Union, third of the three in New York, will not be approached definitely relative to clarification of that phase of the general situation until the 306-Allied agreement has been concluded, it is understood.

the law and that they intend to continue the use of the games.

Barnard said further that he received a letter today from the Chicago Ministers' Ass'n, enclosing a formal resolution endorsing the bureau's stand in the matter. The bureau manager said: "This is a practical business matter. We are not reformers."

Attorney General Otto Kerner ruled today that Bank Night in theatres is not only illegal, but might subject the users to a maximum fine of $2,000 or two years in jail should they be prosecuted on charges of conspiracy to commit a crime.

With the theatre groups taking the stand that they are not operating lotteries, it is expected that the police will step in this week and stop the prize drawings in some theatres, thus bringing the case into court for a decision to clarify the present uncertain situations.

A local ordinance states that the mayor may revoke theatre permits where lotteries are being run, and this step may be taken by Mayor Kelly. If the authorities take action it will be against all forms of giveaways, according to Barnard, and will effect 300 theatres here which have prizes weekly which add up to a total of more than $100,000.

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Indications from New York that Isidore Ostrer is seeking to resume the original negotiations with 20th Century-Fox and Loew's although perhaps on somewhat altered terms are regarded in reliable quarters here as contravening the understanding which John Maxwell reputedly holds with the Ostrers. Berry's NRA Plans Facing Flank Attack

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Indications of departmental opposition to the plans of George L. Berry, coordinator for industrial cooperation and head of the National Council on Industrial Progress, for revival of the NRA became evident today with announcement by Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper that he expected to have by the end of this month a complete report on the NRA situation from the special interdepartmental committee.

The committee, established by President Roosevelt to study the industrial situation as affected by the killing of the Blue Eagle, is composed of cabinet members, industrial leaders and labor representatives.

Although RKO had an option on Horne's services, Samuel J. Briskin consented to the move and Horne will leave the company on Saturday, joining Wanger next week.

"U" to Apply Cancellation On Split Buys

Replies to Kuykendall's Inquiry on Point

Universal's cancellation privilege will apply to exhibitors who "split" the company's product between them as well as to those who contract for the entire feature lineup, officials of the company indicated yesterday.

The question was raised by Ed Kuykendall, M. P. T. O. A. president, in a letter to the distributor in which it was pointed out that while Universal stipulated that an exhibitor would have to contract for the entire output to be eligible for the 10 per cent cancellation privilege, there were instances of the company's product being split between two exhibitors. Kuykendall inquired whether such exhibitors who take all the product offered them, although it may be less than the company's entire lineup, are eligible for the cancellation right.

Willard S. McKay, Universal general counsel, said he believed the point was covered by the cancellation clause

Theatre's Revival Talked Again, But It Still Gasps

By SHERWIN A. KANE

The organized powers of the stage, as personified by the League of N. Y. Theatres, the producing managers' organization; Actors' Equity Ass'n, the A. F. of L. theatrical local, and the Dramatists' Guild, the play makers' union, met yesterday to take up again the problem of making the stage attractive to the public, which wasn't settled at the last meeting two weeks ago. It wasn't settled yesterday, either, but there will be more meetings.

The consensus of opinion at the meetings thus far is that for reasons not readily discernible to the organized powers the American public,

I.A. Today Boycotts Three Coast Houses

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 2.—The temporary truce between I. A. T. S. E., Projectionists' Local 150, and independent exhibitors will end tomorrow when the union will institute a boycott against the Raymond and Colorado in Pasadena and the Wilshire in Santa Monica. Unfair labor practices are charged.

Indications are that a break is imminent between I. A. T. S. E. and the local I. T. O., which acted as intermediary between the exhibitors and the union. Although negotiations are not entirely ended, it is understood that the union is dissatisfied with the wage scale submitted by the exhibitors through the independents' group and that further moves aimed at the establishment of a closed shop will be made by negotiations direct.

Court Fight Is Begun on RKO's Plans

under which Class A shares were exchanged for new RKO common on a four-for-one basis. Stirn asserts that he refused to exchange his A shares for the new common and declares in the petition that "several hundred thousand shares" of the old Class A are still outstanding.

The petition recites that the adjudication of the question of the legality of the RKO common stock should be had in the Maryland court of last resort because a decision "is material to the reorganization proceedings and will materially affect and bear upon the ultimate plan of reorganization for RKO to be submitted to this court for approval."

The reorganization plan proposed by Atlas Corp. provides for the exchange of the old Class A stock still outstanding on the same four-for-one basis which was approved by RKO stockholders in 1931. In addition, the plan provides for the issuance of one share of new common of reorganized RKO for each two shares of the company's present common. Thus, the outstanding Class A shares are exchangeable under the plan at a ratio of eight shares for one share of new common of the reorganized company.

Asks Allowance of Own Claim

Stirn's petition asks the Federal court here to deny the claims of the present RKO common shareholders against the company or else to hold them to be junior to the claims of the old Class A holders. In addition, he asks that his own claim, which he filed against RKO in its reorganization proceedings, be allowed as filed "with full rights to all preferences of the Class A stock certificate." His petition discloses that he paid a total of $33,511 for the 1,234 shares of Class A stock which he says he owns. Stirn also asks permission to intervene in the RKO reorganization proceedings.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Rainbow on the River"

(Sol Lesser-Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 2.—This is a sympathy-stirring human drama with music, comedy contrast and commercial elements which assure its popularity with all types of audiences.

It is intelligently produced and smartly directed so that the laugh-provoking hokum balances the tear-jerking sentimentality and is definitely a step upward for Bobby Breen. May Robson, Charles Butterworth, Louise Beavers, Benita Hume, Alan Mowbray, Henry O'Neill, Marilyn Knowlden, Lillian Yarbo and minor supporting players contribute high calibre performances, but young Breen is the outstanding figure.

Bobby's singing is a treat that should send audiences away with highly favorable comment. Whether the numbers are thematic specialties, folk songs, classical or sacred the boy renders them well. In straight acting his handling of an emotional characterization would be a credit to a more mature player.

In the story of the Civil War period Bobby is mothered by Miss Beavers, as a colored mammy. Their relationship is touching.

When O'Neill, a priest, prevails upon Miss Beavers to send the boy to his grandmother, May Robson, a rebel-hating Yankee, who does not believe that the child is her kin, the boy's life becomes bitter and tragic. The heartbreak is intensified by the selfish machinations of Miss Hume, Mowbray and the spoiled brat daughter, Miss Knowlden.

Miss Robson's attitude toward the boy softens gradually and when Bobby, revolting against the unfairness of Miss Hume and Miss Knowlden, plans to run away, she puts the pair in their proper place. Going to New Orleans with the boy, she hears the dying Miss Beavers identify the boy as the child of her dead son. In the finale Bobby and Miss Beavers are reunited under Miss Robson's beneficent patronage.

The film will have special appeal to women with its musical content, which is augmented by the Hall Johnson Choir.

In preparing the screen play Harry Chandlee, Earle Snell and William Hurlburt retained the warm human quality of Mrs. C. V. Jamison's "Toinette's Phillip." Kurt Neumann's direction is pointed to develop the full heart appeal. The music, including a theme song by Paul F. Webster, Louis Alter, specialties by Dr. Hugo Riesenfeld, Selma Hautzick, Karl Hajos, Arthur Swanstrom and several Stephen Collins Foster songs, as well as sacred numbers, lends power and feeling to the motivation. The picture seems destined to stand well in the list of the season's more popular attractions.

Production Code Seal No. 2,836. Running time, 87 minutes. "G."

Theatre's Revival Talked Again, But It Still Gasps

particularly the benighted denizens of the outlands, are not evidencing a paying interest in stage wares. Reports received by the stage organizations from journeymen members who have penetrated the wilderness beyond the Catskills, are that the "living" drama doesn't live there any more. The unsolved problem, as already stated, is what to do about it. There has been no dearth of suggestions, but none has awakened much enthusiasm within the councils.

Yesterday's session was startled out of its composure by several ideas along wholly unexplored paths and authorities at the meeting admitted that their authors "might have something there." The first to be voiced was the rather surprising suggestion that better plays, better staged and acted, might prove popular if offered at lower admissions than the public was educated by the theatre to expect to pay for the privilege of viewing a legitimate attraction. The suggestion was lost sight of, however, in the ensuing denials by Dramatists' Guild representatives that better plays can be written, by Equity that better acting is available and by the managers that admissions could be reduced.

Other suggestions included one for calling in a few film and theatre executives, who seem to be getting along all right with their public, for consultation, and one for merging the stage with the film houses, the stage people to provide plays and casts to be put on in the film house along with the regular picture program and the profits to be split 50-50. The latter idea appeared to be the reigning favorite at the time the session adjourned. However, the next meeting, in the opinion of those present, is almost certain to produce something better. Probably a suggestion for a 60-40 split, with the film man who only provides the theatre and the picture end of the program, taking the corresponding short end of the profits.

Berry's NRA Plans Face Flank Attack

Roper was the second shot to be fired by the Commerce Dept. at the Berry plan, it having been made known last week that the department officials would not participate in the Industrial Council meetings Dec. 10 and 11.

At Berry's headquarters it was said that the representation of the film industry at next week's meetings will be larger than is indicated by the responses received. Responses to the invitations sent out last month have not been listed, but council officials said that many members of the industry had voiced their intention of attending in conversations with council representatives.

Thomson Anticipates Gradual Unionizing

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 2. — Kenneth Thomson, secretary of the Screen Actors Guild, stated today upon his return from the Tampa convention of the A.F.L. that he anticipates no spectacular drive for a closed shop in the industry but rather a gradual process of unionization. He said that the national labor organization is fully aware of the actors' labor group and that contacts made at Tampa may prove of importance at a later date.

Thomson stated that a meeting of all unions in the studios will be called in the near future.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Happy Go Lucky"

(Republic)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 2.—A good combination of amusing entertainment elements has been blended in this picture. With farce and hokum as the keynotes the film has romance, comedy, melodrama, music, intrigue, mystery and suspense. Phil Regan's singing is the outstanding feature.

Supported by better than ordinary production detail, the plot follows the dual identity idea which causes everybody to make mistakes. The locale is Shanghai. Regan, ham-and-egg musical comedy star, is believed by Evelyn Venable to be her lost aviator sweetheart. Regan, not knowing what it is all about, is content to let her, as well as her father, Jed Prouty, and a bunch of conspirators headed by Claude King and Jonathan Hale, consider him an amnesia victim. But when things get hot, involving a kidnapping that threatens the loss of his stage job as well as the safety of Miss Venable, Regan goes to work in typical American fashion to break the case himself.

Singing a taunting song from the stage to a bunch of sailors, he gets them to chase him through the streets of Shanghai to the house where Miss Venable and Prouty are held captive. The real missing aviator (also Regan) shows up to complicate things, but the infuriated jack tars do the business that rounds up King and Hale, crack an international plot to steal good old Uncle Sam's aviation secrets and save Regan and Miss Venable for each other.

Told in tongue-in-the-cheek, almost kidding style, the film permits Regan to turn in a smart performance. His straight acting is commendable and his singing is almost certain to please. Similarly, the support as well as William Newell, appearing as a harassed producer, check in acceptable performances. A good bolsterer for any program, the show should come in for favorable comment on its own.

Production Code Seal No. 2,804. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

"Counterfeit Lady"

(Columbia)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 2.—One of Columbia's active and fast-moving films, which D. Ross Lederman specializes in directing, this picture, telling of the quick-thinking activity of a jewelry insurance detective, plus the inevitable romance, should fill the bill on any dual.

Ralph Bellamy gives his usual capable performance as the detective masquerading as a jewel "specialist" on the shady side of the law, Joan Perry is the attractive pseudo thief to whom Bellamy is attracted for more than one reason, and Douglas Dumbrille and George McKay are important in the support.

Thomas Van Dycke's screenplay from Harold Shumate's original story finds Bellamy called in by Dumbrille, when Miss Perry cleverly gets away with a valuable diamond. Presumably working for Dumbrille, who obtained the jewel himself in his capacity as a fence, Bellamy catches Miss Perry, she eludes him, and he goes in pursuit. Dumbrille sets his men to double cross Bellamy, and the latter succeeds finally in doubling the double crossers. Miss Perry, of course, is merely trying to save her father, a small town jeweler, and it all ends with a crackling car chase and a touch of romance.

block of 5,100 "A," or voting, shares. He has maintained a strict silence, however which is regarded as perhaps ominous and a prelude to drastic and direct action along lines not indicated.

Coast Hinted at Renewal

Observers in New York are inclined to place considerable significance in the statement issued by Sidney R. Kent and Joseph M. Schenck in Hollywood on Monday in which they discussed their first meeting with Isidore Ostrer and added:

"There will be no definite announcement until the middle of next week at which time the negotiations probably will be completed."

This is construed in many quarters as a definite tip-off that the original three-cornered deal has been revived.

Ostrer Leaves by Train

Maurice Ostrer of G. B. left for the coast yesterday by train to join his brother, Isidore, for conferences with Joseph M. and Nicholas M. Schenck and Sidney R. Kent on renewal of negotiations for a three-way alliance. Arthur Lee will accompany Ostrer most of the way.

Prior to his departure yesterday, Ostrer insisted he was not going to Hollywood to participate in the meetings and that his only purpose was "for casting." He said that he had received a telephone call from his brother on the coast, but it had nothing to do with any discussions under way.

Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's and M-G-M, is scheduled to leave for Hollywood by train today. He will meet Al Lichtman in Chicago and from that point Lichtman will accompany Schenck.

ITOA Hears Merger Of Unions Is Remote

An immediate merger of Allied and Local 306 unions is regarded as remote, members of the I. T. O. A. were told yesterday by the labor committee at the regular meeting at the Astor. Holding up the amalgamation are a number of points in dispute which will take some time to iron out, the exhibitors were told.

Film policies of the various companies were discussed generally, but no action was taken. Harry Brandt presided. The next session will be held Dec. 16 when further details on the union situation will be outlined.

It is now explained, however, that the word means production of or obtaining possession of film produced in Australia for quota purposes. The entire domestic industry plans to register its protest in a petition.

opposed to Lichtman's announced policy of overselling with a promise of subsequent adjustments. They further oppose payments of excessive salaries and bonuses to executives who are not directly engaged in production, believing that these salaries are partly responsible for high film rentals. It is recommended that the situation be brought to the attention of Congress through the medium of direct contact between exhibitors and Congressional representatives.

The organization today went on record as not opposing the salaries paid leading authors, stars or directors.

Steffes, on Constitutionality

Al Steffes, speaking at the current convention, stated that Columbia University is preparing a written brief proving that the compulsory separation of production and exhibition is legal and constitutional. The brief, he said, will be ready January 1. He added that three states will positively enact such legislation and that three governors are ready to sign such a bill but he refused to name the states or the governors.

Ohio independents will raise their quota of $10,000 for the Allied defense fund by taxing each independent theatre owner, both members and non-members, one cent per seat per month for a period not to exceed 10 months.

Today's session of the convention saw the election of all former officers.

Columbia Librarian in Dark

The law department at Columbia University, through its librarian, yester denied knowledge of the preparation of a brief dealing with the constitutionality of the compulsory separation of production and exhibition in the film industry.

Allen Abandoning Amateurs To Meet WPA'S Air Rivalry

His hand apparently forced by the growing response to the WPA sponsored "Professional Parade" program, Fred Allen, current radio topper, will cease using amateurs beginning with his "Town Hall" broadcast of next Wednesday, Dec. 9. In place of the simon-pures, Allen will use lesser known professional talent. He has been considering abandoning the amateurs for the past few months, but no action was taken until yesterday.

Allen's decision leaves the amateurs solely to Major Bowes. Benny Rubin's WOR-Mutual program, third in the trio of important network shows featuring amateurs, cast its lot with professional talent several weeks ago.

Under the new plan, Allen's representatives will recruit professional talent from local radio stations and booking agents; from the small remaining vaudeville circuit and from night clubs. Each performer will be paid a regular sponsored program fee, as well as having a shot at weekly cash prizes. The prizes will probably total several hundred dollars.

Allen gives as his reason for the change in program set-up the decreasing number of amateur applications, but inside observers are of the opinion that the competition now being provided by "Professional Parade" had much to do with his decision. The WPA program opposes "Town Hall Tonight" on Wednesdays at 9 P. M., E. S. T. Incidentally, the latter program now is being considered for sponsorship by three major air users.

This week letters from Allen's office will go forward to all radio stations and talent agencies located within a 50-mile radius of New York asking that talent be sent to the "Town Hall" auditions.

"Town Hall Tonight" has featured amateurs for the past two years.

Dicker for KFWB Program

KFWB, Los Angeles, features a program titled "I Want to Be an Actor," which has created more excitement hereabouts probably than any other program in the past several years, not even excepting the amateur programs. Several local agencies are now reported to have representatives in Los Angeles, bidding for rights to the show. In the event it is sold, the program will be transplanted east and placed on a national network.

The program features dramatizations in which the characters are portrayed by non-professional actors recruited from the studio audience. The performers are selected at random and are not permitted to see the script until the show is ready to take to the air.

KFWB is a Warner station and the rights to the program are owned by Haven McQuarrie.

NBC Up to 110

WFEA, at present a CBS affiliate station in Manchester, N. H., becomes a member of the NBC chain on March 1 and will be fed programs from both NBC networks. WFEA has a day-time power of 1,000 watts, and an evening power of 500 watts. Also joining the NBC chain on March 1 is KGNC, Amarillo, Tex., with a day-time power of 2,500 watts and a 1,000 watt power at night.

WFEA will be used as an optional outlet of the Red network; KGNC as an optional outlet of the Southwestern group. The new additions brings the number of NBC station affiliates to 110 stations.

From the Hoosegow

Bridgeport, Dec. 2.—WICC is trying something new in the way of amateur programs. Each Sunday the station is broadcasting from the county jail here with the prisoners supplying the talent. The idea has been well received by listeners and so far no lack of talent has been found in the jail.

Seeking Burns and Allen

Don Stauffer of the radio department of Young and Rubicam returned to New York yesterday after a visit to the coast. The trip, reported to have been made in the interest of the Fred Astaire-Packard program, was really made for the purpose of conferring with Burns and Allen, who will broadcast for Young and Rubicam and General Foods beginning in April, at which date their contract expires.

Telephone Rates Not To Affect Radio Use

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Reductions in long distance telephone charges to go into effect next month, revealed today by the Federal Communications Commission, will not involve lines used for broadcasting purposes, it was learned at the commission.

The question of rates charged radio stations for lines over which programs are "piped," however, it was said, will be discussed in the near future, during the hearings in the F.C.C. investigation of the A.T.&T., which reopens next week.

Officials of the commission could not say whether the inquiry would involve the reasonableness of the rates now charged, but said the subject would be taken up in connection with other rate matters.

Sterling to Operate Offices in 7 Cities

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 2.—Sterling Pictures will operate its own exchanges in seven cities, New York, Boston, New Haven, Philadelphia, Washington, Buffalo and Albany, W. Ray Johnston, president, declared prior to his departure for New York.

These offices will not be operated on a franchise basis, Johnston said, but will be supervised from the home office in New York, under a new subsidiary, Sterling Exchanges, Inc. Negotiations are under way for the acquisition of offices in other key cities, he said. On the coast Johnston conferred with Howard Stubbins and Ray Olmstead of Los Angeles, B. N. Judell of Chicago and Sam Decker of Detroit, who operate independent exchanges, relative to Sterling franchises. No deals will be closed before the first of the year, however.

Aarons Asserts Only 75% of Houses Sold

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2.—Taking issue with the statement made by William F. Rodgers, general sales manager of M-G-M, to MOTION PICTURE DAILY that the company has closed 95 per cent of the situations in this territory, George P. Aarons, secretary of the U.M.P.T.O., states: "Although this organization has not advised exhibitors to stop buying, we know positively that 79 spots remain unsold. This is more than 23 per cent of the theatres in this territory."

William F. Rodgers has been out of town the last few days and is not due to return until next week. At the time Rodgers was queried by MOTION PICTURE DAILY on the Philadelphia situation, he said that the company's sales in this territory are better than in some of the others, and that about 95 per cent of the situations had been closed.

Kuykendall to Seek Talks on Local Boards

Further Concessions Are Also to Be Asked

A new series of round table conferences on trade practice concessions and details of putting local conciliation boards into operation in exchange centers will be sought by Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, immediately after the first of the year, the exhibitor leader said yesterday.

Kuykendall intimated that efforts will be made at the conference to obtain from distributors more liberal definitions of trade practice concessions which have been made or indicated thus far by major companies in responding to the M.P.T.O.A.'s 10-point trade practice program. It is not now anticipated that all distributors will have been heard from on the program by the first of the year, but it is assumed that a sufficient number of company acceptances of the local conciliation boards will have been received by then to insure their formation and make possible an agreement on final plans for their establishment and functioning.

Kuykendall conferred yesterday with

Spelling Bees Latest in Stunts to Hit Air Waves

First it was amateurs, now Community Sings, and in the very near future it'll probably be spelling bees.

The trend toward the old-fashioned spelling bees on the air has become quite pronounced of late. It started with an unimportant little NBC program some months ago called "Uncle Jim's Spelling Bee" and sponsored by George Washington Coffee.

For weeks the program attracted little or no attention hereabouts, but the sponsor's coffee sales spurted miraculously, and the mail from listeners piled up in overstuffed bags. The program was renewed recently for a long term period.

Trade circles buzzed with the news with the result that Fleischmann's Yeast, as a test, placed on WJZ locally a program titled "Harry Kagen's Spelling Bee." The show apparently has served its purpose well, for the current report is that it soon will be placed on a network evening spot.

Latest to capitulate to the growing trend is WOR, which will place on the air a similar program beginning

British Quota Seen Treaty Talk Factor

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

Washington, Dec. 3.—Although the State Dept. has received no complaints from American producers or exporters regarding British proposals for gradually reducing the proportion of foreign films which may be exhibited in British theatres, there is a possibility that the subject may be discussed in the negotiation of the pending reciprocal trade agreement with Great Britain, it was indicated here today.

The department is observing developments in the British film situation, but so far as could be learned today has registered no protest, nor is it likely to do so unless complaints are registered that the proposed quotas discriminate against producers in this country.

There are intimations, however, that Government trade experts are keeping abreast of the situation and that

Illinois Drawings Are Ruled Illegal

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 3.—There may be repercussions on the moves of the Chicago Better Business Bureau for a ban on Bank Nights and other theatre giveaways, it is apparent here. Attorney General Otto Kerner says those handling the prize drawings are subject to fines running up to $2,000.

What prosecuting officials may do about it remains to be seen. Mayor Kelly of Chicago has said he doesn't want to make Chicago "another Philadelphia" and people apparently want the giveaways.

AT & T Film Moves Minor Probe Angle

Washington, Dec. 3.—Film phases of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.'s activities are not expected to be brought up by the Federal Communications Commission at the reopening of its investigation of the telephone company Dec. 8, it was said at the commission today.

While the film activities of the company have been of major interest to the industry, commission officials consider them "not very vital" from their point of view and said that many other things will come first.

During its hearings last spring, film operations of A. T. & T. were touched upon once or twice, but only in connection with other matters.

In all probability, the resumption of the investigation will be marked by a change of tactics on the part of the commission. Criticism of "front paging" by Samuel Becker, special counsel for the commission, resulted some weeks ago in the appointment of Carl

Goldwyn Sets Eight To Cost $10,000,000

Hollywood, Dec. 3.—Samuel Goldwyn today revealed his 1937-38 program of eight pictures, instead of the usual four, with a budget of $10,000,000 scheduled for the eight. They will all be released through United Artists. None of the features will run under $800,000 in cost, Goldwyn said hitting at "factory-made" pictures. The highest negative cost will be on "Goldwyn Follies," budgeted at $2,000,000.

Para. Fourth Quarter May Top 1st Three

Net Above $2,500,000 Is Now Expected

Paramount's earnings for the final 1936 quarter are expected to be in excess of earnings for the first three quarters of the year, which total $2,256,685, it was learned yesterday. Net for the current quarter, according to expectations now, will be in excess of $2,500,000.

Earnings for the first two months of the current quarter will approximate $1,750,000, and a December net of $750,000 is not unlikely, in the opinion of informed sources. The figure for the final quarter, however, will depend to a large extent upon the receipt of additional dividends from theatre subsidiaries and whether or not anything is applied to earnings for the period from the $700,000 remaining of the special inventory reserve of $2,500,000 which was set aside out of 1935 earnings. In the first three-quarters of this year a total of $1,800,000 of the special reserve was applied.

Dividend action on the company's first preferred was postponed by the Paramount board at its meeting yesterday until Dec. 10. The board stated its intention of declaring a dividend on that date, payable on Dec. 26 to stockholders of record on Dec. 15, but

By RED KANN

JIG-SAW columning with complete reliance on MOTION PICTURE DAILY became yesterday's fun, not uncoupled with amazement, amusement and wonderment. Here goes:

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—"We don't intend to sell our control. The Ostrers are in the film business to stay. I don't think, personally, that we will sell our 'A' shares in Metropolis and Bradford. . . . He (Maxwell) is a minority stockholder like anyone else . . . doesn't have a single vote and is not a director in either M. and B. or G.B."—Isidore Ostrer. . . .

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Isidore Ostrer's statement, upon his arrival in New York on Monday, that John Maxwell does not hold an option on the 5,100 shares of "A", or voting stock, in Metropolis and Bradford Trust, which controls G.B. alternately startled and amazed London today. . . . A source regarded as an official spokesman for the B.I.P. executive, in no uncertain terms described Ostrer's statement as "hot air" and added that Maxwell, not only had purchased 240,000 of the outstanding "B" stock in G.B., but the 5,100 shares of voting "A" which Ostrer declared are still in possession of himself and his brothers.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—John Maxwell does not hold a five-year option on the 5,100 "A" shares of Metropolis and Bradford held by the Ostrers, Maurice Ostrer declared on his arrival from London. "Maxwell doesn't hold an option with us, but if 20th Century-Fox sold out, then we would be forced to sell." . . . Contradicting his brother in part, Ostrer said Maxwell is a director of G.B. and has been on the board for the past two months. . . . Asked if he would confer with Schenck and Kent when he arrived on the coast, he said he had no such plans.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 30.—"We met with (Isidore) Ostrer for preliminary discussions concerning the deal. Further talks await the arrival of Maurice Ostrer, who leaves New York tomorrow."—Sidney R. Kent and Joseph M. Schenck.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Maurice Ostrer stated that the only information he had to the effect he was to confer with his brother, Isidore, and Joseph M. and Nicholas M. Schenck and Sidney R. Kent on the three-way alliance was when he was informed by MOTION PICTURE DAILY of the story from Hollywood.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Prior to his departure (Maurice) Ostrer insisted he was not going to Hollywood to participate in the meetings and that his only purpose was "for casting." He said that he had received a telephone call from his brother on the coast, but it had nothing to do with any discussions under way.

Next cavortings in this mystery play, featuring those who riddle men, Isidore and Maurice, from Hollywood. . . .

Interweaving music with action on celluloid is hardly a new departure. Every picture made in Hollywood with a musical content, major or minor, goes through these ropes. From London, however, comes an interesting and, in many ways, a thoroughly charming and different enterprise, which goes all the way and turns the association of music and pictures into a complete and indivisible entity. "The Robber Symphony," for which Friedrich Feher wrote story and music and also directed, is its title. A fantasy with the slightest of story joining, what the picture has to say, dramatically, concerns the robbery of a miserly woman's funds and the developments thereafter designed to regain it so that the innocents in the case might be exonerated of blame. . . .

This is all that happens, if it is story intrigue you are after. But "The Robber Symphony" goes considerably beyond all of this. It has Feher's music in the Viennese style and it is lilting music of much pleasantness. Everything in the film swings lightly around flats and sharps from snowstorms to the running down of the hurdy-gurdy piano in which the loot is hidden in the face of a battery of similarly constructed instruments thrown into the scene to divert the villainous piano from the careful watchfulness of the central character, unaffectedly played by Hans Feher. Leaving accepted and routinized formulas well in the rear, this is the sort of picture which is more apt than otherwise to put any reviewer perilously out on a limb. In these times of changing public taste, crystal gazing has become an unhappy duty. Merit does not always get its just desserts and this may be the future which "The Robber Symphony" must look to. Yet it deserves a welcome in this market for the departure in its conception and the pronounced cleverness in its execution. Our vote is in and it's all for the film. . . .

Something sadly humorous lingers with nostalgic flavor around the current discussions by the Actors' Equity and the Dramatists' Guild looking toward ways and means of reviving interest in the stage. As we understand it, no paucity of suggestions exists. Somebody or other had an idea that better plays better acted at lower admissions might pry the public from its listlessness. Someone else gave serious thought to a wedding of the stage with films on a fantastic basis providing for plays in picture theatres and a general split up of profits, fifty-fifty quite naturally. Somewhere in the melee, which has resulted in several meetings with more to come, the simple and direct route to better stage times was entirely overlooked. The answer is not in any alliance with picture producers and their theatres. Neither is it in better plays better acted at lower prices. But it is in better plays better acted at existing prices. Anyone who has turned over his nights in faithful observance of the new offerings knows the out. This column refuses to take credit for any problem-busting as easy as this. . . .

New Ampa Board and Committees Chosen

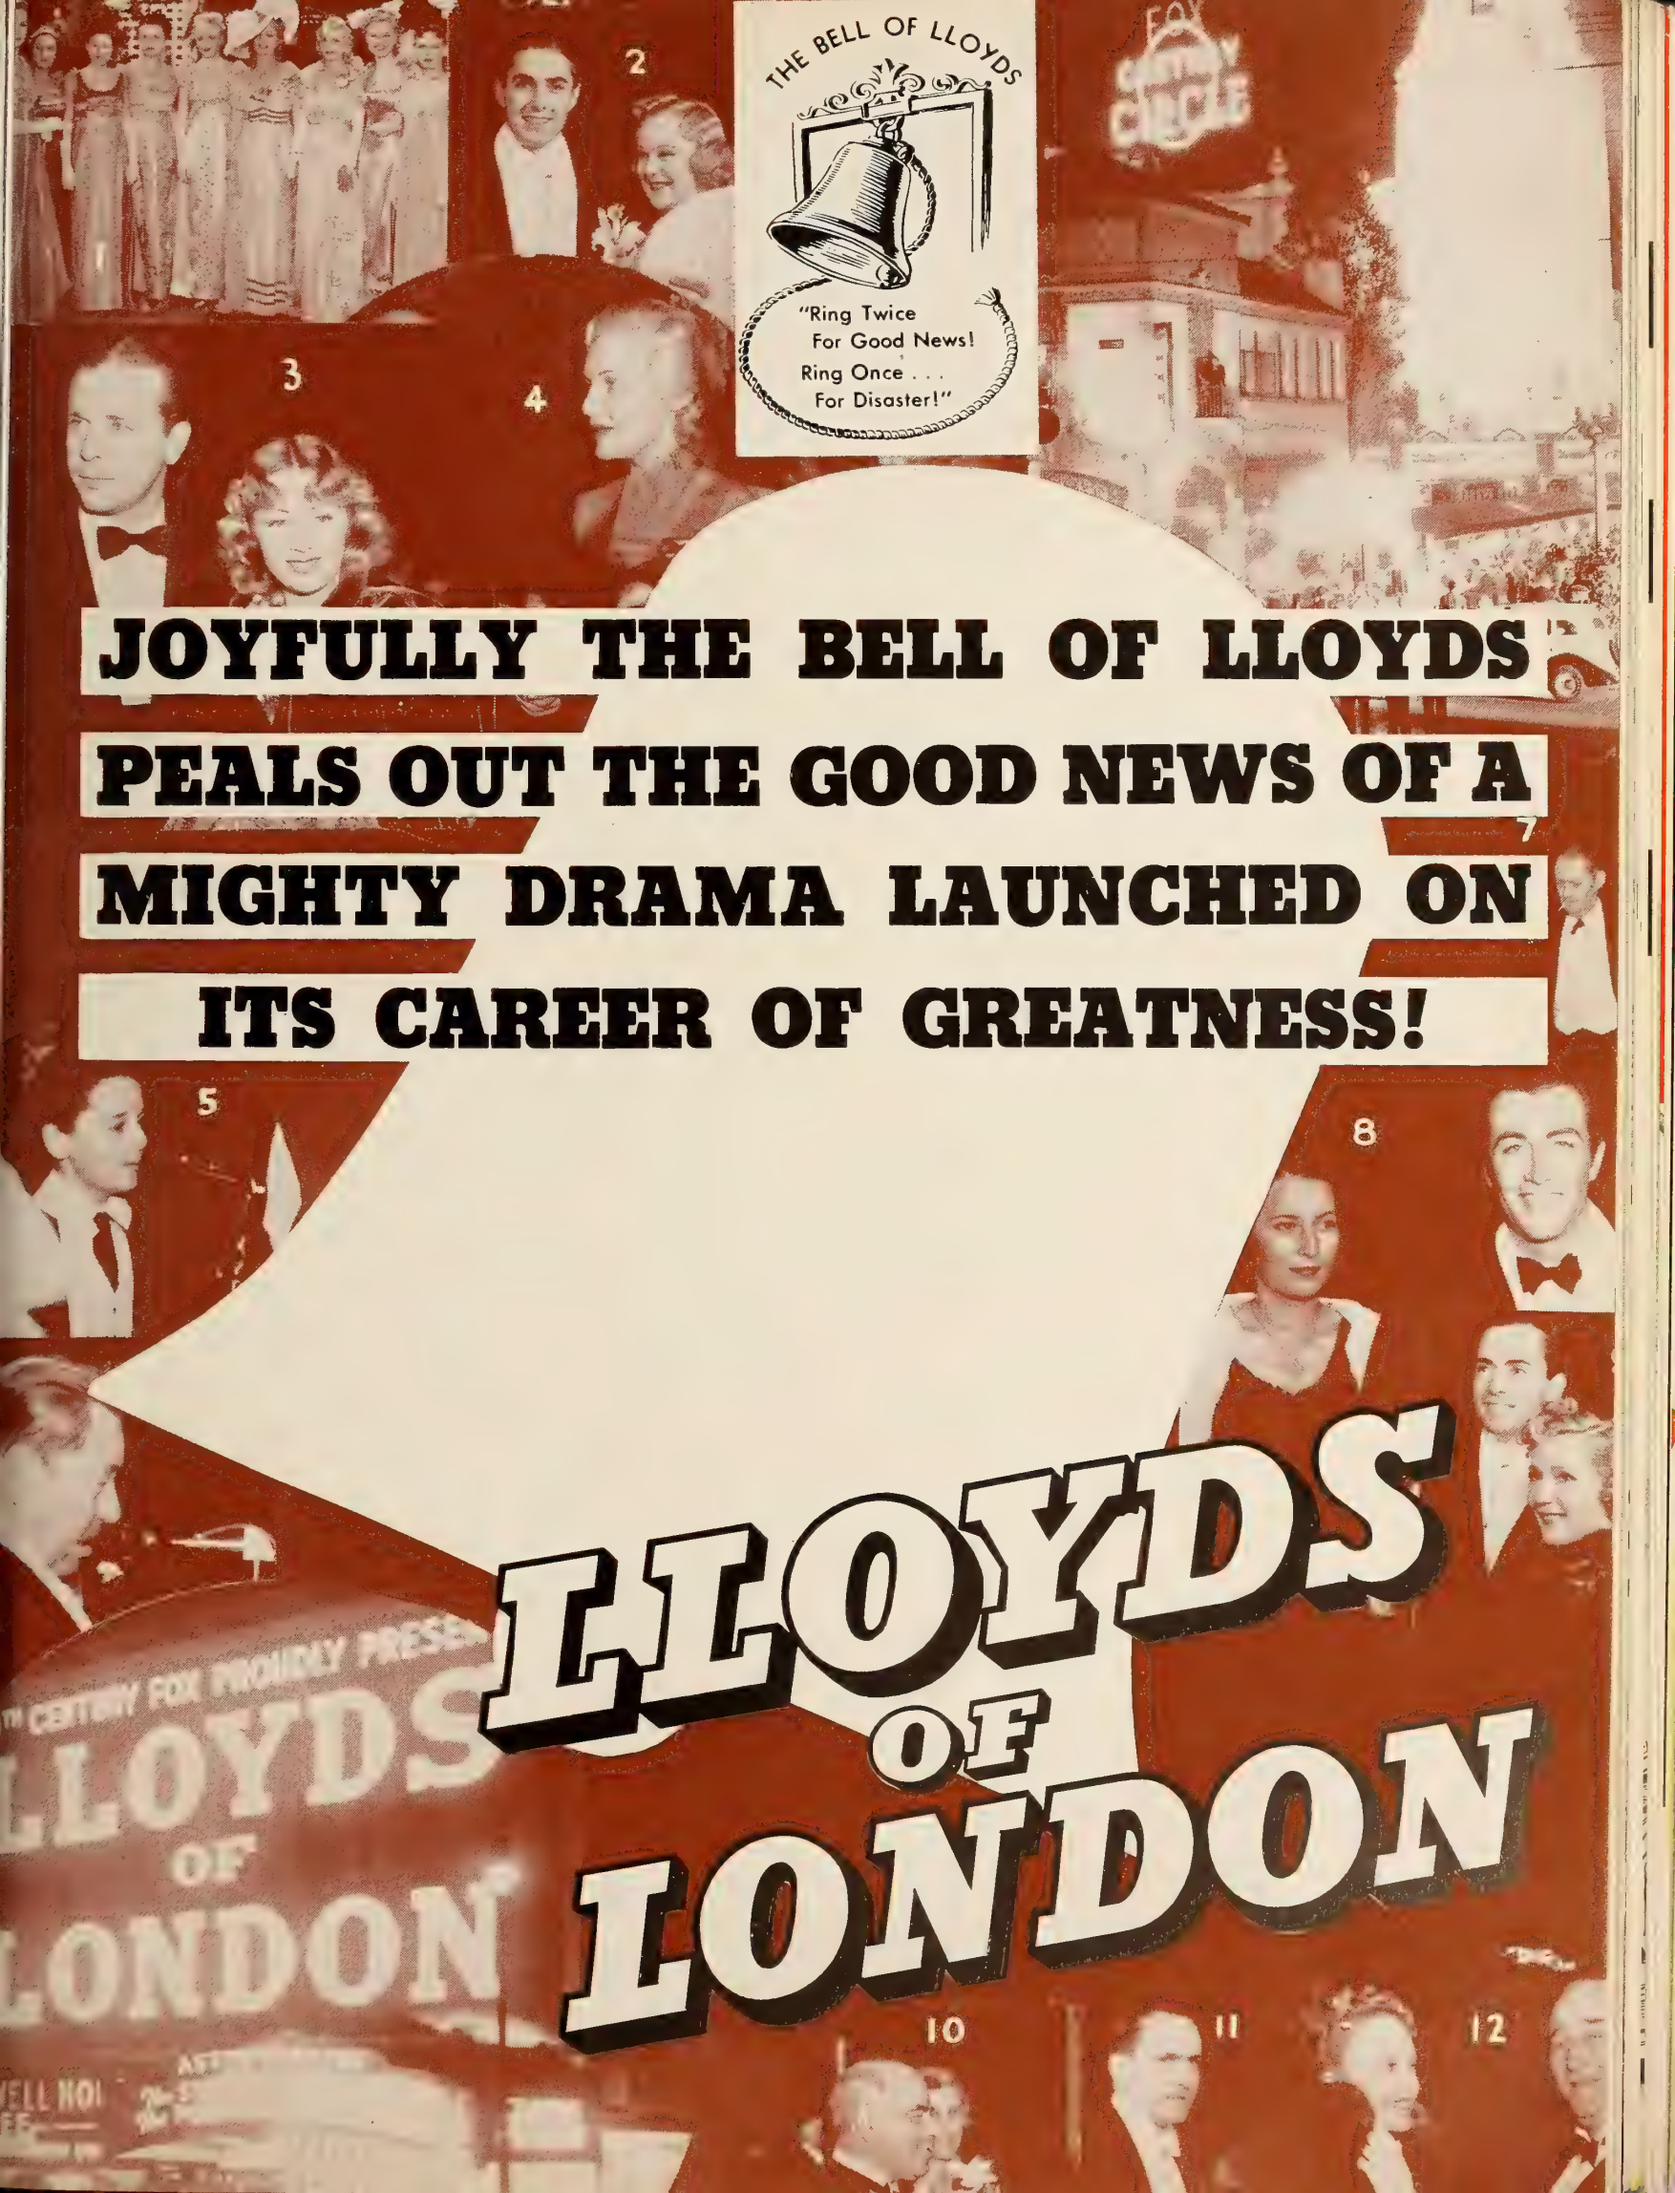
Ampa's new board of directors and committees were announced yesterday by Gordon White, president, at a meeting at the Edison. White pointed out that the selections are subject to approval by the membership at a later session.

The new board comprises White as chairman, Paul Gulick, Ralph Lund, Herbert S. Berg, Don Hancock, Marvin Kirsch, Ray Gallagher and Paul Benjamin.

On the finance committee are Berg, chairman, Kirsch and Gallagher.

Gulick is chairman of the membership committee which includes Joe Gallagher, Paul Lazarus and Lund.

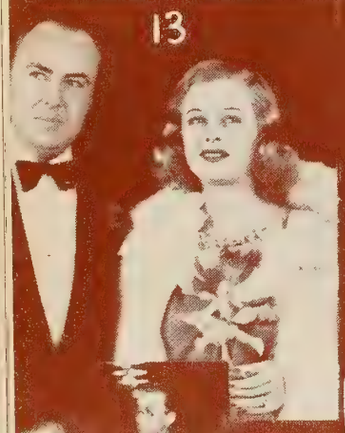
Al Sherman heads the publicity committee which consists of Jose Schorr, Peggy Goldberg, Jack Harrower and James P. Cunningham.



Tentatively set on the committee on arrangements for annual awards are Vincent Trotta, chairman, and Barret McCormick.

District Attorney a Speaker

District Attorney William C. Dodge was the guest of honor. He said that too much attention has been given to making heroes of lawbreakers in films and that the industry should portray law enforcing agencies and the benefit they are to mankind. He added that the minds of children today are moulded by what they see in films and newspapers.



Jay C. Flippen was master of ceremonies and interviewed Bobby Breen and Margo. Harold McCracken, the explorer, took a bow, while Tony Cabooch, radio performer, portrayed the role of an emissary of Premier Mussolini. He composed a poem as he sat listening to the guests and later read it to the members. It scored.

Although it has been decided to hold meetings every other week, an exception to the rule will prevail next Thursday when a special session will be called.

N B C, C B S on Job

Because of the furore created by the reported abdication ultimatum delivered to King Edward by Prime Minister Baldwin, NBC and CBS yesterday made hasty arrangements for short-waved programs from London.

Gerald Barry, editor of the London News Chronicle spoke over CBS at 6 P.M., E.S.T., while Alistair Cooke, English author, addressed the NBC-Blue listeners at 5:45 P.M., E.S.T. Both speakers analyzed the possibilities of a marriage of the King with Mrs. Simpson and its possible consequences to the Empire.

Spelling Bees Latest in Stunts to Hit Air Waves

Sunday, Dec. 13. Bob Emory will be in charge of the series. The program is planned on a basis of 13-week cycles. Groups, including men's clubs, women's organizations, school and university groups and service clubs will be invited to participate.

To complete the network cycle, CBS will probably have a spelling bee program shortly. The program department there, it has been reported, is now completing plans for a show of this type.

Barrymore as "Scrooge"

Lionel Barrymore will make his third annual air appearance as "Scrooge," in "Christmas Carol" on the "Hollywood Hotel" program on Christmas Day. Barrymore's dramatization will consume 45 minutes of the full-hour show; consequently the usual "Hollywood Hotel" film reenactment will be omitted for this broadcast.

Barrymore's contract for his yearly air portrayal is one of the most unusual agreements in radio. It started two years ago when the Nash Motor Co. placed a special Christmas Day program on the air featuring a host of "name" acts, including Barrymore, Bea Lillie, Alexander Woollcott and others. Campbell Soups, sponsors of the "Hollywood Hotel" program were impressed with Barrymore's effort and signed him to a five-year contract to star in "Christmas Carol" every Yuletide. After this next broadcast Barrymore will have at least three more annual performances to go.

It is expected that this year well-known film players will assist Barrymore in the dramatization.

Sweeping Sinclair Change

Another sweeping change in one of radio's oldest standbys looms for the Sinclair "Minstrel" program, heard at 9 P. M., E. S. T. on the NBC-Blue.

The "Minstrels" contract runs out early in January and the report is that the program will be abandoned to make room for a new program, probably one featuring a popular "name" band and vocalist. The Federal Advertising Agency is expected to name the change within the next fortnight or so.

The show has been an NBC feature for the past six years or so.

It Was Fennelly

Parker Fennelly, radio character actor heard on the NBC "Snow Village" sketches, has re-united George M. Cohan and Sam Harris, who broke up a partnership in 1919 because of the Equity strike of that year.

The pair will be re-united sometime next month when it begins production of Fennelly's new show, "Fulton of Oak Falls." Cohan will co-produce and play one of the principal roles in the play. The drama marks Fennelly's first effort at legitimate theatre play writing.

Full Hour for Birdmen Rally

NBC will cover the Junior Birdmen Rally at the Music Hall in New York next Saturday in a full-hour broadcast beginning at 9 P.M., E.S.T., over the NBC-Blue. The list of speakers whose addresses will be broadcast includes Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, Frank Hawks, Amelia Earhart, General Oscar Westover, Commander Charles Rosendahl, Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, Mrs. Floyd Bennett and Dick Merrill. Floyd Gibbons will be master of ceremonies.

Set Under New Policy

Tom Howard and George Shelton, comedians, have been signed as the featured guests for this Saturday's "Sealtest" program, heard at 8 P.M., E.S.T., over the NBC-Red. Ray Knight will act as master of ceremonies. The trio inaugurates the new program policy of guest artists each week, a situation brought about when Walter O'Keefe walked out of the cast dissatisfied with his material.

"News of Youth" Re-Signed

"News of Youth," program sponsored by Ward Baking Co., has been renewed for the second consecutive year effective as of Dec. 14. Since its inception, the show has been heard on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, but beginning on Dec. 14, it will switch to a Monday, Wednesday and Friday schedule, from 6:15 to 6:30 P. M., E. S. T.

Fletcher and Ellis, Inc., is the agency.

"Scouring the Town" to WABC

"Scouring the Town," a new series of character dramatizations by Elsie Mae Gordon will be added to the WABC schedule each Thursday from 11 to 11:15 P.M., E.S.T. beginning Dec. 10. The program, sold through Maxon, Inc., is sponsored by Enoch Morgan's Sons & Co. for Sapolio.

"People" Up for Renewal

"We, the People," General Foods program heard for the past 12 weeks on Sundays at 5 P. M., E. S. T., over NBC-Blue, comes up for renewal next week.

Brundage, Kroeger Resign from KFWB

Hollywood, Dec. 3.—First evidences of sweeping changes in the personnel of KFWB, local Warner Bros. station, are seen with the resignations of Hugh Brundage and Larry Kroeger, the station's outstanding announcers. The resignations will become effective Saturday.

Don Becker formerly program director at WLW, Cincinnati, will shortly assume an important post with the unit. He has been here for a week in an indefinite capacity.

The understanding is that KFWB will do two air shows for Transamerica, piping them from the east. Meanwhile Warners' plans for a national network are proceeding despite the difficulty in getting affiliate stations.

Breen on Magic Key Hour

Hollywood, Dec. 3.—Sol Lesser has had 5,400 photographs, 350 sheet music copies, and 450 recordings of "Rainbow on the River," starring Bobby Breen, mailed to critics throughout the country.

Lesser also says Bobby has been signed to appear on the RCA Magic Key Hour on Dec. 20.

Astaire Pact Runs to '37

Hollywood, Dec. 3.—Fred Astaire's new air contract will run well into 1937, as he is soon to start work for Radio in "Stepping Toes." He will have the same supporting cast, including Charles Butterworth and Johnny Green and his orchestra.

Radio Does It, Too

Andre Baruch, who has been an ace announcer at CBS for ages, has cause to wonder if the company knows anything about it.

Yesterday he received a letter from the network, stating: "The Columbia Broadcasting System regrets to advise you that no auditions for announcers are being held at present, since the present staff is more than adequate."

REMBRANDT HIMSELF COULDN'T HAVE PA

"Charles Laughton does his most brilliant acting to date. A distinguished and beautiful film that bears the unmistakable stamp of his genius. Adjectives like 'breath-taking,' 'haunting' and 'startling' are of small use. No matter how admirably they may have served their purpose in describing the grandeurs of other outstanding films that have come his way, they sound hackneyed when applied to 'REMBRANDT.' For the beauty of the film is, in its use of light and dark, like nothing the screen has ever before achieved and is as difficult to describe in words as these qualities in one of Rembrandt's paintings or etchings."

—William Boehnel, N. Y. WORLD-TELEGRAM

"We can only recommend it in the strongest terms. A great, and rich, and glowing motion picture, a picture signed all over with distinction, like one of the master's own canvases. 'REMBRANDT' is as much Mr. Korda's greatest production to date, as it is, at once, the noblest subject and the best likeness — so far, at any rate — in Mr. Laughton's inspired gallery of historical portraits."

"A distinguished film, as produced and directed by Korda. An incisive portrait of a genius, as projected on the screen by Laughton. Elsa Lanchester gives a fine and sensitive performance of the little maid whom Rembrandt loved through later years. Gertrude Lawrence gives distinction to the role of Geertje, who was Rembrandt's mistress."

—Kate Cameron N Y. DAILY NEWS

"When news first came that Laughton was to do 'REMBRANDT' for Alexander Korda, you began anticipating an honest, historically faithful picture in which Laughton would turn out another brilliant performance. Check. 'REMBRANDT' now at the Rivoli, lives up to expectations . . . Magnificently produced."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"After the Thin Man"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 3.—Again starring William Powell and Myrna Loy, this sequel to "The Thin Man" should please in much the same manner.

The writers of the screen play, Francis Goodrich and Albert Hackett, have made from the Dashiell Hammett story a yarn combining hilarious comedy and deep mystery, plus melodrama and crisp dialogue.

Producer Hunt Stromberg and W. S. Van Dyke, the director, have provided a different treatment for the film, however much it is similar to its predecessor in idea, and it may be anticipated that audiences will react in lively fashion.

Powell and Miss Loy return to San Francisco, where he receives a typical mother-in-law welcome from Jessie Ralph. Wildly greeted by his mug companions, Powell is immediately hurled into the center of a family scandal. With the film building to a high point of comedy and suspense. Alan Marshall, husband of Elissa Landi, Powell's sister-in-law, is murdered. With a maze of conflicting developments involving Miss Landi, James Stewart, racketeer; Joseph Calleia, William Law, Teddy Hart and Dorothy McNulty, a cheap entertainer, Powell goes to work, aided and hampered by Miss Loy and Asta, the dog.

Two more killings result before Powell sets a trap whereby the killer will reveal his own identity at a gathering of the suspects, while the police are baffled. With a mixture of hokum and drama, the trick works in a surprise climax.

With "The Thin Man" as a background and the work of Powell, Miss Loy and several other players, new to this series, to sell, the exhibitor should have a real attraction for all types of audiences, either as comedy or mystery.

Production Code Seal No. 2,889. Running time, 110 minutes. "G."

"Great O'Malley"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 3.—Produced with warmth and well acted, this film will appeal to family audiences and should please generally. Pat O'Brien in the title role plays a New York cop with an obsession for enforcing all laws and ordinances literally. Donald Crisp, his captain, and Frank Sheridan, his parish priest, are unable to convince O'Brien that justice should be tempered with mercy and that honest citizens should not be compelled to suffer because of obsolete though unrepealed ordinances.

When O'Brien's stubbornness costs Humphrey Bogart a job, Bogart commits robbery to obtain food for Frieda Innescourt, his wife, and Sybil Jason, his child. Crisp, understanding the background of the case, relegates O'Brien to school street crossing duty as punishment. At his new duties O'Brien comes to understand the hardships caused by his enforcement obsession and, through an attachment for little Sybil, he makes restitution to the Bogart family and also wins Ann Sheridan, a school teacher.

The direction of William Dieterle handles all elements sympathetically and makes the plot believable. Milton Krims and Tom Reed wrote the screen play from the Gerald Beaumont story. Harry Joe Brown supervised production. The supporting cast includes Mary Gordon, Hobart Cavanaugh and Henry O'Neill. O'Brien followers should be well satisfied and the picture should build as the word of its value passes.

Production Code Seal No. 2,451. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

said that it was found to be "impossible to determine the amount of the dividend until the latest possible earnings statements and dividend declarations have been reported by subsidiaries and received by Paramount."

Delay in receiving the necessary reports is occasioned by "the number of subsidiary companies controlled by Paramount and the ramifications of various tax problems," the company said.

Earnings and dividend prospects for the year end were discussed with the board by a number of Paramount's principal theatre operators, it is understood. In New York at this time are N. L. Nathanson, of Canada; L. J. Ludwig and John Friedl of Minneapolis; Karl Hoblitzelle of Dallas, and A. H. Blank of Des Moines.

At the year end, arrears on Paramount's first preferred will amount to $12 a share, and $1.20 a share on the second preferred. According to the board's statement, there is no intention of taking dividend action on the second preferred at the Dec. 10 meeting.

Leaders of Industry Pay Honor to Zukor

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 3.—Industry leaders and an array of stars assembled here tonight at the Trocadero to do homage to Adolph Zukor on the occasion of his 25th anniversary as a producer.

The dinner was sponsored by production executives in cooperation with the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. Speakers included Louis B. Mayer, Jesse Lasky, Joseph M. Schenck, Frank Lloyd and others who at one time or another have been associated with Zukor since his first days in the business.

The entertainment, which was selected and arranged by Boris Morros, included Jack Benny, Martha Raye, Irving Berlin, George Burns, Bert Wheeler, Gertrude Niesen, the Ritz Brothers and Tony Martin.

Sales Meet to Follow Dinner

Paramount's mid-season product meeting will be held at the studio following the jubilee dinner being tendered Adolph Zukor on Jan. 7 in Hollywood. The decision to hold the meeting at that time instead of earlier, as originally planned, was due to the fact that most of the home office executives who would attend the product conference are also planning to go west for the Zukor jubilee dinner.

Home office officials who plan to attend include Barney Balaban, president; Neil F. Agnew and Y. Frank Freeman, vice-presidents; Walter B. Cokell, treasurer, and Robert Gillham, director of advertising and publicity.

He added that he knew of no alternate official of the M. P. T. O. A. who would be free to attend the sessions at this time.

Kuykendall leaves here tomorrow for Charlotte to attend the annual meeting of the M. P. T. O. of North and South Carolina on Dec. 7 and 8, and goes from there to St. Louis for a second convention opening on Dec. 11. He has also agreed to address subsequent exhibitor meetings at Oklahoma City and Dallas, and will stop off at New Orleans for informal conferences with exhibitors there while en route back to his home at Columbus, Miss., for the Christmas and New Year's holidays.

Film Men to Meet in Advance

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Representatives of the film industry who attend the meetings of the National Council for Industrial Progress on Dec. 10 and 11, will enter the sessions with their attitude toward industrial legislation definitely determined, as a result of their decision to hold their group meeting the day prior to the conference.

Announcement that the film group will hold a meeting on Dec. 9 was made today by George L. Berry, Coordinator for Industrial Cooperation and head of the council. Original plans called for the film meeting after the council session on Dec. 10.

Indications today were that few of the national trade organizations will be represented at the conference and that attendance will be largely confined to the so-called independents in the various industries. Representatives of the larger organizations explained that they do not consider the forthcoming conference an Administration move and that President Roosevelt has never announced his sponsorship of it.

Mainstreet Tries Duals

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 3.—The RKO Mainstreet used duals for the first time. Only the Tower among first runs has never offered a dual and stuck to vaudeville and pictures since it was opened two years ago. The Newman, the Uptown and Loew's Midland all are, or have been, using occasional doubles.

because of the increase of factory-made pictures to meet the double bill market. Product has dropped down generally in recent times, and but for the present freedom of money, box-offices throughout the country would be suffering."

The eight scheduled by Goldwyn include: a remake of "Stella Dallas," to go into work in February; "Hurricane," by Charles Nordhoff and James Norman Hall, directed by John Ford; "The Adventures of Marco Polo," in conjunction with Douglas Fairbanks; "Goldwyn Follies," musical; "Dead End," play by Sidney Kingsley; "Revolt of Manila," with Gary Cooper and Merle Oberon, and screenplay by Dudley Nichols; "Folly and Farewell," with Merle Oberon and Brian Aherne, and an untitled story being written by Lillian Hellman.

Wanger Plans 8 by June

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 3.—Despite the fact that his current United Artists contract calls for the delivery of only six pictures, Walter Wanger plans to complete eight films prior to his departure for Italy on June 1. The uncertainty of present European conditions prompted the producer to enlarge his list. Wanger wishes to be protected in the event that war should break out on the Continent by spring and also feels that the extra production will give him a good start for next year's program in any event.

Wanger stated today that Hal Horne will concern himself with the showmanship and exhibition side of production. The handling of general production, he said, will be undertaken some time in the future.

Richberg Proposes Revised Trust Laws

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Donald R. Richberg, former NRA Administrator, today proposed a substitute program for the NRA, built on legislation which would incorporate the definition of poor labor conditions as unfair competitive practice and consider hours and wages in new anti-trust laws.

He viewed as unwieldy the Federal incorporation bill, sponsored by Senator Borah, increasing Government control of industries in interstate commerce. The anti-trust laws, he said, "should be restated and clearly define both monopolistic and competitive practices." Under his plan the administrative machinery would be reorganized to enforce modernized anti-trust laws.

Approval Sought on R. I. Leases of RKO

A petition for approval of an agreement for the retention by RKO interests of leases on the Albee and Victory at Providence, R. I., was presented to the U. S. District Court here yesterday by Irving Trust Co., RKO trustee. A hearing on the petition was set for Dec. 16 by Judge William Bondy.

The effect of the proposed agreement is to eliminate a liability of $287,500 arising from RKO's guarantee of the leases on the two theatres which are held by the subsidiary company, RKO Rhode Island Corp., retention of the leases by the subsidiary and extension to 1956 of a new mortgage amortization agreement.

In consideration for the agreement, Laura F. Albee, to whom the mortgage has been assigned, would be permitted to file a claim against RKO and have it allowed in the reorganization proceedings as an unsecured claim for $187,500. RKO Rhode Island would apply two-thirds of its profits to retirement of the mortgage and the other third to reduction of its indebtedness to RKO for sums advanced to it from time to time.

months, and will be handed down here. The hearing was on an appeal from the lower court, which held it had no jurisdiction.

This phase of the case, which has been hanging fire for many months, was heard by Judges Curtis D. Wilbur, Francis A. Garrect and Bert E. Haney. William Neblett, counsel for Corbar, in his oral argument, maintained that fraud had been practiced in the bankruptcy proceedings and he scored the method by which the appellees acquired various holdings, contending they permitted the unprofitable ones to go into bankruptcy, retaining those which were profitable. He called the operation a "steal."

The appellees maintained the action should not have been brought because it necessitated an attack on the court and if granted it would cause tremendous confusion. At least 20 attorneys were in court.

Neblett also claimed that the creditor claims listed by Fox, totaling $40,000,000, were fictitious and that the appellees were solvent. He contended they have some 500 creditors whose total claims amount to $300,000.

No meeting of the M.P.T.O.A. board will be called to decide on the organization's annual convention city, it was decided yesterday. Instead, the directors will be polled by mail and in line with this decision ballots were mailed out to them yesterday. Indications are that the meeting will be held in Miami in February.

Warners to Sponsor Christmas Parties

Harry M., Jack L. and Albert Warner will stage their 11th annual party for the Hebrew Orphan Asylum on Dec. 27 at which time approximately 2,800 gifts, exclusive of candy, will be given the children in addition to a show and special holiday dinner.

The Warner brothers also will sponsor for the ninth consecutive year a similar event for the Colored Orphan Asylum at Riverdale, N. Y. This affair will be held during Christmas week. About 500 gifts will be donated to this institution.

Although the date has not yet been set, it is planned to hold a party for the Catholic Day Nursery in the Bronx.

In each instance the children designate in advance the gifts they would prefer and every attempt is made to comply with the requests. Harold Rodner is supervising the details for the Warners.

In making the annual donations, the Warners have expressed themselves as more than happy to do this for the poor and orphaned children, regardless of race, color or creed.

Grand National to Have 5 Going Soon

Grand National will have five productions, and possibly six, in work this month, Edward L. Alperson, president, stated upon his arrival late yesterday from Hollywood.

The five definitely set for the cameras are "Gold," "23½ Hours Leave," "Trouble in Texas," a musical by Victor Schertzinger and Richard A. Rowland's first of eight. B. F. Zeidman has tentative plans of putting into work "Two Shall Meet."

A number of important players are expected to be added to the company's roster, Alperson stated. Negotiations are under way and expected to be consummated shortly, he said. The five films will cost approximately $750,000, Alperson asserted.

"Allah" at $82,000 In Its Second Week

"The Garden of Allah," with a holiday show at the Music Hall, garnered $82,000 for the second week. This was $2,000 less than the first stanza.

"Three Men on a Horse" ended its first seven days at the Strand to the tune of $40,000, which is regarded as very good in Warner circles. The second week is said to be holding up well, despite the concurrent run of the stage show. Warners dropped its interest in the play last July.

"Go West, Young Man" in its second week at the Paramount tallied $34,000 with a stage show. "Mad Holiday" at the Rialto was mild at $7,000. The Criterion managed to get approximately $8,000 on "White Hunter." A double feature is now current at the theatre. The bill comprises "Tundra" and "King of Hockey."

"Come and Get It" at the Rivoli took in about $13,000 in the third week. "Rembrandt" is currently showing.

Para. Saving Of 5 Million Is Expected

Economies in Operation, Finance Responsible

Aggregate savings of $5,000,000 are expected by Paramount officials to result from a program of current and future economies involving both operations and refunding, it was learned yesterday.

Of this amount approximately $1,500,000 has been realized already through home office and studio economies which have been placed in effect during the past four months. Another $2,000,000 in savings is anticipated on or immediately after Jan. 1. Of this amount, $50,000 will reflect further economies in studio operations, bringing the total savings from increased operating efficiency to $2,000,000.

On Jan. 1 Paramount will call in approximately $25,000,000 in bonds and other obligations of subsidiary companies both here and in England, which are now outstanding at interest rates of six per cent. The obligations will be replaced by private financing to cost three per cent. an official of Paramount said. He estimated the saving from this source at $1,500,000.

Within six months, it was stated, the

No New Roxy Setup Seen Before March

With no reorganization plan filed and Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey yesterday setting Dec. 18 as the new hearing date, observers hold that it will take until March before the Roxy is freed of court supervision.

It is generally conceded, and not denied by either the first mortgage bondholders' committee or the distributor, that Twentieth Century-Fox will operate the theatre under a long term lease. Every indication points to the present management remaining intact, as reported previously.

Too Near Lottery to Get Equity Protection, Decision Says

DENVER, Dec. 4.—The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled that Bank Night too closely resembles a lottery and as a result the owners, Affiliated Enterprises, Inc., are not entitled to the assistance of an equity court or the protection of a copyright on the plan.

The decision resulted from an appeal from the U. S. District Court in Oklahoma in which Fred Ganz of the Star, Sands Springs, Okla., was sustained in a contention that he was not infringing on a copyright. The decision may cause 5,000 houses now using the game to stop payments to the company.

The decision in part called the attempted registration "a subterfuge to escape the stigma of being a lottery.

"If not within the literal definition of those vices (lotteries) the plaintiff's plan is too closely akin to have the protection and assistance of a court of equity."

One section of the decision reads: "The plan, or system, is not covered by the plaintiffs' copyright and could not be." It quotes a previous decision and says: "Now while no one has a right to print or publish the

The paper recently resumed publication after having been shut down by a strike since August.

Looking 'Em Over

"Champagne Waltz"

(Paramount)

Designated as "the Special Zukor Jubilee Production," Paramount has hit upon a genuinely worthwhile and amusing attraction in "Champagne Waltz," co-starring Fred MacMurray and Gladys Swarthout.

Of course, it is a musical. But it is a musical handled and developed in light and airy fashion with dashes of whimsy added by way of the sauce and an assemblage of nonsensical goings-on which are designed to increase the fun quota and succeed.

Miss Swarthout, who is fortunate in voice as well as in appearance and grace, is a descendant of the Johann Strauss family. Which immediately stamps the locale as Vienna. She and that other descendant in the direct lineage, Fritz Leiber, remain true to the tradition of the Viennese waltz and find themselves pitted against the encroachment of American jazz, with MacMurray as its hotcha exponent. Boy meets girl, quite naturally, and the inevitable love affair follows.

MacMurray poses himself off as almost everybody in Austria except himself and sinks to near oblivion through his desire not to further poach on the fast disappearing glories of the Strauss that once was. Comes the not unexpected union of waltz and jazz ultimately in what must have been New York's largest and most eleborate dance palace with musicians running in both directions to amusing totals and the completion of the love yarn.

But the fun quotient is considerable, the pace amusing and always entertaining. Veloz and Yolanda do their usual and extremely competent dance routines and Jack Oakie, his accepted and welcome brand of comicalities. There is also Herman Bing in a continued dither over his English and Vivienne Osborne doing an exaggerated siren whose cigarette ashes won't behave.

Harlan Thompson produced and Edward Sutherland directed from a screenplay by Don Hartman and Frank Butler from a story by Billy Wilder and Hy S. Kraft. William Mellor photographed and did a representative job.

See Future Trouble For Failure to File

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Employers in the film industry who failed to make application last month for identification numbers on forms furnished by the Social Security Board may find themselves in difficulties next year when the time comes to pay the payroll taxes, it was indicated at the board today.

Using facilities of the Post Office Dep't, through which it distributed its application forms, the board now is engaged in obtaining a list of all employers who failed to return them.

While there is no penalty in the Social Security Act for delinquency in this respect, the names of recalcitrant employers can be turned over to Bureau of Internal Revenue for checking against the tax returns which must be filed in the near future. Failure to make these tax returns, of course, is punishable.

National Dissolves Dozen Subsidiaries

National Theatres Corp. has dissolved about a dozen subsidiaries in line with the new tax law, it was learned yesterday. The holding company has retained many of its companies because of leases and partnerships.

No action has been taken on a second dividend to Chase National Bank and Twentieth Century-Fox, which own the stock in National. Spyros Skouras, operating head for the circuit, is due back on the coast a week from Monday.

William T. Powers, chief film buyer; George Baldson, his assistant, and Milton Hossfeld, will leave by plane tomorrow for Kansas City where they will spend a week on product buys with Elmer C. Rhoden, operating head of Fox Midwest.

Table Bill to Limit Minneapolis Houses

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 4.—The third measure brought up within the past six weeks aimed at limiting the number of theatres in the city, went the way of the others today when the City Council Committee on Ordinances and Legislation voted three to two to table the proposal.

The attempts to alter the theatre ordinance were all based on safety and convenience, but were admittedly for limiting the number of houses. Backing the proposals are a "group of interested showmen." A threat that a minority report would be brought before the council itself was made by Alderman Edwin I. Hudson, who introduced the measure, and the matter may be fought out on the floor.

A. H. Blank is en route back to Des Moines after preliminary conferences here with Paramount home office officials on a new operating agreement for the Tri-States circuit of Nebraska, Iowa and Illinois. Indications are that a decision will be reached by Paramount within the next few days on either an extension of the present agreement or the terms of a new one.

authoritative studio source is that the company heads are dissatisfied with what are termed exhorbitant costs for poor product and with pictures of heavier budgets falling into the "B" classification because of faulty production. It is reported that Jack Fier will take over serial production, with Goldstein slated to get the Fier post. The first sign of the current upheaval came with the resignation of Lon Young from his production post.

$100,000,000 on Air Time Sponsors' Total for 1936

One hundred million dollars will be the approximate total spent for commercial time on the air this year, according to a forecast of National Ass'n of Broadcasters.

The figure for the first nine months this year was $73,570,297, according to the association—a figure which represents a little less than 85 percent of the previous year's total of $87,523,848.

The three national broadcasting chains naturally have garnered the lion's share of the total. NBC heads the list with a gross total that will approximate more than $33,000,000 before the year is completed, according to NBC's own calculation. Last year the NBC gross was $31,148,931.

CBS indicates that the year's revenue will approximate $22,000,000, an increase of close to $4,000,000 over last year's figure. Last year CBS grossed $17,637,804.

Mutual's gross for 1936 will exceed the $2,000,000 mark. Mutual's gross last year was $1,293,102.

Spotlight on Hollywood

Little known facts about Hollywood will be dramatized over the NBC-Red Thursday, Dec. 10 at 4:45 P.M., E.S.T. on the "Answer Me This" program, a series devoted to dramatizations of the histories of various cities.

Among the facts to be related are that only a few studios are actually in Hollywood, that the supposedly gay film capital has more churches per capita than any other city in the world, that the first picture was made in a Chinese laundry with sheets used as a backdrop, and that, actually, there is no such town as Hollywood, Cal.

Emmett Thurmon, Affiliated Enterprises attorney, said he would ask a rehearing immediately and if denied this would appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court.

The decision was written by Judge Robert E. Lewis of Denver and was concurred in by Judges George T. McDermott of Topeka and Sam G. Bratton of Albuquerque.

Georgia Court Calls Bank Night Lottery

ATLANTA, Dec. 4.—Bank Nights in theatres violate the state anti-lottery law, it was ruled here yesterday by the Georgia State Court of Appeals in affirming the conviction of Joe Jarman, La Grange operator, on a misdemeanor charge. Judge W. T. Tuggle, of the La Grange City Court, had sentenced Jarman to a fine of $250 or six months. The court decision stated that:

"A motion picture show operator who gives to his customers, in addition to admission to the show, an opportunity to draw by chance a prize or money or property is guilty of conducting a lottery. Mutuality of risk is not necessary to constitute a lottery. The purchaser of a ticket may get value received and the whole risk may be assumed by the operator.

"When the general scheme of such drawing is that only those who have purchased tickets may participate therein, and are entitled to win the prize, such scheme does not lose its identity as a lottery because some may participate in the drawing who have not bought tickets."

Barnard Points to Denver

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Kenneth Barnard, general manager of the Chicago Better Business Bureau, stated today that the Denver decision refusing copyright protection to Bank Night was proof that the game is a lottery.

The move of the local business group in opposition to giveaways is idle at present while an opinion regarding the legality of the games is being prepared by Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes. Action from Mayor Kelly is expected next week.

A statement issued by a University of Chicago editorial group today was to the effect that "pin game and slot machine interests" are agitating against the games in theatres.

Wisconsin Calls Halt

BELOIT, Wis., Dec. 4.—Charging that Bank Night and similar drawings for prizes as conducted by eight Rock County theatres are in violation of the anti-lottery statutes, District Attorney John H. Matheson has warned exhibitors to discontinue the practice within a week.

Notice to theatre owners that they must end the practice is contained in a letter which Matheson has sent to owners of all theatres which his office knows to be conducting prize drawings.

Start Omaha B.N. Dec. 16

OMAHA, Dec. 4.—With the settlement of protests by neighborhood exhibitors on their assessments, Bank Night is definitely set to start here Dec. 16, a week after the last of the free auto nights.

Twenty-seven neighborhood and downtown houses are included in a cooperative Bank Night. The first night's prize will be $1,000, to which will be added $500 in each of the next two weeks provided there is no winner. Then a new bank will be started with another $1.000 and two tickets will be drawn. In charge are E. R. Cummings, Tri-States district manager; Sam Epstein of the Epstein Theatres Corp.; Walter Creal, owner of the Beacon, who will be treasurer; John Quinlan, assistant Brandeis manager, and August Herman, co-owner of the Muse.

Would Ban Milwaukee Games

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 4.—Close upon the heels of an announcement of a proposed ordinance to license Bank Night, Hollywood, Screeno and similar games, has come a statement from Chief of Police Joseph T. Kluchesky that he will seek legislation to ban these games as well as pinball machines and similar devices.

Chief Kluchesky has taken a strong stand on all of these, which he claims masquerade under the guise of amusements when they are nothing but "outright gambling."

Carlos Israels of White & Case, attorneys for the bondholders, indicated yesterday to the court that the Taft Hotel part of the deal has added complications because of new interests entering into the situation. However, he advised Judge Caffey he expects to have a plan ready by Dec. 18.

Judge Caffey pointed out that no arguments will be held on the plan when it is filed and that he wants to look it over before it is sent to the stockholders.

While Harold Seligson of the bondholders' protective committee, which was given the right to intervene some weeks ago, was not in court yesterday, it is understood his group will oppose a plan to be filed by White & Case. He is said to be objecting to several points and may file an independent plan, which is not unexpected by those interested in the theatre.

outstanding $25,000,000 of debentures of Paramount Pictures, Inc., which also bear six per cent interest, will be called in by the company and likewise replaced with private financing which, it was said, also would cost three per cent and result in a saving of another $1,500,000. None of the new financing will be public, it was said, and while the identity of the financing group was not divulged, it is believed that Atlas Corp., Lehman Bros. and associates will figure prominently in the refunding program.

The home office and studio economies referred to do not involve reductions of either personnel or salaries, it was said. The home office economy program was described as "already completed," while savings at the studio are being effected largely through Adolph Zukor's success in keeping productions within budget limitations.

He plans to return here early in January to renew round table conferences with distributors on more liberal trade practice concessions than those now indicated.

Berry Claims All Majors to Attend Parley

But Admits Allied Only Formal Acceptance

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Despite reports from New York to the contrary, Major George L. Berry asserted yesterday that all of the important film organizations would be represented at the meetings Dec. 10 and 11 of the National Council for Industrial Progress.

It was admitted, however, that the only organization from which formal acceptance has been received was Allied States. At Berry's office it was declared that representatives of the organization, talking with film executives in New York had been assured that the Hays organization and the M.P.T.O.A. would have delegates present.

The coordinator yesterday made public a list of acceptances. Hundreds of representatives will attend

Loew's Sponsors New Game at One Theatre

Following a test at the circuit's Lincoln Square, Loew's has taken over the sponsorship of a game known as Bull's-Eye. The gadget was invented by Donald Herman, a musician.

A number of Loew executives are said to be backing the new enterprise with a view to manufacturing it for non-competing theatres. While it is planned to extend the game to other Loew theatres, so far it is limited to the Lincoln Square on Thursday nights.

It could not be learned from circuit officials whether or not the new game would replace Bank Night and Screeno, currently in most of the Loew neighborhood houses.

Ohio ITO Felicitates Zukor on His Jubilee

COLUMBUS, Dec. 6.—Among the final acts of delegates to the Ohio I.T.O. convention was the passage of a resolution congratulating Adolph Zukor on his Silver Jubilee. A copy was wired to him.

Another resolution criticized Paramount's accessories selling policy as a "burden upon exhibitors." A copy of this was mailed to him.

The convention went on record as in favor of the Social Security Law.

MPTOA Seeks United Front On New Laws

Hits "Spite and Futile" Legislation Moves

Calling attention to the convening next month of the legislatures of 42 states and Congress, the M. P. T. O. A. in a bulletin to be distributed today urges the abandonment of moves within the industry to obtain passage of "spite and futile legislation" in order to present, instead, a united industry front against genuinely adverse legislation which it feels is inevitable.

Among the prospective measures which would require concerted industry action to forestall or defeat, the M. P. T. O. A. bulletin lists new state taxes on admissions; state laws to require two or more licensed operators in every projection booth; banning of juvenile attendance after 7 P. M. and employment of licensed matrons for children's sections during matinees; state and Federal attempts to draft minimum wage and maximum hour agreements; more rigid state and city building codes; laws to punish the

The annual report of Charles W. Picquet, president of the regional organization, and other officers will be presented during the course of the two-day meeting.

Tribute to King

London, Dec. 6.—An impressive tribute to King Edward occurred at the Empire yesterday, during a showing of "Libeled Lady." The house was packed.

At the film's climax, a peculiarly coincidental, and entirely unintentional line of dialogue is: "What do you mean? I have been divorced from Simpson for three years."

The tribute came in the absolute silence which followed the line. No single person in the vast audience gave any sign that the double meaning in the line had been noted.

U.A. Officers Going West for Board Meet

George J. Schaefer, Etienne Pallos and Emanuel Silverstone will leave for the coast this week to meet with the U. A. board of directors on production matters.

Pallos, general manager of London Films, plans to remain in Hollywood for a few weeks, while Schaefer and Silverstone are expected to return within a week.

Attending the coast sessions will be Dr. A. H. Giannini, president and chairman of the board; Mary Pickford, Samuel Goldwyn, Charles Chaplin and a representative for Douglas Fairbanks.

Half of RKO's New List "A", Briskin Says

Will Increase Budgets By $2,500,000

At least half of RKO's product next season may be comprised of "A" pictures, Samuel Briskin, vice-president in charge of production, said yesterday prior to his departure for the coast.

If the company decides on a program of 50 or 52 features for 1937-'38, which is likely, at least 25 or 26 of them should be of the "A" type, Briskin said. The change would involve an increase of approximately $2,500,000 in the company's production budget, he said, basing his estimate on a minimum cost of $500,000 per picture. Of RKO's current season schedule of 48, about 29 are graded as "A" pictures.

Briskin said that the increase in "A" picture output was discussed with home office officials while he was here. His visit had to do primarily, however, with studio phases of the imminent RKO reorganization. His pact

Columbia University Knows of No "Brief"

Inquiries at Columbia University during the past few days have failed to indicate that the law department of the institution is preparing a brief to establish the constitutionality of the compulsory separation of production and exhibition.

That such a brief is currently in preparation was stated by Al Steffes in an address delivered during the convention of the Ohio I.T.O. in Columbus on Wednesday.

A representative in the office of the dean at Columbia late Friday told MOTION PICTURE DAILY that sources questioned on the subject "just wondered what it was all about."

M-G-M Is Silent on New Houses Abroad

Reports that M-G-M is seeking to build a number of theatres in England with Arthur Loew, head of the foreign department, said to be negotiating for several sites could not be confirmed at the home office yesterday.

William Melniker, head of the foreign theatre division of M-G-M, said as far as he knew there are no plans afoot to build or add theatres in England to the circuit.

November Grosses Weaken; Total Dips to $1,568,247

Late November grosses prior to the Thanksgiving holiday failed to maintain the pace set during September and early October. The total for 176 theatres in 29 key cities for the week ending Nov. 27-28 was $1,568,247. This was a drop of four theatres under the previous week and a decline of $86,065.

The total for the week ending Nov. 13-14, when 180 first runs were in operation, was $1,711,209.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

SAM GOLDWYN had a vast total in words trailing his byline in a recent issue of the Sunday Magazine of The New York Times. They may not have been as Goldwyn might have written them, but there is no doubt that it was Sam sounding off. His general thesis was a "What's the Matter with the Movies?" saga in which he proceeded to blame audiences for what they were getting, scored overproduction which is one of his well-known standbys and predicted that fifty per cent of the double bill houses will pick up their single feature standard again within a year. A lofty thought and we hope Goldwyn does not mind if we disagree. We will, anyway. . . .

"If we producers of more expensive and better films depended upon our receipts from the United States, we'd be bankrupt in no time," he stated at one juncture. A point, incidentally, stressed by Al Lichtman in addressing the Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio in Columbus last Wednesday and one which the American exhibitor dismisses as none of his concern, although one day he may have cause to realize differently. Then Goldwyn spoke about high cost negatives that often turn out to be artistic flops and thereafter went into one of these ennobling broadcasts: "Although I am willing to forego my profit if I can create a real masterpiece, I cannot go on producing pictures if each venture puts me half a million dollars in the red." . . .

Our idea is that he means nothing of the sort, that he gladly would make a masterpiece, that he might have to forego profit in the venture, but not willingly on the sacrificial block of art. All very interesting, no matter how your viewpoint may appraise it. But what caught our attention and kept it there were the producer's expostulations on censorship and how he deports himself under it. In order to embroider what follows with proper significance, it now becomes essential to give you some choice quotations:

"The producer cannot be as bold as he might like. What may amuse the adult may be injurious to the child. We must keep to a common denominator of good taste and decency. There might be no censorship in Hollywood today were it not for the fact that certain producers of low integrity found that the shocking qualities of rudeness made money. Not satisfied with 'getting away with something' they began to reach further and further for the obscene until finally some one had to act."

Don't go away. Here's more:

"And that's how censors were born. The industry needed regulation. It brought it upon itself. Hollywood has no one to blame but itself. An amusement built upon obscenity cannot succeed. . . . Although I must say there have been moments when I wondered about the wisdom of my course [the observance of good taste], I can honestly say that I haven't wavered yet and I have no plans of so doing. I have found that by remaining on an even keel I have been allowed leeway in reality. But let good taste go by the boards and reality and truth must vanish with it."

While purity and high resolve thus were spouting on all fronts, in his New York office which, in the Goldwyn type of operation, is a trailer for his Hollywood headquarters, an interesting piece of current business was, and is, under way. It has to do with tests, with a view to further studding the Goldwyn firmament in his forthcoming "Follies," of that well upholstered young woman named Gypsy Rose Lee, a high priestess of the strip tease and one of the fastest adepts in public undressing—for paid admissions—in the Police Gazette division of the show world, burlesque. Maybe it should be made clear that Miss Lee has advanced herself; she is now with the Shuberts and if you don't think that is an advancement then you simply don't think much of the Shuberts. . . .

It ought to be somewhat embarrassing for Goldwyn to reread the words his byline credit him with. But it ought to be interesting for you. Cheer leader of the good taste movement in Hollywood, his current talent hunt makes him out something else in New York. So far the guns have been trained on him alone. The next step is to barrage two other reputables in this industry. With Goldwyn, they comprise a triangle which we hope will be an uncomfortable one after today. For not only Goldwyn is hot and bothered professionally about Miss Lee. RKO is, as well. And Twentieth Century-Fox. The trio is after her, which means, according to the norm, the salary bait must be well up in four figures by this time and no signed contract in sight.

It is about time for a slight explanation. Your columnist has seen Miss Lee's performance several times. When nature handed out its largess, Miss Lee was well up in front. Your commentator begs to report that the critic in him decided long ago that Miss Lee cannot sing and cannot dance, but that she looks mighty well in close to the altogether under blue lights he might confess he wished were white. He attended under the exercise of his constitutional rights. Moreover, he stayed up until three o'clock one Sunday morning to add this experience to his memoirs. Any and all might have done the same. The point of the matter is something entirely different and it has nothing at all to do with Miss Lee, the kind of person she may be privately and whether her talent is pronounced or insignificant. Goldwyn, RKO and Twentieth Century-Fox are displaying their interest palpably and less pronouncedly in the breadth of her talent than in the implied publicity value of her career. It is as evident as the nose that projects out from your face, or anybody else's face for that matter. Argued once before here, it is repeated now that Miss Lee, a product of Minsky, to the Minskys and the Shuberts should be permitted to remain true. . . .

The screen needs new faces, but its bodies seem to be doing alright. The old reliable that here is something undertaken in the name of talent and freshness is poppycock. The channels of such approach are many here in New York, if the talk is something more than conversation. What about an established comedian like Bert Lahr? Or Bobby Clark? A comedienne like Bee Lillie or Fanny Brice? Over at the National Theatre, an actress, gifted alike in the drawing room, the slums, on the dance floor, might be spoken to; her name is Gertrude Lawrence. She would grace any producer's studio. But all of this is downright foolishness. They keep their clothes on while performing. . . .

Wisconsin Theatres Decide on Bonuses

GREEN BAY, Wis., Dec. 6.—A $15,000 bonus plan and prize money totaling $19,000 payable each quarter to managers and their assistants was revealed here by H. J. Fitzgerald, general manager of Wisconsin Amusement Enterprises, at a meeting attended by 44 of the circuit's managers from Wisconsin and upper Michigan. Distribution of the bonus and prize money, it was explained, will be based on business increases over a certain expectancy in each situation.

Fitzgerald also said that cashiers, formerly receiving $10.50 weekly minimum salary and $15 maximum, will be increased to $12.50 and $18. The circuit, with the addition of the Braumart and Colonial at Iron Mountain, Mich., now includes 49 houses in Wisconsin and upper Michigan with an annual payroll of $795,000. It is planned to spend $191,000 in improvements during the coming year.

British Controversy Seen on "Pastures"

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The action of Lord Tyrrell, head of the British Censor Board, in passing "The Green Pastures" with a universal certificate, is expected to give rise to a controversy in this country.

A religious paper is organizing a protest, questions are expected to be asked in the House of Commons and protests are likely to be made to local licensing authorities, who have the power to override the censor decisions. However, in most quarters Lord Tyrrell's action in breaking the rule against the filming of sacred figures, is regarded as courageous and justifiable, which will enhance the reputation of the censor.

The film received an excellent press following the preview which preceded the opening at the New Gallery. Only one critic of a London daily considered it unsuitable for general showing, although he praised it, while the others were highly laudatory.

K. C. Using Duals

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 6.—Last Sunday 38 out of 44 subsequent runs here showed multiple bills. The Bijou, Warwick and Apollo played "The Great Ziegfeld," double bill length, all of them to 35 cents, while the Circle, Westport and Central showed triples. Two first runs, the Mainstreet and Uptown, had two features, and the Tower, as usual, had a feature and stage show. Only the Belmont and Plaza among the subsequents showed a single of normal length.

Beginning Friday, Kansas City will have three first runs, Loew's Midland, the Uptown and the Mainstreet, showing double bills.

The score now is three to one against double bills in the "Speaking the Public Mind" column of the Kansas City Star.

Milwaukee Hall Gains

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 6.—The extent of the theatre competition here from the Auditorium is indicated by its annual report, which shows that it nearly doubled its earnings in 1936. Net earnings for the last fiscal year are $31,593.89 on a gross of $133,421.14. Net earnings for the previous fiscal year were $17,291.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Criminal Lawyer"

(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 6.—The entertainment worth of this show is considerably enhanced by the quality of Lee Tracy's performance. Dominating the film, his characterization of a sharpshooting attorney who reforms is something likely to send the patrons away talking.

In a story that effectively combines drama, romance and comedy, Tracy, as the mouthpiece for Eduardo Cianelli, a gambler and master criminal, has the knack of fixing and wheedling judges, juries and witnesses, to free his client. A sure-fire headline-maker, he upsets the plot of police stool pigeons to frame Margot Grahame. On the road to political fame with the position of district attorney as his first step to governorship, his tendency to fall off the waterwagon and get mixed up with women lands him in marriage with the conniving Betty Lawford.

With things breaking badly, Cianelli murders his rival. Miss Grahame is the only witness. To save his own skin, the killer menaces the girl and threatens Tracy with ruin unless the attorney helps him beat the rap. Driven to desperation as the pressure is applied, Tracy turns on Ciannelli. In a dramatic suspense-packed court room sequence, he secures the conviction of the killer, thereby sacrificing his hopes for a political career but proving himself a man to Miss Grahame, who is at his side as he carves out a new career.

Based on a play by Louis Stevens, the screen play by C. V. Atwater and Thomas Lennon is well-knit entertainment. Christy Cabanne's direction builds attention-holding situations and keeps the film moving at a speedy pace. With Tracy hitting high spots in his performance, he is aided by the work of Miss Grahame, Cianelli, Miss Lawford, Erik Rhodes, Frank Thomas, Wilfred Lucas and William Stack.

Better than the ordinary average attraction, the picture is worthy of a spot on most programs.

Production Code Seal No. 2,778. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

"Beware of Ladies"

(Republic)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 6.—The yarn of a straight-laced candidate for district attorney, efforts of the opposition to discredit him, and his romance with the girl reporter, whose efforts to put some pep into his campaign are at first misunderstood, this is satisfactory fare of its kind, suitable on double bill programs.

Directed by Irving Pichel, the cast features Donald Cook as the candidate, Judith Allen as the reporter, and John Meeker and Russell Hopton in the support.

The film has its quota of punch, a few laughs, and an action sequence in a fight about a yawning elevator pit to add a bit of excitement to its other qualities.

The original by L. C. Dublin has Miss Allen assigned the job by her paper of teaching dignified Cook how to get the feminine vote, after she leaves her worthless husband, Meeker. The machine opposition goes to work through Hopton, operator of a fictitious law firm which is actually a blackmail racket. When they learn of Miss Allen's marriage they frame Cook and the girl. Meanwhile, Cook's early resentment of Miss Allen's activity in his behalf develops into romance, and it requires the lively fight, a murder and the smashing of the ring through the arrest of the leader, to complete the election, the romance and the picture.

Hit German Travel Shorts in Schools

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6.—Prominent San Francisco liberals, both Gentile and Jewish, are understood to be planning vigorous protest against the Motion Picture Council here for advocating the showing of German films produced under the Nazi Government in local schools and colleges.

The specific cause of the protest, it is understood, is a list of some 30 German travel shorts, including two about the preparations for the Olympic Games, published by Dr. Claude A. Shull, dean of Golden Gate Junior College here and chairman of the local Motion Picture Council.

The films under local fire are 16 mm. one- and two-reelers, offered free to schools, colleges and similar groups by the local German Railroads Information office, which fact is emphasized in Shull's listing.

Half of RKO's New List "A", Briskin Says

with the company extends for three years from Jan. 1, and was not up for discussion, he said. In reply to questions concerning the RKO reorganization, Briskin said that there had been no mention of his becoming a member of the reorganized company's board of directors. He expressed himself as favoring the provision in the reorganization plan which would permit company executives and employes to acquire stock in the new company, stating that stock ownership encouraged workers and increased their interest in a company's welfare.

Commenting on the widely discussed effects of broadcasting by film personalities Briskin said he believed the problem to be serious enough to warrant a careful study by the film industry. The results of the study, he said, should be employed to guide future policy, either discouraging its continuance if it was found to be detrimental, or properly controlling it if it was found to offer specific advantages.

Moore, Broderick to Broadcast

Briskin said that the recently appointed Producers' Ass'n. committee, headed by E. J. Mannix, could do much by persuasion and reason to lessen the obviously injurious broadcasting activities by stars.

The RKO studio chief revealed that he had signed Victor Moore and Helen Broderick for a series of NBC broadcasts beginning Jan. 1, defending the action with the statement that they are definitely "radio" personalities and that their programs were not likely to be either injurious to their film standings or to theatres. RKO, he said, endeavors by contract provisions to control the radio activities of its stars, who are not permitted to broadcast without the permission of the studio. This is given, he said, only after consideration of the proposed air program and the suitability of the material for the individual star.

Ford Dropping Fred Waring; Latter Planning Road Tour

Fred Waring was notified over the past weekend that his air contract with the Ford Motor Co. will not be renewed. The notice was received by wire from the Ford offices in Detroit. No successor to Waring has been selected as yet.

Waring's dismissal terminates a three-year association with the motor company, which began in February, 1934. His last broadcast for Ford will be heard over CBS Dec. 29.

It is understood that Waring could have remained with Ford had he elected to take a salary cut. Currently his is the highest paid band on the air, receiving a weekly stipend of $13,500. The amount of the proposed salary reduction is not known.

It is considered doubtful that Waring will immediately sign for another air series, although many sponsors have made attractive offers. Instead, he will most likely take his organization on a cross-country dance and vaudeville tour. The Pennsylvanians' past road tours have always been successful and profitable.

Meanwhile, stories about the Ford ether plans continue to go 'round and 'round. The latest report may seem a bit complicated, but it's not as difficult as it may seem at first glance.

Immediately following the Waring NBC-Blue Friday program is the National Biscuit Co. program, placed on the network through McCann-Erickson.

This agency handles all Ford advertising except radio. It is generally known that Ford is very reluctant to relinquish his current NBC-Blue network spot, which has a built-up, receptive Ford audience. On the other hand, Ford insists on having a full-hour program on a single network, instead of the split network programs he now has on NBC and CBS. However, no full-hour time at the hour Ford desires is available.

Observers point out that with the McCann-Erickson agency obligated to the Ford Company, it might be possible for them to prevail on National Biscuit either to completely cancel its program or else shift to another period. With that done, Ford could have his full-hour on the NBC-Blue.

Lever Goes Yuletide

Lever Bros., sponsors of the CBS serial, "The Big Sister," today launches a campaign on its program to aid charity organizations in collecting and repairing old toys for distribution to needy children at Christmas. It is quite probable that other programs will follow the lead of Lever Bros.

The program is heard in the 74 cities whose CBS outlets carry the broadcasts. Listeners will be urged to send old toys to their local station or to the local offices of the Salvation Army.

New York listeners will be told that the local Western Union offices will deliver the toys to the sponsor, with no charge to the donor, in accordance with a deal made between Lever Bros. and Western Union.

King Off Sealtest

As foretold in MOTION PICTURE DAILY, Jean Paul King Saturday became the third casualty in the Sealtest "Saturday Night Party" rumpus. King's ousting follows the resignations of Walter O'Keefe and Harry Salter.

N. W. Ayer, agency controlling the show, refuses to confirm, but Raymond Knight will probably become the permanent m. c. and announcer on the program effective as of next Saturday.

King's trouble, like Walter O'Keefe's, was caused originally by script matters. Two weeks ago he refused to repeat several lines he considered "silly" and when his complaint was ignored by the agency he resigned from the program. However, he was re-hired in time for last week's broadcast with the lines edited to his satisfaction. This past Saturday, however, he received his notice from the agency.

Replacing Sherlock Holmes

The Sherlock Holmes series, long a network feature, will fade from the airways shortly and will be replaced with a new program by Household Finance Co., sponsor of the detective sagas. No announcement to this effect has been made as yet, however.

The new series, probably another script show, will be heard over the same network and time as the present program—NBC-Red, 11:15 to 11:45 P.M., E.S.T., on Thursdays. Chas. Daniel Frey & Co., Chicago, is the agency.

"Wife Saver," New Series

"The Wife Saver" is the title of a new series scheduled to start on the CBS network beginning Jan. 13, under the sponsorship of the Manhattan Soap Co. in the interest of Sweetheart Soap and placed on the network through the Peck Advertising Co. The program starring Allen Prescott, will be aired Wednesdays and Fridays from 9:30 to 9:45 A.M., E.S.T.

Karloff on Caravan

Boris Karloff will play the title role in the Camel Caravan's presentation of "Death Takes a Holiday" tomorrow night over the Columbia network at 9:30 P.M., E.S.T. Another highlight will be the guest appearance of Countess Olga Albani, soprano.

Hitz, Dawson Reuniting

Elsie Hitz and Nick Dawson, noted network dramatic pair who for two years wrote and acted in one of radio's most popular serials, "Dangerous Paradise," will be reunited again on Monday, Jan. 4, when they begin a new five-time a week serial entitled, "Follow the Moon" over the NBC-Blue. Woodbury Soap Co. is sponsoring.

The series will be broadcast Mondays through Fridays from 4:30 to 4:45 P.M., E.S.T. Lennen and Mitchell is the agency.

Pond's Renews Domestic Forum

"Husbands and Wives," radio's informal forum for the discussion of domestic problems, has just been renewed for an additional 13-week period by its sponsor, Pond's Creams.

The program was started about 18 months ago on WOR and graduated to the NBC network during the past summer. Pond's has been sponsoring since October. The program is aired Tuesdays at 9:30 P.M., E.S.T. over the NBC-Blue.

Cantor, Bernie to Switch

Herman Bernie has completed arrangements whereby Eddie Cantor will appear as a guest star on Ben Bernie's program with the old maestro reciprocating with an appearance on Eddie's radio show. Neither star will be paid.

"Silent Radio" to Mayor

Mayor F. H. LaGuardia will be presented with a new "silent radio" tomorrow at City Hall by Dictograph Products Co., makers of the apparatus.

Arnall, McCarthy, Et Al

Short Shots: Curtis Arnall, current feature on the NBC "Red Davis" sketches, will vacation in China in the event the program is not renewed on Dec. 10. . . . Clem McCarthy, who heretofore has confined his radio activities to sports comments and descriptions of sporting events, auditions for a script series this week. . . . Mike Porter, radio editor of the New York Journal, has been re-elected commodore of the Sands Point Yacht Club. . . . Joe Cook and Doris Hare are the only guest stars signed to date for the Vallee broadcast of Dec. 10. . . . Three WOR performers have just received long-term contract renewals. They are Gabriel Heatter, Elinor Sherry and Stuart Gracey. . . . Ruby Elzy has been engaged as the featured guest on Mark Warnow's Dec. 15 CBS program. . . . Ditto Phil Regan on Ted Hammerstein's Music Hall broadcast the same evening. . . . Gen. Hugh S. Johnson will make his first radio talk since the election on CBS Dec. 12. . . 101 Mayors will broadcast Christmas Community Chest appeals on the Kate Smith program of Dec. 13. Miss Smith's series is carried over a corresponding number of cities and each mayor will address his local constituents during station breaks in the program. . . . The Pittsburg Ad Club begins sponsorship of a new series over KDKA on Dec. 8.

And in Hollywood

Short Shots—Gene Lockhart and Alma Kruger spotted on the Lux program with Robert Montgomery and Elissa Landi today. . . . Robert Ripley will interview the "Never-Never Man" on his first broadcast from the coast on a cut-in. The fellow never did anything in his life, according to Ripley.

Cincinnati, Dec. 6. — "It won't seem like Christmas Eve without Schumann-Heink's rendition of 'Stille Nacht'."

So many listeners have told officials of WCKY this following the recent death of the singer, that L. B. Wilson, president and general manager of the station, has arranged to have a special program in tribute to Mme. Schumann-Heink on Christmas Eve. A recording of her voice, singing the favorite hymn, will be played.

—Hollywood Reporter

"Favored with unusual showmanship in production, direction and story, the trio of ingenues in Universal's 'Three Smart Girls' distinguishes this one as one of the outstanding and surprise pictures of the season!" —Variety

"I want to prophesy here and now that 'Three Smart Girls' will take its place with 'Libeled Lady', 'My Man Godfrey', 'Theodora Goes Wild' and other top-notch comedies of the current season! It is a honey of a picture with dialogue that scintillates and unbeatable situations! Moreover, this Universal laugh number introduces little Deanna Durbin who fairly sparkles! At fourteen she has the screen presence of a Garbo and the voice of a Grace Moore!"
—Louella Parsons

"This is young Miss Durbin's first picture. She does an extraordinarily good job! Not only has she a voice with a quality that is astonishing for her tender age, but she also has on her credit side acting ability of a stature that surprises along with her ability as a singer. 'Three Smart Girls' ought to please mightily!" —Motion Picture Daily

"To the listeners who have heard Deanna Durbin on our Sunday night program there is nothing more to be said about her lovely voice. But what they do not know is that Deanna Durbin possesses more charm, more poise, more personality than a half dozen of the biggest feminine stars in Hollywood today!" —Eddie Cantor

Legion Approves 16 Of 18 New Pictures

Only two of 18 new films reviewed and classified by the National Legion of Decency in its list for the current week were not approved, either for general patronage or for adults. Of those approved 11 were called unobjectionable for general patronage and five for adults. The two were classed as objectionable in part. The new films and their classification follow:

Class A-1, Unobjectionable for General Patronage—"Arizona Mahoney," "Besehl Ist Besehl" (German), "Die Ganze Welt Dreht Sich Un Liebe" (German), "General Spanky," "Jungle Princess," "Roaring Lead," "Sing Me a Love Song," "Song of the Gringo," "Stormy Trails," "Three Smart Girls," "Yellow Cruise." Class A-2, Unobjectional for Adults—"Banjo on My Knee," "Der Mutige Seefahrer" (German), "Laughing at Trouble," "Lloyds of London," "Poil de Carotte" (French). Class B, Objectionable in Part—"Rembrandt," for "questionable dialogue and promiscuous love affairs," and "Wald-Winter" (German) because "the plot is solved by divorce."

Nat'l Board Group Picks Child Film

Approximately 50,000 pupils in New York's public and private schools are being influenced in their film tastes as a result of the work of the Schools Motion Picture Committee, sponsored by the National Board of Review, the board estimates. More than 50 schools are represented in the movement for the selection of programs designed especially for weekend child audiences between 12 and 16.

The plan originated some months ago under the chairmanship of Mrs. Alonzo Klaw. The programs are selected for adults' suitability as well, the selection dependent upon elimination in the program of war glorification, unnecessary brutality or killing, undue sympathy for immoral actions or characters, and risque sex situations. At present 38 theatres in the city are cooperating in the movement, the National Board declares. The committee sees all films before release, and prepares lists which are sent to all schools enlisted in the movement.

British Plan Unit to Show Child Films

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Nov. 27.—A proposal for the formation of a non-commercial organization to acquire and distribute films for exhibition exclusively at children's matinees was approved at a Child Film Conference here, organized by the British Film Institute.

Present were such representative members of the industry as Simon Rowson, T. H. Fligelstone, president of the C.E.A., Sidney Bernstein and Kenneth Nyman participating in the discussions. The official delegates, numbering over 90, included representatives of the Home Office, Board of Education and numerous bodies concerned with child welfare.

Outstanding statements during the discussion included the pronouncement from S. W. Harris, delegate of the Home Office that, "The Home Office consider there is very little connection between films and young offenders. Juvenile delinquents may visit films, but are not made by them. The child may copy film methods but not motives." This view was endorsed by Dr. E. Manuel Miller, of the Child Guidance Council.

Asks More Children's Shows

Rowson, stating the trade viewpoint, asserted that 500 British theatres provided weekly children's matinees, entertaining 600,000 children for an aggregate cash taking of £300,000 per year. He suggested that the number of theatres running children's matinees could be trebled and the revenue increased to £1,000,000 a year, providing producers with £200,000 new revenue.

Both Bernstein and Nyman, from personal experience, said the children's matinee at present was unremunerative, and supported the idea of a central body to supply special films. The American Museum of Modern Art was quoted as a model.

No Punches Pulled

Toronto, Dec. 6.—Lucille Ryman, talent scout for Universal, didn't pull any punches when, after a visit here, she said she was unable to find "a beautiful girl with a beautiful voice" suitable for a screen test, in Toronto. She said she may return here next March, for the Dominion Drama Festival in Ottawa.

British Technicians Ask a Standard Pact

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The Ass'n of Cine-Technicians, which has a membership of 1,200, has presented a draft of a standard agreement to 13 studios, three newsreel companies, and five laboratories.

An official statement from the organization declares that there is a need for an agreement between studios and technicians similar to those existing with trade unions representing manual workers. The group asks:

A working week in studios of 48 hours, with extra payment for work in excess and special remuneration, or time off, for Sunday work.

Two weeks holiday a year with pay. Payment during illness.

Fifty per cent participation in any profits made by the letting out of any technician's services.

Screen credits for actually responsible technicians, instead of for heads of departments only.

Minimum salary for juniors of £1:15s per week, to eliminate unpaid "learners."

As regards newsreel companies no "overtime" demand is made and, in laboratories, a 44-hour week is asked. Wage demands in laboratories range from £4 minimum to £6:10s maximum.

British Talking Net Is $13,000 for Year

LONDON, Nov. 27.—British Talking Pictures, Ltd., has shown a profit for the year of £2,634 against £3,962 the previous year. The trading profit was £1,638 against £815.

During the year Associated Sound Film Industries, Ltd., an associated company, after disposing of the Wembley studio to Fox British Pictures, repaid to B. T. P. the balance of £44,666 first mortgage debentures, with accrued interest. This was used to pay a loan of £7,500 and also to pay to creditors 4s 6d on the pound, making a total payment of 13s on the pound. In the Associated Sound Film Industries report it is stated that the price received for the Wembley studio was £50,000.

U. T. P. Will Pay No Dividend This Year

LONDON, Nov. 27.—A. E. de B. Jennings, chairman of United Picture Theatres, Ltd., told the annual meeting of stockholders that there is no prospect of a dividend this year, the deficit standing at £398,681.

U. P. T. is managed by Gaumont British, which receives £10,000 per year, or five per cent of the gross takings, whichever is the larger amount. The company has already reported a trading profit for the year of £27,829 but a net loss, after debenture and other charges, of £13,636.

Government Controls Films in Manchukuo

By TETSUYA MORI

TOKYO, Nov. 22.—Government control of a subsidized film industry for Manchukuo, long under discussion, is now under way with the establishment of a new national film company, capitalized at 5,000,000 yen, of which half is from the Manchukuo Government, and half from the South Manchuria Railway Co.

The National Cinema Control Commission approved the plan unanimously. The new firm will be under the direct supervision of Eiga Kyokai (Manchukuo Cinema Ass'n), which was established at the same time. Every phase of film activity will be very closely controlled by the new company.

All distribution will go through the association, which includes importations from all countries including Japan. A film law is being prepared by the Manchukuo Government which will prescribe definite rules for film activity, which is seen as eventually meaning the end of all private companies.

The significance of the Manchukuo arrangement lies in the indication that it is virtually a test of such a plan, which will be watched closely by Japanese authorities, with a view to possible inauguration of a similar system in this country.

Rentals Supplanting Japan's Percentages

TOKYO, Nov. 22. — There is a marked tendency among exhibitors in Japan at the moment to take product on a rental basis, instead of on percentage arrangements. The one exception is the Shinko Circuit, which is seeking percentage terms now.

In general, theatres with high average grosses prefer rentals, while producers are demanding percentage terms from the larger houses.

The leading Japanese newspapers have reached a high point in the production of newsreels, which in recent months have attained a new popularity among Japanese audiences. Asahi, Nichi-nichi and Yomiuri together are producing more than 500,000 feet of newsreel films each month. They are making every effort to extend the market, planning large studios and laboratories, and making serious inroads into the exhibition of shorts.

Plans Stimulant to Argentine Producers

By N. BRUSKI

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 24. — Dr. Miguel Navas has proposed to the City Council here the awarding of cash prizes for the best Argentine films exhibited in the city each year, as a stimulant to the young industry of the country. The author, producer, artistic director, sound expert and others would share in the prizes.

* * *

The Ministry of Justice has decreed that any producer desiring to utilize the service or cooperation of any Government department for a film, must first submit the story for examination and approval to a commission composed of the National Commission of Culture, the technical director of the Instituto Cinematografico, and a representative of the department involved.

Reich Seen Gainer By Hungarian Pact

By ENDRE HEVESI

BUDAPEST, Nov. 24.—Although the official text of the film agreement recently concluded between German and Hungarian authorities at Berlin has not been made public, information concerning its content as indicated in informed quarters leads to the general conclusion that Germany has virtually dictated terms, although certain phases of the reported terms are apparently favorable to Hungarian distributors.

It is indicated, as well, that American films will have even less market in Hungary than at present, under the agreement.

According to the most widely credited version, Germany will allow the importation of five German dialogue films made here, but only on the conditions that they adhere rigidly to the Aryan principle in production. The producer of every German-speaking film in Hungary would have to pay 50,000 pengoes ($3,000) into a special fund to be used to import 40 German-made films into this country without permit tickets, thus saving distributors the 2,000 pengoes they now must pay for the permit tickets on each film. Thus German interests are in a more favorable position, since Hungarian distributors would be more willing to import German product, if the permit ticket charge were eliminated.

The increase in the importation of German films into Hungary, seen as a prime result of the agreement obviously would virtually eliminate American product from the market, since Hungary has an annual film capacity of not more than 20 features.

Dutch Towns Raise Tax on Admissions

By PHILIP DE SCHAAP

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 26.—The action of the Dutch M. P. Federation in attempting to prevent increases of admission taxes in cities in Holland, has brought a reaction from some municipalities. Eight towns plan to raise admission taxes, in many cases about 20 per cent. The Federation's first move in that direction took place in Haarlem.

In Maastricht the exhibitors have served notice that if the town authorities go through with their avowed intention of maintaining the tax at 25 per cent, they will close their houses on April 1.

The double bill problem is becoming more acute, with some exchanges approving contracts providing for the showing of three pictures on one program. No shorts are shown, of course, in theatres using triple bills.

Set German-Polish Film

WARSAW, Nov. 24.—The German Tobis Co. has sent representatives here to negotiate for the production of a film in Polish and German versions. It will be the first German-Polish film to be made here.

MPTOA Seeks United Front On New Laws

return of false box-office statements as embezzlement; compulsory public liability insurance; employment of a full-time house fireman; an increase of municipal censor boards and "all of the 'half-baked' statutes that will be thought up 'to protect the safety of the theatre patron' once the lawmakers are started on regulation by statute."

The bulletin denies that the Neely-Pettengill bill will eliminate block booking and declares that its passage would be certain to bring on a "swarm" of new censor boards, increase censorship powers and censor fees.

"Such measures as the proposed criminal laws to prevent designated playdates and to put the affiliated circuits out of business," it says, "are obviously unconstitutional on numerous grounds, will undoubtedly be tied up in litigation for many years and can easily be evaded in innumerable ways."

Congressional Appeal Asked

The bulletin asserts, however, that if such "futile" legislation "should get completely out of hand," then organized theatre owners must have a voice in its provisions and be heard by Congress in order that their interests may be protected from the non-theatre owning interests which, it says, drafted the bills now in existence.

The M. P. T. O. A. statement urges a liberal unrestricted cancellation privilege as the only satisfactory solution for block booking problems and asserts that the present and prospective concessions from distributors on the M. P. T. O. A.'s 10-point trade practice program are indicative that real relief of this kind is at hand for every exhibitor.

The bulletin stresses the improvement in the moral tone of pictures during the past two years and declares that, as a result, "the only remaining agitation against the morals of the movies is by those who make a living out of such agitation."

proximately $42,000 in its eight-day run at the Capitol where the picture was replaced yesterday by "Born to Dance." Lines formed at the theatre early and by the time the cashiers were ready to get to work the customers reached a good distance on the 51st St. side of the house.

The Roxy, with "Reunion" and a stage show, took in slightly over $40,000 on eight days. "Banjo on My Knee" will open next Friday and after a week's engagement will be followed by "Stowaway," which will run through the Christmas period. "One in a Million" is dated to open Dec. 31.

Apparently resigned to a dual feature policy, the Criterion has slated "Accused" and "Captain Calamity" to open next Wednesday.

"Lloyds of London" tallied approximately $17,000 in the first week at two-a-day prices at the Astor.

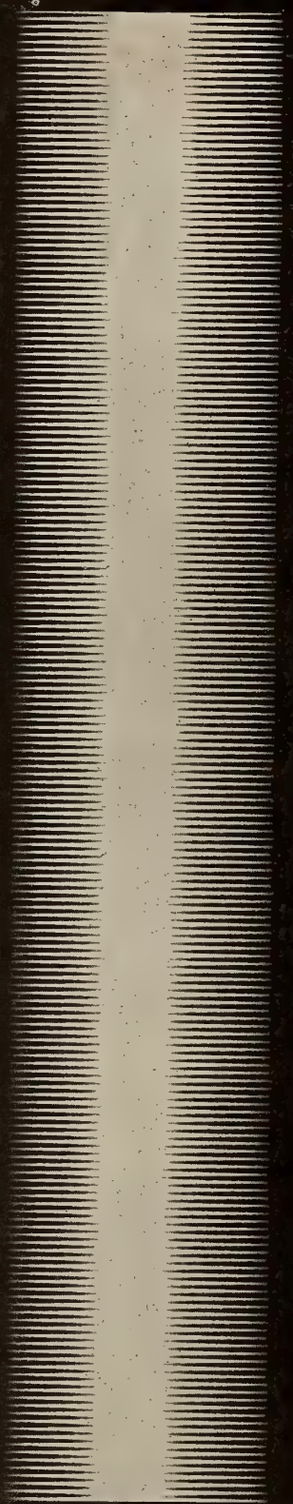
the conferences, it was declared, but the list showed only 24 individuals, including Merlin H. Aylesworth of RKO, and although "scores of national trade groups" are to be represented, only 16 were listed.

Declaring the conference to be "the nation's most important post-election development," Berry said advices indicated the program would have unprecedented support from business, industry and labor.



A tentative program released today showed that Berry will deliver the opening address, other speakers including Senator Wheeler of Montana, Representative Rayburn of Texas, Assistant Attorney General John Dickinson and William Green, president of the A.F.L.

Hays Pleased, He States, by Italy Accord

Says Details Must Come From Ambassador

Will H. Hays, arriving from Europe yesterday on the Normandie, said that he was "immensely pleased" with the accord reached with the Italian Government concerning withdrawals of American film revenue from that country and the importation there of American pictures.

Beyond stating that "an accord had been reached in principle," Hays declined to discuss the agreement, saying that details would have to be made public by Ambassador William Phillips at Rome, whom Hays credited with the success of the discussions.

Italy had proposed a drastic limitation of imports of American films and a decree which would have retained in Italy two-thirds of the revenue of American film companies derived from that country, with additional limitations on the uses to which such credits might be put. Earlier reports from Italy indicated that no quota restrictions would be imposed and that approximately 50 per cent o the Italian revenue could be withdrawn without specific limitations on

Three Responses on 10-Point Plan Vary; Favor Local Boards

The record to date of distributor action on the M.P.T.O.A.'s 10-point trade practice program follows:

Nov. 7.—Universal issues the first reply, granting liberalized cancellation, elimination of the score charge, support for the establishment of local conciliation boards.

Nov. 25.—20th Century-Fox is second to respond. The company offers liberalized cancellation and support for the conciliation boards, but will not abandon the score charge.

Dec. 7.—United Artists, third to answer, will eliminate the score charge effective with the 1937-'38 season and favors establishment of conciliation boards. Its producer organization prevents it from granting a cancellation privilege, the distributor states.

Schenck Pact Up to Loew Holders Today

With more than 51 per cent of the proxies on hand late yesterday, Loew's stockholders today will approve a five-year employment contract for Nicholas M. Schenck, president, and the transfer of a five-year option held by the late Irving G. Thalberg for the annual purchase of 9,600 shares of common stock at $40 a share to Schenck.

The five-year employment contract provides for the same salary and percentages Schenck is now getting. J. Robert Rubin, vice-president, will preside at the session which is scheduled to start at 11 A.M. in the home office.

Two stockholders thought the meeting was scheduled for yesterday and put in an appearance. As far as could be learned, Frank A. Harden is the only stockholder to have voiced an

Paramount's Issues At New High Marks

All three Paramount issues on the Stock Exchange yesterday soared to new highs for the year. Most active of the group was the common with a turnover of 48,300 shares. It closed at 23 for a gain of 1⅝ on the day. The first preferred jumped seven points on a trading of 4,300 shares, closing at 166. The second preferred showed a plus 1¼, with 6,800 shares changing ownership. The new high and closing quotation on this issue was 20¾.

Chicago's Theatres Repeat Basket Stunt

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Every theatre in Chicago again this year will join the move to supply Christmas baskets to the needy as they did last year for the first time. The plan is sponsored by the Chicago Amusement Publicists' Ass'n. The baskets will be gathered Dec. 22. Last year 20,910 baskets were filled.

Goetz-Gordon Start Their Partnership

Harry M. Goetz's partnership with Max Gordon, Broadway stage producer, officially began in Philadelphia last night when "The Woman," initial stage play under the arrangement, opened its tryout engagement. Of the new company, the Max Gordon Plays and Pictures Corp., Goetz is president, Gordon, vice-president; Marcus Heiman, secretary and treasurer, and A. L. Berman, the attorney, general counsel. Plays produced by the combination later will be filmed.

High Court Upholds Price Cutting Bans

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—State laws in California and Illinois which prohibit the sale of standard products at less than the price fixed by the producers were upheld as constitutional by the U. S. Supreme Court today. Justice Sutherland delivered both opinions, which were unanimous, and sustained decisions of the State Supreme courts. The measures involved were intended to prevent price cutting.

In two California cases which were appealed, the corporation involved contended they had not bound themselves by any form of contract to resell the commodities concerned at any specific price, and that they had the legal right to sell them at cut prices if they so desired.

Long Reels in Use; Will Be Made Legal

Although every major exchange in the local area is now employing the 2,000-foot reel with the approval of the Fire Dep't, the Board of Aldermen is now working on an ordinance which will make the enlarged reel legal.

The independent exchanges are gradually installing new rewinding apparatus for the handling of the new reel.

U. A. to Drop Score Charge Next Season

Local Boards Approved; No Cancellations

United Artists will abandon levying of a score charge after the current season and beginning with the sale of its 1937-'38 product, George J. Schaefer, vice-president, advised the M.P.T.O.A. yesterday in a letter which sets forth the company's stand in relation to the exhibitor organization's 10-point trade practice program.

In addition, United Artists declares itself in favor of the establishment of local conciliation boards but asserts that it is unable to grant a cancellation privilege because of its "long standing policy of selling our product on an individual picture or producer basis."

The distributor took the same position on cancellation when the industry's NRA code was drawn, but Code Authority subsequently held that the company was subject to the cancellation provisions of the code.

Schaefer's letter also puts United Artists on record as opposing the servicing of non-theatrical accounts which "in any way conflict with the business of a theatre." While stating that United Artists believes uniform clearance schedules to be "fundamentally sound," the letter states that Federal court decisions make it necessary to

Columbia 87% Sold, Montague Tells Men

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Abe Montague, Columbia general sales manager, closing the sales meeting at the Drake here yesterday, disclosed that the company has already sold 87 ½ per cent of the total available bookings, leaving only 12½ per cent still open. He said a decision will be made shortly relative to the feasibility of roadshowing "Lost Horizon" when it is released. He said the reports of the men in the field on the plan are being studied.

The sales executive told the delegates that the release of "Interlude," starring Grace Moore, would depend on the availability of extended playing time for the film. He screened "Dodge City Trail," a musical western starring Donald Grayson, Chicago singer, declaring it the forerunner of a new type of film that will be inexpensive but box-office.

The mid-season meeting was attended by 85 men. Montague will leave tomorrow for New Orleans, where another meeting will be held next week.

King Edward VIII and Mrs. Simpson paddle a small boat and dive and swim unconscious of the presence of a camera, apparently, in the latest issue of Fox Movietone News released Thursday night at the Embassy and sent out generally for showing the first half of this week.

By Friday night Truman Talley was deluged with telephone calls, both at the office and at home.

Magazines, newspapers and photo syndicates wanted clips. They offered up to $100 a frame. Talley refused them on the theory that he had a scoop and that exhibitors should get the scenes first.

Reel Unchallenged in Canada

TORONTO, Dec. 7.—Newsreels showing clips of Mrs. Simpson have not been submitted to the Ontario board of censors and, since there is no question of screen morals involved, there is no ban on her screen appearance.

King Edward, pictured in a newsreel over the weekend, was received in silence by the audiences, whereas his previous appearances had invariably brought forth applause.

Baird Television Is Previewed in London

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Dec. 7.—A demonstration for the press of the Baird television apparatus at the Domion yesterday showed fair quality and undistorted pictures measuring eight feet, six inches by six feet. Head and shoulder pictures only were shown. A public address system used permits of a question by telephone and a reply through the screen. A 120-line picture was screened.

The experimental land line was damaged in the fire which razed the Crystal Palace last week, where the Baird laboratory was located, but the method was declared to be adaptable to regular transmission. It is claimed that which was used is the largest high definition screen in the world. The screen was clearly visible from the rear of the theatre.

WICC will inaugurate a program featuring people featured in local and county news Thursday night. People whose names appear on the front page of the Post or Telegram will be interviewed over the air by Rocky Clark and the feature will be presented at various periods during the days when news breaks.

The application suggests theatre stunts along identical lines.

Theodore Doolittle Dead

MIAMI, Dec. 7.—Theodore Doolittle, announcer for WQAM, died in a local hospital as the result of a spinal injury suffered a few days previously when he fell from a jetty at Miami Beach. Doolittle had been associated with WGST and WATL in Atlanta and CKLW, Windsor, Ont.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 7.—The Don Lee network over the weekend added four coast stations to its group. They are: KFXM, San Bernardino; KPMC, Bakersfield; KDON, Monterey, and KGDM, Stockton.

Finish Plans Linking Up New Networks to Mutual

Plans to celebrate the linking of the Don Lee, Central States and Iowa networks to Mutual on Dec. 29-30 have been completed. The details will be revealed by Mutual on or about Dec. 15.

Mutual will inaugurate the celebration on Dec. 29, from 10 P.M. to 2 A.M., E.S.T. Stations which will provide the entertainment include WOR, New York; WGN, Chicago; WLW, Cincinnati; and CKLW, Detroit-Windsor.

Each station will offer a preview of its best programs. It was planned originally to recruit a gala roster of "name" guest artists for the celebration, but this was abandoned in favor of the stand-by Mutual attractions in order to enable the new listeners to become acquainted with the regular network fare.

WOR's top programs and personalities definitely assigned to the program include "Jazz Nocturne," Alfred Wallenstein's Sinfonietta, Benay Venuta, Gabriel Heatter, Nat Brusiloff and Morton Gould. Bandleaders include Guy Lombardo, Horace Heidt, Eddie Duchin, Cab Calloway, Red Norvo, Kay Keiser and Freddie Martin.

Principal speakers from New York will be Alfred J. McCosker, chairman of the Mutual board and president of WOR, and W. E. Macfarland, Mutual president. Tom Lee, son of the founder of the Don Lee network, will make an address from California.

The following evening at 10 P.M., E.S.T., Don Lee will return the salute to Mutual. Also participating in the return ceremonies will be the stations comprising the Central States and Iowa networks. The former network consists of KFAB and KOIL, Lincoln and Omaha, respectively; while the latter chain is made up of WMT and KSO, Cedar Rapids and Des Moines, respectively.

The entertainment from the middle western and west coast webs will consist also of previews of each individual station's best features, although there is a possibility that Don Lee may supplement its program previews with appearances of film players.

Conrad Nagel will "em cee" the Don Lee offerings; while George M. Cohan has tentatively agreed to act similarly for Mutual.

Also as a feature of the amalgamation, Don Lee will present exclusively the annual football game between the all-star teams of the east and west, a New Year's Day feature in San Francisco. The description of the game will be broadcast at 4:30 P.M., E.S.T.

"Sealtest" to J. Walter Thompson

The Sealtest Corp., sponsors of the strife-torn "Saturday Night Party" program yesterday notified N. W. Ayer & Co. that the program henceforth would be handled by J. Walter Thompson & Co.

The move was not entirely unexpected, although a transfer in agency while a contract is still in force is highly unusual. It is reported that the contract is for 52 weeks, at the usual 13-week intervals. The program this week goes into its ninth broadcast.

"Saturday Night Party" ran into trouble almost from the very beginning when the script detail was taken from Walter O'Keefe and placed into the hands of staff agency writers. O'Keefe's dissatisfaction terminated in a walk-out. Last week, following a complaint about material, Jean Paul King, program announcer and "em cee," was let out.

It is not known at the moment whether J. Walter Thompson will continue with the present cast or return Walter O'Keefe to the program.

Your Witness

Having received so many reproachful stares from Jack Pearl's army of friends because of a lukewarm notice in this space following the Baron's debut on his current air series some weeks back, this department tuned in on the program again last night in an effort to determine whether or not the Baron had been libeled.

Taxing every effort to make amends in the event that an injustice had been committed, we listened with pencil in hand, jotting down the jokes that drew the most applause from the studio audience. We list as many as space will allow:

Baron: My wife is Welsh.
Sharlie: Do you speak Welsh?
Baron: Only a rare bit.

Sharlie: Who is the speaker of the house?
Baron: The wife!

Baron: Will you Yuletide me $100?
Sharlie: What do you mean, Yuletide you $100?
Baron: You'll tide me over with $100.

A bit later in the program came this repartee:
"How many make a dozen?"
"Twelve."
'How many make a million?"
"Very few!"

This time we'll not say whether the Baron's material is funny or no. We believe that it speaks for itself.

Jack Pearl's series is heard on Mondays at 9.30 P.M., E.S.T., over the NBC-Blue network. Raleigh and Kool Cigarettes sponsor.

Delay "Good Will" Shorts

Negotiations with Columbia for a series of shorts on the "Good Will Court," Sunday night radio attraction, have been called off by A. L. Alexander, owner of the rights and producer of the program.

The reason given for calling off talks is that the program is still in the experimental stage and Alexander is anxious to build it up before selling the film rights. It is estimated that 5,000,000 radios are tuned in every Sunday night.

"Dance" Tops Pittsburgh's Record Gross

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 7.—"Born to Dance" led the first runs in a record-breaking Thanksgiving week helped by fine weather. The take at the Penn was $29,500, which was $18,500 over normal. The Warner had its most profitable double bill in years, "Our Relations" and "Rose Bowl," bettering $7,300 in nine days, while the Fulton developed a holdover, its fourth in three months, with "The Gay Desperado," getting $6,500. MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Great Guy"

(Grand National)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 7.—Producer Douglas MacLean has brought James Cagney back in a typical knock-down-and-drag-out Cagney film. As far as fistic action is concerned, particularly in the last reel, there is plenty of pace, but the other elements of comedy, romance and drama appear to labor under the handicap of excessive dialogue and somewhat unbelievable situations.

Satisfactory for the Cagney fans who like to see him swing his fists, the film presents James Burke, Edward Brophy, Henry Kolker, Robert Gleckler, Joseph Sawyer and Matty Fain in good performances.

Appointed a sealer of weights and measures, Cagney embarks on a one-man crusade to clean up the short weight racket. With the straight story interlarded with comedy romance involving Mae Clarke, the trail leads to Gleckler, a fixer; the figure-head mayor, Douglas Wood, and the boss, Kolker. When Fain and Edward Gargan are kidnapped and manhandled for being honest, Cagney gathers enough evidence to show that Kolker is the brains behind the gang. Cagney is easy for Kolker's men, who steal the evidence.

From that point the film's pace picks up. Sawyer falls before the Cagney right and he trails Kolker and Gleckler to the apartment where the evidence is hidden. Cagney hands out a terrific beating, gets the papers, cleans up the racket and completes the romance with Miss Clarke.

Based on a series of magazine stories by James Edward Grant, the screen play was by Henry McCarthy and Henry Johnson, with added dialogue by Harry Ruskin. John G. Blystone directed.

"Love and Kisses"

(Melody Pictures-Maurice Conn)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 7.—A light, inconsequential musical production that should please neighborhood and small town patronage, this one ranks favorably for the independent market.

The story is based on an original by Al Martin and Sherman L. Lowe and adapted by Lowe. Pinky Tomlin, an Arkansas farm boy with song-writing visions, sends his first offering to New York, which is promptly stolen by a popular crooner, played by Kane Richmond. Pinky embarks for New York to protect his rights and is immediately bought off by Richmond for $200. A racketeer overhears the deal and forces both Richmond and Tomlin go into the song publishing business with him. Toby Wing and her ever-drunk brother, Arthur Houseman, finally come to the rescue and force the racketeers to make a legitimate deal with Tomlin.

Houseman is very good as the drunk comedian. Tomlin enacts his part, in which he sings several songs, in very favorable manner. Toby Wing, as the night club torch songster, gives an adequate performance.

Russell Hopton, Jerry Bergen, Billy Gray, Fuzzy Knight, Kenneth Thomson, G. Pat Collins, Cliff Hytton and Jack Ingram handled the lesser parts favorably. A colored trio, The Peters Sisters, entertains with a song, which was well taken by the audience.

Les Goodwine, director, did all that could be expected with what he had to work with. Songs sung by Tomlin were written by himself, Paul Park, Al Heath, Buddy LaRoux, Harry Tobias and Connie Lee.

the uses to which the balances remaining in Italy might be put.

Hays said that the American State Dep't and Ambassador Phillips have been "thoroughly cooperative and most helpful" in the situation and that there was apparent in Italy "a sympathetic understanding of the problems there of the American film industry."

Hays said that he had not been fully informed concerning the objectives of the meeting called by the National Council for Industrial Progress, which opens in Washington tomorrow and that as a result no decision had been made yet on sending an official industry representative to the meeting. He said that a decision on this probably would be made today.

Queried by ship news reporters for metropolitan newspapers on the recurrent reports of James A. Farley becoming associated with the M. P. P. D. A. in some official capacity, Hays said: "That's your story. It belongs to the newspapers and all I know of it is what I learn from you."

Hays, who was accompanied by Mrs. Hays, was met at Quarantine by Carl E. Milliken, Gabriel L. Hess, Frederick L. Herron, Kenneth Clark and Walter Trumbull, of the M. P. P. D. A., and John Flinn, former executive secretary of the Code Authority for the industry. Overseas Previews

"Men Are Not Gods"

(London Films-United Artists)

LONDON, Dec. 1.—This is good box-office. It is also a smart piece of production. Walter Reisch, author of "Escapade" and other successful film plays, both wrote and directed it, doing a good job of work in both departments. Miriam Hopkins also is in top form and even a bit beyond it in some of the comedy scenes. In an episode of hysterical outbreak, she is swell.

It is a story with a basis as old as the films. Just the story of a gallery girl infatuated with a star actor and philanderer. The actor's wife, about to become a mother, appeals to the other girl. The husband, who has contemplated murdering his wife after he learns the other girl is leaving him, repents immediately he hears of the coming child.

What makes it good entertainment is first the dramatic background of the theatre, the fact that the actor plays Othello and in that character nearly makes the murder scene real, and secondly Reisch's extraordinary sense of character and appreciation of minor situations. The girl, secretary to a dramatic critic, played by Miss Hopkins, is an altogether human and appealing figure. Very funny in an early scene in which she takes too much champagne with the actor and his wife, she is forcible in the big dramatic moment when, by her scream from the gallery, she prevents the stage murder.

Rich in secondary characters, in atmosphere and in its pictorial variety—Charles Rosher's camera work is a feature—"Men Are Not Gods" also offers big crowd scenes in theatre interiors staged at the late London Alhambra. Gertrude Lawrence, Sebastian Shaw and Rex Harrison are all up to their roles. The interludes from "Othello" are well staged and beautifully spoken.

It looks like one of the best pieces of popular entertainment England has sent to America and should put into the shade many more pretentious films from this side. Reisch ought to make a lot more box-office stuff.

Running time, 90 minutes. "A." ALLAN

Looking 'Em Over

"Heading for the Rio Grande"

(Grand National)

With a story that begins with a promise of something to develop in later sequences which fails to materialize, this western merely makes the grade as an average offering, suitable for a double bill. The plot follows familiar channels and the follow up on the narrative incoherently leads the film to its routine, romantic conclusion.

Tex Ritter and Sid Saylor, a pair of happy-go-lucky cowboys, drop in on Budd Buster at the psychological moment when racketeers are about to force their "protection" on the old man. Soon after they again cross the path of the same clique as they repeat their threats to Eleanore Stewart's father, Charles French. At this point the story gets started. Ritter joins Miss Stewart's cow hands. Shortly afteward Ritter has a brawl with Charles King, who shoots French as he rides away. Ritter takes French to a doctor and while he is away the outlaws stampede the stock. French later dies.

In events leading to the climax Ritter with the aid of an Indian agent and his charges rounds up the entire gang and so makes the range safe again for the cattlemen. And, of course, the original duet becomes a trio with the romantic addition of Miss Stewart.

Ritter, who has a reputation for his recorded singing, fulfills the demands of the part. Creditable performances are also turned in by Charles King, Warner Richmond, Earl Dwire, William Desmond and Snub Pollard. Robert N. Bradbury directed. Ed Finney produced.

Hungarian Edict Is Boon to Exhibitors

By ENDRE HEVESI

BUDAPEST, Nov. 25.—The Government edict permitting the exhibition of only one feature on a program has been a distinct advantage to first run houses, and has not hurt neighborhood houses to the extent anticipated, since their grosses are maintaining previous levels and they have less rental to pay for product.

Distributors, on the other hand, have suffered heavily from the edict. Increased competition forced them to import a great many films this year, and the Government restriction has left them with more product on their hands than they can dispose of in a reasonable length of time. A few distributors have attempted to meet the almost disastrous turn of affairs by cutting some features in half and releasing each half as a short subject. The result, as a film, lacks any sort of structure, but the distributors contend they were driven to the expedient in self defense.

Next year, with distributors acting accordingly, the situation is expected to be remedied.

Will Get Camelias

Richmond, Dec. 7.—Edith Lindeman, film critic of the Times-Dispatch, wanted to get reader-reactions on her column. And here's what she did.

She wrote to Robert Taylor asking him if he would give a prize for the best letters on "what kind of movie news I want to read."

He agreed. He promised to send beautiful creamy camelias with personal messages to those designated by Miss Lindeman. The contest closes at midnight, Dec. 15. Men are eligible.

A camelia is a genus of Asiatic evergreen shrub, cultivated for their beautiful rose-like flowers and shining foliage, according to the dictionary.

He has just finished a role in "Camille," but she went for red roses.

"negotiate for the necessary clearance at the time of the sale."

Schaefer's letter declares that United Artists is "decidedly against" the practices of overbuying and double featuring, but believes the solutions for them are in the hands of the exhibitor. It expresses a hope for the elimination of all unfair competition and says that the distributor favors a "clear and concise contract" of as short a form as possible, but that, because of "recent court decisions," it cannot agree to adopt a short, uniform license agreement.

Of the policy of asking for preferred playing time, the distributor's letter says "It will be impossible to forego the practice of negotiation for preferred playing time due to the fact that so much of our product is played on a percentage basis. Theatres do their best business on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays and we feel that we are rightfully entitled to a reasonable share of that time. We do not believe that the exhibitor should be required to play pictures that are unsuitable for Saturdays and Sundays and we will be reasonable in that respect."

In reference to the forcing of shorts with features Schaefer's letter points out that United Artists distributes only the Walt Disney cartoons and sells these on a "separate and distinct" basis, apart from the feature sales.

The distributor's statement on cancellation reads: "United Artists Corp. is unable to grant the 10 per cent cancellation privilege. You know, of course, it has been a long standing policy of selling our product on an individual picture or producer basis. Furthermore, there is no business relation or common interest between the various producers who only use this corporation as a common medium for distribution. These producers make from three to six pictures a year and do not in themselves attempt to make or supervise a large quantity of pictures."

Schaefer's statement on the establishment of local conciliation boards, like that of Sidney R. Kent of 20th Century-Fox, included an approval of a central appeals board to be located in New York. The opinion within M.P.T.O.A ranks, however, is that no appeal board is necessary in view of the fact that the very nature of the boards precludes the possibility of enforceable or appealable decisions being rendered. The M.P.T.O.A. belief is that the boards will be effective only through conciliation and persuasion on behalf of parties to complaints who will agree voluntarily to abide by accepted settlement procedures.

Action Looked for Next Month

The letter also asks for further discussion of the machinery and jurisdiction of the boards and indications are that this will take place early next month at a second meeting of the M.P.T.O.A. trade practice committee with national distributors.

"We are entirely in sympathy with the movement of your organization for a better understanding between the exhibitor and the distributor and are willing to cooperate with you and any other organization at all times in that respect," Schaefer's letter, which was addressed to Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, concludes.

United Artists is the third major company to reply to the M.P.T.O.A.'s trade practice program, Universal and 20th Century-Fox having responded earlier. Paramount and RKO are expected to make their replies next.

Ask 20th-Fox To Reconsider MPTOA Reply

Cancellation and Score Charge Stand Cited

Reconsideration by 20th Century-Fox of its avowed intention to continue to exact score charges from exhibitors, and to give a 10 per cent cancellation privilege only to those exhibitors who take all of the 20th Century-Fox product offered at the same time, is asked by the M. P. T. O. A., in a letter from Ed Kuykendall, president, to Sidney R. Kent, 20th Century-Fox head, made public yesterday.

The letter presumably follows a detailed study by the M. P. T. O. A. of 20th Century-Fox's concessions with respect to the exhibitor organization's 10-point trade practice proposals. An earlier letter by Kuykendall, which accompanied the release of the 20th Century-Fox response to the proposals, declared that the film company's reply was a "definite step in the right direction," and one which will afford immediate benefits to independent exhibitors.

Kuykendall, in his latest communi-

CBS Sets Plans For Studio in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 8.—CBS on Feb. 1 will launch a $750,000 program for the construction of new Hollywood studios, it was stated today by Donald W. Thornburgh following the awarding of the building contract to William Simpson Construction Co., a local firm. The combined building and property cost will total $1,000,000. J. C. Edwards of the building company returned today from New York where he completed conferences with Columbia officials relative to the construction and equipment of the studios.

Plans for the new development are now being completed in New York by William Lescaze, architect, and Earl Heitschmidt. They provide for a five-story building of modern design and

GB "A" Shares to Maxwell Or Deal Will Fail, Report

LONDON, Dec. 8.—Unless the Ostrer Brothers can deliver to John Maxwell, head of B.I.P., the 5,100 "A" or voting shares of Metropolis and Bradford Trust, holding company which controls 57 per cent of G. B., the deal for purchase by Maxwell of G. B. control will collapse, it was indicated here on good authority today.

Maxwell already has acquired 240,000 shares of the Ostrers' "B" holdings in M. & B. and an understanding is said to exist relative to his acquisition of the "A" shares. It is understood that the Ostrer contract with Maxwell included an obligation on the Ostrers to obtain the consent of 20th Century-Fox to the sale of the "A" shares. Twentieth Century-Fox owns 4,900 shares of the "A" stock in M. & B. and its consent is required before the Ostrers may dispose of their holdings.

It is that consent which it is believed Isidore and Maurice Ostrer are seeking to obtain from Joseph M. Schenck and Sidney R. Kent in Hollywood conferences now going on.

CEA and KRS Seen Unified On Moyne Plan

The belief was expressed in informed quarters following the meeting today of the C. E. A. general purposes committee at which K. R. S. representatives were present. The meeting was for a discussion of possible joint action by the two major industry bodies on the Moyne report.

The identical policies of the two organizations are expected to embody

Basically having nothing whatever to do with the long-drawn picketing campaign of musicians' unions, fostered and led by Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians in New York and seeking the return of musicians to film houses, the new effort probably will be infinitely more

Schenck Gets Contract and Stock Option

Opponents Are Swamped In Stockholder Vote

By BILL ORNSTEIN

Stockholders of Loew's at their annual meeting yesterday approved a five-year personal contract for Nicholas M. Schenck, president, and the transfer of the late Irving G. Thalberg's unexpired five-year option for the annual purchase of 9,698 2/5 shares of stock at $40 by a vote of 970,414 to 4,284. More than 100 shareholders attended the session conducted by J. Robert Rubin. This is the first contract for Schenck.

That the stockholders would approve both pacts was exclusively reported in MOTION PICTURE DAILY on Nov. 25.

Under provisions of the five-year contract, Schenck's salary and percentage continues as heretofore. He has been getting $2,500 a week, plus two and a half per cent of the net profit after deductions of $6.50 dividends on the preferred and $2 on the common stock. Last year, it was stated by Rubin on a query by a minority stockholder, the president of

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

FROM MOTION PICTURE DAILY, October 23:

The news is this morning that George S. Kaufman, that old sophisticate, still believes in fairy tales. It is far more important news than "Stage Door," his latest collaboration with Edna Ferber, which last night sent a slightly hysterical audience at the Music Box into real or imaginary snorts of delight and more handshaking than this reviewer, even at his magnanimous most, can account for.

It was not good Kaufman. Neither was it good Ferber. It was, however, the old Cinderella theme, cooked over the same fire, garnished with the usual truffles and served up with the same, old sauce. A very familiar dish and on scraping acquaintance, at least, with everyone's palate.

They poke at Hollywood with lusty digs, yet they have written a routine potboiler no doubt looking toward its purchase by that very Hollywood they take for a ride. It seems fitting to point out here and now that the picture colony can and does do much better.

The play is interlarded occasionally with lines of the bright and witty school of which Kaufman is a member and some amusing pieces of business. But the story it has to tell is stretched out painfully and thin with large patches of daylight shining through.

"Stage Door" would make a motion picture. Nothing exciting, mind you, but a motion picture. The boys in Hollywood, however, can do as well. For the big money which will be sought for the rights there is too little to buy.

The word now is that RKO, proud possessor of the film rights, paid $130,000 for the privilege of turning this play, enjoying lusty business less because of merit and more because the stage crop to date has been sparse, into a film. We gallop into the next sentence which is to divulge our opinion that RKO, no doubt, will transform "Stage Door" into an interesting picture, especially in the light of its plans to co-star Katharine Hepburn, Ginger Rogers and Burgess Meredith. Probably it will be a better film than a play, for such is Hollywood's record in a number of recent and significant instances. . . .

The point, and we think it is quite a point, about all of this is something entirely different. It arouses what persists in being a year-to-year mystery with us and it seeks to ferret out why so many of the industry's major producers insist upon setting themselves up as fall guys in awe of the New York theatre. We know most of the answers about paucity of material, the desire to sink hooks into whatever looks potential. But there ought to be some reasonable limit to the fortunes turned loose and certainly we do not think the price paid for "Stage Door" falls within rational boundaries in the light of what it has to say for itself. RKO, as with all other producers, will capture success with this property, not on the strength of the inevitable sounding off about its New York draw, but quite emphatically on the appeal of the job done at the studio. The job includes considerable deodorizing to eliminate from plot and dialogue an attack on Hollywood as devastating as any to come along in some time. It is of the essence of the play, yet it must come out. What, then, has RKO purchased?

A structure with a useless foundation. . . .

Back in 1927 a very talkative young waiter at the Paramount Long Island Studio used to juggle trays over the heads of nervous stars and directors with what might be described as gay abandon. When the youngster —his name was Joe—wasn't talking he was whistling. Everybody liked him, but his whistling wasn't exactly an obligato. One of the customers was a tall young woman with jet black hair and big dark eyes who had very little to say to anybody—even Joe. Her name was Adele Comandini.

A short time back Joe—he's Joseph Pasternak now—finished his first important Hollywood-made film as a producer. It was Universal's "Three Smart Girls," and a good one. The original story and screen play were by Adele Comandini. . . .

No sooner had the Lord Chamberlain lifted the long-standing ban on theatrical treatment of Queen Victoria, than Herbert Wilcox indulged in some slight cable sizzling to get word here first that he planned a picture based on the royal life. Now it seems Alexander Korda has a similar idea. Very much around is the excellent "Victoria Regina," a holdover from last year's New York stage season and likely material for a film about the queen, if anyone wants to attempt a picture about Victoria.

Three already and practically all major American companies yet to be heard from. . . .

Football brainstorming in these parts ended with your correspondent's compilation of the All-Celluloid, a presumably funny takeoff on the All-American. The anonymous one also volunteered additional information, to wit:

That George Skouras, the captain, states these players are not subject to the usual intercollegiate restrictions, but play the old army game exclusively.

Looking 'Em Over

"Abyssinia"

(Amkino)

Russian screen propaganda moves on all possible fronts.

The last film released in this country from the state-controlled industry there turned attention to Mongolia, and offered a very thinly disguised attack on Japanese methods and possible intentions.

With the headlines recently full of the European Fascist grouping in opposition to Communism, which means Russia, this latest importation turns toward Italy, seat of Fascism, and attempts to score with a news film depiction of the manner in which the Italian army conquered Ethiopia.

Two cameramen of Soyuzfilmnews, the Soviet news reel, covered the Italo-Ethiopian war. The burden of the message is that peaceful, healthy Ethiopia was invaded by the imperialistic might of Mussolini, with machine guns, bombing planes and similar equipment pitted against old guns, spears and primitive shields.

High spot of the record is the destruction of a field hospital by bombs immediately after surgeons had completed the dressing of the wounds of Ethiopian soldiers. Presuming the shots to be authentic, the scene depicts ruthless, unscrupulous warfare.

For the screens of this country, the film means little.

RCA Licenses Debrie On New Print Device

Andre Debrie, Inc., of America, manufacturer of studio and laboratory processing equipment, has been licensed under RCA patents to manufacture and sell a new non-slip printer for film processing based on technical developments of the RCA laboratories. Other equipment manufacturers also are negotiating for similar licenses, according to Edwin M. Hartley, RCA Photophone sales head.

The non-slip printer, according to Hartley, automatically compensates for differences caused by shrinkage of the processed negative and positive film printed from it. It was pointed out that with ordinary printers, minute variations between print and negative at the point of printing blurs the photographic registration.

Edna Buckler Replies

Edna Buckler yesterday filed an answer in her $2,000,000 damage suit against Sidney Kingsley, Norman Bel Geddes, Random House and Samuel Goldwyn to an interrogation submitted by attorneys for the defendants.

She seeks an injunction to prevent a film version of the play from being made by Goldwyn who has purchased the rights for $165,000. She charges that the main parts of "her play were plagiarized and used in 'Dead End'" and cites many alleged parallels.

Dictograph Obtains Stay

Schenck Gets Contract and Stock Option

the company received $312,000 and the year before $186,000.

The transfer of Thalberg's unexercised stock option was the subject of much criticism. A number of the smaller stockholders were of the opinion that Schenck's salary or bonus should be increased rather than transfer the option. Eugene W. Leake, former trustee for Paramount, and representing 36,500 shares; Walter Reade, head of the Reade circuit and owner of 10,000 shares; Hugo Sonenshine, attorney for B. & K. and substantial stockholder; Bernard Castle, who holds 27,400 shares, and an unnamed stockholder who said he held 2,165 shares lauded Schenck's enterprise and efforts on behalf of the company.

Cites 1932 Refusal

It was pointed out by Rubin that in 1932 Schenck turned down a long-term stock option as well as a service contract, stating at the time that he felt it was for the best interests of the company that the others get the contracts. He added, according to Rubin, that he couldn't express an unbiased opinion if he accepted the offers.

The stock arrangement, as passed yesterday, provides that Schenck cannot sell the stock for less than $15 under what he pays for it; and that if the stock is under $55 he cannot sell. In the event the president should die within the five-year period, his estate can claim the stock option for the given year, provided death takes place after Feb. 1.

Schenck, Rubin, David Warfield, George N. Armsby, Bernstein, I. Frey, Leopold Friedman, John R. Hazel, C. C. Moskowitz, William A. Parker, Thomas Nelson Perkins and William A. Phillips were reelected directors. The board will meet today if a quorum can be secured, to reelect the present officers.

Amendment Badly Beaten

An amendment by Daniel S. Schwartz, owner of approximately 600 shares, to alter the option price to Schenck from $40 to $60 a share was defeated by a vote of 960,322 to 5,040. Exclusive of the proxies, a majority of those present voted against the amendment.

Despite the criticism, which was not unexpected, Bernstein, Rubin, Friedman and Moskowitz expressed themselves as pleased with the meeting.

After the resolutions which were adopted at the last board meeting, were presented to the gathering. Leake made an impressive speech, recalling how he made a two-and-a-half year study of Loew's. He said that in 1932, when he represented groups with 660,000 shares of Loew stock, he "personally tried to persuade the board to set aside a block of shares for Schenck.

"I thought it was a just and wise policy at that time, and after four years, during which time I have made a survey for downtown bankers in connection with the $15,000,000 indenture at 3½ per cent, I still think it is a wise move.

Coast Investment Large

"Week in and week out the company sends from $500,000 to $700,000 to the Pacific coast to invest in production. The difference between good management and indifferent management is the difference between profit and loss.

"In time there will be a monument built for Marcus Loew, the founder of the company, who started with an arcade, and a monument to the men who surrounded him and are now executives of the company. Most of all, this honor will be bestowed to the conservative man who needs no Legion of Decency to guide him; he himself is one."

Commenting on the stock bonus, he said: "Not one additional share of stock is to be set aside for Schenck in excess to those already put aside by the management. Not $1, or share of stock, will be diluted. He is receiving what I earnestly hoped he would take in 1932.

"I marvel not at the amount of salary he is getting, but that a man like Schenck should give his heart and soul, day and night to making 50 pictures a year when I know he can make five on his own and make more than what you are giving him a year.

Leake's Sentiments Applauded

"There is no one but himself to parallel. I congratulate the stockholders on his service and endorse the unanimous recommendations of the board." Leake was applauded.

The first dissenting voice was Benjamin Mahler's. He said:

"I don't know Schenck's ability, or inability; I am giving my own opinion.

"Some companies like Warners have advanced farther than Loew's in appreciation of stock and dividends. Good management is not confined to Loew's; maybe business has improved with the times. I don't think Loew's business is attributed to Schenck. If Schenck is such a wizard, we should dispense with the rest of the officers." A ridiculing laugh broke out at this point.

Thalberg's Name Injected

"Irving Thalberg was not engaged in administration, but production. Why should someone else not taking his place get his stock?" Leake wanted to interrupt at this juncture, but Rubin asked him to be patient.

"If Thalberg is replaced, then give the stock option to his successor. I don't know Mr. Schenck's qualifications, but I don't see why he should not pay $63 a share instead of $40. If it is through Schenck that the stock has gone up, then Schenck should be paid in the future and not in the past."

M. Strauss, a minority holder, followed Mahler and was anxious to learn what Schenck's contract would amount to in figures, based on the percentage clause.

Reade announced how much stock he owned and that his business amounts to $8,000,000 a year. "We of the industry are so proud of Mr. Schenck we would like him to stay. This is one company in which no director is interested in any other film company.

"Schenck, in my opinion, is virtually in control of this business. If Schenck would leave this company it would be a lousy Christmas present for you."

"But," interjected a voice from the front of the room. "Thalberg left us."

"Not willingly," was Reade's retort.

"Your stock wouldn't be worth $63 without Schenck," he concluded.

Stockholder Pays Tribute

Mr. Ross, who said he held 610 shares, praised Schenck, stating "he has done a splendid job for the company and there are few men who would do as good a job.

"I have no objection to giving Schenck a bonus as an incentive, but I don't think he should be placed in a greater position than Thalberg." He pointed out that in 1932, Loew stock hit a high of 37 and a low of 13¼. "This was an inducement for Thalberg to build up the company.

"We say to Mr. Schenck we are not concerned with the company as far as earnings go. I suggest that the option for Mr. Schenck be given at the market price or five points below. At the same time, his bonus can be doubled or trebled."

Sonenshine asserted he had had several occasions to deal with Schenck on deals for B. & K. and other interests "on the other side of the fence."

"Schenck shouldn't be penalized for foregoing the right to the stock option in 1932," he said. "It comes down to what is Mr. N. M. Schenck worth to the organization he has built up, an organization of unexampled loyalty. This concern has never ceased to pay dividends in prosperity and in trying times when others were either in receivership or facing it.

Asks Value to Competitors

"That's the test. Everyone who knows him regards him highly. This is a personal industry, a changing one, and cannot be standardized, or routineized, if there is such a word. It is the resourcefulness of the men in it that make it what it is today. Schenck is an outstanding figure in the industry and if we are going to do this thing, let's do it right."

Castle was succinct. "What would a competitor offer Mr. Schenck?" He left this query with the stockholders as he left to keep an appointment.

An unnamed stockholder declared he came to the meeting with fire in his eyes and ready for battle, but after hearing the speeches, he was reconciled that "we need Mr. Schenck and are indeed fortunate to have a man like him. My only regret is that the contract is not for 10 years instead of five."

Before the session adjourned, Rubin explained in reply to a query that the $2,396,172.30 on the consolidated statement against adjustment of value of productions in suspense and continuities was marked off as a result of money invested by Thalberg in stories and scripts at the time of his death.

Just Like Screeno

With more than 100 stockholders present, the largest group to attend an annual Loew's session in the last 10 years, Oscar Doob marvelled at the turnout, and said:

"We must be playing Screeno."

No Criticism

Although several stockholders disagreed on the two contracts offered to Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, there was not one uncomplimentary remark passed against the management during the entire two-hour session yesterday.

As a matter of record, a vote of confidence was recommended by an unnamed shareholder and unanimously passed.

B & K Sets Dividend; Large Earnings Seen

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—A dividend of $5 per share on the common stock of B. & K. has been declared by the company's board of directors. It is payable Dec. 9 and is the first dividend on the common since July, 1932, when the payment was 37½ cents.

The directorate has also voted the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share, payable Dec. 24.

An unofficial report indicates that the company's earnings for the current year will exceed $2,000,000 as compared with $638,134 in 1935. The majority of the 264,206 shares of common stock of B. & K. are owned by Paramount Pictures, Inc.

An unnamed Loew stockholder attending yesterday's meeting inquired for the personnel manager after registering. Asked the why and wherefore, he said he was anxious to know if there was a job open for him.

CEA and KRS Seen Unified On Moyne Plan

an expression of the necessity of self-government within the industry, without official Government control, as virtually suggested by the Moyne committee, and a conviction of the impracticability of the proposed flexible quota which would carry the figure to 50 per cent within 10 years.

The Board of Trade officially has invited the C. E. A., K. R. S. and the F. B. I. Films Group to submit opinions and suggestions on the Moyne report, which invitation is seen as making the C. E. A.-K. R. S. agreement still more important and significant.

The Parliamentary secretary of the Board of Trade, replying today to a question in the House of Commons as to whether the Government will introduce legislation during this session in line with the Moyne recommendations, said the proposals are being examined by the Government. Steps are being taken, he said, to acertain the views of the various sections of the industry. Some time must necessarily elapse in this effort, he indicated, and declared he was unable to say whether any legislation would be introduced during this session.

Overbuilding Hit By Nyman at CEA Fete

LONDON, Dec. 8.—Ken Nyman, chairman of the London and Home Counties Branch of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n, stressed the necessity of attacking immediately the overbuilding problem in England, at the C.E.A. dinner at the Savoy here tonight.

Nyman was chairman of the affair, which was attended by 500 leaders of the industry here. Nyman argued that an increase in the number of theatres will mean a corresponding increase in the exhibition of inferior films. He criticized local authorities which grant all licenses as they are sought because of their fear of their vague legal position. He sharply attacked speculative builders who erect theatres without regard for the investing or the film-going public.

"Camille" Premiere Set

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 8.—The world premiere of "Camille" will be held at Palm Springs and will open the new independent house operated by Earl Stredbe. The cast, with the exception of Greta Garbo and Robert Taylor, will attend the showing.

AT & T's Film Work To Be Probed Again

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—Film activities of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. are expected to come up for investigation by the Federal Communications Commission about Dec. 21 in New York, where hearings will be transferred during the holiday season.

Tentative plans of the commission to take up the film aspects of the company's operations were made known today by Samuel Becker, special counsel for the commission, as hearings resumed after the summer recess.

The inquiry today was directed to the financial side of the telephone company's laboratory, tracing the acquisition of the various properties used for research and the financial policies followed in its operation. During this portion of the proceedings Samuel Meisel, a special FCC investigator, testified that Western Electric Co. profited to the extent of $2,112,000 from the organization of Bell Telephone Laboratories, Inc., by selling to the laboratories for $4,552,000 properties which were listed on the W. E. books at $2,439,000.

Court Postpones All N. J. Actions on Fox

ATLANTIC CITY, Dec. 8.—Vice-Chancellor W. Frank Sooy today postponed all action in the New Jersey Chancery Court on the $9,535,000 William Fox bankruptcy because of the growing complication of actions in other courts. The hearing on a show cause order involving efforts to have All-Continent Corp. placed in receivership and further restrained from disposing of its assets, was set over indefinitely. Decision was postponed to Jan. 5 on an application made today to dismiss William Fox personally from this action.

Sooy called for briefs on two other questions which he took under advisement. One is whether to continue the Chancery Court argument until the Pennsylvania Federal Court decides on a permanent restraint on the Chancery Court action. The other is whether the matters now before Sooy shall be moved to the New Jersey Federal Court.

Adjourn Rights Hearing

No final disposition of the theatrical, screen and television rights owned wholly or in part by the estate of the late Charles Dillingham was made at a hearing in the office of Federal Referee John Joyce yesterday. Discussion of the bids was held and the hearing was adjourned to Jan. 7.

NEW EXTRA-BIG ONE!

CBS Sets Plans for Studio in Hollywood

Class A construction. There will be one studio, a two-story building and a music hall accommodating 1,000 persons. Prominent acoustical engineers are collaborating.

A feature of the current program will be an experimental television laboratory, indicative of the company's new policy regarding this medium.

The new plant is expected to be ready for occupancy next June.

K. G. Ormiston and Lester H. Bowman left for San Francisco yesterday to arrange for the changeover from KSFO.

Musso Heads WBNO

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 8.—Station WBNO, located in the St. Charles Hotel, is now under management of Ed Musso, the original lessees from the Coliseum Baptist Church, which holds the license, due to the resignation of J. E. Richards, general manager.

It has just been revealed that Richards was arrested recently after he attempted to broadcast the results of races at the Fair Grounds. It appears that during the regime of the late Senator Long a law was passed making it a major offense, punishable by a jail sentence and fine of from $1,000 to $3,000, for a radio station to broadcast race results. Richards' case probably will come up next month.

Form New Station

WAUSAU, Wis., Dec. 8.—Northern Broadcasting Co. has been organized to erect a station here with studios in the Leath & Co. Bldg. Call letters will be WSAU and it is expected the station will be in operation by Jan. 1 with Bert Horswell, formerly with WHBL, Sheboygan, Wis., as manager. J. L. Chapin is president, Donald R. Hurt, vice-president, and Merrill F. Chapin, secretary-treasurer.

To Erect New Radio Tower

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 8.—WTMJ will erect a new 400-foot single, radiator type antenna tower here, to cost $15,000. At the receiver the signal will be 27 per cent stronger than at present and the mast will increase the station's 5,000 watts by 70 per cent.

Seek Springfield, O., Station

SPRINGFIELD, O., Dec. 8.—Springfield Newspapers, Inc., has filed a petition with the Federal Communications Commission for a new station, daytime only, to be operated on 250 watts, 1120 kilocycles.

Asks to Take Over WALR

ZANESVILLE, O., Dec. 8.—Frank O. Klapp, this city, has filed a petition for a new 100-watt station, to be operated on 1,210 kilocycles. He asks facilities of WALR, local station.

WELI Seeking Extension

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 8.—WELI, now on the air from sunrise to sunset, has an application before the Federal Radio Commission for a permit to become full-time.

WSMK Asks Power Increase

DAYTON, Dec. 8.—WSMK, local Columbia outlet, has filed a petition to install a new transmitter, and increase the station power from 200 to 500 watts.

NBC and CBS Let Words Fly In Claims on Network Total

NBC's statement of station strength made to MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday drew sharp rebuttal from CBS, which claimed that the NBC claim was misleading, although technically correct.

Briefly, the facts are these: NBC station affiliates now number 103 and will number 110 as of Jan. 1. CBS's total network stations to date number 97.

The bone of contention is the five to 10 "temporary point" stations used by CBS from time to time which that network claims are also used by NBC as well. These stations apparently are not represented in the CBS total and a spokesman for the Paley chain made the flat declaration that NBC's "temporary point" stations have been included in the latter's national total, thereby swelling its station strength beyond actual proportions.

When informed of Columbia's reply, NBC stated all of the stations represented in the present 103 total carry complete daily network sustaining and sponsored programs, as will also the stations that are to be added on or before Jan. 1.

"Temporary point" stations are units which are added to the networks from time to time when advertisers desire additional coverage. As an example, Columbia cited the "Then and Now," a Sears-Roebuck program, which is carried over 101 CBS outlets. Because the Columbia chain comprises 97 stations, it is obvious that four "temporary point" stations were added to carry the program.

However, the race for stations is becoming more acrimonious every day, with both networks maintaining men in the field to bring new stations into the fold. It has been a stern battle to date and the end is nowhere yet in sight.

Frank Morgan to Guest

Frank Morgan will be Elza Schallert's film guest this Friday at 10:45 P.M., E.S.T. on the NBC-Blue.

New Idea in Auditions

Bob Hope and "Honey Chile" yesterday auditioned in CBS Playhouse No. 1 for Zotoz, Inc., sponsors of last year's "Hour of Charm" program featuring Phil Spitalny's all-girl orchestra. Last night's audition set a precedent in that it was witnessed by a regular studio audience whose reactions to the material are now being studied by the prospective sponsor. Freddie Mayer, independent producer, planned the show.

Scramble Over Ford

Merriest agency scramble of the year is now being waged with the Ford contract as the prize. More than a dozen advertising agencies have submitted a total of about 40 shows within the past 48 hours and Hay McClinton, direct Ford representative, is now enroute to Detroit with the recordings.

It is expected that definite announcement as to Waring's successor will be made either Thursday or Friday of this week.

Black Replaces Eastman

Frank Black, NBC general music director, has been signed to direct the "Carnation Contented" program orchestra beginning with the broadcast of Jan. 4. Morgan L. Eastman has directed for the past five years.

"Carnation Contented" emanates from Chicago, which means that Black will have to fly to Chicago on Mondays for the Tuesday broadcasts, and return to New York for his weekly RCA series.

Tracy on Vallee Program

Spencer Tracy will head the five-star cast on the Rudy Vallee Hour tomorrow night. The film star supersedes Joe Cook as the program's featured attraction. In addition to Tracy and Cook, Vallee will present Doris Hare, Don Tannen, and Capt. John H. Ayers, head of the Missing Persons Bureau of the New York police department.

Armco Switches to Tuesday

The Armco Band concerts, heretofore heard on Sundays at 8 P. M., E. S. T. over the NBC-Blue, will broadcast on Tuesdays at 10 P. M. instead, beginning Dec. 15. Because of the change, the program will not be on the air this Sunday.

The Armco band is now in its eighth year of broadcasting.

New Fledglings Get Chance

The WHN-CBS "Airfinds" program presented over WHN and designed to give fledgling talent an opportunity that otherwise would be denied because of the crowded network channels, this week presents a group headed by the Eton Boys. Others include Rudy Madison, Adele Andre and the "Symphonettes," a girl's trio. The program is heard Thursdays at 8 P.M., E.S.T.

"Magic Key" Show Set

The RCA "Magic Key" program this Sunday will feature Percy Grainger, Emil Coleman's orchestra, the Yale Glee Club, and James Barton in a very much cleaned-up scene from "Tobacco Road."

Ponselle Closing Series

Rosa Ponselle will be the principal guest star on the final "Then and Now" program tomorrow at 10 P. M., E. S. T. over CBS.

Mourn Freedman's Death

Radio Row is mourning the unexpected passing of David Freedman, script writer, who died in his sleep yesterday. Freedman was well-liked.

Shep Fields, Ackerberg, Et Al

Short Shots: When John H. Woodbury, Inc., drops Paul Whiteman on Jan. 3, the new program will be known as the "Rippling Rhythm Revue," featuring Shep Fields' orchestra . . . The Pullman Motor Coach Co. may place a program on the air . . . Herbert Ackerberg, CBS head of station relations, now touring the nation on network business . . . "Drama of the Skies," a series of programs dealing with astronomy, will be resumed on a weekly basis beginning Saturday at 5:30 P.M., E.S.T. over CBS . . . Bertha Matlock of the Al Barnes circus will be Edward Everett Horton's "Shell Chateau" guest this Saturday night . . . Blanche Yurka, stage star, will be heard on Bide Dudley's WOR program Sunday at 3:45 P.M., E.S.T. . . . Biographical sketches of Louis Sobol, Walter Winchell and Ed Sullivan will be offered on the WMCA "Broadway Newsreel" program tomorrow at 8:15 P.M., E.S.T. by Jack Eigen . . . Kate Smith's all-collegiate football team will be announced on her "Bandwagon" program tomorrow night at 8 P.M., E.S.T. over CBS.

WNLC Getting Recognition

NEW LONDON, Dec. 8.—WNLC is winning considerable attention by its live programs, in spite of being limited to daytime operation and lack of press cooperation.

Kurst Makes Rice Boil

Houston, Dec. 9.—Score one for Professor Kurst!

A radio hoax that had the faculty and alumni of Rice Institute obviously upset and finally openly belligerent has become one of the real laughs of the town.

When the alumni met in the homecoming banquet hall, a red-bewhiskered gent, Professor Oscar Kurst, was introduced as the physical director of the University of Vienna, and proceeded to "broadcast" a denunciation of Communism and a rabid defense of Fascism. The professor's goulash accent added odor to the unpopular subject and the alumni of this southern university, which is noted for its liberal views, squirmed under the "Professor's" tirade. At one point Sylvester Gross, handling the "microphone," interrupted to announce he would be forced by radio rules to withdraw the address from the air.

Finally an ired group of alumni escorted "Professor Kurst" from the platform and the hall. John Paul Goodwin, assistant director of KPRC and the pseudo professor, decided the joke had gone far enough and revealed his identity to the disgruntled alumni. The story made the front page of the daily papers.

Radio Shows Aim To Bring Back Acts

far-reaching and possibly a great deal more effective in the final analysis.

The musicians have been picketing about 25 New York houses for many weeks now, the union choosing its pickets from among the extensive ranks of unemployed musicians, but the effectiveness of that campaign is highly questionable. Certainly it is no secret that the theatres being picketed, major circuit houses almost exclusively, are anything but disturbed over the picketing. The pickets are inoffensive, create no stir, but merely parade the sidewalk with their sandwich signs, competing with the restaurant and beauty parlor minions who march beside them at intervals.

But this new drive, conceived initially under the hand of WPA and its Federal Theatre Project's Radio Division, has taken to the air, selling, or re-selling the stage presentation idea to the American public. It comes from the three-week-old "Professional Parade," one-hour weekly program developed by the Federal Theatre Radio Division and the Artists' Bureau of NBC.

Quality Is High

The program, which incidentally, has been characterized by radio writers as excellent entertainment, is composed of unemployed professional variety players, those who in an earlier day in the entertainment world would have been playing the sticks and the hinterland, with their eyes and hopes pointing toward the pinnacle, a week at the Palace on Broadway.

Fred Niblo, Jr., ex-director for the screen, is master-of-ceremonies for the eight to 12 acts which are featured each Wednesday night from 9 to 10 P. M.

His remarks, introducing the program, and heard, it may be fairly assumed, by thousands of families over the country, include such phrases, exactly quoted, as:

"I marvel that such fine young professional talent is not appearing in every theatre in America where you may not only hear them but see them as well," and

"I am sure you will want to see in your theatres, in your cities, these boys and girls from the professional stage," and again

"Let's bring back stage presentations in all our theatres where you may see real people and hear them talk and sing and dance. In the words of my friend, Frank Buck, let's 'Bring 'em back alive.'"

Effect Problematical

The program, which by all recognizable bases of estimate of such things among those who know in radio, is gaining each week in popularity, goes out over the Blue Network of NBC, which means 20 stations of major power and importance across the country, in addition to many smaller stations.

It is, of course, far too early to ascertain what effect this new drive may have in its effort to bring reemployment, or initial employment, to thousands of potential, and experienced vaudevillians, but it is not completely unlikely that the public will eventually see the point, and bring pressure to bear on the theatre operator, and so down the line.

It is at once apparent that stage presentations and double bills cannot both occupy a theatre's program, and at present duals, and in some cases triples, hold the balance of power in this country's exhibition. Stage shows are expensive, of course, but if the public should get its mind made up, something might happen.

NBC's Artists' Bureau is to have complete charge of the stage units which are planned from each radio program personnel, and with the first unit practically set, efforts to book the stage groups in the country's theatres will go forward apace, aided by the "Professional Parade" on the air, and the calculated expressions of Niblo.

Films Best School Help—Aylesworth

of Brackett Lecturers' Reunion and the faculty of Princeton University.

"After all, radio broadcasting is the show business," he said. "Its very foundation is showmanship. This is true whether in the field of mass entertainment or in the dissemination of public information to all the radio listeners in all of the states of the union and to the world at large."

He said broadcasters had found that broadcasting transmitters cannot substitute for the teacher or professor in the classroom, because they "cannot do the combined job of the eye and ear."

Broadcasting of public events is the best means of carrying on adult education, he said. He also declared that he had always opposed the allotment of definite time for educational programs because labeling the periods educational caused people to tune out.

On the other hand, he pointed out, it was possible for educators to formulate a definite program for educational films and projectors were available without fire hazards.

"There are 50,000 radio sets in the 250,000 schools of the country—a small but growing number," he said.

Teachers to Talk Radio

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—Educators from all sections of the country will meet here Thursday for a three-day conference on the role of broadcasting in education, in cooperation with the Federal Communications Commission and the Office of Education.

Among the speakers will be Anning S. Prall, F.C.C. chairman; John W. Studebaker, Commissioner of Education; David Sarnoff, RCA president, and Levering Tyson, director of the National Advisory Council on Radio in Education. Subjects on the agenda include the development of broadcasting stations as community enterprises, educational broadcasting abroad, state planning for radio, radio and propaganda, and the possibilities of television.

FCC to Hear Station Pleas

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—Hearings were ordered today by the Federal Communications Commission on 10 applications for permission to construct new broadcasting stations. Three of them plan the use of 1,000 watts power, the others calling for 100 to 250 watts.

They would be located at Omaha, Duluth, Brooklyn, Washington, Albany, Jacksonville, Waterloo, Ia., Los Angeles and Wichita Falls, Tex.

Berry Awaits Film Reaction To Conference

invitations were sent to members of the film industry, the only returns, so far as could be learned, came from M. H. Aylesworth, of RKO, and Nathan Yamins, president of Allied States, and it was made clear today on behalf of the latter that he accepted merely as an observer and has signed no papers aligning him with the Berry group.

At Berry's office, it was admitted that few responses were received to the invitations, but it was asserted that the film meeting was arranged at the request of somebody in the industry and was not suggested by Berry.

From such reports of intended attendance as have been procurable, it is expected that the picture meeting tomorrow will be a flop, such attendance as may be will consist almost entirely of men coming as "observers" and taking no active part in any deliberations.

Trade organization representatives in Washington expressed the belief that the Thursday and Friday meeting will be a repetition of the conference last year, when practically all industrial representatives refused to participate. There will be a fair attendance of observers but, outside of the labor groups and the representatives of the few small trades which have been cooperating only a sprinkling of delegates will be prepared to act.

No N. Y. Men to Join Washington Confabs

So far as could be learned yesterday no New York film industry representatives will attend the conference called by Major George L. Berry in Washington today for informal talks prior to the all-industry conference scheduled tomorrow.

At the Hays office yesterday it was said that Will H. Hays had been so busy since his return from Europe that he had not had time to study the proposal. Representatives of the I.T.O.A. said they would not attend. Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. head, stated several days ago that he had not been invited.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 8.—Sir Guy Standing will leave here tonight on a tour of Canadian exchanges for the Zukor Silver Jubilee Drive. He will make his first stop at Vancouver Friday night and will go as far east as Montreal, and is due to return here Dec. 24.

Ray Milland and William Frawley will leave this week for tours of cities in the midwest, New England and other eastern points. Milland will fly to Boston Thursday and will make a personal appearance at the opening of "The Jungle Princess."

"Great Guy," with James Cagney, has been booked for the Criterion starting Dec. 25. It will not be double featured.

Ask 20th-Fox To Reconsider MPTOA Reply

cation, notes that 20th Century-Fox has taken off all of the restrictions with respect to the proposal for a "reasonable and unconditional minimum rejection privilege in all contracts for 10 or more features bought at the same time," with the exception of the requirement that the exhibitor take all of the 20th Century-Fox product offered at the same time, excluding foreign made pictures or pictures not produced by the 20th Century-Fox studios. "This, we feel, is a big step forward," Kuykendall said.

"We assume," the letter continues, "that where an increased cancellation privilege is justifiable, you will negotiate a selective contract with the exhibitor.

Asks Broad Cancellation

"However, we would like to have you give further consideration to the one condition which you still impose. Our suggestion was that the minimum cancellation apply to all contracts for 10 or more features, which, we think, is fair and reasonable. Perhaps the strongest and most general complaint among exhibitors on the previously used cancellation clause was that they so frequently forfeited all rights of cancellation because they did not buy the entire number of pictures released by the distributor, although they did buy a large block of pictures."

On the score charge, Kuykendall said, "As we understand your statement, you intend to continue exacting the score charge in the same manner that has been pursued by your company in previous years. It is generally conceded that there is no longer any real justification for a separate score charge." He pointed out that some of the companies have dropped the charge, and expressed the belief that all companies do not exact the charge from all accounts, and that it has been generally abolished on short subjects.

Charges Injustice

"While it may be true that you derive a substantial amount of revenue from this source, it is equally true that the exhibitors are burdened with the payment of every dollar of revenue you collect and actually get nothing in return for what they pay on the score charge. If it is just a matter of the price of the picture, why should there be deception in the quoted price?"

Referring to Kent's endorsement of the proposal for local conciliation boards, Kuykendall declared it will be necessary to work out procedure and details of operation "as we go along," and that the boards have their limitations "and will not be in a position to make or enforce final decisions in controversies submitted to them; but we sincerely believe that it is the best possible plan that can be developed under present circumstances."

Kuykendall said his organization has no objection to a central appeals board located in New York, as suggested by Kent, "if it should develop that such an appeals board would serve any useful purpose." However, Kuykendall pointed out, since no final decision or enforceable award could be rendered by the local conciliation boards, "it is difficult for us to imagine just what there would be to appeal."

Concluding his letter to Kent, Kuykendall declared that he "will probably want to confer with you and John D. Clark, as soon as I have the opportunity to do so."

Kuykendall to Head St. Louis Speakers

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 8.—In addition to Ed Kuykendall it is expected that speakers at the annual meeting of the M. P. T. O. of St. Louis, Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois will include Building Commissioner Welsch and several members of the Missouri General Assembly. The meeting will get under way Friday at the Coronado.

Non-members as well as members have been urged to attend.

Plans are under way for the construction of a theatre on West 72nd St. between Columbus Ave. and Broadway. The property was recently acquired by Fenden Realty Corp., headed by George W. Anger.

Lesser Will Build Own Coast Studio

Breen pictures for next season will be doubled, Lesser stated. The first on the current schedule, "Rainbow on the River," will open at the Music Hall on Dec. 17 and continue for 11 days. The second, tentatively titled "Boy Blue," will go into production next March.

Lesser will sail Dec. 26 on the Normandie for Vienna to confer with Oscar Strauss, the composer, to write a special score for "Boy Blue." He will return in February. While here he expects to sign an important deal for Breen's third film.

In addition to the Breen trio, Lesser plans to make four Richard Arlen westerns and two Tarzan films next season. Negotiations are under way to get Johnny Weissmuller.

Lesser has Breen for six more years after he completes his third picture this season. RKO will distribute for that period. Louise Beavers and Alan Mowbray also are under contract to Lesser.

Breen, according to Lesser, has $100,000 a year guaranteed him on commercial tieups. The singer also will make records for RCA-Victor.

RKO Group to Delay Pending Further Talks

Wishes Clarification of Points in Plan

Pending further discussions with the proponents of the RKO plan of reorganization on certain features of the fairness and equity of the plan's treatment of general creditors, the unsecured creditors' committee, of which William V. Hodges is chairman, withholds the making of any recommendation to creditors with respect to the plan, it is stated in a letter distributed by the committee yesterday.

The letter enumerates a number of features of the plan which the committee believes require clarification and asserts that the proponents of the plan, Atlas Corp. and Lehman Bros., have offered to discuss with the committee the points raised by it. The letter declares that the committee believes that the proponents of the plan "directly control or represent sufficient percentages of the secured claims and of the present common stock of

Elect Wanger Prod. Member of MPPDA

Walter Wanger Prod., Inc., was elected a member of the M.P.P.D.A. at yesterday's quarterly meeting of the board of directors of the Hays organization. Wanger will be the representative of his company within the organization.

Will H. Hays, who returned on Monday from brief visits in Rome, Paris and London, reported to the board on current situations of interest to the industry abroad, and particularly upon the agreement which was reached recently with Italian officials concerning the relaxing of quota regulations and the withdrawal of money from that country by American film companies.

Producers-Writers Meeting Called Off

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 9.—The possibility of an early signing of the pact between Screen Playwrights, Inc., and the Producers faded today when the producers canceled tonight's scheduled meeting at which they were to have considered the proposed agreement.

It is understood here that the Academy is offering some opposition, although it has made no official move to obstruct progress of the negotiations.

French Plan To Ban Duals U.S. Threat

Houses Using American Film for Doubles

By PIERRE AUTRE

PARIS, Dec. 2.—A threat to the distribution of American films in France is seen in a proposed law which the French Government plans to bring to a vote in the Chamber of Deputies, providing that only one feature film may be shown on a theatre program. Almost all French houses with the exception of the Paris first runs use double features.

The threat to American films lies in the fact that in a great many places dubbed American films are used as supporting pictures on double bills, or two American films make up the dual program. The passage of such a measure is seen as curtailing American business in France by as much as 80 per cent, but it is not expected that the measure will be brought

Criterion Switch Irks Loew's, RKO

The Criterion switched its advertised dual bill late Tuesday night and instead of opening yesterday with "Accused" and "Captain Calamity," the twin bill program comprised "The Life of King Edward" and "Love in Exile," two G. 'Elementary,' Says Holmes; That Also Dubs New Play

The New York theatre season had the crank turned on last night after an eventless eight days of coasting with an indifferent piece which failed to help matters. Yclept "The Holmeses of Baker Street," it had an idea which got pretty badly mangled in the churnings.

After all these years, Sherlock Holmes, out of crime and a fancier of bees, has a daughter streaked with a good deal of the same power of deduction which made him a world known literary figure and Conan Doyle a wealthy man. The White X is the almost perfect criminal who brazenly announces where and whom he will rob, but never seems to get caught. This suggests an inside job and, if you suspect somebody around Scotland Yard is familiar with the lowdown, you will be bundling with the solution. The casus belli in this instance is a Medici pearl, one of only two and the other held by that good old reliable, an Indian maharajah who simply must have both and is not

Capital Film Meet Called Off by Berry

Man With Tidings Finds Only Small Handful

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Faced with the practical assurance that less than a handful of picture men, and all of them "observers" who would refrain from taking any part in the proceedings, would attend the conference arranged for the film group prior to the meetings of the National Council for Industrial Progress, George L. Berry, President Roosevelt's Coordinator for Industrial Cooperation, today called off the gathering at the last minute.

Berry's office sent a representative to the meeting room in the Mayflower to advise those who might attend of the suspension. As far as could be learned, the information was imparted to only four persons, two of them unidentified. The other two were Sol A. Rosenblatt, former administrator of the NRA film code, who is in Washington and dropped in to "see what it was all about," and Nate Golden of the M. P. Section of the Dep't of Commerce, who also was curious.

At the Berry headquarters the face-saving explanation was made that "various men interested in the conference talked it over and decided to

Ascap Dividend Up Today

The quarterly dividend meeting of the Ascap board of directors is scheduled for today. Indications are that the dividend to be voted will be slightly greater than that distributed for any of the three preceding quarters of 1936. In the first quarter $980,000 was distributed; $1,030,000 in the second, and $970,000 in the third.

Skouras Uptown Film Suit Again Delayed

An action brought more than a year ago by Skouras Enterprises over the sale by Twentieth Century-Fox of its product to the RKO 81st Street, allegedly in violation of the Fox franchise held by competing Skouras theatres, was postponed yesterday to Dec. 17 "in order to avoid jeopardizing a possible settlement," attorneys identified with the case said. The action was to have been called for trial today in the N. Y. Supreme Court here.

Whether or not the case will be tried next week or settled in the meantime could not be ascertained yesterday. It was learned that the plaintiff is asking a permanent injunction to prevent a future breach of the franchise of the sort alleged as a condition of consenting to the dismissal of the suit, while RKO contends that outright dismissal of the case is warranted as it was based upon a one-year product deal which was never carried out and which expired last September.

"Tobacco Road" Sues Over Ads on "Banjo"

Tobacco Road, Inc., yesterday filed a suit in N. Y. Supreme Court against Twentieth Century-Fox for $1,000,000 damages, charging that advertising of the film "Banjo on My Knee" unfairly gives the impression that the picture is based on the play "Tobacco Road."

An order, returnable today before Justice McCook, was issued requiring the defendant to show cause why it should not be restrained from continuing the advertising. It was also alleged in the complaint that the locale of the picture is the same as in the play.

Perry Oshrin, attorney for the plaintiff, stated during the hearing that "the only deduction that the public can possibly get from the advertising is that 'Tobacco Road' has been produced as a film in 'Banjo on My Knee.'"

To Ask Games Report From Chicago Mayor

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—Kenneth Barnard of the Better Business Bureau here said today he would ask the Mayor's office tomorrow for a report on the prize drawing action. He said he was unable to get any report today from Barney Hodes, Corporation Counsel, who is preparing an opinion on the games for the Mayor.

Police Commissioner Allman today asked the Mayor for a ruling on Bank Night and other games, which makes it apparent that he probably plans action of some sort soon. Barnard declared today he has had a deluge of letters from citizens since the news first was published, with the vast majority favoring the action of the Bureau in the giveaway situation.

Denver Fines Four for B. N.

DENVER, Dec. 9.—A fine of $50 has been assessed against each of four theatre managers here for violation of the city lottery ordinance by operating matinee registration for Bank Night. The police court judge held that because registration cards were given only to those purchasing tickets the practice constituted a lottery. The managers hope to work out a plan for matinee registration that will conform with city laws.

Managers in court today were: Dave Cockrill of the Denham, Harry Goodridge of the Ogen, Lou Williams of the Mayan and Roy Notheis of the Webber. The case may be appealed. It is also believed that the fine may be suspended if the City attorney agrees.

Today's decision is expected to end grocery night and similar games where only those who buy tickets have a chance at the prizes.

Alfred H. Morton, manager of NBC's program department since 1934, has been appointed head of the NBC managed and operated stations division to succeed William S. Hedges, who resigned the post several days ago to become vice-president of the Crosley Corp. Morton's appointment becomes effective on Jan. 1.

Morton came to NBC from RCA. As manager of the Washington office of RCA in 1921, he supervised the building of WRC, now NBC's key station in the Capital, and the first station built and operated by RCA. Subsequently, Morton was sent to Europe as foreign head of the RCA enterprises. His successor as head of the program department has not been set.

Gen'l Foods Head to Talk

Clarence Francis, president of General Foods, Inc., one of radio's big four time buyers—the other three are Procter and Gamble — Standard Brands & Sterling Products—will broadcast a Christmas message to the nation, in general, and to General Foods employees, in particular, on his company's "Showboat" broadcast Dec. 17, from 9 to 10 P.M., E.S.T. over the NBC-Red.

While General Foods will not confirm, it is expected that Francis will announce a bonus grant to company employees during the broadcast.

General Foods sponsors seven important radio programs, including the "Log Cabin Dude Ranch," Maxwell House "Showboat," the Jello program starring Jack Benny, Helen Hayes in "Bambi" for Sanka Coffee, Stoopnagle & Budd for Minute Tapioca, Phil Lord's "We the People" for Calumet Baking Powder, and the "Adventures of Capt. In the near future listeners from various parts of the country will be able to participate in the open forum discussions, according to arrangements now nearing completion.

Groups for regular listening to the "Town Meetings" have been organized in various key cities, including Rochester, Detroit, Chicago and Los Angeles and as soon as broadcasting equipment has been installed the local groups will be linked to the New York point of broadcasts via remote control.

Allen Goes Pro

Having presented amateurs on his program for the past two years, Fred Allen last night turned a portion of his show over to unemployed professional artists. The result was that an always enjoyable program was made even more enjoyable than usual.

Those given an opportunity to perform again included The Sweet and Low Trio, Tommy Hyde and His Honey Boys, Jim Kelso, Marion Berman and Harold Brinkman. Tommy Hyde and His Honey Boys won the first prize of $100; the girl trio took second prize of $50.

All acts were far superior to the usual run of amateur offerings. Tommy Hyde and His Honey Boys without question were entitled to the first award. However, this reviewer thought that Jim Kelso's offering should not have placed worse than second. Kelso's version of "Gunga Din" as it might be recited by an inebriate suffering with a cold was tops in entertainment. At any rate, some years ago Kelso's act was considered good enough to rate a featured spot in a Ziegfeld Follies.

The prize winners are old-time minstrel men who started in the show business way back in Lou Dockstader's days. Not so long ago they were appearing in vaudeville with a fair-to-middling juggler named Fred Allen.

Allen's "Town Hall Tonight" is heard on the NBC-Red network each Wednesday at 9 P.M., E.S.T. Bristol-Myers sponsor.

BANNER

Refused Court Enjoiner

To Interview Deanna

Deanna Durbin will be Radie Harris' screen guest on Friday's "Radio Movie Club" broadcast over WHN at 8 P.M., E.S.T. The broadcast will mark Deanna's first screen interview and the first time she has ever been heard on any broadcast other than Eddie Cantor's.

Cancel Cantor Special

Plans for Eddie Cantor to make a personal appearance on WFAB on Dec. 19 and deliver a greeting in Yiddish in the dramatization of his life in the weekly series of "Great Jewish Artists" were canceled yesterday when Cantor, shocked by the sudden death of Dave Freedman, decided to return immediately to the coast. If arrangements can be made before his departure, a transcription will be cut in Cantor's hotel suite and played on the program.

Book Seeley and Fields

Blossom Seeley and her husband, Benny Fields, will guest-star on the Amos 'n' Andy minstrel program on Friday. Miss Seeley and Fields were signed hastily when negotiations to secure Eddie Cantor for the program collapsed due to the death of Dave Freedman.

Lea Ray and Anthony Martin, who formerly appeared on the networks together, have been re-united again, this time in pictures. Both have been assigned principal roles in Jane Wither's new picture, "Holy Terror." . . . Morton Downey will act the role of comedian and Ed Wynn will sing on the latter's Spud cigarette program next Thursday.

And in Hollywood

RKO Group to Delay Pending Further Talks

RKO practically to assure the consents required of those classes under Section 77-B of the Bankruptcy Act" for the confirmation of the plan by the court.

There is, however, approximately $8,000,000 of unsecured general claims against RKO, exclusive of the Rockefeller Ceinter claim, which are not "controlled or represented" by the proponents of the plan, and the holders of one-third of such claims could prevent confirmation of the plan. The Hodges ' committee represents the Karl Hoblitzelle and U. S. National Bank of Denver claims, which together aggregate more than $1,500,000. The letter makes the admission that the committee does not now represent one-third of the general unsecured claims but makes an appeal for additional representation.

Features of the plan which the committee intimates it will discuss with the plan's proponents include the question of "whether or not the probable cash earnings available to RKO will adequately cover the proposed fixed charges; the proposed authorization of new debentures and preferred stock far in excess of the requirements of the plan and of warrants for common stock, all issuable by the board of directors at their discretion as to time and price and without stockholders' consent; the apparent intention to place Rockefeller Center and other claimants who may have special interests, in the same class, for voting purposes, as other general claims; the proposal to cut the face amount of creditors' claims while providing for participation by present stockholders."

Additional Objections Recounted

The latter also points out to general creditors that the plan does not provide for a sinking fund for retirement of preferred stock which will be issued to them, that the stock will be callable at par and accrued dividends at any time, that the convertibility rate for the preferred is less than that for the debentures, and that the plan recognizes or confirms the lien status of old RKO debenture holders, which, the letter asserts, "is a matter of controversy."

The letter was prepared by Carlos Israels of White & Case, attorneys for the committee.

The company's statement was completed some time ago, but its release has been held up while awaiting Keough's scrutiny.

Drop Reels from Air

Fox Movietone News executives watched their own reels and decided that if the rebels could drop bombs on Madrid and the Russians could ease a regiment of soldiers into the atmosphere with parachutes they could do the same thing with newsreel prints.

That's how isolated towns in Australia got showings of this year's Melbourne Cup race almost as soon as Melbourne and Sydney.

Prints were dropped with parachutes from the Sydney-Melbourne mail plane at Junee and Wagga and at Newcastle and Grafton from the Sydney-Brisbane plane.

Criterion Switch Irks Loew's, RKO

different title, namely "The Life of the Prince of Wales."

In instances where the Criterion shows two first run pictures Loew's and RKO are objecting to dating these films in neighborhood houses, the contention being that they do not follow any Broadway theatre booking two first runs.

Although RKO has a contract for a number of G. B. films, the current Criterion attractions are not in the circuit's list of bookings. It was said at the circuit's headquarters yesterday that these films had not been bought.

With "Accused" and "Captain Calamity" scheduled to follow the present show at the Criterion, Loew's has both bought. It is reported the circuit may not pick them up since it is not in line with its policy to follow a twin bill first run showing.

RKO, however, will pick up "The King of Hockey," which was one of the two pictures that bowed out Tuesday night. "Tundra" was the second. This program garnered approximately $9,000.

"Winterset" at the Music Hall wound up a week's run last night at approximately $70,000.

Schenck and Other Loew Men Reelected

$2,396,172.30 on the consolidated statement. MOTION PICTURE DAILY said the money "was marked off as a result of money invested by Irving G. Thalberg in stories and scripts at the time of his death."

What Rubin said was that this sum was chalked off because of a series of accumulated scenarios and stories over a period of 10 years and which it was expected Thalberg would do.

Capital Film Meet Called Off by Berry

go into conference without any preconceived program and wait and see what the conference talked about." In informed quarters, however, it was said the meeting was called off for the simple reason that if it was held, there would have been so few present that it would be ridiculous. The only acceptance from the more than 20 invitations sent out, as far as could be learned, came from Allied States, which desired to have a representative present as an observer.

It was learned today that the suggestion for the film session did not come from the industry, as Berry's office has insisted, but from Lowell Mason, once counsel for the Darrow code-investigating board, and now a local attorney, who is a member of the Council's fair practices committee.

Labor Subjects Unpopular

The suggestion, it was said, was received favorably by industry independents, until it was made clear that the meeting would not discuss block booking, cancellation or other purely film problems, but would be confined to consideration of minimum wages and maximum hours. At that point interest began to wane.

Indications today were that the main meeting will be a failure, as it was last year. Council officials privately admitted that they expected tomorrow's attendance, with the exception of the labor group and a few small organizations, would be composed almost entirely of "observers."

Expect Para. to Pay Preferred Dividend

the entire two-year accrued dividend, amounting to $3,000,000, will be authorized.

Paramount will receive a dividend of approximately $1,000,000 on its stock holdings in B. & K., on which a $5 dividend was recently voted. This and other dividends from the company's theatre subsidiaries, authorized during the current quarter, are expected to boost earnings well above the $3,000,000 mark for the quarter and net for the year to more than $5,000,000.

No dividend action is anticipated at today's meeting on the second preferred which is in arrears $1.20 per share.

before the Chamber for some time to come.

In view of the fact, especially, that such a decree would tend to contravene the recently enacted Franco-American trade treaty, strong opposition from American interests is certain to follow the attempt to enact such legislation.

It is understood that the Government's plan, which would spur the production and exhibition of short subjects, includes a requirement that Government-sponsored propaganda subjects be shown on each program.

Current political complications are seen as causing the delay in the introduction of the measure.

Adjourned G.B. Meet Is Set for Dec. 17

adjourned on Nov. 2 following a heated discussion featured by sharp criticism of the G. B. financial statement, described as inadequate and presenting no true picture of the company's financial position.

The publication of the statement was necessary before the date for the resumption of the meeting could be set. The statement lists the assets and liabilities of the company and 64 subsidiaries, but gives no details of individual companies.

The liabilities included £1,048,758 due to creditors; £1,301,339 in debentures and loans of subsidiary companies; £5,292,622 in "amounts attributed to shares of subsidiaries not held within the group," apparently referring to outside shareholders. The total was given at £21,724,357.

The credits included investments of £11,029; released and unreleased films and advance production costs, £1,378,908; investments in associated companies and money due from them, £1,353,436. Fixed assets, including studios and theatres were listed at £16,273,149. What was explained as the amount paid in excess of the sum at which subsidiary properties can be valued was listed at £1,638,341.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Beloved Enemy"

(Goldwyn-United Artists)

Hollywood, Dec. 9.—Against the tensely dramatic background of the Dublin uprising of 1921, this film tells a stirring love story. Supported by class production and high calibre acting and direction, the picture has a potent appeal for general audiences. Told in impressive fashion with qualities of human interest rather than artificial theatrics, the picture is a worthy addition to the list of Goldwyn productions.

Opening in a stirring tempo, Brian Aherne is the audacious leader of Irish rebels continuing their age-long fight for independence. To Dublin comes Henry Stephenson, English emissary, accompanied by Merle Oberon, his daughter. The first meeting between Aherne and Miss Oberon arouses mutual admiration which ripens into affection as the girl is sympathetic to Irish womanhood, the tragic sufferers of the horrors of war. Almost betraying Aherne into British hands, the girl later admits her treachery and, when Aherne's liberty is again jeopardized, pleads with him to accept the invitation of her father to a diplomatic discussion of their problems.

Overcoming the objections of the die-hards led by Donald Crisp, Aherne leads the Irish delegation into London. With the romantic relation between the leads ripening into love, Miss Oberon is the influencing factor which induces Aherne to cast the vote establishing the Irish Free State. Admitting that he is signing his own death warrant, Aherne returns to his homeland to plead with his people to accept the new status and live in peace. Iron-willed Crisp, dedicated to the cause of absolute separation, decrees that Aherne must die. Jerome Cowan is named as executioner. In spite of a heart-touching plea from Miss Oberon, Cowan carries out his orders and the girl's man dies in her arms.

With Aherne and Miss Oberon giving performances certain to win audience approval, Karen Morley, Stephenson, Cowan, David Niven and Crisp are effective as the principal supports. The remainder of the cast is also convincing. The original by John Balderson and the screen play on which he collaborated with Rose Franken and William Meloney powerfully combines understandable and believable romance and drama. The direction of H. C. Potter forcefully blends the elements of the story and the abilities of the players.

Production Code Seal No. 2,902. Running time, 85 minutes. "G."

"Sinner Take All"

(M-G-M)

Hollywood, Dec. 9.—Although lacking in sock name value, this mystery baffler is good average entertainment. With concentration on drama and melodrama, the meager romantic content does not lower the film's amusement and commercial value for those who enthuse over mystery and crime stories featuring plots with clever solutions. Moving at an attention-holding pace, the film keeps the identity of the killer hidden until a climax is reached.

Margaret Lindsay, a socialite; Charley Grapewin, her father, and George Lynn and Theodore Von Eltz, her brothers, receive death threats. Bruce Cabot, a reporter on Grapewin's paper, together with Edward Pawley, police captain, start an investigation. As a suggestion of romance involving Miss Lindsay and Cabot arises, Grapewin, Lynn and Von Eltz are slain. Joseph Calleia, gambler and gangster, is suspected. Cabot and Miss Lindsay make an alliance with him and take up the trail of the killer, which leads in the direction of Stanley Ridges, Cabot's boss, who confesses his guilt just prior to his suicide.

The work of Miss Lindsay and Cabot is good, as is that of Grapewin, Calleia, Ridges, Vivienne Osborne, Von Eltz, Lynn and Pawley. Eadie Adams, a newcomer, is introduced for one night club song number. The screenplay of Leonard Lee and Walter Wise is based on the popular crime novel of Whitman Chambers and points for thrills and chills, factors which are well taken care of by Errol Taggart's direction.

Short Subjects

"Utah Picture Book"

(DuWorld)

A photographic study in color of the almost inspiring natural architecture of the great canyons which are a scenic feature of the state, this subject, produced by Bruce Merman, is of pictorial interest. The color photography sometimes fails to bring out the full splendor of the rock formations, and the device of an old native describing a painter's reactions to the natural wonders might have been improved, but on the whole the subject is effective.

No production code seal. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Music, Music Everywhere"

(Paramount)

Cleverly built about the title, this features the music of Clyde Lucas' orchestra. There are fine interpretations and variations of "Dark Eyes," "Song of the Islands," a Mexican number and others which are splendidly recorded. The musical numbers are interspersed with scenic shots relating to the compositions. Production Code Seal No. 01,175. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Sus-Ti-Ka"

(DuWorld)

Produced by Bruce Merman and photographed by H. C. Gibbs, this short presents an interesting color picture of the area about Mount Shasta in the west, which is occasionally beautiful in its scenic effects. The rugged grandeur of Castle Crag Wilderness Park and Lassen Volcanic National Park, the snow-covered mountain peaks and the occasional animal life visible, make for a pleasing subject.

No production code seal. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Northern Lights"

(Vitaphone)

An E. M. Newman travelogue of compelling interest and beauty. Done in color and with many finely composed scenes, the film gives interesting glimpses into the life and activities of Sweden. Production Code Seal No. 01,264. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"A Story of a Rose"

(DuWorld)

With a technique involving human characters, marionettes and cartoon effects, this is neither more nor less than a novelty, which is handicapped by the fact that the marionettes, as compared with the usual cartoon product, appear to move with such stiff artificiality. The Cinecolor effects are fair, as the short tells of a shepherd who wooed a princess with a rose, aided by gnomes and a fairy. For youngsters, perhaps.

No production code seal. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

To Meet Committee On Union Agreement

Representatives of Local 306, the Allied Union and the I.T.O.A. will meet with the members of the survey board appointed by Mayor LaGuardia, probably next week, in an effort to arrive at a settlement of several points in dispute in the agreement being negotiated for the absorption of Allied by Local 306, it was learned yesterday.

Since the "agreement to agree" signed some time ago, the representatives of the three organizations involved have been formulating an agreement, with the Mayor's board remaining out of the picture. However, as was originally intended, the board will be consulted in view of the inability of the parties involved to arrive at complete agreement. A session with the board earlier this week resulted in failure to find a suitable date for the meeting. The original basic agreement to reach a settlement of the situation expires on Jan. 11.

Ship Strike Hitting Oregon Coast Houses

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 9.—The protracted maritime strike on the Pacific coast is proving disastrous to theatre box-offices in the suburban centers in this area.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Mind Your Own Business"

(Major-Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 9.—How editors on mature subjects might act if suddenly made gossip columnists forms the basis for this amusing farce. Charles Ruggles, conductor of a column on birds and bees, finds himself suddenly famous when Alice Brady, his wife, writes his column, a la Winchell. Ruggles finds himself catapulted upward from obscurity and becomes involved in entanglements with gangsters which are depicted hilariously. He is finally rescued from his difficulties by a Boy Scout troop of which he is an honorary member after calling upon his full knowledge of scout lore.

The wholesome nature of the theme gives the picture both adult and youthful appeal while the use of the local scout troop, the members of which, incidentally, give good support, suggests exploitation possibilities which exhibitors should play to the hilt. The direction of Norman McLeod is brisk and the screenplay, which Dore Schary wrote from the story by John Francis Larkin, is kept moving constantly.

The supporting players include Lyle Talbot, managing editor of the paper; Benny Baker, Frankie Darro, office boy and scout, and Jack LaRue, Paul Harvey, Gene Lockhart and Bill Demarest as assorted gangsters and politicians. The Emanuel Cohen production is well geared for the commercial market and is neither extravagant nor pinched. Exhibitors backing this with average effort may expect better than average returns.

'Elementary,' Says Holmes; That Also Dubs New Play

above turning the London underworld out after it when the lawful owner refuses to sell and is murdered for his obstinacy.

The daughter, played by Helen Chandler who is always charming even when given woefully little worthwhile to do, as prevailed last evening, tries her hand at the Holmes technique and comes off with a couple of colors flying while the chief detecting honors continue to go to her father.

There is Watson, snowy-haired now, and Mrs. Watson, played with humor and fun by Cecelia Loftus and a love palpitation furnished by Don Dillaway, falsely accused of the banditry. There is also a vague charm about the age-old relationship between Holmes and his Boswell and a clever idea in introducing the daughter. But, whether in the original by Basil Mitchell or in the adaptation for this stage by William Jourdan Rapp and Leonardo Bercovici, the possibilities were far from drained. More expertly written, acted and produced, this "Holmeses of Baker Street" might have been something.

"Elementary, my dear daddy," the dialogue causes Miss Holmes to remark to her pater. She was quite right.

RKO Moves to End the Claim Of Orpheum

Seeks Court Sanction for Offer by Stadium

The possibility of a settlement of the complex claim of Orpheum Circuit against RKO and subsidiary companies was disclosed yesterday with the filing in U. S. District Court here of a petition to authorize Stadium Theatres Corp., an RKO subsidiary, to offer to the Orpheum trustee $700,000 in cash for abandonment of all causes of action against RKO.

The offer, if accepted by the trustee and creditors of Orpheum, would result in delivering to Stadium the entire and uncontested equity in all of the principal going assets of Orpheum and would make possible the liquidation of Orpheum's affairs with estimated benefit to creditors of about 30 cents on the dollar.

The complex Orpheum situation originated with the transfer in 1933 to Stadium of promissory notes and other obligations of Orpheum which were held by RKO and Keith-Albee-Orpheum, amounting to $2,880,686. Thereafter, Stadium under the terms of the indenture covering the notes,

Skouras-20th-Fox, RKO to Settle Suit

An agreement to withdraw the action brought by Skouras Enterprises in Sept., 1935, which charges that the purchase of 20th Century-Fox product for the RKO 81st Street in that year was in violation of a Fox franchise held by Skouras, was reached by parties to the litigation yesterday but awaits the signatures of the principals.

The action was called for trial in N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday and a postponement of one week, asked by Louis Frohlich, attorney for Skouras, was denied. The court ruled that the

Quietly Name Lichtman and Katz Loew Vice-Presidents

Al Lichtman and Sam Katz, both hitherto without official appearance in the roster of company executives, are now vice-presidents of Loew's, Inc. They were named to their posts some weeks ago when plans progressed for the elimination of various Loew-controlled subsidiaries and the concentration of various phases of the company's business under the parent and holding corporation.

Al Lichtman

Sam Katz

It was not until the Loew financial statement for the year ending Aug. 31, 1936, was made public a few days ago that their appointments became known publicly. Their presence in the roster of officers, furthermore, was generally overlooked and first attracted attention when they and others of the Loew officers were re-elected in New York on Wednesday.

Whereas Loew's, Inc., had four vice-presidents last year, the company now lists seven. Arthur M. Loew, first vice-president; David Bernstein, who is

Para. to Pay $3,400,000 In Dividends

Ends Arrears on First Preferred Stock

Dividends amounting to approximately $3,400,000 were authorized for holders of Paramount first and second preferred stock by the company's board of directors at a special meeting yesterday.

The board declared initial dividends of $12 per share on the first preferred, payable Dec. 26 to stockholders of record on Dec. 15, and 60 cents per share on the second preferred, payable on Dec. 26 to holders of record on Dec. 17. The payment on the first preferred represents the full two years' dividend to date on which the stock was in arrears. The payment on the second preferred is equivalent to the 1935 dividend which was in arrears and leaves that issue still in arrears for the 1936 dividend of 60 cents a share.

The payment of the full two years' dividend on the first preferred had been anticipated, but the payment on the junior issue was unexpected despite the fact that recent dividends by Paramount theatre subsidiaries are known to have placed the parent company in a position to show a net in excess of $5,000,000 for the year.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

TIME, writing in its know-all vein, turns attention in the current issue to the financial state of RKO in the light of its experiences since 1930. "RKO Primer," it is called:

"Fabulous are the stories," the article begins, "of investors who got in on the ground floor of a new company, were lofted to riches by stock splits, stock dividends. Not related so loudly are accounts of the stockholder who got in on the ground floor, soon found himself in the basement, then the sub-basement. Such a story could be written around Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corp. in seven chapters."

Time then proceeds to write the story, observing in Chapter 7, after tracing RKO fortunes through depression years:

"Thus, an investor who purchased 100 shares of RKO common stock in 1929 found his holdings reduced to 25 shares by the four-for-one reverse split in 1931. If the present reorganization plan goes through those 25 shares will become 12½ shares."

The impression, obviously, that Time labors to get across throughout its "seven chapters" is that anyone who got in on RKO's "ground floor" in 1930 found himself in the basement in 1932 and, if the company's plan is approved, will find himself in the sub-basement. Let's see. Luce, Martin & Co. are correct when they say that a holder of 100 shares of Class A received 25 shares of common for it under the company's 1931 recapitalization plan. But what the publication omits is that such stockholder also received the right to subscribe to a $500 debenture and 75 shares of the new common for $500, in addition to the 25 shares which automatically became his on the exchange basis. That $500 debenture at today's market prices is worth $585 and the 100 shares of common, which such a stockholder would have for exercising his subscription right, are worth $812.50 today, or a total market value of $1,397.50 for the new securities for which he exchanged his old and paid $500 additional. . . .

Under the reorganization plan, he will get 50 shares of new common for his 100 shares of old and new debentures of the same face amount for his old debentures, plus 10 shares of new stock for the unpaid interest on his old debentures. The indicated market price of the new RKO common today is about $16 a share. Therefore, such a stockholder as Time takes time out to weep for, will receive new securities under the reorganization plan with an indicated market value now of $1,460. Again, bewailing the RKO investor's plight, Time's essayist overlooks, or else he is unaware, that his employer, Time, Inc., purchased from Pathe Film Corp. about two years ago a face amount of $1,448,549.81 of RKO gold notes at the modest price of 20 cents on the dollar, or for an actual cash outlay of about $290,000. Let's see how Time itself will fare as an RKO investor. . . .

The reorganization plan proposes to give to Time and the other RKO creditors similarly situated three-quarters of a share of preferred and one and one-half shares of common for each $100 of their claims. Thus, Time will receive for its $1,448,549.81 of RKO notes, 10,875 shares of new preferred and 21,750 shares of new common. The preferred will be $100 par, or an equivalent value of $1,087,500 and the common with its presently indicated value of $16 a share, may be worth $348,000, or an indicated market value for the lot of $1,435,500. As Time invested the handsome sum of $290,000 for what it now stands to receive $1,435,500, its indicated profit on the RKO investment would seem to be $1,145,500. Getting in on the sub-basement level is even better than entering via the "ground floor," apparently. . . .

Again, whether Time's editorial department believed RKO a good investment or not, its business department, which bought RKO notes at 20 cents on the dollar and then selected RKO as the distributor for The March of Time apparently had no doubts. Both the notes and the reel would appear to be doing pretty well. And as for RKO, still in reorganization, its indicated profit for 1936 is in excess of $2,500,000. Who's doing the marching now? . . .

Tesch has been assured by the Fedtral official that action will be started if specific data is collected. It is believed that a sufficient number of situations exist that will command an investigation by a Federal grand jury, Tesch stated. His office is now engaged in collecting information to serve as a basis for such a study.

THE KEYSTONE OF YOUR FUTURE

"LLOYDS" COMPLETE SELL-OUT 1st 2 WEEKS ASTOR & CARTHAY CIRCLE!

Spelling Bee Stunt Now a K. C. Feature

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 10.—The radio drift toward spelling bees, as the latest gadget on the air, is exemplified here in such a program a half hour each Sunday afternoon over KCMO, sponsored by the Advance Baking Co.

About 20 children are enrolled for each program. One Sunday they come from the fourth and fifth grades of the city's schools the next from the sixth and seventh grades. Every six weeks those who place first and second in the weekly "bees" take part in an elimination program. At the end of the 26-week contract—when school closes in the spring—there will be a grand finale, when all weekly and six-weekly winners participate.

Losers in the weekly contests may re-enter after each six-week period. Weekly prizes are $2.50 and $1; six-weekly, $7.50 and $5. The program was instituted Dec. 6, and there is already a waiting list. Each youngster who enrolls gets a loaf of bread.

Children's voices are clear over the radio, but apparently indistinct in the studio. On the first program a child spelled a word, the teacher in charge put her down; within 15 minutes the station had over 50 telephone calls from persons saying the word had been spelled correctly.

"Question Bee" Extended

"Uncle Jim's Question Bee," the program which may set a national radio trend, was renewed for an additional 39-week period yesterday. The program is now heard over a split NBC network Saturdays at 7:30 P.M., E.S.T., and the long-term renewal indicates that additional station additions will be added gradually. George Washington Coffee is sponsor and Cecil, Warwick and Cecil, the agency.

Salter Rejects Ayer Offer

Harry Salter, offered the post as musical consultant for all N. W. Ayer agency programs, has turned down the bid because of previous commitments with other agencies. At the moment, Salter is broadcasting for Lord & Thomas and the American Tobacco Co. on the "Hit Parade" and for Neff-Rogow and Personal Finance on the CBS "Your Unseen Friend" series.

Another Hollywood Show

A new Hollywood program takes to the airways on Jan. 1, with Victor Moore, Helen Broderick, and Buddy Rogers' orchestra. The program will be sponsored by National Biscuit Co. and will replace the present series now on the air for this sponsor, Fridays at 9:30 P.M., E.S.T., over the NBC-Blue network.

Two CBS Dividends

The board of directors of CBS yesterday declared a cash quarterly dividend of 50 cents per share and a special cash dividend of $1.30 per share, both payable Dec. 21. Yesterday's vote came as a surprise. It was thought in radio circles that CBS would pass up the dividend because of heavy station and equipment purchases this year.

NBC After South American Trades; to Broadcast Daily

NBC opens a new field regardless of vast potential revenue with a new daily series for reception in South and Central America beginning Dec. 14.

For the past four weeks, NBC has been broadcasting programs to South America four days a week and previously three times a week since July. The increase in the daily schedule is directly in keeping with NBC's previously announced policy of competing with European broadcasters for listeners' attention in South and Central America. It is expected that sponsors will be secured for the foreign series within a year at the outside.

The programs will be broadcast over W3XAL, NBC's short-wave station at Bound Brook, N. J. By Jan. 1 a new directional beam antenna now under construction will be in full use, assuring potential sponsors of a clear reception of programs in the South and Central Americas.

The new schedule will consist of press comments in Spanish and feature programs especially built and arranged for foreign reception. Dan Russell, announcer, and Charles Carajal, production man, have been placed in charge of the news and other programs.

Those already definitely assigned broadcasting schedules for the new programs are Vaughn De Leath, Joseph Littau's orchestra and the Three Silhouettes, girl vocal trio. Other artists and programs will be named shortly.

On Mondays, Cine Mundial, Spanish film publication, will present film guest artists and comments and news of the industry by Franceso Ariza, editor of the magazine. Those scheduled for an early appearance on the program are Margo, a lead in "Winterset," and Carmen Castello, wife of Xavier Cugat, popular Spanish orchestra leader.

Many industries and manufacturers now selling extensively in South and Central America will be invited to buy time on the foreign programs after they have been sufficiently built up by NBC.

CBS Wins on Abdication

CBS scooped NBC and all other stations in reporting the first definite news of the abdication of King Edward yesterday. The CBS flash was carried over the network at exactly 10:33 A.M., E.S.T. yesterday. NBC's flash was not broadcast until 10:47 A.M.

At 10:30 A.M., Sir Frederick White began a scheduled talk from London. Three minutes later he interrupted his prepared speech to utter: "The King has abdicated. Long live the king." The news was immediately picked up by Press Radio and broadcast simultaneously over both networks at 10:48 A.M. At 10:40 A.M. Premier Baldwin officially confirmed Sir Frederick White's flash in his broadcast message from Parliament.

CBS Stands Pat

The fact that the proposed new CBS studios in Hollywood will have an experimental television laboratory does not mean that the company has changed its quiescent attitude in regard to television. This is made clear by a CBS spokesman in New York, who declares that the television studio has been included in the coast plans as a matter of policy.

"University of Air" Suggested by Ickes

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—A "University of the Air" was today set up by Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes as the goal to be sought by educators who, however, were warned against standardization and regimentation through mass education.

Speaking before the opening session of the first national conference of educational broadcasting, the Secretary urged that in developing educational programs the work be done by informed persons who know their subjects and "have the knack of being able to transmit their information to their audiences."

Possibilities of Government entry into the field of broadcasting was seen in Ickes' announcement that the new Dept. of the Interior Bldg., now nearing completion, will contain a complete modern radio studio, the first to be constructed in any Federal building. While no arrangements have yet been made for its use, he said, "it was our purpose that production facilities might be available for Government broadcasts which would meet the requirements for good radio programs and while leaving the dissemination of the programs to the broadcasting companies."

However, it was pointed out in departmental circles, the Government has the radio station at Arlington which can be used for transmission, as it has in the past.

The conference will meet through tomorrow to discuss "problems of edutional broadcasting."

Goldstein to Remain As Scout for Agency

Bob Goldstein, who operates Superior Radio Artists, Inc., will continue as one of the chief talent agents for Blackett-Semple and Hummert, Inc., according to Frank Hummert. The advertising agency spends about $30,000 a week on radio shows on behalf of its clients.

Air Features, Inc., recently formed by James Sauter, who is president, will act as a clearing house handling billing and collections not only for Goldstein but for World Broadcasting as well, added Hummert.

Safety Campaign Series Over Texas Chain Gains Attention

Houston, Dec. 10.—Appealing directly to the youngsters but interesting parents as well, the Dairyland Ice Cream Safety Feature over KPRC is attracting state-wide attention.

Youngsters are asked to write a safety article, sometimes a news story, sometimes five original rules for safety, and send to John Paul Goodwin, station announcer. Certain grading gives a child the rank of lieutenant, a higher grade wins the rank of captain, and still higher that of major. Then he must retain the rank by continued excellence in safety suggestions. Salaries from five cents per week to 50 cents are paid members, depending on their rank.

The program is broadcast 15 minutes twice weekly over the Texas Quality network, including KPRC here; WFAA, Dallas; WBAP, Ft. Worth, and WOAI, San Antonio. The sponsor is a Houston firm.

Press Is Critical Of G.B. Statement

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The London press today was sharply critical of the G. B. consolidated statement of assets and liabilities, made public yesterday after a long delay.

The Daily Mail declared the statement will come as a shock to the company's stockholders. It said that G. B. is carrying its film stocks at a huge valuation, and "the question is how far it may differ from the actual realizable value and how far it should be written down."

The paper declared that the £1,638-341 figure given as the excess cost of the property of subsidiaries represents a deficiency. "The net result appears to be that the real value of the subsidiary group is small in comparison with the Gaumont ordinary share capital" the Daily News said, and continued, "The figures are a revelation of how the inherent weakness of holding company finance can tend to obscure the company's position from the shareholders."

Other comment stressed the absence of a profit and loss account and suggested that the details given do not answer the questions raised at the adjourned stockholders' meeting of Nov. 2, which will be resumed on Dec. 17.

Hagen Product Through G. B.

Canada Drops King Flash With Anthem

TORONTO, Dec. 10.—Immediately on the receipt here of the news of the abdication of the King, instructions were wired to circuit theatre managers to continue playing the British national anthem at the conclusion of each performance, but to blank out the picture of King Edward VIII on the screen in conjunction with the playing of "God Save the King."

No action has been taken as yet by the Ontario censor to delete any news shots of Mrs. Simpson as there is no official ban in Canada on news or pictures of her. The current release of Fox Movietone News shows King Edward visiting the unemployed in South Wales, but this has not been ordered taken off as it already has passed the censor.

also treasurer, and E. A. Schiller are re-elections. David M. Loew, of course, resigned some months ago. In addition to Lichtman and Katz, however, new vice-presidents include E. J. Mannix, former general manager of the M-G-M studio and now an associate producer; and J. Robert Rubin, long a vice-president of M-G-M. Bernstein and Mannix, likewise, had been directors of the producing company. It is interesting to note, moreover, that Lous B. Mayer is neither an officer of Loew's nor a director.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Crackup"

(20th Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 10.—Good character performances by Peter Lorre, Brian Donlevy and Thomas Beck account for the entertainment value in this picture. Although Ralph Morgan, Kay Linaker and Gloria Roy figure in the plot of this spy story, the adventures of the first three form the basis of the action.

Lorre, acting the simpleton, plans to steal the secret of a new American aviation invention developed by Morgan. At the same time Donlevy, stunt flyer, has the same idea. The story is complicated when Morgan, experiencing domestic difficulties plans a trans-Atlantic flight. As Beck, who idolizes Donlevy, is brought into the picture, romance develops between him and Helen Wood, and Donlevy tricks her into stealing the formula. Suspicious, she attempts to prevent Beck from joining Morgan, Donlevy and Lorre on the ocean test flight, but in this she fails.

The pace increases as the four take off, Lorre and Donlevy try to outwit each other, and when storms force the plane down, Beck is given the only life belt and the other three drown.

Although the performances are fine, it is doubtful that the film will attract widespread attention. Based on a story by John Goodrich, and Charles Kenyon. Sam Mintz did the screen play and Malcolm St. Clair directed.

Production Code Seal No. 2,831. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

Overseas Previews

"La Porte du Large"
"Door to the Open Sea"

(Sedif)

PARIS, Dec. 2.—This film, directed by one of the most experienced French directors, Marcel Lherbier, gives an insight into the life of cadets of the French Naval College at Brest, the French Annapolis.

All the outdoor scenes and many of the interiors were made at this new school, which was opened last June by the President of France. The sequences, sometimes amusing, sometimes exciting, of the everyday life of the cadets, are excellent. It is the first time that a French production has taken the life of cadets as a background.

The story by Charles Spaak lacks consistency and appears to have been written mainly with the intention of picturing life at the new school.

The commander of the college, a widower, plans to marry a young and beautiful American woman. His son, Pierre, a cadet, meets the woman at a dance and, unaware that she is engaged to his father, falls in love with her. One evening he forces his way in and declares his love. She sends him away, but his father notices a cadet leaving her home.

In order to be able to visit the woman, Pierre arranges that a friend take his place in a night flight. The plane gets into difficulties and Pierre goes out and into a lifeboat and, thanks to him, his friends affect a rescue. The father forgives him, and Pierre leaves for a year's cruise on the training ship.

The excellent cast includes Victor Francen as the father, Jean-Pierre Aumont as Pierre, Marcelle Chantel as the American woman. But Roland Toutain as a midshipman steals the picture. The direction is very good, the photography is excellent and there are good lines and pleasing songs.

Running time, 85 minutes. "A."

Feher Tells Ampa Of Music and Sound

The importance of music and sound effects in pictures was emphasized yesterday at the Ampa meeting by Friedrich Feher, composer and director of "The Robber Symphony," which is being handled in this country by Fortune Films, of which Al Friedlander is president.

"In the days of the silent film titles were no good; in sound films, it's the dialogue that's bad. The problem then resolves itself down to expressing practically everything with sound and music, as I have done with this picture, using only from 500 to 600 words for the players to speak.

"You can't use sound on the stage this way," he added. "It was simple for me to produce this picture and I don't think another one like it has been made." Feher said he spent nine months in the cutting and he is now at work on the adaptation of "The Robber Symphony" for opera, which he is finding a "great task." He said he hoped his type of picture will pave the way for the future of a new standard in film production.

A Hand for Mrs. Feher

Magda Sonja, Feher's wife and star of the picture, took a bow. Their son, Hans, after finishing lunch, took his dog for a walk before he was called upon. He was among the missing guests when the session adjourned.

Gertrude Michael, RKO player, thanked the newspaper men for their cooperation during her illness. She said yesterday was her first day out of the hospital.

Cobyna Wright limited her talk to a few words because of laryngitis.

George Hummel of Times Wide World Wire Photos gave a demonstation on the delivery and transmission of photographs from one point to another by conversion of light impulse to electrical impulse for sending and vice versa for receiving. A photograph was taken of the guests, sent over the telephone wire. Five prints were delivered 52 minutes later. The portable machine weighed 45 pounds.

File Reorganization For Fox in Brooklyn

A plan of reorganization under Section 77 B of the Bankruptcy Act was filed yesterday in U. S. District Court by a group of bondholders of the Fox Theatre and Office Building Corp., Brooklyn.

The proposed new company would issue $2,825,000 in new bonds at no more than six per cent interest, to be offered bondholders on a 50 per cent basis together with a share of voting stock in addition for each $100 face value of their holdings. Under the plan the property will be offered for sale if $5,650,000 can be realized. Back taxes on the property last Oct. 31 amounted to $786,421.32.

Para. Reply Nears

Austin Keough, Paramount secretary and general counsel, returned to his office yesterday after an illness of several days. Due to a special meeting of the company's board of directors he was unable to give his attention to Paramount's reply to the M.P.T.O.A. trade practice program, which has been completed and is awaiting his scrutiny before being released.

"Dance" Tops Bway; $55,000 at Capitol

The Paramount wound up a third week of "Go West, Young Man" and a stage show with $20,000. "Pennies from Heaven" opened at the theatre with $7,000 on the first day. On Dec. 23 the Paramount will celebrate its first year of the stage band policy. Casa Loma, who inaugurated this type of entertainment there will also start off the second year. "College Holiday" is the screen attraction for Christmas Week. On Jan. 7 the theatre will start showing "The Plainsman," with Ray Noble on the stage.

"Three Men on a Horse" in its second week at the Strand tallied about $25,000. The two-a-day showing of "Lloyds of London" at the Astor ended its second week with $12,000. "The Luckiest Girl in the World" took in nearly $30,000 at the Roxy. "Rose Bowl" at the Rialto got about $7,000.

Exhibitors Reject Argentine Proposal

By N. BRUSKI

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 8. (Via Air Mail)—The Exhibitors' Ass'n, here, in a reply to a note accompanying a modification of the existing exhibition system, as proposed by the Argentine Film Distributors' Ass'n, virtually has rejected the proposals. It is claimed the distributors have failed to take into account the public attitude toward the film houses, which was the basis of the exhibitors' original request for the modification.

At the same time, it was pointed out in the exhibitor reply, innovations are suggested which would be highly dangerous in view of the economic situation and its effect on the theatre business.

RKO Moves to End the Claim Of Orpheum

declared the obligations to be in default and assumed the management and operation of the Orpheum collateral securing the notes. The collateral included the principal working assets of Orpheum, such as the Champaign (Ill.) Orpheum, Chicago Orpheum, Des Moines Consolidated Theatres, St. Paul Theatres Co., Junior Orpheum, Los Angeles; Junior Orpheum, San Francisco; Kansas City Junior Orpheum, Orpheum Circuit Booking Corp., RKO Western Vaudeville Exchange and other companies.

Marcus Heiman, trustee in bankruptcy of Orpheum, subsequently denied the validity of the indenture under which the default was declared and denied the validity of the Orpheum notes as well. Last March Heiman was authorized by Referee Oscar W. Ehrhorn to begin an action to recover from Stadium all of Orpheum's collateral, to institute an action for damages and an accounting with respect to the original pledging of the collateral and to sue for damages and an accounting as a result of the management of Orpheum prior to its bankruptcy.

Litigation Efforts Futile

Inasmuch as neither the trustee nor the Orpheum estate had the funds with which to bring the actions authorized, no suits were ever filed. Recently, the preferred stockholders of Orpheum subscribed $40,000 to finance such litigation and retained Isidor J. Kresel as their attorney, but insisted upon retaining control of the litigation themselves. As they have been unable to obtain such control from the trustee, no suits have resulted from this source either.

The petition for authorization to offer the $700,000 cash settlement points out that Stadium has been advised that the validity of its liens on the Orpheum collateral is uncertain, but that any claims for damages based on mismanagement of Orpheum's affairs prior to its bankruptcy are "without merit." The petition states, however, that defense of the possible litigation would be expensive to RKO and that the settlement, if accepted, would give Stadium any valid equity in the collateral which might belong to the Orpheum trustee.

So far as could be learned, no indication has been given RKO as to whether or not the proposed offer is satisfactory to the Orpheum trustee and creditors. Exclusive of the RKO claims against Orpheum, represented by the $2,880,686 of promissory notes, there are additional creditors' claims of $2,100,000 against Orpheum. Apart from the collateral held by Stadium there is practically nothing of any liquidation value in Orpheum assets.

A hearing on the petition which was prepared by Irving Trust Co., trustee in reorganization for RKO, was set for Dec. 21 by Federal Judge William Bondy.

Ask Permission for Audit

A petition for leave to employ Price, Waterhouse & Co. to make a consolidated audit of RKO for the year 1936 at a fee not to exceed $3,500 was filed in U. S. District Court here yesterday by Irving Trust Co., trustee in reorganization for RKO. A hearing on the petition was set for Dec. 21 before Federal Judge William Bondy.

Committee Studies RKO Books

An RKO independent stockholders' committee has begun an extensive study of the company's books and records with a view to opposing provisions of the company's reorganization plan for treatment of common stockholders at the hearing on the plan before Federal Judge William Bondy on Dec. 23, it was learned yesterday.

Not Cameraman, but the New King

Albert I, England's new ruler, operating a Movietone News camera at a recent Boy Scout jamboree in England. This, from the private collection of Truman H. Talley, general manager of the newsreel, is a shot of the King, but as the Duke of York, of course.

Talley makes no secret of his pride in the manner in which newspapers individually and the news services went for the clips in the current issue of the reel, of former King Edward and Mrs. Simpson enjoying themselves near Cannes, on the Riviera. The American used a full page, the Daily News that and more, the Mirror plenty of space, the World-Telegram a page-wide layout, and, says Talley, nearly "every paper in the country used the shots."

Talley was anything but upset by the fact that every reproduction carried the Movietone News credit line.

case would be called on Monday and admonished the litigants either to be agreed upon a settlement of the case or be prepared to go to trial at that time. The agreement to dismiss the case was worked out subsequently.

Under the terms of the agreement, it is understood, parties to the action will enter into a stipulation to discontinue the case leaving a temporary injunction in effect restraining 20th Century-Fox from selling to the RKO 81st Street while Skouras theatres are competing with that house during the life of the Skouras franchise. In addition, a $25,000 bond posted by Skouras is to be eliminated.

The product deal with the RKO theatre was for one year and has expired. The house was enjoined from using any of the product contracted for.

Hoblitzelle-Para. In New Agreement stock interest in the theatre properties, which has been included in his operating agreement heretofore, is now eliminated.

Although details of the new agreement were not furnished by the company, it was reported that the two Texas circuits, which operate approximately 110 houses in the southwest, would be merged into a single operating company in the future if obstacles in the way of the consolidation can be removed.

Paramount and Hoblitzelle retain their respective 50 per cent interests in the properties, with Hoblitzelle's ownership now placed on a permanent basis.

London Films Loss $1,654,210 in Year in the aggregate at £2,229,973, including £751,845 for films completed or in progress and £561,149 for property and equipment. The debtor account listed £41,408 and cash of £5,403. Including £26,967 from the previous year, the total debit balance is £368,973.

London Films is a public company but has made no issue, since the shares have been acquired privately, chiefly by the Prudential Assurance Co.

Sam Smith has completed a deal with Alexander Korda of London Films for a Korda subsidiary which will produce inexpensive pictures at Denham to be released through Smith's British Lion. The object of the deal is to employ unoccupied space at the Denham plant without cheapening the London trade mark.

Berry Starts With Plea for Industry Help

zations and business concerns sent "observers" to the meeting, they rapidly lost interest in the proceedings when it became evident that the council was not going to discuss conditions in any individual industry. If there were any film representatives present, they were merged in the crowd and took no active part in the speech making to which today's session was confined.

One of the featured speakers, Assistant Attorney General John Dickinson effectively spiked one of the major guns of those interested which sought to use the organization for an attack on "big business" when he flatly declared the anti-trust laws "do not make mere bigness unlawful, nor do they in general place upon the large business concern, because it is large, any special limitations in the competitive struggle which are not placed upon the smaller concerns also."

Defends Business Methods

It is not unlawful, he declared, "for large concerns in the ordinary course of business, and as participants in the competitive struggle, to engage in competitive practices on the same terms as their smaller rivals so long as their conduct is simply directed toward the pursuit of their legitimate business advantage and not directly aimed at the suppression of competition in an illegitimate manner."

Dickinson suggested, however, that the statutes might be simplified, since "there are not available in the Government today adequate facilities for conducting such investigations and making such preparations over a wide enough field to warrant the belief that the anti-trust laws can be enforced in anything like all instances of actual violation or even in a sufficient number of instances to give them a fully effective deterrent force." To do so, he added, would cost several million dollars annually "and even that amount might prove insufficient."

Pleads for Constitutionality

There is no thought of making the council another NRA, nor an instrumentality dominated by labor, Paine declared in speaking for the management group. Such reforms as it seeks must be accomplished within the limitations of the constitution and meet the requirements of the Supreme Court. No change should be made in the court, he asserted.

The council, he explained, recommends the discontinuance of national spending of capital as well as income; enlarging the field of service activities to increase employment; enlarging the scope of opportunity for industry, and for improvement of the status of labor.

Bills carrying into effect the demands of the council will be prepared for submission to Congress, Berry said, in speaking later.

Tomorrow the council will get down to actual business, with its various committees meeting behind closed doors to consider the recommendations which they will submit to the coordinator.

Generally, it is not expected that the committee recommendations will go further than those submitted a year ago and that they will deal with the various phases of industrial recovery in general rather than specific terms.

While Berry today read a letter of encouragement from President Roosevelt as the latter's approval of this organization, informed observers in Washington considered it merely a "pat on the back" and not Administration sponsorship of the council.

Legislation Seen Outcome Of Conference

Wage, Unfair Practice Reports Adopted

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Reports favoring minimum wage standards, urging the curbing of unfair competitive practices and opposing production control were adopted today by the Council for Industrial Progress and these recommendations will be embodied in legislation to be submitted to Congress next month.

In an effort to obtain permanence for the organization, a report was adopted suggesting the formation of a permanent advisory economic council, with equal representation of industry, labor and the public, to be named by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate. Such a group, it was intimated, already is available in the council.

Studies to determine the deterrent effect of present taxes upon enterprise and employment, and changes in the law to produce maximum revenue with a minimum burden on industry and the public were recommended by a special tax committee.

Attendance at the final meetings of the council today was limited to members and was not greatly larger

Wilcox Sees Third Of Cost from U. S.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Herbert Wilcox anticipates recovering one-third of the negative cost from the United States market on the five pictures he will distribute in America through G. World Halts for 8 Minutes To Hear Edward's Farewell

By JACK BANNER

The greatest special event job in radio history officially came to a close last night at 5:08 P.M., E.S.T., when the abdicating monarch of the British Empire, ex-King Edward VIII, ceased speaking in a message proclaiming his abdication which was actually, not figuratively, heard 'round the world.

It is believed that every radio station on earth that could be linked up in the globe-girdling circuit carried the ex-ruler's address. At the moment the exact number of stations which broadcast the address cannot even be guessed at, but in America alone it is safe to presume that at least 50 per cent of the nation's approximate 500 stations fed the talk to their listeners.

Stations failing to carry the talk were affected either by the difficulty of obtaining telephone lines or by the expense entailed.

The three major networks, NBC, CBS and Mutual fed the address to all their affiliated stations—101 NBC, 97 CBS, and approximately 15 Mutual.

Locally CBS fed independent stations WNEW, WINS and WHN. NBC fed WNYC.

Para. Extends Deal With Blank 3 Mos.

A three-month extension of the partnership operating agreement for the Tri-States Circuit between Paramount and A. H. Blank was approved yesterday by Paramount officials. Blank's current pact expires Jan. 2 and the extension will continue the agreement up to March 6.

Approximately 40 theatres in Iowa, Nebraska and Illinois are included in the agreement. Blank and Paramount each hold a 50 per cent stock interest in the operations, but the agreement includes an option under which Paramount may repurchase from Blank his half interest. At present, indications are that Paramount will attempt to place the circuit on a permanent operating basis after March 6, as the company is known to prefer that type of operating arrangement to the uncertainty and repeated negotiations involved in the temporary agreements carrying repurchase clauses.

Studios Hold Pace As Holidays Near

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 11.—Despite the approaching holiday season studios continued to hum last week with no signs of an immediate letup. Production dropped slightly during the week from 40 to 38 features in work. Twenty-one were scheduled to come out of the scenario departments and on to the sound stages within the next two weeks. The number of pictures in the cutting rooms totaled 61. Only one short subject was shooting.

Since the checkup a week ago, eight new films have gone before the cameras. They were: "Raiding Guns," Columbia; "The Trusted Outlaw" and "Hit the Saddle," Republic; "Seventh Heaven" and "Step Lively, Jeeves," 20th Century-Fox, and "Marked Woman," "Prince and the Pauper" and "The Stuttering Bishop" at Warners.

Warners headed the list with seven in work.

In the feature division Columbia had three shooting, three preparing and seven editing. Samuel Goldwyn had zero, zero and one; M-G-M, five, one

Coast Actor Benefit Has $6,019 Deficit

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 11.—The Actors' Fund benefit show, staged July 1, which reported receipts of $42,525, actually had a deficit of $6,019.

"It appears the expenditures were way out of proportion and the trouble was just bad management," read a statement by Ferris R. Miller, investigator for the City Commission. He reported that the actual deficit was reduced to approximately $2,000 through a return to the fund by Alexander Leftwich, who staged the benefit, of most of his $3,453 salary and by other private donations.

"Pagliacci"

London, Dec. 11.—Trade shown today by Trafalgar-United Artists at the Hippodrome, this film is first class entertainment as screen drama, opera and spectacle. The story values of the operatic masterpiece are cleverly transcribed into screen terms without detracting from the original or losing any of the musical appeal. Richard Tauber sings magnificently, particularly in the "On With the Motley" aria which is sung in the clown's dressing room.

British Chemicolour sequences comprise about a third of the footage and include the whole last act of the offering on the stage. The color compares well with the best American work and is much better than anything previously done in England.

Karl Grune directed. Steffi Duna, Arthur Margetson and Esmond Knight are all good in supporting parts. The picture looks like real box office. It runs 90 minutes.

Stipulation Brings Product Suit to End

A stipulation discontinuing without prejudice the suit brought by Skouras Enterprises over the 1935 purchase of 20th Century-Fox product for the RKO 81st Street, allegedly in violation of Skouras's Fox franchise, was signed yesterday by the three parties to the litigation, thus formally bringing the action to an end.

The stipulation will be delivered to the N. Y. Supreme Court here Monday when the case is scheduled to be called.

Under the agreement ending the litigation a $20,000 bond posted by Skouras is cancelled and, in return, RKO and 20th Century-Fox release any rights which they might have to bring an action for damages against Skouras as a result of the temporary injunction which prevented the consummation of the 1935 product deal. Because of the injunction the RKO 81st St. was unable to play the product contracted for and in the event it was shown later that the injunction was not warranted the defendants might have had a cause of action against Skouras.

The stipulation was signed by Felix Jenkins for 20th Century-Fox, Louis Frohlich for Skouras and James B. Field for RKO.

Grainger Denies

E. C. Grainger, general manager of the Shea circuit, yesterday denied Pittsburgh despatches indicating the Fulton had been compelled to abandon plans to dual "My Man Godfrey" and "Pigskin Parade" the week before Christmas. "There never has been any discussion about re-dates on either of these films, both of which already have been played, whether on a single or a dual bill basis," he said.

Loew Unit Has Big Gain

Marcus Loew's Theatres, Ltd., Canadian subsidiary of Loew's, earned $81,795 for the year ended Aug. 27, which is equal to $4.80 a share on the common. These figures compare with $52,862, or 95 cents a share for the preceding year.

Air Audience Data Cost Set At $500,000

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—More than $500,000 a year is spent by business firms in measuring radio audiences, Henry L. Link of the Psychological Corp. of New York told the National Conference on Educational Broadcasting here today. Link was speaking of the methods used to determine the number of listeners who follow a particular program on the air.

Alternately attacked and defended, the diction of the American radio announcer was discussed, with W. Cabell Greet, professor of English at Barnard College, criticizing their "flunky" speech, which, he said brought them into the class of gold-braided doormen and "Radio Center Music Hall ushers."

Greet asserted that the meticulous diction of the announcers has had little or no influence on the speech of the public, but H. L. Ewbank of the University of Wisconsin held that radio is changing the styles in public speaking, even if it is not improving the diction of the average listener, by "deflating the bombast of the agitator who wrought mightily upon the emotions of his hearers with exaggerated vocal effects and the devices of mob psychology."

Radio has not yet become aware of labor as a movement, the conference was told by Chester Wright of the Workers' Education Bureau, discussing labor's experience in broadcasting.

Colgate Buys Time Of Sears-Roebuck

Colgate - Palmolive - Peet yesterday purchased the CBS 10 to 10:30 P. M. period vacated last Thursday by the Sears-Roebuck "Then and Now" program. The acquisition of this time will probably effect the schedule set for the forthcoming Colgate series starring Jessica Dragonette and may save another Colgate program, Homer Rodeheaver's "Come On, Let's Sing," which had been slated for removal to make way for the Dragonette program.

According to Benton & Bowles, agency handling the Colgate account, the Dragonette show may now be placed in the newly acquired Thursday night spot, which would automatically save the "Sing" fiestas. Colgate had always been satisfied with the results achieved by this program and had only slated it for cancellation because no other time was available for the Dragonette series. A definite decision will be forthcoming shortly.

CBS Not After Theatre

The reported CBS negotiations to purchase an additional theatre as a broadcast studio were branded as a myth by a network spokesman yesterday.

McCrea, Davis Signed

Joel McCrea and Bette Davis will be featured in a radio version of the stage play "There's Always Juliet" on the Camel Caravan program Dec. 15.

World Halts for 8 Minutes To Hear Edward's Farewell sets placed the total at 22,000,000 families. Estimating three to a family, the number of Americans who heard the broadcast can be set at approximately 66,000,000. No previous single broadcast has ever even approached that listening figure.

Indicative of the feverish interest aroused hereabouts by the broadcast, NBC informs that not a single telephone call was received at the Radio City switchboard from the moment Edward began to speak at 5 P. M. until 5:08, when he brought his address to a close. Immediately preceding the address and again after its conclusion, the switchboard was swamped. CBS states that not more than 10 telephone calls were received there during the course of the address.

Further proof of the amazing drawing power of the broadcast was the estimate late yesterday afternoon that Broadway theatre attendance dropped off approximately 50 per cent between the hours of 4 and 6 P. M.

The same authorities expressed the opinion that similar decreases in attendance probably were experienced by theatres throughout the country.

Edward's address was broadcast by the British Broadcasting Co. in London, from which point it was short-waved over the Atlantic to the RCA transmitter at Riverhead, L. I., thence to the RCA headquarters at 66 Broad St., New York, and out over the three networks and the temporarily linked independent stations. NBC and CBS fed it back to Europe and South America via short wave.

A conservative world-wide estimate of the number of listeners who heard Edward bid farewell to his Empire can be placed at 212,000,000.

For the benefit of those who were unable to hear Edward's broadcast, NBC repeated the historic valedictory over both networks—6.05 P.M. on the Blue and 7.15 P.M. on the Red. The repeats broke all NBC precedent. Not since the network was formed 10 years ago has an address been considered sufficiently important to repeat.

WMCA and its affiliated Inter-state network stations broadcast electrical transcriptions of the King's farewell at 7.30 P.M. last night. The procedure will be repeated at 12.30 P.M. today.

Many of the transcription companies will reap a rich harvest as a result of Edward's farewell message. Platters at so much per disk are now being rushed to stations which were unable to hook in on the actual broadcast.

A. T. and T. Goes Xmas

American Telephone and Telegraph will sponsor a Christmas Eve salute over the entire CBS network from 10 to 10:30 P.M., E.S.T. The program will originate from many pick-up points throughout the nation.

From Hollywood, Leopold Stokowski will conduct a symphony orchestra in a program of Christmas music. From New York, Edwin C. Hill, acting as commentator and narrator, will introduce and interview a number of well-known personalities, who are now being lined up for the program.

Ratner West for CBS

Victor Ratner, CBS advertising and sales promotion director, has left New York for California to arrange for an extensive west coast newspaper and promotional campaign to announce official acquisition of KFSO and KNX to the CBS chain. KNX, Hollywood was purchased outright at a reported price of $1,500,000 by CBS last April. KFSO, San Francisco, was leased by CBS at the same time.

The stations will begin carrying the CBS network features on Dec. 29.

Hal Scher, brother of George Scher, head of the publicity division of the Lennen and Mitchell agency, leaves New York this week to join the announcing and production staff at WKY, Oklahoma City.

Chevrolet Drops Films

The showing of motion pictures in connection with the Chevrolet-sponsored broadcasts starring Dave Rubinoff's band will be abolished this Sunday. Campbell-Ewald, the agency which arranged for the films, in cooperation with Jam Handy Prod., states the picture attractions were booked for but a temporary period now expired. It was originally stated, however, that the pictures would be shown weekly into the summer months.

The policy was in vogue five weeks. The pictures were institutional in nature, all subjects dealing with Chevrolet product.

Seek Law Allowing Children on Screen

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Capt. Richard Norton, as spokesman for the Film Group of the F. B. I., in the House of Commons urged support for a clause in the new Factories Bill permitting children to appear in films, under suitable safeguards.

The law as it stands prevents British producers from developing the juvenile talent in the country. The suggested clause is favored in principle by the Home Office, and also by the Trades Union Congress. Deputations are to be sent to the Home Office and the Board of Education.

than a year ago, when "big business" withdrew its participation.

Yesterday's warnings by Assistant Attorney General Dickinson that the anti-trust laws could not be used as a weapon against big companies merely because of their size and the statement by George L. Berry, Coordinator for Industrial Cooperation, that the problems of individual industries would not be discussed also were seen as lessening the interest of small independents in the movement.

"Camille"

Hollywood, Dec. 11.—Previewed here tonight by M-G-M, this film is definitely quality entertainment based not only on its appeal as a dramatic love story modern in treatment but also upon the intelligence of the direction and the sincerity of the acting.

Greta Garbo as the Marguerite Gautier of the Dumas classic gives a performance worthy of a Bernhard or a Duse. Robert Taylor as Armand, Henry Daniell as De Varville and Lionel Barrymore as the father of Armand give portrayals that rank with their best. Laura Hope Crews, Leonore Ulric and Jessie Ralph are strong in supporting roles.

George Cukor directed the film which runs 105 minutes.

Authorizes RKO Audit

The reason for this, the Irving Trust Co. states, is the anticipation of numerous requests by creditors and other parties interested in the plan of reorganization for a consolidated statement of assets, liabilities, profits and losses of RKO for the year.

Hichens Wins Judgment

Short Subjects

"Screen Snapshots No. 3"

Of course the comedy is not entirely unexpected but there are good, substantial laughs. Production Code Seal No. 01,256. Running time, 17 mins. "G."

"Annie Laurie"

(M-G-M)

Based on the legendary creation of the famous Scotch air, the well produced effort, has an atmosphere of tender romance and sorrow which is given fine dramatic treatment by Ann Rutherford, Stanley Morner and David Torrence. With well turned and tasteful sentimentality to aid, it should go over. Production Code Seal No. 2,575. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

Industry Plans To Await Move By President

President's Views Not Clear Before Message

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—The attitude of the Administration toward the plans of George L. Berry's Council for Industrial Progress to obtain legislation paralleling the NRA will not be revealed until President Roosevelt sends his annual message to Congress Jan. 6, it was indicated here yesterday.

The Council adjourned Friday night after recommending the enactment of a law to prohibit unfair competition, either through unfair practices, by the maintenance of unjust or unreasonable wage or hour standards or through monopoly. It also recommended modification of the anti-trust laws and the adoption of voluntary codes by industry.

Little importance is attributed to the offer made by Berry in a radio address Friday night to resign as Coordinator for Industrial Cooperation if by so doing he could insure the participation of big business in his organization. Nor is much importance

Hollywood, Dec. 13.—Sidney R. Kent, president of 20th-Century-Fox, yesterday stated: "The status of the G. B. deal remains precisely as it was before the arrival of the Ostrers. Local Boards To Start Soon Where Desired

St. Louis to Get First; Petitions Awaited

Local conciliation boards for the adjustment of trade practice complaints are to be established immediately in all exchange centers petitioning them and moves preliminary to their organization are already under way in several cities, it was learned on Saturday. The present objective is to have the boards actually functioning as soon after the first of the year as possible.

The conciliation boards are an integral part of the M.P.T.O.A.'s 10-point trade practice program and that organization, as reported in MOTION PICTURE DAILY of Nov. 12, has been prepared to proceed with the establishment of the boards as soon as they had been approved by a minimum of four national distributors. The M. P. T. O. A.'s belief is that the cooperation of that number of distributors would be sufficient to begin the establishment of the boards. Universal, 20th Century-Fox and United Artists have formally offered their cooperation in setting up the boards and it is known that Paramount's reply to the M.P.T.O.A. trade practice program has been completed and will include an approval of the boards when it is made public within the next few days, thus assuring the minimum amount of distributor cooperation to

By RED KANN

THAT traveling vice-president, Arthur W. Kelly, continues to be "amazed" at the progress production is making in England. He told off at some length on this point before he sailed on his present and extended sales trip. He did it again for the benefit of a reporter of the Buenos Aires Herald, published in English in the leading city of the Argentine. By scissors and paste, this:

"The studios [British] are far and away bigger than anything in Hollywood. They cover more acreage; they will shortly turn out pictures vying with the best in the United States due to the interchange of stars. . . .

"It's incredible. The strides made in London are simply unbelievable. [Then detail about floor space at a studio, obviously Denham.] And furthermore, the technical qualities are the highest in the world today. Nothing that money can buy has been missed in these studios, all centered around London, and London may eventually capture the title of the center of filmdom.

"Look to London for many of the major productions of the future. British pictures of which you'll see many this coming season will compete for first place among the movie patrons over the entire globe." . . .

Elsewhere in his bubbling enthusiasm, Kelly declared his company next season would have fifty or sixty pictures. Of interest, as well, is this, attributed to him: "You might like to know that the famous Walt Disney shorts will again be distributed by us," naturally referring to United Artists when we thought it was to RKO that Disney had pledged his future love lyrics. However, and be these two next above statements as they may, our roving eyes quickened perceptibly for other reasons. For instance, and in our usual blundering fashion, we wondered when it was that control of United Artists had passed from Hollywood to Denham and if this might be how Kelly was demonstrating his allegiance to the new owners. . . .

Our last recollection of the set-up appears to be five American owner-members—Goldwyn, Pickford, Fairbanks, Chaplin, et al—and only one British—Alex Korda, who only recently dropped Hungarian for English citizenship. It seems unduly strange, therefore, that Kelly, as the vice-president of foreign distribution in a company dominated here, should give Korda and his London Films, who make up one of the employers, the decided edge on his American bosses, names you have. It might have embarrassed Kelly no end if the reporter on the Herald had thought to inquire if the interviewed one included in his encomiums several of the sickening flops made in England and released elsewhere by United Artists. Dolefully, we ponder the simplicity of such a query had that reporter read our favorite trade paper as diligently as we do. Anyway, flag-waving makes us tired and getting the signals mixed as per Kelly makes us give up. . . .

Cecil B. De Mille is back in Hollywood with an interesting experience under his belt. Never overlooking his showmanship, you know, of course, that he has just rounded out a quick barnstorming tour in half dozen or more widely scattered key cities all for the purpose of gauging reactions to previews of "The Plainsman." The fruit of this experience, for instance, included what the coast regarded as a dramatic line spoken by Gary Cooper. New Orleans, however, thought otherwise and laughed, not only outright but loud. The probability now is that the skidding line will come out since it can without difficulty and without impairing the dramatic development fore and aft. . . .

From De Mille:

"For years there has been a steady decrease in the value to a producer of audience reactions in California previews. A large part of any theatre audience near Hollywood is composed of persons either engaged in the film business or who are the relatives or friends of persons in the business. Sometimes there are eighteen or twenty previews in a single week. The California audience thinks no more of seeing a 'Preview Tonight' sign on a theatre than a Bronx audience thinks of seeing two feature pictures offered for the price of a single admission.

"This constant procession of previews has changed the majority of people in a California audience into film critics. They go to a preview to sit in judgment, to praise or condemn. They do not sit back and enjoy the show. From a Hollywood preview night, therefore, a producer gets a critical, rather than an audience, reaction. And that's why the preview, hereafter, must be a national one."

C. B. was talking for newspaper consumption. That put a brake on his choice of language. If he were not so polite anyway, he might have painted the situation in far more cryptic and descriptive terms. For the coast preview ranks well up among the iniquities of Hollywood. It functions as those in charge prefer to have it function with the ayes deluging the nayes and general honesty in opinion compelled to run to ready cover under the glowering glares of the studio mighty. It seems strange today, as it has for years and years, that Hollywood cannot stomach the caustic with the enthusiastic, but must have paraded steadily before it a perpetual series of droolings and raves mounting to new crescendoes with each succeeding release. . . .

The stories are legion about those who have gotten themselves thoroughly in bad by criticizing openly and as their judgment dictates. Hollywood, when the preview system works according to rote as it usually does, of course never makes a bad picture. As a matter of fact, when big previews occasion the dusting off of the mike for radio fanfare, those who direct their remarks into the ether are usually confident the attraction they are about to see makes a world beater and a wow look like the final word in understatement. No fools they, to go Time on you, they and others appreciate how to play their strategy.

The entire system typifies the self-adulation which Hollywood views as so essential a phase of its satisfied existence. If you think that exhibitors and public are wrong when the product reaches them, you merely misjudge. The libel committed on Hollywood thereby is double-plated and no explanation to adequately explain away the frequent chasm between studios anticipation and theatre performance has ever been devised. All great on the coast, it has been said something happens by the time the prints reach New York. Santa Fe's quickened schedule for the Super-Chief hasn't contributed one bit toward a solution. . . .

Bingo Hitting Theatres

CINCINNATI, Dec. 13.—Theatre attendance here is being affected by the use of Bingo, wheels of fortune, raffles and similar activities, advertised to raise funds for charity, according to a member of the Greater Cincinnati Independent Exhibitors' Ass'n.

The stunts are widely used here, having originated with churches and charitable organizations, and drawing as many as 2,000 in a single location. A percentage of the proceeds, said at times to reach $3,000, goes to the sponsoring group.

City officials are investigating the practice with a view to curbing, if not stopping it.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 13.—WKRC, local CBS outlet, has started a series of Sunday programs which pay tribute to neighboring cities.

The first was dedicated to Hamilton, O., with Mayor Raymond H. Burke, Alexander Thomson, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and other civic personalities participating.

Music is by the local Y.M.C.A. Orpheus Glee Club.

Walter Baker's Job Expands

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 13.—Walter Baker, office manager at NBC, has been given the additional position of night manager of the local studio.

Chevrolet Renews Rubinoff's Pact

Spiking rumors that his orchestra would be replaced by another band at the termination of his present contract, Dave Rubinoff has been re-signed for an additional 13-week period by his sponsor, the Chevrolet Motor Co. Also re-signed were Jan Peerce and Virginia Rea, vocalists on the program. The Chevrolet series is heard Sundays at 6:30 P.M., E.S.T. over the CBS network.

Rubinoff's band, slated to leave the "waxed" series sponsored by Chevrolet and featured on 400 stations throughout the nation, has been retained for an additional 30-day period pending the outcome of auditions now being conducted for a new orchestra. The change will not affect Rubinoff's CBS network series for the same sponsor.

Effective with the signing of a new band, the number of stations carrying the program will be cut in half. It is for this reason that Rubinoff is leaving the program, for, with the curtailment in the number of stations carrying the program, the sponsor desires a more inexpensive band than Rubinoff's.

CBS, Miss Niesen Sue

Two suits for $100,000 each were filed in N. Y. Supreme Court on Saturday against Gertrude Niesen and the Columbia Artists Bureau, Inc., for alleged breach of contract by Miss Niesen's former agent, Henry Daeand, who said he had entered into an agreement with Columbia as a representative of Miss Niesen in Dec., 1932. He claimed the agreement stipulated that Columbia publicize and sell her services and he was to get five per cent of the profits. At the same time, it was alleged, he entered into an agreement for a percentage of Miss Niesen's salary. He claims she owes him $25,000.

France Laux Recovering

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 13.—France Laux, sports announcer for KMOX, is recovering from an operation at St. John's Hospital. He will be away about a month.

Parker Fennelly, who plays with Arthur Allen in KSB's Saturday night "Snow Village," has written a play. It is reported George M. Cohan and Sam H. Harris are considering it for Broadway production.

Bobby Meeker, musical director for the Club Continental, Hotel Jefferson, who broadcasts over KMOX nightly from 11 to 11:15, has signed a new contract.

Rogers for Biscuit Show

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 13.—Buddy Rogers, with his orchestra, is definitely set for the National Biscuit program which will be inaugurated here on New Year's Day over NBC-Blue network. Arrangements to have Phil Ohman on the show have been cancelled.

Warner's Net Goes Over Two Million Mark

Gain for Quarter Told To the Stockholders

WILMINGTON, Dec. 14.—Warners and its subsidiaries showed a net profit of more than $2,000,000 for the quarter ended Nov. 28, 1936, Ivan Culbertson, Delaware attorney for the company, told approximately 100 stockholders here today at the annual stockholders' meeting. After being introduced by Robert W. Perkins, secretary, Culbertson took over the chairmanship of the session.

The $2,000,000 figure compares with a profit of $1,031,315.96 for the corresponding period last year, and is after Federal income tax and other expenses, but before the new undistributed profit tax.

In view of negotiations for refinancing and because the net covered a three-month period, Culbertson said there would be no dividend at this

N. Y. "Ecstasy" Ban Is Upheld by Court

A special statutory court yesterday upheld the right of New York State and Governor Lehman to refuse a permit for exhibition of "Ecstasy" within its borders. The court consisted of U. S. Circuit Judge Martin J. Manton and District Judges Robert T. Patterson and Samuel Mandelbaum.

The film, the court held, was re-edited after importation to make it adaptable to American audiences and thus lost its status as an import in its original state. For that reason the court added the censorship was one of the statutory regulations in New York State and contributed no burden upon foreign commerce as alleged by Eureka Prod., Inc., in its application to restrain state officials from interfering with importation of films.

The plaintiff challenged the refusal

Margolies Goes to G. B. Publicity Job

Albert Margolies, who has been with the U. A. publicity department for the past few years, yesterday resigned to join G. B. as publicity head, starting Jan. 1. Margolies has a one-year contract.

A. P. Waxman, advertising counsel for G. B., is not affected by the Margolies switch. Monroe Greenthal has not appointed a successor in the U. A. post.

"U" Buys Air Title Rights For Annual Musical Series

Universal yesterday purchased the title rights to "Melody Treasure Hunt," a WOR-Mutual network program featuring musical compositions written by amateurs and presented over the air by professionals. Universal, it is understood, will use the title for a series of annual musicals similar to Warner's "Gold Diggers," Paramount's "Big Broadcast," and M-G-M's "Broadway Melody" series.

Norman White and Pat Ballard are co-producers of the radio program. The program will preserve its title on the air and, if present plans are adhered to, Universal will use its contract players as guests in the series in order to build up the theatre value of the title.

The deal marks the third radio program title to be purchased by producers this year. Paramount recently bought "One Man's Family," popular network serial from Carleton Morse, author of the series, while 20th Century-Fox shortly begins production on "Town Hall Tonight," the title of Fred Allen's network series.

Bank Night is Lottery, Says Kansas Court

TOPEKA, KAN., Dec. 14.—The second court blow directly hitting Bank Night in as many weeks was struck by the Kansas Supreme Court when it decided the game constitutes a lottery within the meaning of the state's anti-lottery statute.

The earlier decision was that of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver, which ruled that Bank Night too closely resembles a lottery for the owners, Affiliated Enterprises, Inc., to be entitled to the assistance of an equity court or the protection of a copyright on the game.

The decision was handed down in the case of the mandamus suit brought against the Fox-Kansas Theatre Co.,

AP Loses Suit To Stop Radio News Pirating

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Holding that the suit did not involve the $3,000 required to give it jurisdiction and should not originally have been entertained by the Washington Federal courts, the U. S. Supreme Court today refused to pass on the suit brought by Associated Press to restrain KVOS, Bellingham, Wash., from alleging piracy of news dispatches.

The action of the court does not necessarily relieve the broadcasting situation, and in delivering the opinion Associate Justice Roberts referred to the method whereby the station secured the news dispatches

High Farce of Crazy-Quilt Family Hits; In for Films

If you happened in the general neighborhood of West 45th St. last night, the giggles, the guffaws and the handclapping that must have reached into the lobby and onto the street were all for "You Can't Take It With You." And with good and sufficient reason. The town has a hit on its hands.

For this farcical comedy by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman is real fun and it often shook the Booth Theatre to its blase rafters. This department has a hunch that the proceedings won't hold up under too minute an inspection of the usual ingredients that go into a play. Such as a plot, for instance.

This time there is so little of it you are apt to wonder what makes matters tick. And that is not as difficult to explain as you might imagine. There are (1) many cleverly con-

Loew's Admits Buy into G. B. From 20th-Fox

Schenck-Mayer Say Deal Has Gone Through

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 14.—First official acknowledgment of Loew's purchase of half of 20th Century-Fox's interest in G. B. was made today when Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, and Louis B. Mayer in a joint statement to MOTION PICTURE DAILY said: "It is true Loew's owns half of 20th Century-Fox's interest in G. B."

Up until late Friday, Schenck and his brother, Joseph M., Sidney R. Kent, president of 20th Century-Fox, and Isidore and Maurice Ostrer had been conferring on the three-way deal.

The head of Loew's, accompanied by Al Lichtman, is scheduled to leave for New York later in the week. Tentative plans call for their arrival at the home office on Monday. Kent's departure is uncertain at the present time.

Completion of the sale to Loew's of half of the 20th Century-Fox 49 per cent interest in Metropolis & Bradford Trust, holding company for G. B., has been pending since July

Chicago Daily News Lauds Screen in Ad

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—A full page display which was at once a tribute to the film industry and a strong advertisement to stimulate public attendance at film theatres was published the other day by The Chicago Daily News.

The page, bordered by a group of photographs of leading stars, was captioned, "To an industry which has the courage of its convictions," and the advertisement extolled the manner in which the screen has developed from its beginnings in this country. The copy concluded: "See a movie tonight—Your neighborhood theatre is at your very door."

See No Meehan Delay

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—No postponement of the hearing before the Securities and Exchange Commission scheduled for tomorrow in the Michael J. Meehan case is expected. Guild to Encourage Film-Seamen Peace

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 14.—A checkup system on production companies working on local seaport locations has been instituted by Screen Actors' Guild in an effort to emphasize the necessity of players carrying their guild cards as a symbol of the close alliance between the guild and the A. F. L. Because of the existence of the current maritime strike it is expected that the system will prevent expensive production delays.

It was learned today that the guild ironed out differences between the seaport unions and a Republic studio group while on location recently.

I.A.T.S.E. Starts Picketing

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 14.—Projectionists' Local, 150, tomorrow will start picketing the Raymond in Pasadena as a result of the failure to reach an agreement on union wages. A similar situation with regard to the Wilshire in Santa Monica has been adjusted and contracts signed.

The current move is a continuation of the independent theatre closed shop drive by I.A.T.S.E.

Allow Income Credit On Stock Dividends

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Stock dividends of corporations to the extent of the fair market value of any stock issued, where such distributors are clearly taxable to the shareholders under the provisions of the 1936 act, will be allowed by the Internal Revenue Bureau as a credit in the audit of corporation income tax returns, it was disclosed today by Commissioner Guy T. Helvering.

No dividends paid credit, however, will be allowed with respect to a stock dividend distribution if the receipt of the stock clearly constitutes a nontaxable receipt by the shareholder.

In any case where the taxability of the distribution is debatable, the bureau will adopt a general policy of making a tentative allowance pending a final determination.

The new regulations are issued under the provisions of the 1936 act imposing taxes on corporate income withheld from distribution.

Declares Extra Dividend

BOSTON, Dec. 14.—Loew's Boston Theatres Co. has declared an extra dividend of 50 cents per share, payable Dec. 23 to stockholders of record Dec. 15.

Theatres Gain

Toronto, Dec. 14.—The first immediate result of the accession of the Duke of York to the British throne was a benefit to Canadian theatres in the form of a rush declaration making today — the King's birthday—a statutory holiday in Canada.

Theatre patronage suffered last week as a result of the keen interest in the frequent broadcasts from England on the possibilities of abdication.

Proposed Omaha Tax Would Hit Theatres

OMAHA, Dec. 14.—Proposals placed before the City Council to tax gross receipts of all Omaha business firms 50 cents per $1,000 on the first $50,000 of annual income and $1 per $1,000 over that would affect Omaha exhibitors.

The city needs $211,000 more revenue than it can obtain now through present levies. The gross receipts tax would raise $300,000 a year if put into effect, it is estimated.

Phila. Variety Club Affair Is Brilliant

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 14.—The second annual banquet of Tent No. 13 of the Variety Club last night brought 1,200 to the Bellevue Stratford Hotel for what was conceded to be the biggest local industry social event in years.

Among the speakers were Mayor Wilson of Philadelphia; Governors Earle of Pennsylvania and Hoffman of New Jersey; Jack Kelly, local Democratic leader; Ed Sullivan, columnist. George Jessel was awarded the verbal palm for "toastmasting" brilliance, and Jay C. Flippen was an agile master of ceremonies for the entertainment.

With Congressman Clare Fennerty making the presentation, the club gave $1,000 to further the treatment of four children suffering from infantile paralysis, who were selected last year. Films of the progress of the cure of the children were shown, and three of them appeared in person. Retiring chief barker Jim Clarke was presented a watch, and he in turn gave Ben Amsterdam, the incoming chief, a memorial plaque in the name of the club.

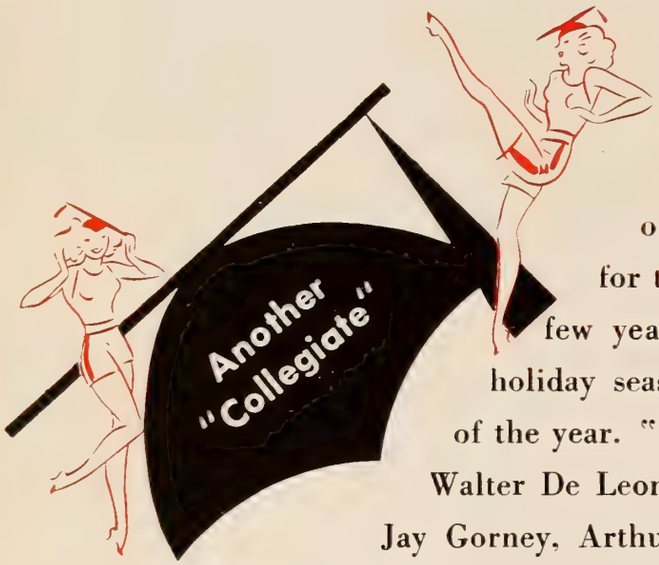
Mr. EXHIBITOR: here is your sales analysis on



• All the facts you need to know to Put This Big Paramount Holiday Special in the top grosser class

Believing that trade advertising should be informative as well as stimulating reading, Paramount here publishes the first of a series of sales analyses on major Paramount productions. Any questions not completely covered in these analyses will be gladly answered either at your local Paramount Exchange or at the Paramount Home Office, Paramount Building, Times Square, New York City.

Paramount Pictures

STAR POWER . . . is the first and most important sales angle on "College Holiday". Paramount gives you Jack Benny, George Burns and Gracie Allen, and Martha Raye right while the public is hot for them after their smashing success in "The Big Broadcast of 1937". In addition to their popularity with picture fans... do not forget that right now is the height of the radio season, and all of them are now radio headliners! In addition to these "Big Broadcast" stars, "College Holiday" presents that tried and true box-office favorite, Mary Boland, with Etienne Girardot, Ben Blue, and a whole lineup of those Paramount youngsters we have been building in recent hit pictures.

TIMELINESS... is the next important sales angle on "College Holiday". Realizing that holiday business depends for the most part on youth appeal, Paramount has for the past few years given exhibitors a big-time college musical for the holiday season. Last year's "Collegiate" was one of the big grossers of the year. "College Holiday" has the same appeal plus. J. P. McEvoy, Walter De Leon, Harlan Ware, Frederick Hazlett Brennan, Henry Meyers, Jay Gorney, Arthur Sheekman, Nat Perrin, James Seymour, Bobby Vernon and Edward Welch . . . the pick of Hollywood's gag men . . . have combined to turn out a college musical not "just as good as 'Collegiate'," but about twenty times faster and funnier. Frank Tuttle, who directed the first "Big Broadcast," is in charge of "College Holiday".

HIT TUNES . . . these days are one of the most important sales angles on any picture. "College Holiday" has actually more potential radio hits than "Rhythm on the Range", Paramount's outstanding tune show for 1936. Ralph Rainger and Leo Robin have knocked out another of their wow numbers, "I Adore You", also "A Rhyme for Love" and "So What?" Burton Lane and Ralph Freed give you "Sweetheart Waltz", "Who's That Knockin' at My Heart". And, in addition to these, plus a Minstrel Number sung by none other than Martha Raye, "College Holiday" contains the Alma Mater songs of seven leading American universities.

A Typical Zukor Production

PRODUCTION VALUE...means plenty in box-office returns. A fan can smell a weak production a mile away. "College Holiday" is one of those big-time productions which Paramount has been turning out these past few months in impressive succession. Here are a few facts to back up this statement: Sets include a huge Greek temple, covered entirely in white satin, with living models; an acre of the studio's back lot was transformed into the rotunda of a girl's school, jutting out over a real lake; a hotel lobby, one of the largest sets ever constructed at Paramount, is made even more impressive by a mural painted by a noted artist especially for the picture.

PRE-SOLD TO MILLIONS

EXPLOITATION

on "College Holiday" already has been enough to promote it right into the hit class. Jack Benny has plugged the picture on his hit program Sunday nights. And General Foods have begun another campaign similar to their successful dealer tie-up with Paramount for "Big Broadcast". Burns and Allen have plugged the show on their popular weekly program. Martha Raye, joining the ranks of radio stars December 22nd over the Columbia network, begins then to exploit the picture for you (check your local station for tie-in). In addition to this the tunes from the picture have already been featured by Camel Caravan, and Shell Chateau. Readers of Esquire Magazine will read a large advertisement by Gantner Bathing Suits, advertising "College Holiday" and showing a picture of two of the stars, Marsha Hunt and Leif Erikson. These are only a few of the major tie-ups. See Press Book or query your exchange for information on local tie-ins.

which it broadcast and to which the A. P. contended it had no right.

"The petitioner," Justice Roberts said, "has no organization of its own for gathering news, but adopts the practice of 'pirating' news gathered by the respondent and its members. This practice consists of procuring copies of the Herald, the Post Intelligencer and the Daily Times and broadcasting parts, or all, of the items published therein, whether gathered by these newspapers or received by them from the respondent, the repetition being sometimes verbatim and sometimes a rearrangement of the wording. The copies of the three newspapers do not reach their subscribers for some time (in some cases as much as 24 hours) after publication; whereas the petitioner, promptly obtaining the papers, is able to pirate and broadcast their contents and to anticipate the receipt of the news by the newspapers' subscribers. This practice constitutes unfair competition with the respondent; wrongfully deprives the respondent of the just benefits of its labors and expenditures; similarly injures the respondents' members, and prejudices the respondent with its members."

While the Associated Press contended that it was damaged to the extent of more than the $3,000 required to give the Federal courts jurisdiction, it was pointed out, that contention was challenged and the challenge was not refuted.

"Since the allegation as to the amount in controversy was challenged in an appropriate manner, and no sufficient evidence was submitted in support thereof, the bill should have been dismissed," the court ruled.

"The decree of the Circuit Court of Appeals is reversed and the cause is remanded to the district court with directions to dismiss the bill of complaint for want of jurisdiction."

Programs in Foreign Languages New Plan

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—To develop another angle of broadcast advertising, the use of radio on a national scale to reach foreign-language audiences in American cities, Roesler & Howard, Inc., has been organized by George Roesler, midwestern station representative, and R. E. ("Bob") Howard, formerly in the radio department of Campbell-Ewald Co., Inc., Detroit advertising agency. Roesler is in charge of the new firm's Chicago office. Howard heads the New York office.

Dealing exclusively in foreign language programs on American stations, Roesler & Howard have a complete service in radio programs in any language but English. Linguists have been engaged in both Chicago and New York for the translation of commercial copy and arrangements have been made with several recording companies for foreign-language transcriptions. Although it began operations only a few weeks ago, the new firm states it has already been authorized to handle the sale of foreign-language programs on 23 stations.

Aim to Force Free Time on the Radio

Distribution yesterday of a pamphlet prepared for the Civil Liberties Union revealed that this organization is backing Federal legislation to make free time mandatory for radio stations. It is backing a bill introduced at the last session of Congress by Representative Byron Scott of California.

The proposed legislation requires all stations to set aside regular periods "for uncensored discussion on a non-profit basis of public, social, political and economic problems and for educational purposes." It also requires that every station presenting a controversial issue must give at least one opposing view.

Trimming Kostelanetz

Beginning with the Jan. 2 broadcast, Andre Kostelanetz's twice weekly sessions for Chesterfield cigarettes will be cut in half. Kostelanetz will retain his Wednesday evening berth, co-featuring with Nino Martini, but will be succeeded by Hal Kemp's orchestra on Fridays. Kemp auditioned for the spot immediately after he vacated the Phil Baker program several weeks ago.

Kay Thompson's choral group, program standbys since its inception, will be held over to assist Kemp. Ray Heatherton's status on the Friday show is in doubt at the moment.

The change was brought about by Kostelanetz's refusal to reduce the size of his orchestra. Newell Emmett Co. is the agency.

To Dramatize Big Events

CBS will again present "Twelve Crowded Months," a dramatization of the major news events of the year. The program will be heard Dec. 29, at 11:30 P.M., E.S.T.

The dramatization will consist of the 12 most significant and dramatic news events of the year as selected by a majority of editors and publishers throughout the nation. Ballots are now on their way to the nation's editorial offices. There is a strong likelihood that this year's broadcast, the second in the series, will be sponsored.

Pick and Pat Resigned

Pick and Pat, blackface comedians, and Benny Kreuger and his orchestra have been retained for another year by their sponsors, Dills Tobacco. Their present contract does not expire until March 1, 1937. The contract of Frank McMahon, producer and director of the program, has also been renewed for the same length of time.

7th Radio Year Nears

Betty Moore and Lew White inaugurate their seventh season of broadcasting for Benjamin Moore & Co. Jan. 7. The program will be heard weekly over the NBC-Red from 11:30 to 11:45 P. M., E.S.T.

Ruth Etting Guest Star

Ruth Etting will guest star on two programs in three days. Saturday night she will appear with Ed Wynn, and on Monday, Dec. 21, she will sing on Dick Himber's "Champion" program.

Opera Stars on "Magic Key"

The RCA "Magic Key" program this Sunday will include several operatic personalities, in addition to film and stage guest artists. Representing the opera are Marcia Davenport, who has been engaged by RCA as commentator for the forthcoming Metropolitan Opera broadcasts; Edward Johnson, general manager of the Met, and Gertrud Wettergren. Bill Robinson, Bobby Breen and Robert Benchley round out the cast.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"God's Country and the Woman"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 14.—This has drama and romance with comedy contrasts, a glovefitting cast and sound direction by William Keighley. As Warner's first venture in all-color in some time, "God's Country and the Woman" also has fine scenic and action effects in production.

As conceived by Peter Milne and Charles Belden with an adaptation by Norman Reilly Raine, this is robust drama and romance in the timberlands. In it George Brent, alternately gayly comic and seriously dramatic, checks in with a pleasing characterization quite different from any he has previously essayed. Similarly Beverly Roberts, surprisingly effective, seems to have found her proper dramatic groove as a woman troubled by the affairs of the business world as well as those of the heart. Likewise, Robert Barrat is good and the principal supports, Alan Hale, Barton MacLane, Billy Bevan, Roscoe Ates, El Brendel, Joseph King and Victor Potel, contribute worthy performances.

A he-man's picture with appeal for women, the film tells two stories. Continuity and related significance of both are well blended. The main locale is the heavy timber northwoods country, the scenic beauty of which has been colorfully photographed by Tony Gaudio. Barrat, dynamic business czar, has two objectives. One is a determination to write finis to his playboy brother's spendthrift career; he is Brent. The other is to wreck his rival's business; she is Miss Roberts. He fails to reckon what would happen when a man and woman fall in love even though action and incident leading to that blissful state savor not at all of anything resembling the lavender and old lace technique.

Brent, ridiculed and abused by Miss Roberts as he attempts an assault on her heart; browbeaten and manhandled by her husky lumberjacks, yet a willing victim of backbreaking toil when he discovers his brother's plot to ruin the woman whose heart he is determined to conquer, emerges a man's hero in a woman's way.

Heroically dynamiting a log jam—the film's big spectacle feature—following a well-developed series of dramatic incidents, his reward is Miss Roberts' capitulation. As Barrat is grateful that it took a woman to make a man of his brother, the two companies effect a peaceful merger and Brent and Miss Roberts merge in wedlock.

Production Code Seal No. 2,357. Running time, 85 minutes. "G."

Denies Academy Sale

BOSTON, Dec. 14.—Philip Smith denies rumors current here that he has sold Academy Pictures Corp. of New England to Imperial Pictures. Negotiations are on, however.

Smith, head of an independent theatre circuit, incorporated the independent exchange about a year ago and is distributing Chesterfield, Invincible and other product. Imperial has been negotiating for several weeks with Roy Heffner of Specialty Pictures, Inc., and with others for New England distribution.

Fox Caldwell Is Formed

WILMINGTON, DEL., Dec. 14.—Fox Caldwell Theatres Corp. has been formed here to operate theatres, listing capital of $1,000. Incorporators are Harry B. Davis, David H. Jackman and Charles N. Caldwell, Jr., New York. Fort Smith Theatres, Inc., has changed its name to Malco-Arkansas Theatres, Inc.

Variety Club

Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 14.—About 200 attended the party staged at the clubrooms recently by CHARLES SHAFER and HARRY M'CLURE of Fox Midwest.

With ELMER C. RHODEN, head of Fox Midwest, as toastmaster, and SENN LAWLER, Fox Midwest publicity director, as m. c., it was pretty much a Fox Midwest-staged party. Local dignitaries attended in addition to Variety members. W. RAY JOHNSTON was a guest.

Introducing LAWLER, RHODEN pointed out that a publicity man used to lay out advertising, contact newspapers, write copy. Now his job is merchandising. He must know his china, premiums, and giveaways.

"Katz Drug Company played their annual show to 30,000 people at the Municipal Auditorium, December 5," RHODEN commented, "and there were 6,000 persons in downtown theatres on that night. Katz sells merchandise and gives entertainment. We sell entertainment and give merchandise. I'm not sure right now which is the best business to be in."

NAT HECHTMAN was given a hand for his presentation to the club of a fine banner carrying the tent name and number and the barker insignia. A hand also went to FRANK HENSLER, chief barker, for his part in the success of the annual Variety Club-Kansas City Star bowling tournament Dec. 19 and 20. A similar tournament is being held in Kansas City, Kan., with the same sponsors, but with R. R. BIECHELE and GEORGE BAKER handling details.

BILL REINKE, Tower manager, contributed acts from the current Tower stage show, for which ROY CATO of the Fox Warwick and MORRILL MOORE of the Fox Rockhill were at the piano.

Plan New Year Shows

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 14.—The Paramount will be the only first run to feature vaudeville at the midnight show New Year's Eve, with reserved seats at $1.10 all through the house. The picture is not yet set. "Gold Diggers" at the Roger Sherman and "After the Thin Man" at the Poli are the competing attractions.

It is reported the Bijou will be kept open for a midnight show New Year's Eve, to take care of the Poli overflow. The same plan will be followed in Hartford, where both Poli and Palace will be kept open.

Settle Colbert Suit

A suit against Columbia Pictures for $250,000 was dismissed yesterday in U. S. District Court when it was revealed it had reached a settlement with Claudette Colbert for a nominal sum. The action by the actress arose as a result of the publication in the Detroit Press Press in 1934 of a picture of her from "It Happened One Night" in a whiskey ad giving her alleged endorsement of the whiskey. Miss Colbert is said to be convinced that none of the higher executives of Columbia was responsible.

Rush Wheeling House

WHEELING, W. VA., Dec. 14.—The $1,000,000 Capitol here, recently acquired by Wheeling Theatres, Inc., after long litigation, is being rushed to completion for opening at Christmas. The policy will be legitimate, vaudeville and films.

Looking 'Em Over

"Boss Rider of Gun Creek"

(Universal)

Combining melodrama, fair character acting and romance with action and rustic comedy, the resulting product evolves as a pleasing and, in a measure, an entertaining film.

Buck Jones, in a dual character part, comes through with a convincing performance. When a sordid murder by his double points its finger at him, Jones, following his arrest and trial, makes a humorous and, on the part of the sheriff a good-natured getaway. Aided by Harvey Clark he sets out to clear his name. But before this has reached a starting point the double is killed when he pulls a gun on the aforementioned sheriff. From meagre clue, Jones traces the cause of his troubles and with the aid of friends he sets about clearing up the affair. The fireworks hold off until almost the very end.

Muriel Evans is good as the romantic interest. The supporting cast includes Lee Phelps, Tom Chatterton, Joe Swickhard and Mahlon Hamilton. Herbert Kirkpatrick and Allen Thompson are due credit for splendid photography. Les Selander directed.

High Farce of Crazy-Quilt Family Hits; In for Films

ceived situations, all good for laughs; (2) excellent characterizations led by Josephine Hull and Henry Travers; (3) beautiful timing and (4) very expert stage direction by Kaufman. "You Can't Take It With You," quite definitely, is a triumph of high comedy sense over plot.

Here you get another "Royal Family" but in minor key. Penelope Sycamore, fluttering and silly, has turned from painting to playwrighting because a typewriter was delivered by mistake eight years earlier; this is Miss Hull and she is splendid. Essie is her daughter; she is interested in classic dancing and candy kisses commercialized as "Love Dreams." Paul Sycamore plays with a Mechano set, makes fireworks in the basement without license and in cahoots with Mr. De Pinna, the iceman who made his daily delivery eight years ago and remained as a member of the family. Ed is Essie's husband who earned $28.50 the year before the play opened. His specialty is the xylophone, home printing and masks. Donald, is the colored boy living in sin with Rheba, the Sycamore maid; Martin Vanderhof, the old and wise grandfather who walked out of his office 35 years ago and never returned and Alice, the pretty daughter in love with her boss's son. Boris Kolenkhov is the explosive imperial Russian teaching Essie the Pavlowa intricacies.

Material Wealth for Slim Plot

These are most of the chief characters and the instruments of their various callings clutter to the hilt the sitting room of the Vanderhof home. The difficulties of the love match and the gap between the mildly insane family on the girl's side and the socially and wealth prominent on the boy's side make up the thin base on which whatever plot there is pursues its way. Ed's printing hobby brings down the G-men who find a variety of incendiary messages stuck neatly away in each package of "Love Dreams" and Old Grandfather Vanderhof finally joins the lovebirds together, reaching for the result through the not so impenetrable skin of the prospective high-toned father-in-law.

It is not so much what happens as how the duet of playwrights makes it happen. They set a furious pace and they don't quite keep the speedometer at constant mileage the length of the journey, yet the pace is fast enough and the laughs frequent enough to make it an evening hitting close to tops in the current New York season.

The cast including Paula Trueman, Frank Wilcox, Frank Conlan, George Heller, Oscar Polk, Hugh Rennie, George Tobias and Mitzi Hajos, back to the stage finally, does handsomely. Margot Stevenson, as Alice, and Jess Barker, as her sweetheart, are likely Hollywood fodder and the play itself is formed in the perfect mould for a knockabout motion picture. The only but and if swing around the featherweight plot. Hollywood can take care of that. It's done so before.

Howard's "Hamlet" Closes

of the state authorities to grant a permit on the grounds that they were encroaching upon federal power in foreign commerce. It was further argued that Congressional legislation in the field of regulation superseded state legislation. The court ruled, however, that "in regulating the legal exhibition of film, the state exercised its power after the article had lost its character as an import and secondly did not invalidly interfere with the exercising of Federal power. The purpose of Congress was to supplement and aid state legislation leaving the matter of legal exhibition for determination by the state. Congress, therefore, did not seek to abridge the power of the state and the judgment of the Federal officers in admitting the film did not prevent state officers from arriving at a different judgment when it came to the exhibition of the film and to the granting of a license therefor."

Equity Must Pay $952.72

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14.—The Municipal Court judgment of $952.72 in favor of L. Lashus, assignee of Hariett Bennett, actress, against Actors' Equity was affirmed today by the Los Angeles Appellate Division. The court ruled that the trustee is not permitted to mingle trust funds with his own or to co-mingle the funds of several trusts.

The records disclosed that Equity accepted deposits of bonds on the part of actors' employers to guarantee payment of their salaries. Miss Bennett was employed in 1929 as an actress by MacFarland Prod. in the musical comedy, "Wishing Well." When production was discontinued in April of that year Equity had $10,000 deposited to cover the players' salaries. Some were paid while the salaries of others, including that of Miss Bennett, were retained. Subsequently, in an action brought against her, her money was attached. While decision on this action was pending, her funds and others were invested in Guarantee Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, which failed.

Equity sought to escape liability by showing that the investment was made in good faith.

Reserves Plea Decision

N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Phillip J. McCook yesterday reserved decision on the application by Tobacco Road, Inc., requiring 20th Century-Fox to show cause why it should not be restrained from using gags in its picture "Banjo on My Knee" which are alleged to give the impression the picture is based on the play. A suit for $1,000,000 by the Tobacco Road Co. against the film company also is pending. It is based on the charge that the picture will do considerable damage to the film rights of the play when they are sold.

Bank Night is Lottery, Says Kansas Court

a Fox Midwest subsidiary, and was written by Justice William E. Hutchinson.

"Prize, chance and consideration" the three elements considered essential to a lottery by the courts, was held by the Kansas Supreme Court to be present in Bank Night. There is involved in Bank Night, the opinion said, "consideration sufficient to make it a policy or scheme of drawing in the nature of a lottery as prohibited by Article 15, Section 4 of the Kansas constitution."

The phrase, "is at least in the nature of a lottery," contained in the decision, was taken to indicate that the court will find almost any cash giveaway used by the theatres in Kansas to be in violation of the lottery law, should Attorney General Clarence V. Beck, who filed the present action, and who has on one or two previous occasions moved aggressively against such giveaways, care to take action.

Attorneys for Fox-Kansas said yesterday they would contest the decision. The only recourse would be application to the state Supreme Court for a rehearing.

Ban Bingo in Churches

ALBANY, Dec. 14.—The Right Reverand Edmund F. Gibbons, bishop of the Albany diocese, has decreed that the playing of Bingo must cease in all church-owned property after Dec. 31. Parishes are forbidden to sponsor Bingo in church property or to lease the property to outsiders for Bingo parties.

The bishop's decree points out that while the game started as a harmless pastime it has grown to be an outright gambling venture, for which Catholics who sponsor it cannot hope to escape severe censure, if it is allowed to continue.

Operators of film theatres claim that Bingo parties have constituted a most serious competitor for several months.

Games Called Lottery in La.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 14.—Bank Nights offered by theatres as an attendance inducement are illegal, according to the decision of Judge W. W. Westerfield, of the Louisana Court of Appeals. The decision was concurred in by other members.

Today's ruling was the result of a suit filed by Charles G. Schanchell, a negro, on behalf of his minor son, Joseph, against the Lewis Amusement Co., operator of the Florito, which, at the time, was running Movie Sweepstakes.

The suit charged that the boy was refused admission to the theatre during Bank Night drawings but that his name was drawn as the winner of $105. The plaintiff demanded that the theatre be compelled to pay the $105 since the management excluded the boy, thus preventing him from winning. The court ruled that Bank Night is based on a gambling contract and cited the State Lotery Act of 1894. The court stated, in part:

"There is no difference in principle between a chance in Sweepstakes Night or Bank Night to each purchaser of a ticket of admission to a theatre, as is done, and granting the privilege to a customer of a cigar to participate in a punch-board scheme."

As a result of the decision the games are considered as having been denounced as a lottery. The appeal becomes final unless an appeal is filed before Dec. 21.

Exchange men today were generally non-committal. Henry Lazarus, operator of the Center and Coliseum, said that the decision might mean ruin to the small exhibitor.

Bans Merchant Lotteries

LINCOLN, Dec. 14.—Attorney General William H. Wright has warned all Nebraska county attorneys to stop merchants from giving lottery chances with purchases. No ruling was made on Bank Night, however, or any other theatre giveaway.

Games Used in Night Clubs

CINCINNATI, Dec. 14.—Although gambling in any form is not permitted here, and Tom Reilly, operating the Rialto, neighborhood, was arrested several months ago when he attempted to play Sweepstakes, it is understood that several of the lesser night clubs are runnning the equivalent of Bank Night, with substantial prizes to the winners.

Bank Night Unscathed

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Dec. 14.—Some cities may consider Bank Night a gamble, but in Terre Haute, where gambling has been crushed by Mayor Samuel E. Beecher, crusading mayor, there has been no hint of stopping Bank Night at the Indiana.

Win Injunction in Col. Booking Fight

BOSTON, Dec. 14.—Western Massachusetts Theatres, Inc., operated by Sam and Nathan Goldstein in conjunction with Paramount, has been granted an injunction against the showing of the Columbia film, "Theodora Goes Wild," which opened last Sunday at the Academy in Northampton, Mass. Herman Rifkin of Republic operates the Academy.

Rifkin bought the entire Columbia lineup this season away from the Goldsteins' Calvin and Plaza in Northampton. The Goldsteins claim, however, that "Theodora Goes Wild" is part of last season's product and should go to them. The granting of the injunction has tied up the feature. At Rifkin's office here it was said the next move is up to Columbia, and the Columbia exchange says the matter has been referred to New York for action.

Loew's Admits Buy into G. B. From 20th-Fox

20, when Nicholas M. and Joseph M. Schenck and Isidore Ostrer announced the three-way alliance at the Sherry Netherlands.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY on Nov. 24 reported:

"From reliable sources at M-G-M, it was learned that Schenck will go through with the transaction to purchase half of the 20th Century-Fox interest in M. & B. This is scheduled to take place this week, as top executives are understood to figure the stock deal a good buy."

The deal was not completed that week. It was apparently set by Nicholas Schenck in Hollywood within the past week. Home office executives of Loew's were not aware of the final windup of the transaction until informed by MOTION PICTURE DAILY. They seemed surprised, although holding that there never had been any doubt that the deal would go through.

Efforts to learn the price paid for the 24½ per cent of 20th Century-Fox's interest were without result both here and in Hollywood.

Ostrer Reluctant to Talk

Returning from a two-week stay in Hollywood, during which he conferred with the Schenck Brothers and Sidney R. Kent on G. B. matters, Isidore Ostrer, chairman of the English firm, yesterday reversed himself in the handling of the press. Where he had previously been willing to answer questions, yesterday he tried to ward off the press with: "I'm sorry, but I have nothing to say."

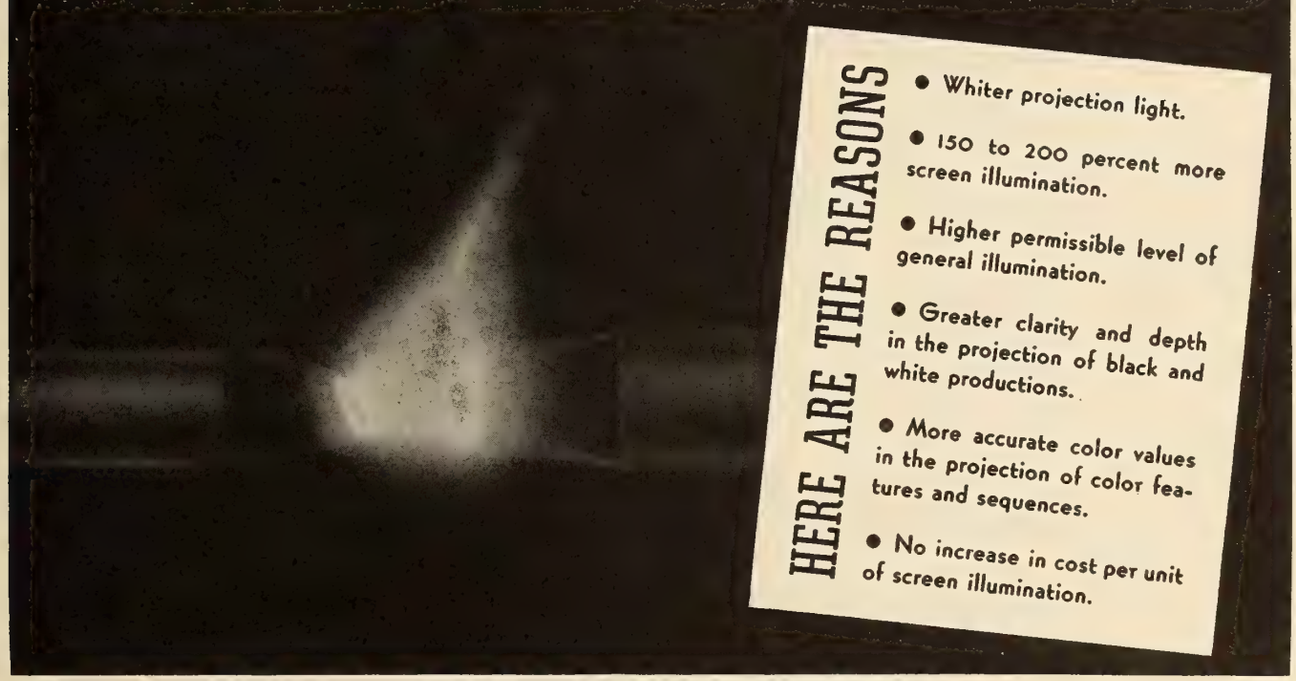
To queries relating to the weather and the trip east, Ostrer was his usual self. He found the Hollywood climate ideal and the train ride abominable, particularly the rattling of the wheels.

With him was his brother, Maurice, who shortly after the first of the year will become head of all G. B. production. This member of the family readily made himself available to reporters. He said that while he didn't sign anyone, he made many contacts.

The Ostrers will remain until after Christmas. A booking on the Queen Mary, which is due to sail tomorrow, has been cancelled.

Uses Rear Door in Chicago

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—Isidore Ostrer, enroute to New York from the coast, yesterday dashed through the railroad station and ducked out by the rear door. He left without baggage and took a cab to meet his wife, brother and sister-in-law elsewhere.



All hotels were checked, but there was no trace of the Ostrers. The Canadian Pacific reported a booking for Toronto in the name of Ostrer, but the trip was canceleld last night.

Upon questioning, Maurice told MOTION PICTURE DAILY he knew of no deal with 20th Century-Fox and Loew's being called off. He said he had been in Hollywood purely for talent, but that he didn't sign any.

This member of the Ostrer menage said his coast trip had nothing to do with reported attempts by his family to buy back the G. B. stock held by 20th Century-Fox.

NATIONAL SUPREX CARBONS

ARE RAPIDLY REPLACING LOW INTENSITY ARCS IN THEATRES OF SMALL AND INTERMEDIATE SIZE

HERE ARE THE REASONS

- Whiter projection light.
- 150 to 200 percent more screen illumination.
- Higher permissible level of general illumination.
- Greater clarity and depth in the projection of black and white productions.
- More accurate color values in the projection of color features and sequences.
- No increase in cost per unit of screen illumination.

The SUPREX ARC is a high intensity arc, using a new type of carbon developed by the National Carbon Company Research Laboratories. New lamps, of high efficiency and simplified design, have been produced by projection lamp manufacturers for use with this new carbon.

In comparison with the low intensity arc, the SUPREX ARC has the inherent advantages of higher intrinsic brilliancy, whiter light, and greater efficiency in light production. The improved quality of screen illumination it provides and the higher level of general illumination, from supplementary sources, which it permits are advantages which strongly appeal to the theatre-going public. The SUPREX ARC has been acclaimed as the "outstanding achievement of years" in the field of motion picture projection.

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 14.—"Theodora Goes Wild' and "Easy to Take," with a $7,000 take at Fox's Palace, copped top honors for a week marred by the season's first sub-zero weather. This, coupled with holiday shopping, made business spotty. The gross was $2,000 above average and the bill was shifted to the circuit's Strand for a second week.

Business at all other houses was below par, although "Born to Dance" and "15 Maiden Lane" held up well in its second and final week at Fox's Wisconsin to gross $6,500.

Bureau Shows Violations of Copyright Cut

1936 Evasions Only 9%, Report Indicates

Irregularities in the form of one or more violations of copyright regulations were reduced to 9.3 per cent for the year ended Oct. 31, 1936, which compares with 17.4 per cent in 1935 and 44.6 per cent in 1930 and 1931, it was revealed yesterday in the annual report of the Copyright Protection Bureau. The report was submitted by Jack Levin, director, and Gabriel L. Hess, attorney.

"In each of the past six years," the report said, "the bureau has investigated approximately the same number of theatres, located in practically every state." Pointing out that the comparative percentage figures referred to about the same total, it was said, "This is further evidence of the continuously progressive deterring effect of the bureau activities in keeping available for normal licensing the upward of 15,000,000 annual exhibition transactions of the industry."

The report noted the legislative fight during the past year for adequate protection in the copyright law against

Legislative Threat Stirs Up Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 15.—The threat of adverse legislation, the attraction of balmy weather and improved business conditions combined to more than double this year's attendance at the annual convention of the Theatre Owners of Oklahoma, Inc., held here yesterday and today at the Biltmore Hotel. The registration at noon stood at 170, the best in several years.

Legislation vitally affecting exhibitors is expected when the law-making body meets following the Christmas holidays. The regular session will begin in January, it was pointed out.

A Double Cross

New Orleans, Dec. 15.—The local musicians' union has a rule that if a traveling show carries its own orchestra, a similar number of local musicians must be engaged at the union scale, even if they just sit and twiddle their thumbs.

However, the manager of "The Great Waltz" double-crossed them cleverly in a Municipal Auditorium run. He compromised with the organization, placing 12 men in the pit. Then he demanded that these 12 men be oboe players. Records show that there are not 12 oboe players in the state capable of pit work.

20th-Fox's Reply to MPTOA Final-Clark

Reconsideration by 20th Century-Fox of its reply on the M.P.T.O.A. 10-point trade practice program is out of the question, John D. Clark, general manager of distribution, said yesterday.

Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, recently made public copies of a letter he had sent the company requesting that it reconsider its decisions to continue collection of a separate score charge and to grant a 10 per cent cancellation instead of the increased percentage sought by the exhibitor organization.

Clark said that while he had not seen Kuykendall's letter as yet, he regarded 20th Century-Fox's initial reply on its trade practice concessions as a final one and that reconsideration of either its score charge or cancellation decision would not be undertaken.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Charges that the Bell telephone system has a virtual monopoly in the provision of wire channels to radio stations and chains were made today by the Federal Communications Commission as it delved into the radio policies and practices of A. T. & T.

Has Plans to Supervise Organization of All Theatre Employes

Complete unionization of theatre employes, including the service classifications of ushers, porters, doormen and cashiers, is believed to be impending under an I.A.T.S.E. move to assert its jurisdiction over all theatre workers from the front to the rear of the house.

According to local sources of information, the move has been considered by I.A.T.S.E. on several occasions during the past year, but only recently has it been felt within the organization that industry and public circumstances were propitious. The move presumably would be started in New York and other large cities first with the organization of non-union employe classifications and extended to the smaller centers later. If successful, the policy would result in a closed shop for every important theatre in the country.

No problem of jurisdiction over the unorganized employe classifications is likely to trouble or complicate the I.A.T.S.E. move, when and if it is started. The A. F. of L. at its Atlantic City convention two years ago delivered complete jurisdiction over all theatre employes, including the Strike Play Diffused and Rambling; Generally Misses

It happened in a small town in the Middle West, explains the program of "Days to Come." But Lillian Hellman was essaying a biting and brutal chapter, painting in stark and drab colors, the horrors of industrial warfare.

Objective clear, the play, let it be said early and forthwith, decidedly was not. The three long acts which unfolded on the stage of the Vanderbilt last night were wordy and generally static. Where the class struggle reasonably might be expected to drive home its inequalities in powerful and emotion-arousing terms of drama and penetrating dialogue, in its place were lengthy and diffused speeches, frequent soliloquies which rambled on and on interminably in unconscious deference, no doubt, to the title. The evening, in all of its unfortunate truth, was an embarrassingly long time in drawing to a close.

The action concerns labor difficulties in a small and model town where the factory owner grew up with his workers and each, you are told, well nigh loved the other. The usual tussle of wages results in the introduction of a trainload of strike-breakers itching for a fight and ready to let loose with Mutual problems of M-G-M and New Jersey exhibitors were discussed by William F. Rodgers, general sales manager of the distributing company, at a meeting of Allied of New Jersey.

Rodgers talked about the M-G-M sales policy from various angles to approximately 65 exhibitors. He was introduced by Lee Newbury, president, who told MOTION PICTURE DAILY no statement would be issued.

Strict secrecy concerning the meeting prevailed yesterday.

Sidney Samuelson, a director of Allied, declared the new policy of the organization is to stop blasting its activities in the press.

"From now on we will go about our business quietly," he said.

William A. Scully, district manager for M-G-M, also attended the session at the Lincoln.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

REBUTTAL raised its interesting head yesterday. It took the form of a lengthy, single-spaced letter from Sammy Cohen, who handles foreign publicity for United Artists. Sammy is a nice lad. Besides rebuttal is rebuttal and long communications are gratefully received; they lighten the stint on Column Day and make more time for Christmas shopping. Proving, moreover, that you don't have to be a president, or even a vice-president, to crash this space, here is Cohen on his typewriter, italics and all:

"I have just finished reading your editorial in today's (Dec. 14) MOTION PICTURE DAILY, in which you take Arthur W. Kelly to task for his alleged 'flag-waving' on behalf of British pictures and for 'getting the signals mixed' because he declared that U. A. will release fifty or sixty pictures next season and that 'the famous Walt Disney shorts will again be distributed by us.'

"Both those statements are correct, if you add the words in the foreign market, which was obviously what Kelly was referring to. Any other interpretation is ridiculous, and one as well informed as you should have realized that, when a foreign sales manager in a foreign country is discussing his company's product, his facts and figures refer to the foreign market in general and that country in particular.

"As a matter of fact, if you read your favorite trade paper as diligently as you claim, you would have remembered a statement by Kelly (see front page of MOTION PICTURE DAILY of Sept. 2) in which he revealed that United Artists would release fifty-seven pictures in the foreign field during the coming season.

"And to one as familiar as you are with the facts of foreign distribution, knowing that foreign release dates are far behind those in the United States, it should have come as no surprise to learn that U. A. will distribute the Disney shorts during the coming season in Argentina and in the rest of the foreign market. Argentina, for your information, still has to play all of the Group 4 Disney films—a full year's schedule.

"So much for the 'mixed signals.'

"Now as to the British 'flag-waving.' As Al Smith would say, 'Let's look at the record.'

"In his September statement—and again quoting your favorite trade paper—Kelly said: 'More than half of the fifty-seven features which United Artists will distribute abroad this season will be British films.' The actual number is thirty-four, so when Kelly puts in a boost for British pictures, he isn't 'flag-waving,' he isn't 'demonstrating his allegiance to new owners,' he isn't deprecating the product of American producers; he is simply trying to make it easier for the U. A. foreign salesmen to sell a sizeable block of product—product which in the past, because of its British label, has been anathema to foreign exhibitors.

"In other words, Kelly is doing what Goldwyn, Pickford, Fairbanks and Chaplin are paying him to do, and doing it in masterly fashion. Don't forget for one moment that those thirty-four pictures are being distributed by U. A. in the foreign market with the full knowledge, consent and blessing of Goldwyn, Pickford, Fairbanks and Chaplin. And no one has a keener appreciation of the value and importance of the foreign market to U. A. than G. P. F. & C. Because they have seen the figures!

"Furthermore, the statements Kelly made about British progress in Buenos Aires are the very things that Goldwyn, et al, have themselves pointed out during the past year—and which Kelly summed up in his September statement in the following paragraph: 'We must face the fact that although Hollywood still continues to dominate in the world market, it no longer has a monopoly on good product. Good product today means international product. And with the improved facilities they now have abroad, particularly in England, it is just as easy for Alexander Korda, for example, to make international pictures at the Denham studios in London as it is for Samuel Goldwyn or David Selznick to make them in Hollywood.'

"It all boils down to this: far from giving Korda 'the decided edge on his American bosses,' Kelly is pleading with foreign exhibitors to give Korda and British pictures the same break they give Goldwyn and the other American producers, and not to scorn them just because they were made in London instead of Hollywood.

"In brief, Kelly considers it his bounden duty, in his travels around the world, to preach the gospel of the 'new deal' in British pictures and to do everything in his power to insure that more than half of U. A.'s product in the foreign market is not penalized because it was 'made in England.'

"If that be 'flag-waving,' then make the most of it!"

There was never any lack of appreciation for Kelly's problem. Not at all. The point made originally was that he should not eulogize his company's British product and damn the American by faint or no praise. Nothing that we have discovered in Cohen's extended defense compels us to alter our first convictions. . . .

In his "Footlights and Flickers" department, Harry Martin, critic of the Memphis Commercial Appeal, has a word of two about our recent dissertation on Gypsy Rose Lee, who, incidentally, is getting almost as much space here as in some of New York's tabloid columns.

"It is possible that Miss Lee might fit into the Hollywood niche as a character actress," writes Martin. "If so, there is certainly no harm done. Many of our greatest entertainers trace their origin to burlesque, among them W. C. Fields, Fannie Brice and many others. If Mr. Goldwyn can develop Miss Lee into an acceptable actress without inflicting anything objectionable upon the populace, I trust the MOTION PICTURE DAILY will not be too harsh with him."

We are slightly fearful that Martin missed out on our intent. There never has been, nor could there reasonably be, any objection built up over the development of talent tracing its beginnings to burlesque. Likewise has no trepidation ever existed in these parts that Goldwyn or any producer would have the nerve to film Miss Lee in her various nature poses. The essential argument is that those producers who continue to flirt outrageously with this artiste, perforce, are much more interested in the implied, if not direct, publicity which will hail her first film appearance than they are in her inherent abilities as a performer. That, we maintain, is treading on tissue paper ice and gambling with something which conceivably may develop when the value received is not, and cannot be, worth the risk. In the meantime, the understanding is Goldwyn's current fixation is that he must have Miss Lee for his impending "Follies," insisting she is essential with a typical vehemence suggesting the picture is foredoomed to failure unless this comes about. We are almost persuaded to send him for a re-reading, or may be a first reading, his few weeks' old interview in the Sunday magazine section of The New York Times. . . .

The Associated Press reports Carole Lombard the best-dressed actress in and out of films during 1936, seven votes of a possible ten cast by as many studio stylists cinching this momentous piece of news. Kay Francis must feel pretty badly about it; she only rated six votes and tied with Norma Shearer. Claudette Colbert must feel even worse with five and, by this time, is probably looking daggers at Dolores Del Rio and Joan Crawford who emerged her numerical rival. Not remote at all is the dagger process in reverse, or in other words from Del Rio and Crawford to service classifications, to the I. A. T. S. E. and, insofar as official labor circles are concerned, a closed shop move would be dependent for its start solely upon I.A.T.S.E.'s decision to assert the jurisdiction which has been granted it.

Theatre service employes in New York and most other large cities are unorganized at present. An attempt to organize the service classifications was made here two years ago by the Building Service Employes Union, but collapsed six months after it began when a strike which was called proved to be ineffectual. Although the Building Service Employes Union is an A. Postpone Union Meeting

The illness of Howard S. Cullman caused the postponement yesterday of the scheduled meeting of Mayor La Guardia's survey board on the union situation with representatives of Local 306, the Allied Union and the I.T.O.A. The session was called for the purpose of settling disputed points arising in the negotiation of an agreement for the absorption of Allied by 306.

The I.T.O.A. will discuss the labor situation in general at the regular meeting today at the Astor.

Revive "Kid from Spain"

United Artists will reissue "The Kid from Spain" shortly. This was produced about three years ago by Samuel Goldwyn.

Looking 'Em Over

"Slalom"

(George Kraska)

Said to have been produced by H. H. Sokal of Vienna, Austria, and filmed in Switzerland, this film offers light and entertaining comedy romance, the chief enjoyment of which lies in the beauty of snow-clad background and the vicarious exhilaration of seeing flying figures on skis.

The story is slight and of no consequence. With comparatively little dialogue, it tells of the girl who goes to St. Moritz to show up her fiance in winter sports. With the assistance of two men-of-all-work, one very tall and the other very short, she becomes skillful, beats her fiance, and the Film ends with a ski wedding in the snow.

The real entertainment in the film, aside from the ski, bobsled and skating scenes, lies in the work of these two. Amazingly accomplished, especially on skis, their antics are also highly amusing. Timely in its winter sports background, the film is enjoyable.

revolver and rifle on as flimsy an excuse as a bleeding nose. When one pug-ugly is stabbed by his confrere and the body planted on the premises of the labor organizer, the sit-down strikers override their passive instructions and death spouts. This, of course, dips your factory owner's mantle in murderer's blood with pangs of conscience ensuing and embracing the audience as well. Also there is his wife who never loved him, never wanted to marry him, has been carrying on with his lawyer, who happens to be his best friend. She wants to go off with the labor organizer and meets an unhappy and dismal finish in the home of the husband whose name she had sullied. The characters drawn for husband and wife elicit little sympathy; as Miss Hellman conceived them and as she made them act and speak, no other audience or critical reaction could be possible.

Players' Efforts Futile

It is occasionally apparent what the author of "The Children's Hour" was groping for here. It is regrettable, but also accurate, to report she veers far from her mark. Against odds over which they had no control, Florence Eldridge, William Harrigan, Ben Smith, Ned Wever and the others do what they can. It is not much.

Denies Warner Motion

Judge Knox in U. S. District Court here yesterday denied a motion by Warners to prevent Beekman Film Corp. from giving evidence at the trial of its injunction and damage suit against Warners for alleged infringement of Beekman's picture, "This Is America" in Warners' "The Yanks Are Coming." Warners, in its application, had declared the plaintiff had failed to furnish a bill of particulars as ordered by Judge Knox. Beekman has asked damages of $200,000.

Pick "Woman Alone"

Bad Psychology

Minneapolis, Dec. 15.—That dual bill marquee ad which appeared in one of the Ford Motor Co. ads has drawn a protest from S. D. Kane, secretary of Northwest Allied exhibitors. He insisted in his letter that it was bad business to introduce the dual idea into a single feature territory.

"Statistics of the last 73 years show that only none of every person (rough estimate) who receives a Christmas card appreciates it.

"Lest I buy more cards than necessary, please fill out the attached reply card so that I know how I stand.

"Thank you very much and, incidentally, Merry Christmas!"

On the reverse side, the person receiving the card is asked to check one of three boxes: one states "I don't want your Christmas card"; the second, "I don't care for your Christmas card", and the third, "I can do without your Christmas card."

Sets Cook Trial Date

N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Louis A. Valente yesterday set Jan. 5 for the trial of the action of Harry Cook against 20th Century-Fox, asking $50,000 and an injunction, holding his likeness was used without his consent in the film, "15 Maiden Lane." The court, however, refused his petition for a temporary injunction against distribution of the film, declaring it questionable that the spirit and purpose of the civil rights law had been violated.

"Brigade" Out Front on Loop With $18,800

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—"The Charge of the Light Brigade" swept into the Loop to hit an $18,800 gross for the first week, which was $7,800 above average and the best business in town.

"Come and Get It," moved to the Apollo from the Roosevelt, also garnered a nice gross to hit $7,900, which was well above the average.

The Oriental and State-Lake with stage shows and prize nights did very well. Other houses were about normal as cold weather and the first shopping rush caused business to start downward generally in the pre-holiday slump.

Many conventions helped night business. Had it not been for these, business would have been poor.

Total first run business was $128,800. Average is $115,000.

N. Z. to Make Shorts

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—The government of New Zealand is proceeding with plans to produce scenic and industrial films for exhibition in foreign countries, according to a report to the U. S. Dep't of Commerce from Vice-Consul G. B. Lane in Wellington.

Advance orders for these films are reported to have been submitted by the Imperial Institute in London for distribution to colleges, schools, technical and social institutions in Britain.

In addition, it is anticipated that industrial films for advertising New Zealand produce and manufactures will be produced for exhibition abroad. It is understood that an American company has placed an advance order for a number of these films for exhibition in Far Eastern countries.

Australia Upholds Disney

CANBERRA, AUSTRALIA, Nov. 16.—The rights of Walt Disney and his Associated Enterprises to sole use of "Mickey Mouse" and "Minnie Mouse" have been upheld by the registrar of trade marks who has rejected an application of the Radio Corp. for permission to use these names on radio sets.

Austria Considering Compulsory Dubbing

By HANS LORANT

VIENNA, Dec. 4.—The Austrian Government is giving serious consideration to the introduction of measuses conditioning the importation of American films into Austria. The most important factor in the Government's plan is understood to be a requirement that American films be dubbed into German in Austria.

Representatives here of American companies decided at a recent meeting that the expense of dubbing is too high, running between 30,000 and 40,000 schillings, and that the Government's financial aid, in the form of exemption from the price of the merit ticket, is not sufficient to compensate for the high price of dubbing.

Robert Schless, Warner manager in Europe, declared that dubbing here is impossible, citing as the first major objection the fact that such films are not permitted into Germany.

"The Austrian market is very small," he said, "and as it is flooded with German-speaking pictures, American films dubbed into German will not have much chance." He called the poor quality of Austrian dubbing another important factor. Other American companies are considering the matter, and the Ministry of Commerce has indicated that the Government is extremely anxious to reach an agreement with them.

New Vienna Firm Formed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—A new producing company, Czernin-Ostwald Film Co., has been formed in Vienna with a capital of 20,000 schillings, according to a report from Assistant Commercial Attache Leys A. France in Vienna, to the U. S. Dept. of Commerce.

Single Feature Law Cuts Budapest Total

By ENDRE HEVESI

BUDAPEST, Dec. 4.—The decrease in the number of features exhibited in Budapest under the operation of the recent Government edict prohibiting the showing of any but single bills in Hungarian theatres, is indicated in figures for the first three months of the new system.

In the three months to October, 1935, 66 features were shown in local first runs, while in the same period in 1936 52 films were shown, a decrease of 20 per cent. American product was far in the lead, the 52 divided as follows: American, 25; Hungarian, six; German, nine; Austrian, four; French, seven, and Czechoslovakian, one.

The most recent American importations in first runs here were rated at the box-office as follows: "San Francisco," excellent; "The General Died at Dawn," very good; "Gorgeous Hussy," "Showboat" and "Robin Hood of El Dorado," poor.

Protest Air Film Attack

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The London and Home Counties Branch of the C.E.A. is protesting to the British Broadcasting Corp. against expressions alleged to have been used by Alistair Cooke, film critic of the B.B.C. In a recent broadcast, it is asserted, Cooke advised listeners that current films were of such a kind that the public could employ its time better than by going to the cinema.

Sir Press Agent

London, Dec. 7.—Sir Michael W. S. Bruce, Baronet, has been appointed studio American press representative for London Films. Elder brother of Nigel Bruce, and holder of the family's centuries-old Scottish title, Sir Michael Bruce is a well known Fleet St. journalist, writing film criticism and social gossip.

That's something no Hollywood studio can boast.

Italian Film Plan Refused by French

By PIERRE AUTRE

PARIS, Dec. 9.—The French Government has declined to approve the proposed Franco-Italian commercial agreement covering the exchange of films, and despite the visit here recently of Luigi Freddi, head of the Italian industry. The aim of the agreement was to permit French producers to work in Italy, as was proposed to American interests, the financing to come from the revenue on French films shown in Italy, since the Italian laws forbid the export of money.

The French objection centered chiefly about the estimate that the revenues to be derived from the distribution of French product in Italy would not be sufficient by a wide margin to finance French production in Italy. Whereas a French film could not be expected to draw more than 100,000 lire in Italy, a production would cost approximately 1,000,000 lire.

It was concluded, therefore, that an agreement on the basis proposed by the Italians would be of no benefit to French producers.

Japanese Firm Taken Over by Subsidiary

By TETSUYA MORI

TOKYO, Dec. 1.—The entire operation of Nikkatsu, one of the leading producing-distributing organizations in Japan, will henceforth be handled by Uzumasa Hassei, a subsidiary, following the arrest of K. Hori, managing director of Nikkatsu, on suspicion of embezzlement and other acts. Several other executives also were arrested.

The arrests threw the business of the company into chaos, and an immediate meeting of the management resulted in the operation going to Hussei, which is headed by H. Ikenaga. Extraordinary efforts are being made to maintain a supply of product to circuits with which the company has contracts.

To Produce in Far East

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—The production of films in the Dutch East Indies by a local company is expected to begin shortly following an agreement concluded with American interests for distribution, according to a report to the U. S. Dep't of Commerce from its Batavia office. The firm, known as the General Netherlands Indian Film Syndicate (the ANIF) was formed several months ago. Chief product will be travelogues and short educational films concerning the Netherlands Indies.

Charge AT&T With Monopoly Of Radio Wire

to provide stations, to be built and operated by the telephone company, which also was to provide a program service and determine the extent of commercial development.

For experimental work in broadcasting the company built two stations, WEAF in New York, and WCAP in Washington. In 1926 a contract was made with RCA providing for an exchange of patent licenses, the telephone company to sell its interest in radio and receive an exclusive service contract from RCA. The telephone company, the report charged, then developed its long line monopoly.

During the years since 1926, the company has grossed $35,000,000 and secured a net of $28,000,000 in charges. After the signing of this agreement which gave them the right to use RCA products applicable to telephony and RCA the right to manufacture under Western Electric patents, the company, it was charged, refused to sell wire services to any station not using Western Electric apparatus or licensed to broadcast with apparatus of telephone company licensees, for a time securing from $75,000 to $100,000 a year.

Little Cooperation Offered

The company, the report alleged, refused to permit its wires to be connected with those of Western Union, Postal Telegraph or independent telephone companies. Later, it continued, the company relaxed its restrictions and entered into contracts more widely, but these later contracts, it was charged, were less liberal than the original agreements. The RCA contract, for instance, permitted the company to cancel practically at will. RCA also was to be permitted to use telephone company wires for television and other service, but later purchasers could not.

As time passed, the company became increasingly liberal in the extension of its wire service. Since 1934, when the first tariffs were filed with the commission, it was alleged, both the Bell and subsidiary companies have violated each other's tariffs repeatedly, the report citing a number of such instances, as for instance in the case of WBZ-WBZA, originally not permitted to connect telephone and Western Union wires but later allowed to do so on numerous occasions.

Discrimination Described

The 1926 agreement with RCA, it was revealed, provided that the telephone company should refrain from broadcasting for a period of 10 years, which has now expired. However, had the company re-entered the radio field, it was to pay back to RCA $800,000 of the $1,000,000 it received for Station WEAF.

"The Bell Telephone system has practiced discrimination in the exercise of its monopoly position and in the application of its policies in giving wire service to broadcasting stations and with respect to interconnection with other wire-using companies," the report asserted. "The facts indicate that the Bell system has a virtual monopoly in the provision of wire channels to radio stations and chains. It follows, therefore, that the general principles and policies discussed in this report have influenced, or continue to influence, the radio industry as a whole."

No attempt was made in the report to evaluate the patent position of the company in the radio field nor to determine the reasonableness of its rates.

Two Stations Given Licenses by F. C. C.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Operating licenses were granted today to two broadcasting stations by the Federal Communications Commission, one to the Golden Empire Broadcasting Co.; to operate KVCV at Redding, Cal., with 100 watts power, and the other to the Bell Broadcasting Co. to operate KTEM at Temple, Tex., with 100 watts.

The commission also permitted increased power to KVI, Tacoma; WHFC, Cicero, Ill.; WHDL, Olean, N. Y., and KUOA, Siloam Springs, Ark, the last named being given 2,500 watts; and increased night power of 1,000 watts to WSYR-WSYU, Syracuse, N. Y., and WBIG, Greensboro, N. C.

RCA Mfg. Co. was granted a license for a portable television broadcasting station to relay programs from one plant to another, and several broadcasting relay stations of low power were approved.

NBC's outlets this year have been increased by 25 stations—a record in network expansion. Seventeen of the new stations will be actively identified with the network by the end of the year, and eight others will join Jan. 1 or shortly thereafter, which will bring the complete NBC total to 113 stations, 16 more than CBS.

Radio-Film Trailer Stunt

Employing a film trailer effect, Elsie Hitz and Nick Dawson, who begin a new series next month, will make two guest appearances on the Paul Whiteman "Musical Varieties" program, one on Sunday, Dec. 20 and another the following Sunday, to offer a preview of their forthcoming script series, "Follow the Moon."

Canada Hotel Group Protests Music Fee

TORONTO, Dec. 15.—Although not previously announced, the new Copyright Appeal Board of the Federal Government has a third protest on its hands against the scheduled fees to be imposed by the Canadian Performing Rights Society. This complaint, which is to be heard immediately, is from the Ontario Hotels Ass'n, backed by the Hotel Ass'n. of Canada which officially represents 6,000 hotels throughout the Dominion.

The action is against the imposition of the Society's fee for the use of radio music in lobbies, dining rooms and private rooms. Appointed to head the delegation to appear before the board at Ottawa is Howard P. Fox of Niagara Falls, Ont., president of the Ontario group. Other complaints against the society's fees for 1937 have been registered by the city of Toronto through its Civic Board of Control on behalf of all cities and incorporated towns and by the Public Utilities Commission of London, Ont., which is interested as an amusement operator. No complaint has yet been entered by a theatre or exhibitor organization.

TORONTO, Dec. 15.—In the municipal elections throughout Ontario the electorate gave increasing indication of disapproval of daylight saving time. In the five cities where a referendum on changing the clocks was put to a vote of the people it was defeated by a substantial margin and, as a result, there will be no "fast time" in these and other cities next June.

Places where the question was defeated were London, Goderich, Kitchener, Galt and Waterloo, and, naturally, the theatre owners are elated. It is expected that towns adjacent to these centers will not adopt daylight saving in order to avoid confusion.

Sterling Franchises Await Turn of Year

Franchise holders for Sterling Pictures will be lined up after the first of the year, W. Ray Johnston, president, stated yesterday following his return from the coast and several key cities where he contacted independent distributors.

Although preliminary plans called for the production of four serials in addition to a program of 34 features, Johnston said that the short chapter subjects may be dropped because of the many on the market. Louis Weiss of Stage & Screen Prod. is making four for Columbia with Frank Buck starred in one.

Production on the first Sterling feature will start at either the Talisman or RKO Pathe studios in Hollywood around April 1. A number of Monogram directors are due in town tomorrow for a meeting Friday to decide on merging the company with Sterling.

Johnston will make another trip to the coast in February.

District Court to set aside approval of the sale of St. Louis Amusement Co. stock owned by Skouras Brothers Enterprises to a bondholders' protective committee. Legislative Threat Stirs Oklahomans

T. O. A., spoke on the subject of his 10-point program. He urged exhibitors not to fight civic groups but to seek civic tieups with theatres and open the theatre to community benefits. The people who make up these civic groups, said Kuykendall, are of a very high type. While their schemes may cost the exhibitor money at times, he said, the exhibitor will be amply repaid for his cooperation through the good will and understanding established.

It was also brought out at the meeting that theatres are losing child patronage because of the sophistication of product. Delegates were urged to plan programs suitable for child consumption.

J. C. Hunter, of Ralph Talbot Theatres, Tulsa, recommended that all exhibitors read the article in the current issue of Better Theatres on public liability insurance. He is currently fighting a suit against his company by a woman who fell down the stairs.

Palfreyman, on Conciliation

Dave Palfreyman, speaking on arbitration and conciliation, explained the workings of the boards which will be put into operation Jan. 1. He said that the boards will have no authority to make decision, but will seek only to bring about mutual agreement between the parties concerned and that contractual matters will not be handled. Rather, the boards will give their attention to over-buying of product, settling of clearance disputes between prior and subsequent runs and designation of playdates for pictures unsuited to Sunday exhibition. While the exact procedure has not been determined, said Palfreyman, the work of the boards will need the cooperation of all to be successful.

M. A. Lightman, president of Tri-States Theatres of Memphis, and past president of M. P. T. O. A., attacked the policy of selling double feature pictures at retail prices, only to have a block of pictures at wholesale prices dumped, into an exhibitor's lap at a later date.

non-theatrical infringing exhibitors, and cited the testimony of distributor representatives at the hearings of the House Patents Committee in Washington during consideration of proposal to revise the copyright laws.

An investigation of films shown under non-theatrical auspices, conducted during the summer to determine the source from which the prints were obtained, revealed that in many cases of bicycling and subrenting the source of the print was a theatrical exhibitor in the locality. "In some instances, the audience was 'bicycled,' so to speak, to the infringing performances." Between July 1 and Oct. 31, 1,010 non-theatrical places were investigated, as well as 520 towns.

Following the investigation of a particular instance of bicycling of prints from a theatre in the United States to a theatre in Mexico, the report indicated the matter was taken up with the Mexican authorities and is pending before the Customs Enforcement Service in Washington, with a view to a general order to customs agents at all border points of entry carefully to scrutinize all films and film containers.

The work of the bureau for the coming year will be discussed at a meeting to be held today at the Astor. The bureau has been in operation for 10 years.

Moves Begun To Draw New Italian Pact

State Dept. Denounces Treaty of 1871

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Denunciation yesterday of the 1871 commercial treaty between the United States and Italy, by mutual agreement, was announced today by the State Dept., paving the way for a discussion of a new pact.

The denunciation will become effective in one year, and during the intervening period the 1871 treaty will continue to apply to commercial relations between the two countries.

Involved in the discussions which have already been started is the question of Italian treatment of American films and of the control to be exercised over funds accruing in Italy to American companies. An arrangement on the latter was undertaken last month by Will H. Hays and is now being worked out.

In the new negotiations it is under-

Central Agency Seen Likely For Federal Film Producing

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—The formation of a central agency for the production of all films by the various departments and bureaus of the Federal Government may be proposed at the next session of Congress. The suggestion developed out of the study being made by the special Senate Committee headed by Senator Byrd of Virginia into the matter of departmental expenditures. The Brookings Institute is cooperating, inquiring into all production by the Government units.

It is said in favor of the plan that the concentration of production would permit better control of costs. Critics, on the other hand, point out that production by the permanent establishments is controlled by Congress, which earmarks appropriations for the purpose, and should know what each department is getting for films.

It is declared further that once such a centralized film unit was organized, it would be necessary to keep it busy continually, and that it would go to Congress each year for funds,

Military Play Is Juvenile in Content; Otherwise Amusing

"Brother Rat" carries a persistent fragrance of scamp-like days on the campus. Any campus and this time he post and the parade grounds, the barracks and so on of the Virginia Military Institute, locale Lexington down Shenandoah Valley way.

In its Varsity eight—senior prom—cotillion—moonlit night—puppy love manner, George Abbott's show which opened at the Vanderbilt last night under the benign influence and financial endowment of the Warners is rollicking, hearty and entertaining if you don't mind the extreme juvenile complexion of its story pranks.

It has its bad boy cadet, Frank Albertson, who is known after a fashion in Hollywood. He's hot stuff with the girls and, more specifically, with Joyce Winfree, daughter of a true blue V.M.I. graduate. There is Eddie Albert, the slow-witted, but honest, Kentuckian who has married in wedlock alright, but out of the post's bounds; his wife is about to have a child. The he-man and slightly in-

Named as defendants in the Government action in addition to the two circuits are their operators, Karl Hoblitzelle and R. J. O'Donnell and the following distributors: Paramount Pictures Distributing Corp., Columbia Pictures Corp., United Artists Corp., Universal Film Exchange, M-G-M Distributing Corp. of Texas, 20th Century-Fox Film Corp. of

"College Holiday"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 16.—With the breezy tempo of a Jack Benny broadcast, this laugh show jogs along with scarcely a dull moment. A collection of top-rate comedians and lavishness of production indicate top returns may be expected. Marquee names such as Benny, Burns and Allen, Mary Boland, Martha Raye and Ben Blue give exhibitors something to plug in addition.

The picture is more in the nature of a revue than a musical comedy; the plot is tossed aside repeatedly to make way for gags or specialties and is finally discarded completely at the finish. But the excellence of individual performances more than compensates for this. The dance ensembles directed by LeRoy Prinz are novel and pick up interest whenever there is danger of lagging.

The musical numbers are the joint contribution of Ralph Rainger, Leo Robin and Burton Lane and Ralph Fried, while the screen play is credited to J. P. McEvoy, Harlan Ware, Henry Meyers and Jay Gorney. Frank Tuttle directed and Harlan Thompson produced.

Supporting players whose performances run a good second to the stars include Marsha Hunt, Eleanore Whitney, Johnny Downe, Etienne Giradot and Leif Erikson. Properly handled, the picture should fill seats during the holidays in any theatre.

Production Code Seal No. 2,828. Running time, 85 minutes. "G."

"Way Out West"

(Hal Roach-M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 16.—Laurel and Hardy turn back the pages of time as they resort to the old silent day technique in delivering a load of comic nonsense that is unalloyed fun. Novelty is not ignored, however, since the funsters recreate the value of pantomime as they sing in barbershop chord style and toss in a swing dance for good measure. The film is probably their best since "Beau Hunks."

The story is not much, being merely a vehicle for the team to indulge in a welter of foolish, but artistic, clowning. In the beginning the romantic lotharios are ordered to leave town—or else. They deliver the deed of a gold mine to the wrong girl and follow this with some whirlwind action in their attempts to recover the papers. The discovery of the mistake gives Sharon Lynne and James Finlayson the opportunity to add to the hectic hilarity.

Bent on cracking a safe, with silence as their watchword, the comedians make more noise than a world war and cause more laughter in the audience than a cage full of monkeys. Finally succeeding in rectifying the mistake, they deliver the papers to Rosina Lawrence, a waif.

An all-laugh feature, the film should click with the youngsters and provide happy amusement for grownups seeking relief from everyday cares and troubles. James Horne's direction brings out the best that is in Laurel and Hardy. The motivation is by Jack Jevne and Charles Rogers with James Parrott and Felix Adler doing the screenplay.

Production Code Seal No. 2,653. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

Cullman Says Roxy Has 30-Day Profit

On Dec. 12 MOTION PICTURE DAILY published a report from the U. S. District Court reading in part:

"Howard Cullman, trustee of the Roxy, yesterday filed his report in Federal Court for the period from Oct. 30 to Nov. 26. Cash receipts were $150,916.25 and disbursements were $198,144.68, or $47,228.43 over receipts."

Cullman takes exception to the headline reference to this as a loss. His letter follows:

"Your statement is incorrect, for during the period mentioned the Roxy Theatre showed a profit of $10,096.79 after taxes, interest on receiver's certificates, lobby rent and other charges, but before interest on funded indebtedness.

"The monthly statements to the court are based on receipts and disbursements in a 30-day period, and do not indicate earnings. If substantial payments are made during a given period for taxes or other charges, naturally the outgo is greater than the income and vice versa. In other words, a 30-day statement of income and outgo does not accurately reflect the position of any enterprise, and the Roxy Theatres Corp. is no exception."

Copyright Bureau's Work Is Described

The work of the Copyright Protection Bureau in proceeding against unauthorized exhibition of films by non-theatrical agencies in competition with established theatres was outlined to general sales managers of major distribution companies at the annual meeting of the bureau held at the Astor yesterday.

Jack Levin, executive director of the bureau, said that activities against non-theatrical agencies had been a feature of the organization's work during 1936 and would be continued. As all major distributors have stated policies against servicing non-theatrical accounts which operate in competion with established theatres, exhibitors have been asked to report instances of non-theatrical sponsored film shows to the bureau for investigation.

Annual reports of the bureau's operations were presented to the sales managers by Gabriel L. Hess, general attorney for the bureau, Levin and Edward A. Sargoy and Joseph L. Stein, legal assistants. The meeting marked the 10th anniversary of the bureau.

Ostrers Will Depart For Home Next Week

Isidore Ostrer, chairman of the G.B. board, and his brother, Maurice, who shortly will become production head for the company, will sail Dec. 26 on the Normandie for home. The Ostrers last week conferred with Joseph M. and Nicholas M. Schenck and Sidney R. Kent on a deal involving the sale of G.B. stock.

Nicholas M. Schenck, accompanied by Al Lichtman, his executive assistant and vice-president of Loew's, is due from Hollywood Monday or Tuesday.

There is little doubt that the matters taken up on the coast will be again discussed following the return of Schenck and Kent.

The Perfect Type

FOR CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEAR'S!

"'Gold Diggers of 1937' should be a gold-digging picture for those exhibitors who are lucky enough to have it on their schedules. Lavishly produced, flashy, and endowed with a cast of bang-up performers, it stands out as one of the most entertaining musicals of this or any other year!"--Daily Variety

"Warners have a grand comedy-musical in 'Sing Me a Love Song'. With shrewd showmanship, producers have surrounded the personable James Melton with a cast of established troupers who build pic into class entertainment. Full of gags, real uproarious comedy, plus good tunes, 'Sing Me a Love Song' should set exhibs singing!"

Bar Lawyers, Judges From Air "Court"

Attorneys and judges who participate in radio "court" broadcasting will be subject to disbarment under an amendment adopted by the Appellate Divisions of the First and Second Departments, Manhattan and Brooklyn, yesterday.

The approval of the amendment followed repeated attacks by bar associations on the "Good Will Court," air program sponsored by Chase and Sanborn, and conducted by A. L. Alexander. According to Louis Nizer, attorney for Alexander, the programs will be continued, despite the ruling, judges and attorneys from states over which the order can have no effect, being scheduled to participate in the future. "The rule will be complied with," said Alexander, who called the program a great public service.

Without specifically naming the program, the amendment clearly had reference to it. Participation is classed as "professional misconduct," which may bring disbarment.

The bar organizations which had registered strong objections to the program last month, charged it is "exploiting the miseries of the poor," and that the advice given is often erroneous.

The program is heard each Sunday night from 8 to 9 over the NBC-Red network and over WMCA locally every Wednesday night and extends from 10 to 11.

An action brought by Emanuel Redfield, an attorney, to restrain the broadcasts on the ground that they amount to the illegal practice of law has been set for hearing before N. Y. Supreme Court Justice McCook on Dec. 22.

In another case, Municipal Court Judge Nathan Sweedler of Brooklyn lost a motion for an injunction restraining the broadcasts on the ground that the title "Good Will Court" could not be used because of the previously existing title of an arbitration court he conducts in Brooklyn. The motion was denied by Justice Albert Conway in Supreme Court on argument by Nizer. The trial of the action is expected in Supreme Court today.

Standard Brands, Inc., controls Chase and Sanborn, sponsor of the program.

A Mousey Tale

A live mouse—and purported to be a rival of Mickey Mouse—will be the star of a specially arranged NBC program tomorrow night at 10:30 P. M. over the Blue network.

It seems that the mouse, captured last Friday by the inmates of a children's home, amazed his captors by singing. The news reached the ears of the special events crew at NBC, and tomorrow night a microphone will be placed near the mouse's cage to catch his warblings—if any.

This is NBC's story. From the press department, of course.

stood that the United States will demand most-favored-nation treatment from Italy, which it is not now receiving, and in the granting of which changes will be necessary in the Italian currency control program. Unless these requirements are met, it will be impossible to negotiate a reciprocal trade agreement, and if no commercial treaty can be developed Italy will lose the most-favored-nation privileges which she now enjoys here.

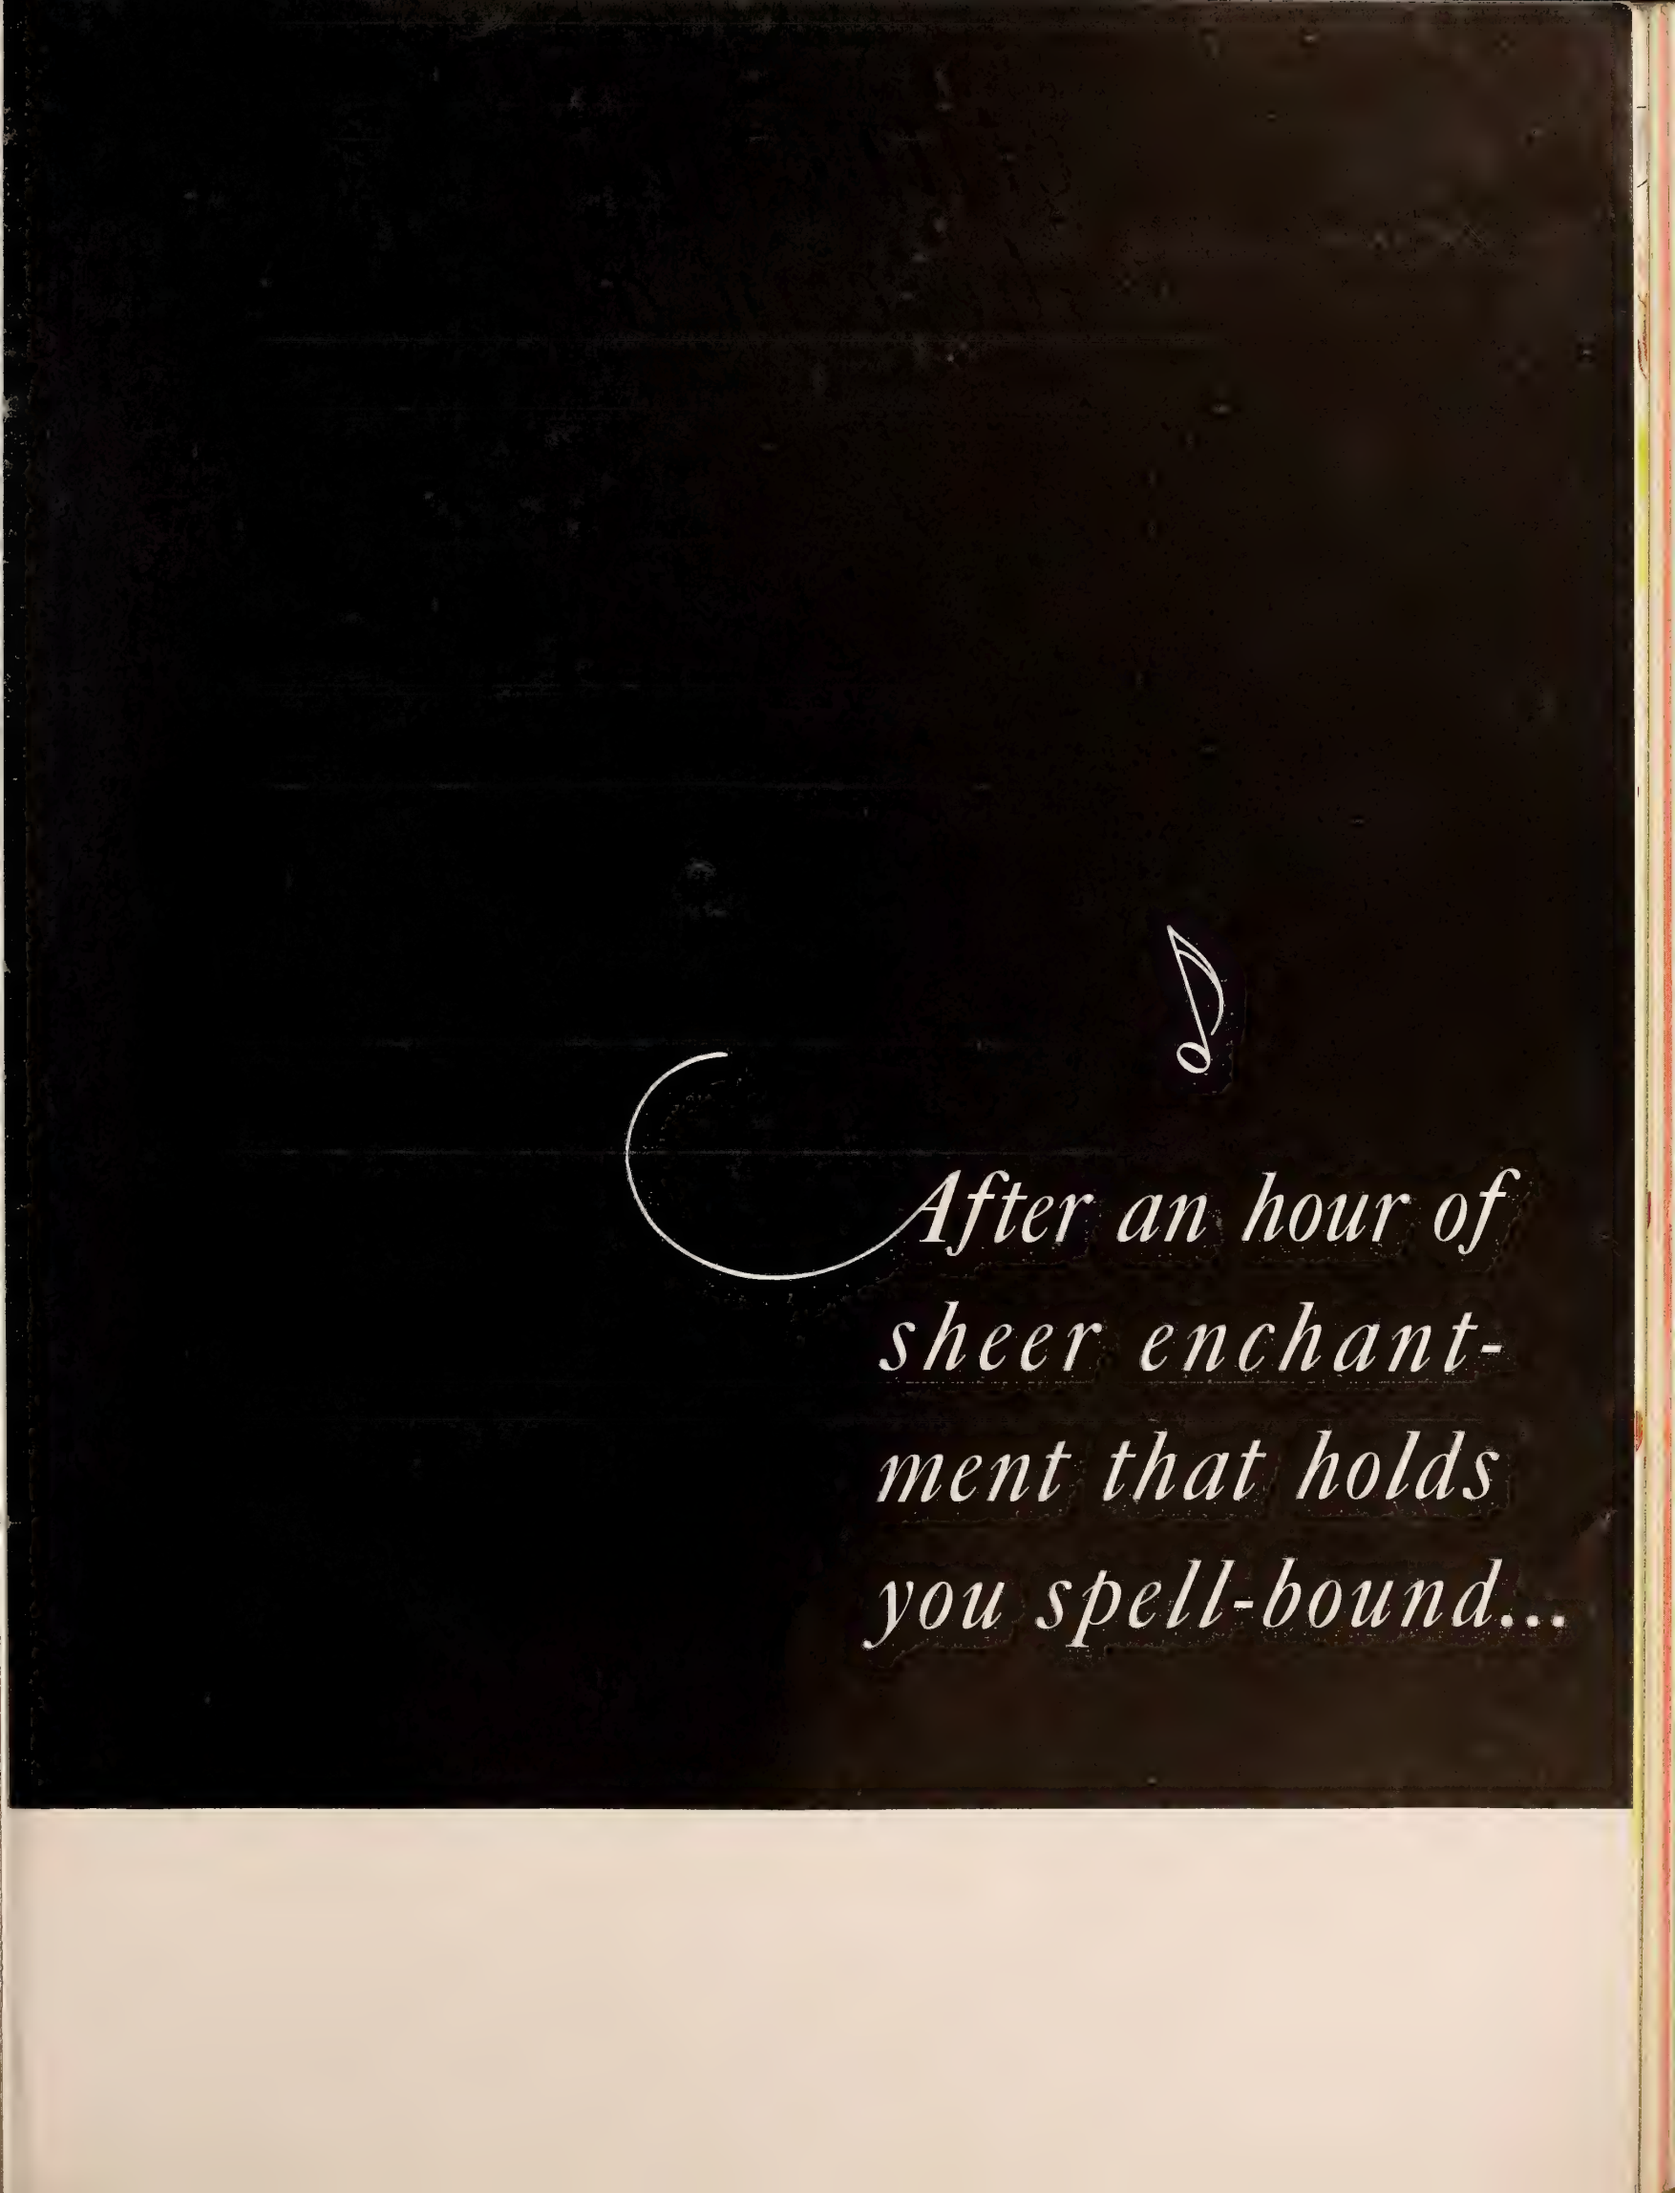
Theatres in Spain Busy—de Alberich

Theatres in Barcelona are operating on a 24-hour basis and playing to standing room only as a result of the influx of an estimated 500,000 refugees from Madrid, Salph de Alberich, former M-G-M representative in Spain, reported yesterday following his arrival here from Barcelona.

All branch offices of American film companies in Spain are still open, de Alberich reported, despite the fact that no new films have gone into the country in many months. Theatres in all principal cities with the exception of Madrid are open and, in refugee centers such as Barcelona, are doing record business with films that are months old, he said. The theatres are virtually the only form of public recreation left to the war-ridden Spanish populace.

De Alberich, who went to Spain for M-G-M two years ago to take charge of the company's dubbing here, also represented the company in Paris for a time and was in charge of M-G-M's Spanish publicity for several years. He had been a producer for Selecciones Capitolio in Barcelona until forced to evacuate about 10 days ago. He was taken out of the war zone on the U. S. S. Raleigh and returned to America on the Hamburg. De Alberich was at one time foreign editor of Motion Picture News.

"Theodora" Hearing Set at Springfield



SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 16.—A hearing is scheduled here this morning on the injunction obtained by Sam and Nathan Goldstein against Herman Rifkin to prevent the showing of "Theodora Goes Wild" in a Northampton house.

The Goldsteins contend "Theodora" is a part of the 1936 lineup of Columbia which they bought for showing at the Academy.

Rifkin is talking a suit for damages against Western Massachusetts Theatres, Inc., the Goldstein-Paramount company, on the theory that he is entitled to damages because he had advertised the picture for several days before an attempt was made to obtain a stay.

Military Play Is Juvenile in Content; Otherwise Amusing

sufferable stuffed shirt who lives up to all the regulations and, for a time, threatens to mootch Albertson out of Miss Winfree's gushing affections is represented by Richard Clark. Others include the meticulous commandant who finds slight and large irregularities "very unorthodox"; his bacteriology-complexed daughter who falls for Albertson's room-mate. Not to overlook Lieutenant "Lace Drawers" Rogers, which gives you an idea.

Good old V.M.I., among other matters, is faced with the season's supreme baseball test, pitting its best against the Cavaliers. The cadets' leading pitcher, worried about his about-to-be-born child, is in quite a dither and loses the game. Sabers and watches are hocked to square wagers on the conflict. Yet, through thick and thin, the boys come through to honor good, old V.M.I. and walk off with graduate diplomas under their arms.

In "The Rover Boys" Style

The cadets call each other Brother Rat in the hallowed precincts of V.M.I. and—you get it now—that is how the play was christened. It is typical Brown of Harvard, Dick Merriwell stuff and what makes it as diverting as it proved to be is more the briskness of Abbott's stage direction and the fast tempo he pumped into it than the plot manouevres. The performances, in the main, helped a lot.

As the popular type of hurrah films goes, this is tailor-made and hand-stitched. It can be played as is, or it can be swung over into a musical with no trouble whatsoever. Warners can cast it in a couple of minutes flat from its own stock company. There is also Dick Powell.

LaGuardia Signs New Long Reel Ordinance

The last major obstacle involved in the industry's changeover to the 2,000-foot reel was eliminated yesterday with the signing of the New York City ordinance legalizing the use of the large size reels. The changeover is now complete and the new reels are in general use throughout the country.

A Chicago ordinance still limits reel widths to 14 inches, whereas industry specifications call for a 14½-inch reel. The restriction has not barred the use of the new reels there, however, and the local system of complying with the ordinance is described as being "entirely satisfactory" to the industry.

Elkins, W. Va., Dec. 16.—It's one of those things that happen once in a lifetime and it's the true story of an exhibitor who should have bought Movietone newsreel and didn't.

Marshall Goldberg, crackerjack halfback on the University of Pittsburgh team, is the son of the owner of the Roosevelt here. Papa tried in vain to get 20th Century-Fox to give him a certain issue of the newsreel in which Goldberg's son was featured.

Goldberg had to be content with reading elaborate signs at the Hippodrome, the opposition house, which read:

"See Goldberg beat Notre Dame by 26—0."

U. S. Names Distributors In Trust Case

Texas and 20th Century-Fox Film Corp.

The petition was filed by U. S. District Attorney Clyde Eastus and alleges that the defendants control the licensing and distribution in interstate commerce of 80 per cent of the films in violation of an act to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restriction and monopoly. It alleges that theatre operations apart from the group have in some instances been forced to close or else have had price and operating policies forced on them.

The contracts between the Hoblitzelle theatres and major distributors were attacked in an action filed in state court here last year which resulted in their being upheld.

Rubin Issues Statement

The outcome of the Federal action involving the control of admissions in subsequent runs through contracts made by a first run "is awaited with interest," J. Robert Rubin, vice-president and general counsel of M-G-M, one of the defendant companies named in the Texas suit, said in a statement issued here yesterday.

Rubin says that he "is informed" that the Government's action does not charge that the distributors conspired "among themselves" in the making of the contracts. His statement follows:

"The Government has gone into the equity court primarily to seek a cancellation of contract provisions which Interstate Circuit, Inc., the operator of the first run theatres in several principal cities in Texas, made with each of practically all the companies distributing motion pictures nationally.

Stipulation on Subsequent Runs

"These provisions are to the effect that pictures exhibited first run by Interstate Circuit's theatres in such cities at an admission price of 50 cents shall not be shown subsequently by any other theatres in the same area at a night orchestra admission price to adults of less than 25 cents. Interstate Circuit has insisted on such provisions as reasonable and necessary in view of the large expenditures it makes in the advertising of such pictures and the very high rentals it pays for the right to exhibit them in contrast with rentals paid by the subsequent run theatres.

"Since Interstate Circuit contracts with the leading national distributors, the Government, in order to have such provisions canceled, has had to join in the suit each of the national distributors with which Interstate Circuit has contracts.

"I am informed that the Government does not charge that such distributors conspired among themselves in violation of the anti-trust laws, but only that under the circumstances described, the agreement Interstate required with each national distributor is a violation of the Federal anti-trust laws and should therefor be canceled.

"The issue of law presents problems quite similar to those presented in the recent resale price maintenance cases before the Supreme Court of the United States in connection with the statutes of California and Illinois, which legalized the maintenance of resale prices and provided for punishment of those who knowingly sought to violate such contract provisions.

"The legal question in the present suit has never before been passed on in a case in the Federal courts involving pictures and its outcome is awaited with interest. A previous suit in Texas state courts upheld the right of Interstate Circuit to make such contracts with distributors."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Stolen Holiday"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 16.—Capably directed for Kay Francis' particular brand of performance, this film has been directed toward the feminine contingent in particular, but has considerable mass appeal at the same time.

It moves swiftly and is enhanced by an elaborate production background which lifts it above the usual run. The film should do well with almost any type of audience. The story centers around Miss Francis, a model who is financed in a Paris dress salon by Claude Rains, a swindler posing as a wealthy broker. He preys on her sympathies and in a climax denouement, when his bond-juggling is about to be exposed, entices her into a loveless marriage, believing her innocence and respectable social position will protect him.

With a full confession from his men, the police close in on Rains and he commits suicide, freeing her for a marriage with a young English diplomat, Ian Hunter, whom she had met while on a holiday in Switzerland.

The three leads handle their roles expertly. Alison Skipworth stands out in a comedy part as a modern cupid who tries to bring Miss Francis and Hunter together. Good support is offered by Alexander D'Arcy Walter Kinsford, Charles Halton, Frank Reicher and Frank Conroy. Credit is due Warren Duff and Virginia Kellogg for the original, and Casey Robinson for the adaptation. The photography by Sid Hickox and Fred Jackman and the art direction by Anton Grot are good. Orry-Kelly's fashions are sure to attract the women.

near future. The strike date still stands as Jan. 2.

A wire was received today by the organization from Harry Brandt assuring cooperation and stating that the New York I.T.O.A. would do all in its power to "help fight alleged unfair selling practices."

Members of the I.T.O.A., meeting at the Astor yesterday, joined forces with the U.M.P.T.O. of Philadelphia on the latter's stand against alleged unfair practices by distributors, which were not mentioned by name.

A mass meeting will be held shortly, on a date to be decided later, at which at least 50 delegates from Philadelphia are scheduled to be present, it was stated following the session.

Harry Brandt, president of the local unit, last night sent a telegram to the U.M.P.T.O. in which he said the I.T.O.A. was in accord with the protests registered by the Philadelphia group and that "the I.T.O.A. will do all in its power to help." The telegram also attacks major company activities in operating theatres.

defaulted mortgages. No opposition to the proposed settlement was made at yesterday's hearing.

The effect of the proposed agreement is to eliminate a liability of $287,500 arising from RKO's guarantee of the theatre leases, retention of the leases by its Rhode Island subsidiary and extension to 1956 of a mortgage amortization agreement. Laura F. Albee, to whom the mortgage has been assigned, would be allowed in consideration for the agreement to file a claim against RKO in the reorganization proceedings and have it allowed at $187,500.

Southern RKO Deals Set

Two southern circuits, the Wilby-Kincey and Interstate, have closed for all of RKO's product this season. Jules Levy, general sales manager for the distributor, and Cresson E. Smith, southern and western division sales head, returned yesterday after signing up the circuits. They were gone two weeks.

Giveaway Awards Not Subject to Suit

CLEVELAND, Dec. 16.—Bank Night awards are gifts and not subject to suit for collection, Municipal Judge Stacel has ruled here. He dismissed the suit brought by George Kvasty, Jr., to collect $300 from the Broadvue.

The suit came from the fact that both Kvasty and his father signed the Bank Night register. The son attended a show when the father's name was called. The son claimed that "George Kvasty" was called and he claimed the award. When he tried to collect he found the money was intended for his father.

which are seen as probably increasing annually.

The great number of films against which complaint has been made has come from the various Government emergency agencies. It is expected that with the gradual decrease in the number of these units, their film production will also decrease. Officials generally do not look with favor on the production of too many Government films, seeing a future difficulty in placing them in theatres. The President is not likely to favor such legislation as is proposed, however, since he appears anxious now to reduce rather than increase the number of Government units.

Van Beuren will continue as president and general manager of the Van Beuren Corp., which will continue to produce shorts for RKO as a separate entity. Condor will have offices in the RKO Bldg. It is planned to make a public stock issue and to apply for listing on a "major security exchange."

Hirliman will be in complete charge of coast production and will have as his associate M. H. Hoffman. Hirliman is now producing for RKO, Grand National, M-G-M and 20th Century-Fox. Metropolitan and Regal produce color pictures with the Hirlicolor process, which they own.

Film Trade Invited Into Roper Council

L. Berry, Coordinator for Industrial Cooperation, had given it every consideration in the development of his Council for Industrial Progress, the secretary said there was no reason why the producers should not participate in the deliberations of his council. He stated that he would be glad to put a representative of any important industry on the council and would ask for suggestions from the present membership regarding men whom they thought should be added.

Einfeld Going to Coast

S. Charles Einfeld will leave for the coast Saturday to confer with Harry M. and Jack L. Warner on new pictures. Both Einfeld and Warner are due to return either Jan. 8 or Jan. 10.

Gradwell L. Sears, general sales manager, is due back from Hollywood next Wednesday.

Regulation of Star Air Time Due-Schulberg

Believes Broadcasts an Aid to Theatres

The regulation by producers of the hours during which film players may broadcast must come, in the opinion of B. P. Schulberg, expressed in an interview yesterday. He agreed with the complaint of exhibitors that stars should not be permitted on the air during what are generally known to be the best theatre hours in the evening, but he declared that such broadcasts have no adverse effect on theatre business.

The hour conflict should be avoided, he declared, because there are "more good air hours than theatre hours" during the day. The producer, who releases through Paramount, likened star broadcasts to personal appearances in theatres, expressing the belief that similar to personal appearances, the broadcasts should improve

Mexican Producers Asking Federal Aid

By JAMES LOCKHART

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 14.—The Mexican M. P. Producers' Union has asked the Government for aid in meeting the overwhelming competition of foreign product, chiefly American. Claiming that imported films control 96 per cent of domestic market, the producers are seeking legislation which will require more extensive use of domestic product by theatres. It is claimed that of 500 features exhibited annually here, only 20 are Mexican.

The unit also asks tax reductions, contending that at present taxes are heavier on the native branch of the New Tax Moves Stir Exhibitors in Mass.

BOSTON, Dec. 17.—Exhibitors are pondering the possible effects of a move to pass a law limiting the tax on real estate to $25. They see an admission tax looming in the background as one-way to meet the deficit which would result.

The tax move initiative petition has already been signed by enough voters to insure its consideration by the legislature.

G. B. Holders' Revolt Beaten By Directors

Proposals Voted Down, Then Won in Poll

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Dec. 17.—The anger and indignation of the stockholders of Gaumont British was expressed today in a stormy meeting at the New Gallery, when all five important proposals of the directorate, headed by Mark Ostrer, were voted down by a show of hands among stockholders present, but passed in a poll by virtue of the proxies and personal holdings controlled by the directors.

The board scored a victory on the poll conducted on a share basis, called for by Ostrer after sharp defeat on a show of hands. Major triumph of the board was on the proposal to accept the financial report and accounts of the company.

The show-of-hands vote ousted Sidney R. Kent, president of 20th Century-Fox, from the directorate, but the poll vote on the share basis reelected him. The directorate apparently controls approximately 3,000,000 shares to the approximate 12,000 held London, Dec. 17.—Indicative of the important place John Maxwell may be expected to fill in the future activity of G.B. was the reception he received by the stockholders today, when he unanimously was reelected to the directorate.

"In the Bag" Mirrors B'way For Any Liking It Mirrored

"In the Bag" catches the spirit of the Broadway scene—its bluff, its gambles, its laughs and a swift glimpse of its heartaches—and it furnishes more than a few laughs. The play moves rapidly, holds the interest and probably can be developed into screen material.

Its hold on Broadwayites probably will be weak, however. Holding the mirror up to life as it is lived only a half block away is not apt to thrill those whose only relief from it is gained during sleeping hours, and it is these who make up the first night audiences that start the word-of-mouth advertising.

As a stage play, the weakness of last night's offering at the Belmont lies in the fact that it takes so much dialogue to describe the off-stage

Dual Billing Regulation Up In Texas Suit

Contract Restrictions In Anti-Trust Test

A new test of the regulation of double featuring by means of contract provisions is involved in the Government anti-trust action filed against all major distributors and the Hoblitzelle theatre interests in Federal court at Dallas on Wednesday, it was disclosed with the arrival here yesterday of copies of the Attorney General's complaint.

Under the contracts made by the Interstate and Texas Consolidated circuits with the eight major distributors subsequent runs in the Hoblitzelle situation were not permitted to double feature or to charge an admission of less than 25 cents for any picture which the Hoblitzelle first runs exhibited at 40 cents or more. The contracts are the basis of the Government's action and both preliminary and permanent injunctions to restrain the defendants from entering into such agreements are petitioned.

The contract provisions are petitioned by the first run exhibitor who selects the picture which will be exhibited at a minimum admission of 40 cents, usually booking them consecutively into one theatre for which an extended run, high admission policy has been established. The practice is made possible only by the

By RED KANN

HELEN of Troy was the far-famed gal whose face launched a thousand ships. Gypsy Rose Lee is the strip-teaser whose chassis is launching a flock of columns.

Herewith correspondence, starting off with a letter from "Jock" Lawrence, guardian of the public prints for Sam Goldwyn:

"When the man bites the dog, it still apparently is news. Because all the nice comments we had on Mr. Goldwyn's New York Times Magazine article paled into obscurity beside your very definite dislike for it.

"However, the Romans had a phrase for it—DE GUSTIBUS NON DISPUTANDAM, meaning 'Every Man to His Own Taste.'

"I would like to take issue with you on one point, though. The fact that you didn't like the article, that you thought Mr. Goldwyn insincere in his statements, that you kidded the article, are matters that we cannot help. When a producer writes an article, it is exactly as if he does a picture—its release is for public consumption and for critical review. And if a critic disagrees, we hope in the future to create a work that will please that critic.

"But—I can't see why you condemn Mr. Goldwyn because Gypsy Rose Lee takes off her clothes.

"In the first place, if our New York office did test Miss Lee, it was done without Mr. Goldwyn's knowledge or orders. He has never seen the gal, sans clothes or otherwise, in the flesh or not. Yet, if some one in our New York office considered her possible screen material (which fact I have yet been unable to ascertain) they, too, ought not be condemned because that is their job, to 'discover' screen potentialities no matter where they may be.

"To infer that it is bad taste to test an actor or actress in burlesque would go hard with a number of our present-day biggest stars who started that way.

"My main point, however, is this—to find out when you consider that Mr. Goldwyn has ever offended from the standpoint of poor taste. I've been with him two years now and looking back at 'Dark Angel,' 'Barbary Coast' (certainly a tough subject), 'These Three' (an even tougher subject), 'Dodsworth,' 'Come and Get It' and now our new 'Beloved Enemy,' I wish you'd point out wherein Mr. Goldwyn has offended the public morals or the tenets of good taste. In fact, I'd say that he and the late Irving Thalberg were always the only two who fought bitterly to elevate the standards of motion pictures.

"In any case, if we started to boycott all people who have taken off their clothes, private or publicly, we'd have a terrific list to start with right now. I hold no brief for Gypsy Rose Lee. I think her 'grandfather,' General Robert E. Lee, was a great general. I think the sauce her family makes, Lee and Perrins, is swell. I think she must have something to have all ships name the sheltered side of their vessels after her.

"But if you think Mr. Goldwyn would have her 'strip tease' in one of his pictures, I'm afraid you're a bit on the wrong side.

"In any case, Merry Christmas."

And the reply, courtesy of Miss Secretary and hastened west via air mail:

"I found your letter of the 14th extremely interesting, but it will come to you as no surprise, of course, to learn that I do not entirely concur.

"There was no effort to damn Mr. Goldwyn or any other producer considering Gypsy Rose Lee because of the fact that she takes her clothes off in public performance. That's her business. For all I know, she may be a very charming person in private life and that, too, is her business and, certainly, none of mine.

"I am inclined to believe that you must be kidding me when you think that anywhere along the line I thought your company, or any other, would attempt to get on celluloid Miss Lee in her various nature poses. It's rather obvious that nothing of the kind existed in my mind.

"The arch of the entire argument about Miss Lee is a very simple, but strong, one and is built on the very apparent fact that producers are interested in acquiring her far less for whatever ability she may possess than in the direct or indirect publicity attached to her first appearance. It is because I concur so heartily with your main point that Goldwyn has so scrupulously, and perhaps more so than any other producer, observed the tenets of good taste that all the activity about Miss Lee aroused my editorial ire. I know nothing about that activity from the angle of official Goldwyn sanction or no. If you tell me that negotiations with her were carried forth without his knowledge, I am entirely willing to accept your statement.

"Let me give you assurance, however, based on very concrete knowledge that New York is actively proceeding with the matter. How far negotiations have progressed is something with which I am not familiar.

"In any case, Merry Christmas to you."

And now what would you think is going on? Mervyn LeRoy has joined the hunt. He wants Miss Lee for a forthcoming picture which he thinks he's going to call "The Body Beautiful." It's the truth, so help us! . . .

No Special Security Payroll Is Required

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—No special form of payroll record will have to be kept by employers in the film or other industries under the Social Security Act, it was disclosed in regulations just made public by the Treasury Dep't. Employers subject to the act, however, will be required to keep an individual record, in such form as is most convenient to them, of each employe, showing his name, address and Special Security account number; occupation and total amount and date of each remuneration payment and the period of service covered thereby; the amount of remuneration subject to tax, and the amount of the employes' tax withheld or collected on each payment.

Three returns will be required under the act, one to be filed monthly, being a tax return. The others will be information returns, to be filed initially for June 30 next, and thereafter quarterly, one giving the date with respect to wage payments and the other covering employes attaining the age of 65 or dying before they reach that age.

Full information regarding the keeping of records and the filing of reports may be secured in Treasury Regulations No. 91, now available at the offices of the collectors of internal revenue throughout the country.

Imperial Takes Hub Academy Exchange

BOSTON, Dec. 17.—Imperial Pictures Corp. of New England has taken over the Academy Pictures Exchange in this territory. Phil Smith, former manager of the latter office, told MOTION PICTURE DAILY that he no longer has any interest in the independent exchange and in the future will devote himself to his theatre circuit and other interests.

E. J. Smith of the Imperial exchange stated that the present Academy office staff will be retained. Leo Britton, formerly a salesman, has been promoted to the post left vacant by Phil Smith. Academy handles Chesterfield and Invincible among other product. Previously Imperial had negotiated with Roy Heffner's Specialty Pictures exchange here.

theatre business, if they are well done.

Schulberg said he has a two-year contract for release of his product through Paramount, with an option coming up in February. "Paramount will exercise the option," Schulberg declared confidently. The first year of his deal will be up in May, he said, and the action on the option in February will be governed by the return on the first three pictures. Only two will be applicable to the decision, however, he indicated.

His contract calling for eight pictures a year, Schulberg has five to make between now and next May. Three stories have been set already, he said. Just completed is "A Doctor's Diary," with George Bancroft and Sylvia Sidney. Planned are "Flower of France," with Fred MacMurray and Luli Deste, new Austrian player signed recently; "Loves and Life of Alexander Dumas," with Edward Arnold, and "That's What Little Girls Are Made of," with Miss Sidney and perhaps, John Trent, transport pilot recently signed by Schulberg, and about whom he is vociferously enthusiastic as a future star.

Will Avoid Color Films

Schulberg plans no color films, declaring that although color eventually will be a common screen medium, it "is not right yet." Color, he said, is an eye strain, it destroys the illusion and all comedy effect, and in his opinion, thus far, "all color pictures have starred color."

He expressed the belief that audiences have "grown up" in the past five years. They are able to appreciate better material now, and at the same time have become more critical, he said. Smaller theatres, with less operating expense, are needed to permit theatre operators to profit from word-of-mouth advertising on films, by holding them more than one week, he believes.

Schulberg will return to the coast by plane next Thursday, following a press luncheon Wednesday for Miss Deste, who will arrive on the Aquitania on Tuesday. The actress probably will remain in New York for several days before going on to the coast, he said.

Ascap Board Meets

Although indications are that Ascap will have a dividend of more than $1,000,000 to distribute to members for the fourth quarter the exact amount is still undetermined because of incomplete financial reports to date, directors were told at the meeting.

KSTP, Minneapolis-St. Paul, an NBC station since 1928—at which time it became a member of the Northwestern Group of the network, switches over to the basic Red network Jan. 1. At the same time NBC adds a new station to its basic Blue network, WTCN, also located in Minneapolis. WTCN formerly was an independent station.

The switch and addition will enable NBC to cover the entire northwest area with both the Red and Blue service. Previously the area had been served optionally with programs from either one of the networks.

The addition of WTCN will bring the total number of NBC stations to 111 as of midnight, Dec. 31. Three additional stations are already contracted to join NBC within the next few months, which will bring the total to 114.

Stations which are scheduled to come into the fold on Dec. 29 include KFBK, Sacramento; KWG, Stockton; KMJ, Fresno, and KERN, Bakersfield, all in California.

The Jan. 1 additions include KGFH, Pueblo, Colorado; WEAN, Providence; WICC, Bridgeport; KGNC, Amarillo, Texas; and KARK, Little Rock, Arkansas.

The 1937 additions include WFEA, Manchester, New Hampshire (March 1); WSPD, Toledo (May 2), and WOWO, Fort Wayne (May 1).

KSTP, 25,000 watts by day; 10,000 night, is owned and operated by the National Battery Broadcasting Corp. WTCN is owned by the Minneapolis Tribune and St. Paul Dispatch-Pioneer Press. The station has a day time power of 5,000 watts and a night power of 1,000 watts.

May Drop "Court"

A report, authoritative but unconfirmed, is that the sponsors of the "Good Will Court," met with their agency representatives in the offices of J. Walter Thompson Co. until a late hour last night and that the upshot of the conclave was a decision to abandon the program effective as of this Sunday and to substitute the California program titled "So You Want to Be an Actor."

A confirmation to this effect is expected to be released some time today.

"In the Bag" Mirrors B'way For Any Liking It Mirrored

action. A film could overcome this defect and leave room for the bright lines and the development of sequences leading up to a fuller appreciation.

The story is about a producer and his press agent and secretary who can't find a backer until a hick magazine salesman walks in and declares himself a partner with the promise of raising $5,000 in 60 minutes. He begins by getting $2,000 from the bootblack and another $3,000 from the owner of the spaghetti restaurant downstairs. The would-be leading man faints when kissed by the prospective leading lady and a murder mystery develops. This is used as a publicity stunt. They call it "The Lipstick Murder Mystery."

Complications pile up until opening night when a lipstick maker turns what looks like a flop into a success by buying it to save the lipstick business from damage.

Frank McCormack as a dumb police lieutenant with a clue a minute and a droll manner furnishes a goodly share of the entertainment, and Dudley Clements, as the volunteer angel, presents a breezy characterization full of vitality.

It's Don Carle Gillette's first effort as a playwright. He may wind up in Hollywood with scenario tucked under his arm.

"Mr. Jiggins of Jigginstown"

The benign hand of Uncle Sam, in its W.P.A. Federal Theatre, spreads widely. In this instance, the Irish unit of the project makes its bow, in the first production in this country of "Mr. Jiggins of Jigginstown," by Lady Christine Langford. It is an Irish folk play and is quite completely as innocuous, occasionally pleasant and unimportant as might be expected.

Immediately and without further explanation it may be said that as far as the screen is concerned there is no need of rushing for the film rights, since there is no picture in this play at the Labor Stage, formerly the Princess and now modernistically housing a very unmodernistic play.

It should be noted that the play is rather well cast, the best performance far and away being that of William Hallman as the old and beneficent, if slightly eccentric Mr. Jiggins, who in lengthy beard and white hair, meanders through the play, soliloquizing, philosophizing and generally annoying the sundry expectant heirs who arrive for the picking of the bones.

Each shows his or her true colors, including the woman from London with her son, daughter, ambitious and gabbling tongue, the local minister, and the excitable Irish cousin. The old man fools them by willing his property to the board of education for a school and, as they squabble, they learn of a fox rushing through the kitchen. Recalling the old man's fear of reincarnation as a fox, they are all properly frightened, in the proper old Irish fashion, and the curtain comes down.

chased 30 acres of land west of the lot recently leased for "The Good Earth" and all sets will be moved to the new acreage.

The building program calls for six new stages, bringing the total to 29; a five-story office building, new camera department, still section, a laboratory designed for experimental color photography, a sound building, gymnasium, six projection rooms, garage, 24 cutting rooms, new make-up and dressing rooms, special effects department and property department.

The present offices are being remodeled.

Flash Previews

"Mysterious Crossing"—A good dual bill program feature, a murder mystery story in a comic vein, with James Dunn, Andy Devine and Jean Rogers.

"They Wanted to Marry"—Here is an interesting production despite the fact that the cast offers little of name value. The story concerns photography with the aid of carrier pigeons.

"A Man Betrayed"—Premised on a suicide which is mistaken for a murder, an average cast, directed at a good pace, makes this entertaining fare.

These films will be reviewed in full in a coming issue of MOTION PICTURE DAILY.

G. B. Holders' Revolt Beaten By Directors

by the militant, but helpless minority of holders.

So many polls were taken that all the results were not available at the conclusion of the session, when Ostrer promised they would be published not later than Saturday.

The session was the resumption of the annual stockholders' meeting of Nov. 2, which was abruptly adjourned after a castigation of the directorate which specifically cited the inadequacy of the financial report of G.B. and the manner of handling the American negotiations for control of the company.

Today's meeting rivalled the first session in its expression of intense feeling, the proceedings being splashed across the front pages and on the posters of the leading evening papers here tonight.

Ostrer opened the meeting by replying to an attorney's letter demanding certain information in the interest of the stockholders. He declined to state the company's gross receipts from theatres, the receipts from film rental, and the proportion of the gross paid to the directors.

Answers Questions

Asked what proportion of the receipts here were sent to 20th Century-Fox, Ostrer declared the American company's product is booked on a competitive basis. He said no consolidated profit and loss statement has been prepared. A representative of the auditors, replying to a question from the floor about the £16,250,000 valuation placed on the fixed assets in the latest statement, admitted the figure represented the writing up of the assets to the maximum.

Charles Nordon, a stockholder, moved that the report be not received, and asked the appointment of a committee of stockholders to investigate the accounts and obtain whatever information necessary from the directors.

"This would prevent washing the dirty linen in public," he said. "The company technically is highly efficient and received enormous revenues," he continued. "It is the duty of the directors to show how they were disposed of. The directors' bad practice of conducting operations through subsidiaries meant opportunities for undesirable manipulation." He made a comparison with the thimble riggers on a race course, saying, "You don't know under which thimble the pea is and you don't know who owns any particular Gaumont asset."

Comparison Made With A.B.P.

He compared the £16,000,000 of Gaumont valuation of theatres to A.B.P.'s £8,000,000 for approximately the same seating capacity. The £1,600,000 deficit in the balance sheet should be increased by the amount by which the assets of the company were written up, Nordon insisted. He protested that the article forbidding foreign directors had been nullified by a one-line amendment. He called Metropolis and Bradford Trust, the holding company for G.B., a subterfuge whereby an English company is nominally the biggest shareholder in G.B., but under which the real owners are elsewhere.

Nordon threatened that if the chairman, Ostrer, refused approval of the shareholders' committee as suggested, the next step would be a request for an extraordinary general meeting.

Nordon's proposal was carried by about 80 to 40, Ostrer demanding a poll, saying that 80,000 shares at the meeting and the proxies in the directors' hands amounted to 127,000 shares, apart from his own shares.

Answering questions, Ostrer declared Lord Lee was never in control of the company, and that he had parted with his two per cent, which actually was the balance of power, four years ago.

A shareholder asked, "Who does control the company?"

Ostrer replied, "If you mean voting control, I think Metropolis and Bradford. They hold 3,000,000 shares."

Asked if the £4,000,000 or £5,000,000 in American business appeared in the balance sheet, Ostrer said, "The figure refers to business contracted, not money received, and does not appear in the accounts."

After Ostrer had refused to accept a motion for a further adjournment, the shareholders unanimously re-elected John Maxwell as a director.

Maxwell at last responded to repeated calls for him, saying, "I thank you for your expression of confidence. At the moment my lips are sealed. I am only just becoming acquainted as a director with the details of the business, and could not give you any useful advice."

G. B. ordinary shares fell one shilling and three pence to £8 1½/ from the figure of £11 prior to the first stockholders' meeting.

Plenty of Agents

Los Angeles, Dec. 17.—The State Labor Commissioner issued licenses to 198 theatrical agents during 1936, according to figures just made public. This is a new high in the Los Angeles district, and authorities believe the figure will pass 200 early in 1937. The increase is partly due to radio agencies which have opened offices here during the year.

lower salary groups would receive one week's pay.

The Paramount board recently disbursed about $3,400,000 in dividends on its first and second preferred stock. The latter issue is still in arrears 60 cents per share for 1936. Indications are, however, that the company's earnings for the current quarter will exceed those for any three-months period in the past five years. Earnings for October and November are estimated at about $2,000,000 and net for the current month will exceed that. Indications are that the pre-Christmas slump will be less than anticipated and earnings for the Christmas to New Year's week will more than recover the seasonal recession. Net for the quarter will be swelled materially by dividends from theatre subsidiaries declared during December.

Rapid progress is being made by the company in refunding long term obligations at lower interest rates. Paramount's entire British mortgage indebtedness, amounting to approximately $5,000,000, which was carrying interest of approximately six per cent, was refunded during the week at three per cent. Similar interest reductions on a studio debt of $3,000,000 were accomplished earlier. The company's objective during the next six months is to reduce interest rates to three per cent on approximately $50,000,000 of outstanding obligations. The bulk of this will be accomplished by private financing, it is planned.

Balaban and Stanton Griffis, chairman of the executive committee, who assumed their Paramount posts last June without compensation, are still serving without pay despite the company's improved financial position, it was ascertained. The two executives recently declined several considerations proffered by the board of directors in recognition of their services to date with no other explanation than that they both had independent incomes and did not desire to burden the company.

Court Disallows 4 Paramount Claims

claim was filed by Granada and the San Francisco Paramount Corp. for $747,837. This claim was based on a lease made March 1, 1926, from Granada to Paramount covering the Paramount in San Francisco. The lease was disaffirmed by the trustees on Aug. 31, 1933.

Paramount-Famous Lasky assigned its claims to the Lares Theatre Corp. which upon dissolving last Oct. 5 gave over to Paramount all its assets. St. Francis Amusement Co. and Granada which were dissolved on March 18 and 24, respectively, also assigned their claims and property to Paramount. The first three claims were based on receivable accounts.

Facsimile of current letterhead of Gaumont British Pictures Corp., Ltd., of London which lists the name of John Maxwell as one of its directors. This refutes the statement made by Isidore Ostrer upon his arrival in New York on Nov. 23 at which time he flatly denied Maxwell was on the board.

"He is a minority stockholder like anyone else. He has 240,000 of the 1,000,000 outstanding 'B' shares; doesn't have a single vote and is not a director in either M. & B. [Metropolis and Bradford which controls 57 per cent of G.B. stock] or G.B.," Isidore stated. Yet his brother, Maurice, upon his arrival here on Nov. 30 declared Maxwell was a director and had been on the board for the past two months.

Dual Billing Regulation Up In Texas Suit

large selection of product available to the first run, which, in the case of the defendant Texas circuits includes Paramount, Vitagraph, M-G-M, United Artists, Columbia, RKO, Universal and 20th Century-Fox, all of whom are made defendants in the Government's action.

Any pictures from the distributors who are parties to the contract which are not designated for the advanced admission house's use are not subject to the contract's provisions requiring subsequent runs to maintain a minimum admission of 25 cents and a single feature program. The prevailing subsequent run admission in the situations affected by the Hoblitzelle circuits' contracts is 20 cents, the Government's complaint states. It alleges that some subsequent run exhibitors have been driven out of business and other have operated at a loss as a result of the contracts used by the Hoblitzelle first runs.

"Conspiracy" Charged

Situations affected are listed in the complaint as Dallas, Houston, San Antonio, Fort Worth, Austin, Galveston, Waco, Wichita Falls, Abilene, Amarillo, El Paso and Albuquerque.

The complaint charges that "the defendants since April, 1934, have been and are now engaged in a combination, conspiracy and agreement to restrain trade and commerce and to monopolize and attempt to monopolize exhibition" through enforcement of the contracts. The defendants have been given 20 days in which to file answers to the complaint, but no hearing date has been set yet.

The contracts were the subject of an action brought by Robert Z. Glass, in independent exhibitor, in the Texas state court a year ago. The court found that no conspiracy was involved in the use of the contracts but ruled that the subject of the action was in interstate commerce and, therefore, within the jurisdiction of the Federal courts.

a real catastrophe to the country to repeat the errors and rebuild the Frankenstein of the NRA," Berry declared.

The coordinator's statement was issued with an announcement of the membership of a correlating committee which will whip the reports of the eight council committees into shape for submission to President Roosevelt. John G. Paine, chairman of the board of the Music Publishers' Protective Ass'n, will head the committee, which will consist of eight labor leaders and 10 industry representatives.

"There is now no need of emergency legislation such as the Recovery Act," Berry said. "What we suggest in the way of industry legislation would be done under the existing anti-trust laws. The purpose actually is to clarify the general language of the Sherman and Clayton Acts with regard to 'restraint of trade' and 'unfair methods of competition' by specifying certain practices which thereafter shall or shall not fall within the provisions of these acts."

These changes would make unreasonably low wage levels, long working hours, etc., 'unfair methods of competition.'" industry than on the product from foreign sources.

The firm attitude of the new national censor board in Mexico was indicated in its action on "El Rosal Bendito." Finding the film not in accord with the ideals of the Federal Government and several articles of the regulations they ordered extremely expensive cutting and readaptation before approving the film.

Elena Sanchez Valenzuela, local newspaper woman, has been named a member of the national censor board.

Chinese here have requested the censor to take action relative to the American Film, "The General Died at Dawn," claiming it is unfair to China and its people.

Quick Hearing Is Sought for Suit in Texas

Court to Be Asked to Fix Date in January Term

DALLAS, Dec. 18.—Federal Judge William Hawley Atwell will be asked to set the Government's anti-trust case against eight major distributors and the Hoblitzelle theatre circuits during the January term of the U. S. District Court here in an effort to have the case called for trial around Feb. 1, it was indicated here today.

It was learned from official sources that both the defendants and the Government are agreed on a prompt trial of the case and no unreasonable delays are expected. The action is generally regarded as a test case which will determine the right of exhibitors and distributors to enforce trade practice regulations, particularly those involving minimum admissions, and double featuring, through contract provisions.

The outcome is held to be of major

China Ban on Para. Stirs Distributors

By J. P. KOEHLER

SHANGHAI, Nov. 22.—The sudden decision of the Central Film Censorship Committee in Nanking to withhold all censoring of Paramount pictures in China came without warning and placed two first runs here in difficulty for a short time. The censor action was taken on a report from the vice-consul in Los Angeles that Paramount had refused to make cuts in "Klondike Annie" and to withdraw "The General Died at Dawn" from world release.

The Paramount contention was that

Goldsteins-Rifkin Suit Is Postponed

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 18.—The equity suit of Sam and Nathan Goldstein to prevent showing of "Theodora Goes Wild" by Herman Rifkin at Northampton was continued today until next Monday. The temporary injunction granted several days ago was dissolved by the court, but the picture has not been booked.

Columbia offered to post a bond of $3,000. The Goldsteins demanded a $75,000 bond, but the court called this ridiculous, and no bond was required.

Revival of Monogram Seen As Stock Buy Is Approved

The return of Monogram to the production field was indicated yesterday following a meeting of the stockholders and the board of Monogram Pictures Corp. The stockholders agreed to the repurchase by the company of the outstanding capital stock, except that held by W. Ray Johnston, president of the company. The repurchase plan was revealed at the close of the board meeting, which followed the stockholders' session earlier in the day.

It was indicated that the action taken yesterday was another step in the course of negotiations for the reappearance of Monogram. "It is expected that Johnston's new company, Sterling Pictures Corp., shortly will acquire by purchase the goodwill and assets of Monogram and will use the Monogram trademark for its new product," a company statement declared.

A special meeting of the board of directors of Sterling will be held,

Claims N. E. Support For Pettengill Bill

BOSTON, Dec. 18.—"Seventy-five per cent of the senators and representatives in Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, and Maine have pledged their support to passage of the Neely-Pettengill Bill," states the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., in the organization's house organ.

"Rhode Island and Connecticut exhibitors have been particularly lax in contacting their congressmen," an article by Arthur K. Howard states. These latter exhibitors are urged to lay their booking complaints before their congressmen before they leave for Washington.

Fabian Has Plan

Si Fabian may yet present a reorganization plan for the Roxy, Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey was advised yesterday by C. Frank Reavis, attorney for Fabian, who said that the latter's "final proposals" had not been completed yet.

Stating that some members of the bond and noteholders' committee were "interested" in the prospective Fabian plan, the attorney asked the court to direct that the bondholders' plan be withheld from Roxy creditors until his client's final proposals had been readied. The petition was refused by the court.

20th-Fox Gets 83% of Stock In Roxy Plan

Bondholders Get 100%; Common Wiped Out

Twentieth Century-Fox is guaranteed a minimum of 83⅓ per cent of the combined outstanding new Class A and common stock of the reorganized Roxy under the plan of reorganization presented to Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey by the committee for first mortgage gold bondholders in U. S. District Court here yesterday. A hearing on the plan was set for Jan. 15.

The reorganized Roxy company will receive a 20-year film franchise from 20th Century-Fox and $650,000 in cash. All of the theatre company's new common stock will be issued to 20th Century-Fox, and although the number of shares of both common and Class A to be issued has not been determined yet, assurances are included in the plan that 20th Century-Fox will have 83⅓ per cent of the combined total of both issues.

The plan proposes to give to first mortgage bondholders, for each $1,000 of their claims, a new $1,000 first mortgage bond and an undetermined amount of cash, representing their

McElligott Will Ask Theatre Smoking Ban

An ordinance banning smoking in theatres and department stores is to be sought by Fire Commissioner John J. McElligott.

McElligott said he had received requests for such an ordinance from department stores, because women customers had developed a habit of walking around with lighted cigarettes and resented any effort to stop the practice. The danger was greater from panic in both theatres and stores, he said, than from actual damage to property.

Theatre Unit Wants To See Guild Books

Bondholders of the West 52nd St. Theatre Co., a subsidiary of the Theatre Guild, began a fight yesterday to examine the books and accounts of the Guild for the past five years in the subsidiary's reorganization proceedings before Federal Judge John C. Knox.

Max J. Reuben, attorney representing Jascha Heifetz, the violinist, and largest single bondholder of the theatre company, and two other bondholders, demanded the information. The motion is based on the unusual lease held by the Guild on the theatre property under which the income of the subsidiary and the return on its bonds depends entirely on the earnings of the Guild.

The bondholders claim they are entitled to examine the books before they can consider consenting to modifications of the mortgage under which their bonds were issued. The modifications are part of the plan of reorganization for the subsidiary sponsored by the Guild. In includes the elimination of the cumulative feature from the present six per cent cumulative bonds of which $592,000 are outstanding and an agreement by bondholders to accept less than six per cent if the full interest is not earned. It also includes the reduction of the five-year lease on the theatre to one year.

Enforce Ohio Curfew

Miamisburg, O., Dec. 18.—A curfew ordinance, passed in 1897, but neglected for 25 years, now is being enforced in this town of 5,000 population.

The curfew rings at 9 o'clock each night by which time all children under 16 must be off the streets unless accompanied by their parents or guardians.

This will somewhat affect theatre attendance, exhibitors believe.

Toronto's Downtown Houses Go to Duals

TORONTO, Dec. 18.—First runs have finally succumbed to the double bill trend, leaving very few spots in Canada with single features. The new policy has been adopted by the Imperial and Uptown, operated by Famous Players, and at Loew's, the technical exception being Shea's Hippodrome where a combination film and vaudeville offering has been in effect for many months.

The gossip is that the downtown houses had to come to it because of the popularity of duals at neighborhood theatres all over town. Another angle to the situation has been what is described as an increasing shortage of high class shorts to build up programs.

20th-Fox Gets 83% of Stock In Roxy Plan

share of distributable sums held by the fiscal agent for the mortgage bonds and the reorganization trustee.

Holders of 5½ per cent sinking fund gold notes are offered, for each $1,000 of their claims, an undetermined number of shares of new Class A stock and $23.79 in cash.

Equity receivership creditors are offered a 50 per cent dividend on their claims.

General creditors and old Class A stockholders will not be entitled to participate and no provision is made for them in the plan.

There are $3,595,208 of old first mortgage 6¼ per cent gold bonds outstanding; $1,548,000 of five-year, 6½ per cent gold notes; $250,000 of prior lien receiver's certificates; $52,345 of equity receivership accounts payable participating in the plan, and $70,663 of general creditors' claims. One hundred and twenty-five thousand shares of old Class A and 350,000 shares of old common stock are not entitled to participate under the plan.

Capitalization Described

The capitalization of the new Roxy company will consist of $3,595,208 of new first mortgage 20-year 3½ and 4 per cent bonds and an undetermined number of shares of new no par common and Class A stock. All of the new Class A will be issued to the present noteholders and all of the common to 20th Century-Fox, but the number of shares of new common will be issued in a ratio to the number of Class A shares issued to preserve the 83⅓ per cent of the combined total for 20th Century-Fox.

The new bonds are to be secured by all of the real estate and personal property of the new company and will bear interest of 3½ per cent for the first three years and interest of 4 per cent thereafter. Amortization is provided for either by purchase of the bonds in the open market or by redemption by lot. In the event of the latter procedure, redemption is to be in lots of $54,000 a year during the first three years; $60,000 a year during the next seven years and $65,000 a year during the final 10 years.

Product Deal with 20th-Fox

The 20-year film franchise covers all features, shorts and newsreels distributed by 20th Century-Fox except those excluded by special deals or rejected by the Roxy. The $650,000 in cash to be paid the new company by 20th Century-Fox is to provide funds for taxes due and receiver's notes outstanding, to pay administration and reorganization expenses, to pay the 50 per cent dividend to the equity receivership creditors, to provide $50,000 of working capital for the new company and to meet expenses of remodeling, refurnishing and repairing the Roxy.

The plan already has the approval of the bondholders' committee and of a committee representing more than 75 per cent of the junior noteholders. A petition to send out copies of the plan to creditors was granted yesterday by Judge Caffey.

H. P. Seligson, attorney for holders of $200,000 of Roxy notes, told the court that his clients were not completely satisfied with the plan and urged delay in sending it out to creditors in view of the possibility of a better offer being received later. The attorney was advised that the court had "adequate powers" to insure consideration for any better plan subsequently presented.

Arthur May Operate Roxy

Indications are that Harry Arthur will operate the Roxy for 20 Century-Fox in the event the bondholders' reorganization plan for the theatre is approved by the court which now has it under consideration.

Although the plan does not include any reference whatever to the operation of the house after reorganization, indications are that negotiations now in work between Arthur and 20th Century-Fox will be closed as soon as the plan now under consideration has been approved.

'Good-Will Court' Dropped; Lawyer Opposition, Reason

The "Good-Will Court" cauldron ceased boiling officially as of yesterday morning when the J. Walter Thompson agency substantiated Motion Picture Daily's exclusive report of the previous day by admitting that the program would not be heard on the network this Sunday or at any time thereafter. The WMCA "court" program also was removed from the schedule. Both programs were sponsored by Chase and Sanborn.

Successors to both "Good-Will Court" programs have not been engaged as yet, although it is expected that the network program will be replaced this Sunday by the popular west coast feature, "So You Want to Be an Actor," Haven MacQuarrie's KFWB air show. The deal is now close to consummation, the only hitch being the demand of Warners, owners of KFWB, that their name and the name of their station be mentioned in the broadcasts. Conferences along these lines were in progress last night on the coast and it is reported that Herman Starr, vice-president in charge of KFWB, closed the deal at an early hour this morning.

The WMCA "court" sessions will be replaced by a new Chase and Sanborn series beginning Saturday, Dec. 26.

The demise of the "Good-Will Court" brings to an end radio's most hectically publicized program. Lawyers opposed it passively at first, but when it was transplanted to the networks the passive resistance crystalized into definite hostility, with many bar associations passing motions making it impossible for their members to act as counsellors on the program on threat of disbarment.

Just what disposition the sponsor made of the contract held by A. L. Alexander, who ruled the destiny of the program, is not known at the moment. Alexander could not be reached for a statement, and all other sources professed ignorance of the matter.

Rosenblum Out; Woods In

David Rosenblum yesterday resigned as vice-president and treasurer of NBC and was succeeded as treasurer by Mark Woods, assistant executive vice-president.

Rosenblum joined NBC in September, 1934, and was elected treasurer in January 1935. Before coming to NBC he was executive vice-president of Tradeways, Inc.

Wood has been identified with radio since 1922 as an employee of A. T. & T., then operators of WEAF. When the network was formed in 1926, Wood became one of its executives. Subsequently he established NBC offices in Washington, San Francisco, Chicago, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Boston. At various times during the past 10 years he has served NBC as assistant treasurer, treasurer, assistant to executive vice-president and in various other executive capacities.

Sonja's "Hotel"

"Hollywood Hotel" last night presented another imposing array of film stars who re-enacted several scenes from their forthcoming picture, "One in a Million." The broadcast, we were informed several times during the course of the one-hour session, was emanating from a sound studio on the 20th Century-Fox lot in Hollywood. According to the announcer, this was something to get excited about. Personally, we're glad we were kept informed as to the program's point of origin because it would have taken sharper ears than ours to detect the difference existing in a program aired from a film sound studio and one broadcast from a regulation radio studio. However there is little doubt that the stunt had great promotional value.

The film emoters included Sonja Henie, Jean Hersholt, Alice Faye, Adolphe Menjou, Arlene Judge, the Ritz Brothers, Tony Martin and Borrah Minnevitch. Heard also were the "Hollywood Hotel" standbys, Dick Powell, Frances Langford, Ann Jamison, Igor Gorin and Raymond Paige's orchestra. The program was excellent musically and vocally and slightly more than adequate dramatically. Sonja Henie, in particular, was a pleasant surprise. The lass apparently is almost as good an actress as she is a figure skater—which is saying plenty.

"Hollywood Hotel" is presented weekly by Campbell's Soups.

importance in that a vindication of the type of contract in question by the Federal court would undoubtedly be followed by the employment of the same form of contract in numerous other situations throughout the country. Local theatre men assume that the case is of great enough significance to warrant its being carried up to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Filing of the suit by B. W. Henderson, special assistant to the Attorney General, followed only a few days after Karl Hoblitzelle and R. J. O'Donnell closed a new 10-year operating agreement with Paramount for the Interstate and Texas Consolidated circuits. A feature of the new agreements was the relinquishing by Paramount of its option to repurchase from Hoblitzelle his 50 per cent stock interest in the circuits.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Stowaway"

(20th Century-Fox)

It would appear that Shirley Temple has done it again, which means that in "Stowaway" the exhibitor has a lively, entertaining picture, with which he can, with very little effort, bring out the entire family. He may be assured they will have an enjoyable time, and the youngsters will tell all their friends.

It is, of course, Shirley's picture, but she has been surrounded with an able cast, and the story might well hold up by itself as a pleasant romantic film. With Shirley, it is a long step beyond that as entertainment any showman, anywhere, can sell. If any more proof were needed of the little star's versatility, here it is. She not only sings several popular numbers in enticing fashion, but glibly speaks Chinese, rolling Chinese proverbs off her tongue, not precociously, but in wholly charming manner.

The screen play by William Conselman, Arthur Seekman and Nat Perrin, from the story by Sam Engel, has Shirley landing homeless and alone in Shanghai, when a raid in an inland town causes her friend to send her there. The orphan of missionaries, she comes upon playboy Robert Young, they become great pals, and when she falls asleep in his car before it goes aboard a steamer, she finds herself a stowaway.

Through a series of amusing, romantic complications she makes her way, as Alice Faye also befriends her on the ship. Shirley is the cupid who ties the knot between the two, despite the engagement of Miss Faye to Allan Lane. The marriage is first to save Shirley from an orphanage, via adoption, and next for romance.

A word for the song numbers sung by Shirley and Miss Faye, and for the spontaneous laugh-provoking efforts of Arthur Treacher as Young's valet. William A. Seiter directed.

Major Heads May Be Called In Texas Case

Expect Early Subpoenas For Executives

Numerous home office and sales executives of major companies are expected to be subpoenaed in the near future as witnesses in the Government anti-trust action brought in U. S. District court at Dallas last week. All of the eight major companies are defendants in the action.

The Government suit is viewed by sales executives as a test case on the legality of the contracts made by the defendant distributors with Interstate and Texas Consolidated circuits, which impose minimum admission and single feature restrictions on subsequent run theatres which play pictures which have been exhibited by a first run at a specified minimum admission. Indications are that, if upheld by the Federal courts, the use of this type of contract would be extended widely.

The contract is requested by the

ITOA to Fight Smokers' Ban For Theatres

Proposal by McElligott Stirs Up Exhibitors

The I.T.O.A. will wage a vigorous fight in opposition to the indicated plan of Fire Commissioner McElligott to seek an ordinance banning smoking in New York theatres, it was learned on Saturday, in the event such a proposal is actually placed before the Board of Aldermen.

McElligott indicated on Friday that he would ask such an ordinance to affect both theatres and department stores, explaining that there was considerable danger in smoking in these places, not so much from fires themselves, as from panic.

The commissioner has not yet indicated when he plans to seek the ordinance from the Board of Aldermen, and the I.T.O.A. will take no specific action until a bill is actually proposed.

Executives of the Loew and RKO circuits could not be reached for comment on the proposal Saturday, but it is anticipated that they would join any movement to prohibit smoking in theatres.

Hope Held for New Film Deal With Italians

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—Negotiation of a new trade treaty with Italy as a result of the denunciation of the Treaty of 1871 is expected to bring about concessions for the American industry.

Restrictions imposed on the export of capital and upon imports have caused numerous protests from American distributors during the past year and have been one of the contributing factors in leading up to the treaty denunciation.

Cullman Authorized To Settle on Taxes

Federal Judge Caffey on Saturday authorized Howard S. Cullman, as trustee of the Roxy, to accept an offer made by the New York City Board of Taxes and Assessments to compromise certiorari proceedings and reduce the real estate assessment on the theatre.

The tentative assessment for 1937 is about $100,000 less than the 1936 assessment of $3,425,000. Cullman estimates this will save $2,700 a year on taxes. Previously, Cullman instituted proceedings in the N. Y. Supreme Court to reduce the 1936 assessment. As a result of the adjustment, the former suit will be dropped.

Legion Approves 21 Of 24 New Pictures

Of 24 new films reviewed and classified by the National Legion of Decency in its list for the current week, 13 were approved for general patronage, eight for adults and three were classed as objectionable in part. The new pictures and their classifications follow.

Class A-1, Unobjectionable for General Patronage—"Ghost Town," "Happy Go Lucky," "Hats Off," "Johannisnacht" (German), "Klein Dorrit" (German), "Let's Make a Million," "Mysterious Crossing," "Old Corral," "The Pecos Kid," "Racing Lady," "Roses Aus Dem Sueden" (German), "Trail Dust," "Laughing at Trouble."

Class A-2, Unobjectionable for Adults—"Beware of the Ladies," "Career Women," "Criminal Lawyer," "Der Junge Graf" (German), "Gold Diggers of 1937," "Le Prince Jean" (French), "River of Unrest," "That Girl from Paris."

The films called objectionable in part, and the reasons therefore, were: "More Than a Secretary," because of "questionable dialogue and suggested illicit relationships between employer and secretary"; "Strangers on a Honeymoon," because of "light and irreverent treatment of marriage," and "Sinners Take All," because the "plot is solved by suicide."

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 20.—Independent Film Distributors, affiliate of Independent Poster Exchange, has contracted to distribute 18 Reliable pictures in the Western Missouri and Kansas area during the season, according to Homer Blackwell, head of the companies. The lineup includes six Bob Custers, six James Oliver Curwoods, four Richard Talmadge, and two Reginald Dennys.

Robert Jersey, formerly with Tiffany, and organizer of Associated Film Distributors, has joined Blackwell.

N. E. Allied Attacks Conciliation Boards

BOSTON, Dec. 20. — Conciliation boards as proposed by the M.P.T.O.A. are sharply attacked in the latest issue of the bulletin of Independent Exhibitors, Inc., the New England Allied unit.

The bulletin says conciliation requirements could be inserted in distributors' contracts and the boards could be started in a month's time "and they would cost any independent exhibitor more than most arguments would be worth or more money than he possessed to fight the setup in court. We are watching the possibilities and are prepared to fight locally and nationally such a setup."

The bulletin goes on to say that the proposed conciliation boards "sound suspiciously like the old film boards to us.

"How nice it would be to have Mr. Kuykendall's alleged exhibitors' organization obtain some meaningless concessions from distributors with a nigger - in - the - woodpile 'conciliation board' attached. An exhibitor could be tried before a board composed of 'Big Eight' distributors or affiliated M.P.-T.O.A. exhibitors, and the decision could be written at the same time the complaint was filed, for all the 'trial' would amount to!"

Munro Confident Of a Hit Season

By CLIFF HOLT

MELBOURNE, Dec. 4. (Via Air Mail).—Charles E. Munro, managing director of Hoyts and joint managing director of General Theatres Corp., after a careful study of production outlines of American and British producers for 1936-37, declared that he is more confident than ever that next year the industry will turn out a greater proportion of hits than in any previous year of its history.

"It is plain that producers generally have put into practice the realization that big pictures are the stability of the business," he said. "Having emerged from the economic depression, America will continue to improve a product that has improved considerably in the past 12 months. Britain, on the other hand, is now alive to the necessity of eliminating second-rate quota films and is injecting star value into her product."

Munro also noted the advances in Australian exhibition, pointing to modernization of theatres in many ways.

Stuart F. Doyle, managing director of Greater Union Theatres, and joint managing director of General Theatres recently returned from a visit to the United States, declared himself definitely impressed by the air of confidence in film circles in the east and on the west coast in the United States.

These opinions are considered of the highest importance in the trade here, since the two men are managing directors of companies which control, directly or indirectly, 106 theatres in Australia.

"Show Boat" is cracking all sorts of records at the Liberty in Sydney. Now in its 23rd week, the management expects the film to run until after Christmas, which would give the film a run of nearly 30 weeks.

first run exhibitor who agrees to exhibit selected pictures at a specified minimum advanced admission. In return, the distributor agrees not to sell such pictures to a subsequent run which charges less than a specified minimum admission or to permit such pictures to be double-featured by the subsequent. Some trade opinion also holds that a vindication by the courts of this type of contract would make it possible, similarly, to ban Bank Night, other giveaways, and all forms of bargain admissions with the playing of any outstanding picture in subsequent runs.

Distributors are awaiting the test of the contracts with interest and indications are that a trial as early as Feb. 1 or thereabouts is possible.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"They Wanted to Marry"

(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20.—This is a well produced situation comedy that will rank high as average entertainment. Although the cast offers little name value, the story, acting and direction are spirited and the picture holds the interest from start to finish.

Gordon Jones, a news photographer, whose work in obtaining exclusive pictures with the aid of carrier pigeons leads him in and out of hospitals and jails, is the central character. Assigned to cover a society wedding, Jones obtains a shot of Henry Kolker, the bride's father, who abhors publicity. He meets Betty Furness, another Kolker daughter.

As romance develops rapidly between Jones and Kolker's daughter obstacles are injected by Kolker's dislike of cameramen and Jones' devotion to duty. Charles Wilson, Jones' boss, also provides difficulties and E. E. Clive, Kolker's butler, complicates things further by his efforts in behalf of his employer. By the time everything is straightened out the characters and the audience have been led a merry chase and have been handed many laughs.

Paul Yawitz and Ethel Borden wrote the screenplay from a story by Larry Bachman. Darwin Teilhet and Lew Landers directed, getting all possible from a well-constructed script.

As light entertainment the picture should be favorably received by average audiences.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,015. Running time, 59 minutes. "G."

"Mysterious Crossing"

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20.—With comedy and generally light entertainment predominating, this is a mystery murder yarn which should prove satisfactory fare of its type, suitable for a dual bill program. More or less standard, it nevertheless blends its ingredients well, in the adaptation of Jefferson Parker and John Gray, from the original by Fred MacIsaacs.

When James Dunn, wisecracking reporter out of a job, borrows from Andy Devine on the train ferry across the Mississippi to New Orleans, he acquires Devine as a permanent possession. At the same time he sees what he thinks is a murder as two men disappear from the ferry.

Appropriating the baggage of one man in New Orleans, he discovers him to be prominent, his daughter to be attractive Jean Rogers. Hobart Cavanaugh, bombastic city editor, hires him, and Dunn sets off on the murder hunt, Devine dogging his heels wherever he goes. Suspense and action enter when the two are captured, imprisoned, and make their way out through an underground passage.

Eventually Dunn traps John Eldredge, supposed best friend of the missing man and his daughter, whose motive was the stealing of money from the bank his victim headed. Dunn and Miss Rogers complete the film in the expected fashion.

Production Code Seal No. 2,808. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"A Man Betrayed"

(Republic)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20.—A novel twist or two in story makes this an entertaining film of good dual quality, having to do with a suicide which is made to look like murder to protect a pair of swindlers who pin the supposed crime on an innocent man. The novelty enters when a group of gangsters, seeking to aid the plot's victim, turn detectives, in effect, and bring a rival gang to book for the crime.

The cast is inconspicuous, and merely satisfactory. Eddie Nugent is the unsuspecting sales manager of a fake oil stock selling agency, Kay Hughes his secretary and fiancee, and Lloyd Hughes his brother, a missionary, who come to the aid of Nugent when he is sentenced to death for the supposed murder of his employer.

Before his suicide, the latter had described his approaching death in the dictaphone. The cylinder was not found, but when the two partners in the crime find it later they destroy it, thinking to thus seal the fate of Nugent. However, when the tables are turned and they in turn are accused of murder, with strong evidence in support of the charge, their perfect alibi would have been that very cylinder.

John H. Auer, who directed, has maintained an active pace in the production.

Production Code Seal No. 2,858. Running time, 58 minutes. "G."

Short Subjects

"Jungle Jim"

(Universal)

Fashioned after the comic strip from the Hearst Sunday supplement, "Jungle Jim" retains all the adventurous events of Alex Raymond's art. A serial, it should prove entertaining to the younger element who are none too critical of dialogue, continuity and sequence development. The excitement and action are well mixed with the psuedo-mysterious goings on of a Lion Goddess in the African jungle and her cohorts.

In its episodic style the story follows Grant Withers, in the title role, and Raymond Hatton, as Malay Mike, in their search for the murderer of their friend, "Red" Callahan. In the jungle they cross the path of Betty Jane Rhodes, the Lion Goddess. When Withers vindicates himself after killing her pet beast, she frees the pair. Later they rescue her from a clique who are seeking to kill her so Bryant Washburn can inherit the fortune which is rightfully hers. Presumably the yarn weaves itself back and forward in this manner in ensuing chapters. It is reliable stuff. The supporting cast, drawing their roles from characters in the cartoon, includes Evelyn Brent, Henry Brandon, Al Bridge, Paul Sutton and Al Duval. Production Code Seal No. 2,549. Running time of each chapter approximately 20 mins. "G."

Sets Security Plan

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20.—The Central Casting Bureau will handle social security registrations for film extras, according to Campbell MacCulloch, manager. Some 20,000 persons who find employment through Central Casting will apply for their account numbers through the agency.

the new set-up. This will permit greater variety in programs."

Aside from the commercial aspects, one of the chief results of the expansion will be a new schedule of sustaining programs from Hollywood. At present NBC's sustaining shows originate only in San Francisco. Don E. Gilman, vice-president in charge of the western division of NBC will play an active part in the expansion.

Construction plans now being drawn call for a complete rearrangement of the present Hollywood quarters, built only a year ago, and for an increase in the number of studios from four to eight. Two more stage studios, each with an audience capacity of 250 people will also be added.

The revised plant is expected to be in operation by Sept. 1, 1937, at which time NBC's Hollywood production schedule will be stepped up to almost twice its present output.

Why are they featuring her? Because of her name. It's Mary Christmas. Anyhow, they say so at NBC.

497,399 Visit Radio City Up To Dec. 1 and Pay $198,959

Radio City apparently has supplanted George Washington's birthplace, Mt. Vernon, as America's greatest sight-seeing attraction.

For the first 11 months of the year, 497,399 cash customers deposited 40 cents each to inspect the NBC radio temple. If last December's figure of 25,000 tourists for the month is equaled, the present year's total will be 522,000.

At the per head tariff, income from this source to Dec. 1, therefor, totaled $198,959.60. Theatre operators in the midtown areas long have been disturbed over this situation, claiming the money accruing to Radio City might otherwise be spent on theatre admissions.

Mt. Vernon last year was visited by 512,024 tourists and while no figures for this year are available at the moment, the total is not expected to go much beyond the 1935 mark.

For the first 11 months of this year, the Empire State Building was inspected by 318,450 visitors. The Statue of Liberty, once America's Number One attraction, is far behind with 290,874 paid tourists for the year up to Nov. 1.

KSFO Changes Made

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 20.—The reverse-English by which KSFO, heretofore rated a comparatively minor station, steps into the ranks of the big CBS-outlets Jan. 1 while Don Lee's powerful KFRC switches from CBS to the Mutual chain has already effected some personnel reshuffling in San Francisco which are expected to presage even more after the change-over is completely arranged.

Alan Cormack, KFRC chief technician and traffic manager, will move with CBS to KFSO the first of the year, assuming the job of west coast traffic manager for the entire system. Elma Latta Hackett, known hitherto as "KFRC Morning Hostess," is the first of the entertainment talent to be switched, having made her first KSFO broadcast for CBS this week.

Hope Held for New Film Deal With Italians

Hays secured assurances of some kind of concessions from Premier Mussolini, but their extent has not been made known, Hays taking the stand that this information will have to come from the American ambassador to Italy or the State Dept.

A general contingent decree was put into effect in February, 1935, and it included a contingent on pictures to the extent of about 25 per cent of the previous year's importations. Later in 1935 films were placed in a group of articles, the importation of which was regulated not on a percentage basis, but in accordance with ministerial import licenses.

Financial Law Modified

On Aug. 7, 1936, the Italian M. P. Federation (Federazione Nazional Fascista degli Industriali dello Spettacolo), which is a quasi government body with great power, informed all distributors in Rome that the previous method of granting licenses would be modified to allow for the 12 months beginning July 1, 1936 the exportation of not more than 10,000,000 lire received from film distribution. Any balance remaining, under this regulation, had to be invested in Italian film activities.

Total film imports were limited to 300 during the 12 months, of which 250 could be distributed by established importers and the remaining 50 distributed to casual importers.

Out of the 10,000,000 lire which could be exported 2,000,000 was set aside to provide for the 50 pictures allotted to casual importers (mainly Italian producers) the remaining 8,000,000 lire to be distributed among established national distributors in Italy, of which the majority distributed American films.

One of the conditions attached to this was a requirement that importing companies had to obtain the written consent of their parent companies and agree to maintain the level of the previous year's imports.

Modification Is Altered

On Oct. 27 the M.P. Federation advised that the regulations would again be changed and 16,000,000 lire of the funds received from distribution of all foreign pictures could be exported in the year ending June 30, 1937. Any amount above that sum must remain in Italy and might be invested in some manner in Italy, such as building or purchasing theatres, authors' rights, production of foreign language films, etc., not necessarily for film production, but subject to the approval of Italian authorities.

Of this 16,000,000 lire, 13,000,000 must be allotted to direct importers, of whom the majority are Americans, so that about 8,000,000 lire could be exported by Americans; 3,000,000 lire to local producers and distributors who are mainly Italian.

The number of pictures allotted to the American companies and to Italian companies distributing American pictures was fixed at 48 to be imported during the year beginning July 1, 1936 —and one half of this number after Jan. 1, 1937.

The number of films may still be reduced if the revenue exceeds the quota of funds allowed for exportation. The companies may import additional films under special permit only if the net revenues above the export allotment shall be left in Italy. Sums in the bank as of Sept. 30, 1936, representing earnings prior to July 1, 1936, due to foreign film can be exported at such time as exchange is available.

Companies which do not make application to abide by these regulations will lose their rights for importation of pictures and their allotment of pictures will be assigned to other companies. The regulations are now in effect and have resulted in a blockage of importation of American pictures into Italy.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"One in a Million"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20.—The screen debut of Sonja Henie, the ice-skating figure champion, is auspicious. Wisely, though not ignoring the worth of the other players, the producers focussed attention on Miss Henie. Not only does she display her skating ability, but she seems to have acting possibilities that foretell popularity as a comedienne.

The story is a light career drama with comedy contrasts, a slight romance and embellished with musical solos and ice-skating routines by the chorus. The Ritz Brothers and Borrah Minnevitch contribute musical comic specialities. Adolphe Menjou, a smart guy to everyone but Arline Judge, his wife, envisions a fortune in bringing Miss Henie to America. Jean Hersholt, the girl's father, is training her for the Olympics. Menjou presents her with a troupe in an ice carnival. There is a suggestion of romance between Miss Henie and Don Ameche interposing. The girl captures the Olympic title only to have the taint of professionalism threaten to deprive her of the honors. The trouble is explained away by Ameche and Miss Henie comes to America to make her professional debut under Menjou's wing.

Miss Henie's athletic ability and her grace and skill on the ice are definitely an audience draw. The Ritz Brothers and Minnevitch get many laughs. Menjou, Ameche, Miss Judge, Hersholt and Ned Sparks are good in the support. Leonard Praskins and Mark Kelly wrote the original screenplay. Lew Pollack and Sidney Mitchell did the music and lyrics. Sidney Lanfield directed.

Production Code Seal No. 2,860. Running time, 95 minutes. "G."

"Trail Dust"

(Sherman-Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20.—Done in the fashion which has established the popularity of the Hopalong Cassidy series, this Harry Sherman production is interesting outdoor entertainment. With a high degree of suspense as the backbone of the action, the film is well acted and directed.

Set in the western country, with the natural scenic beauty effectively photographed by Archie Stout, William Boyd, James Ellison and George Hayes this time meet many exciting adventures in driving their cattle to market. Forced to overcome natural difficulties, the trio is beset by rustlers intent on preventing the delivery of the steers.

The action is incidental to the drama, bringing Ellison into a romance with Gwynne Shipman and permitting Hayes to introduce a comedy contrast and Boyd to be legitimately heroic. It also permits Stephen Morris Brittwood, Dick Dickson and others to be villainous. They are conquered and the cattle are delivered to the shippers, of course.

Music featuring Ellison and a wrangler chorus is effective. Based on a Clarence E. Mulford story, the screen play by Al Martin has plenty of thrill action. It has been directed by Nate Watt to make these qualities predominate. It will please Hopalong fans and is generally worthwhile for those appreciating well-handled outdoor adventure entertainment.

Production Code Seal No. 2,888. Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

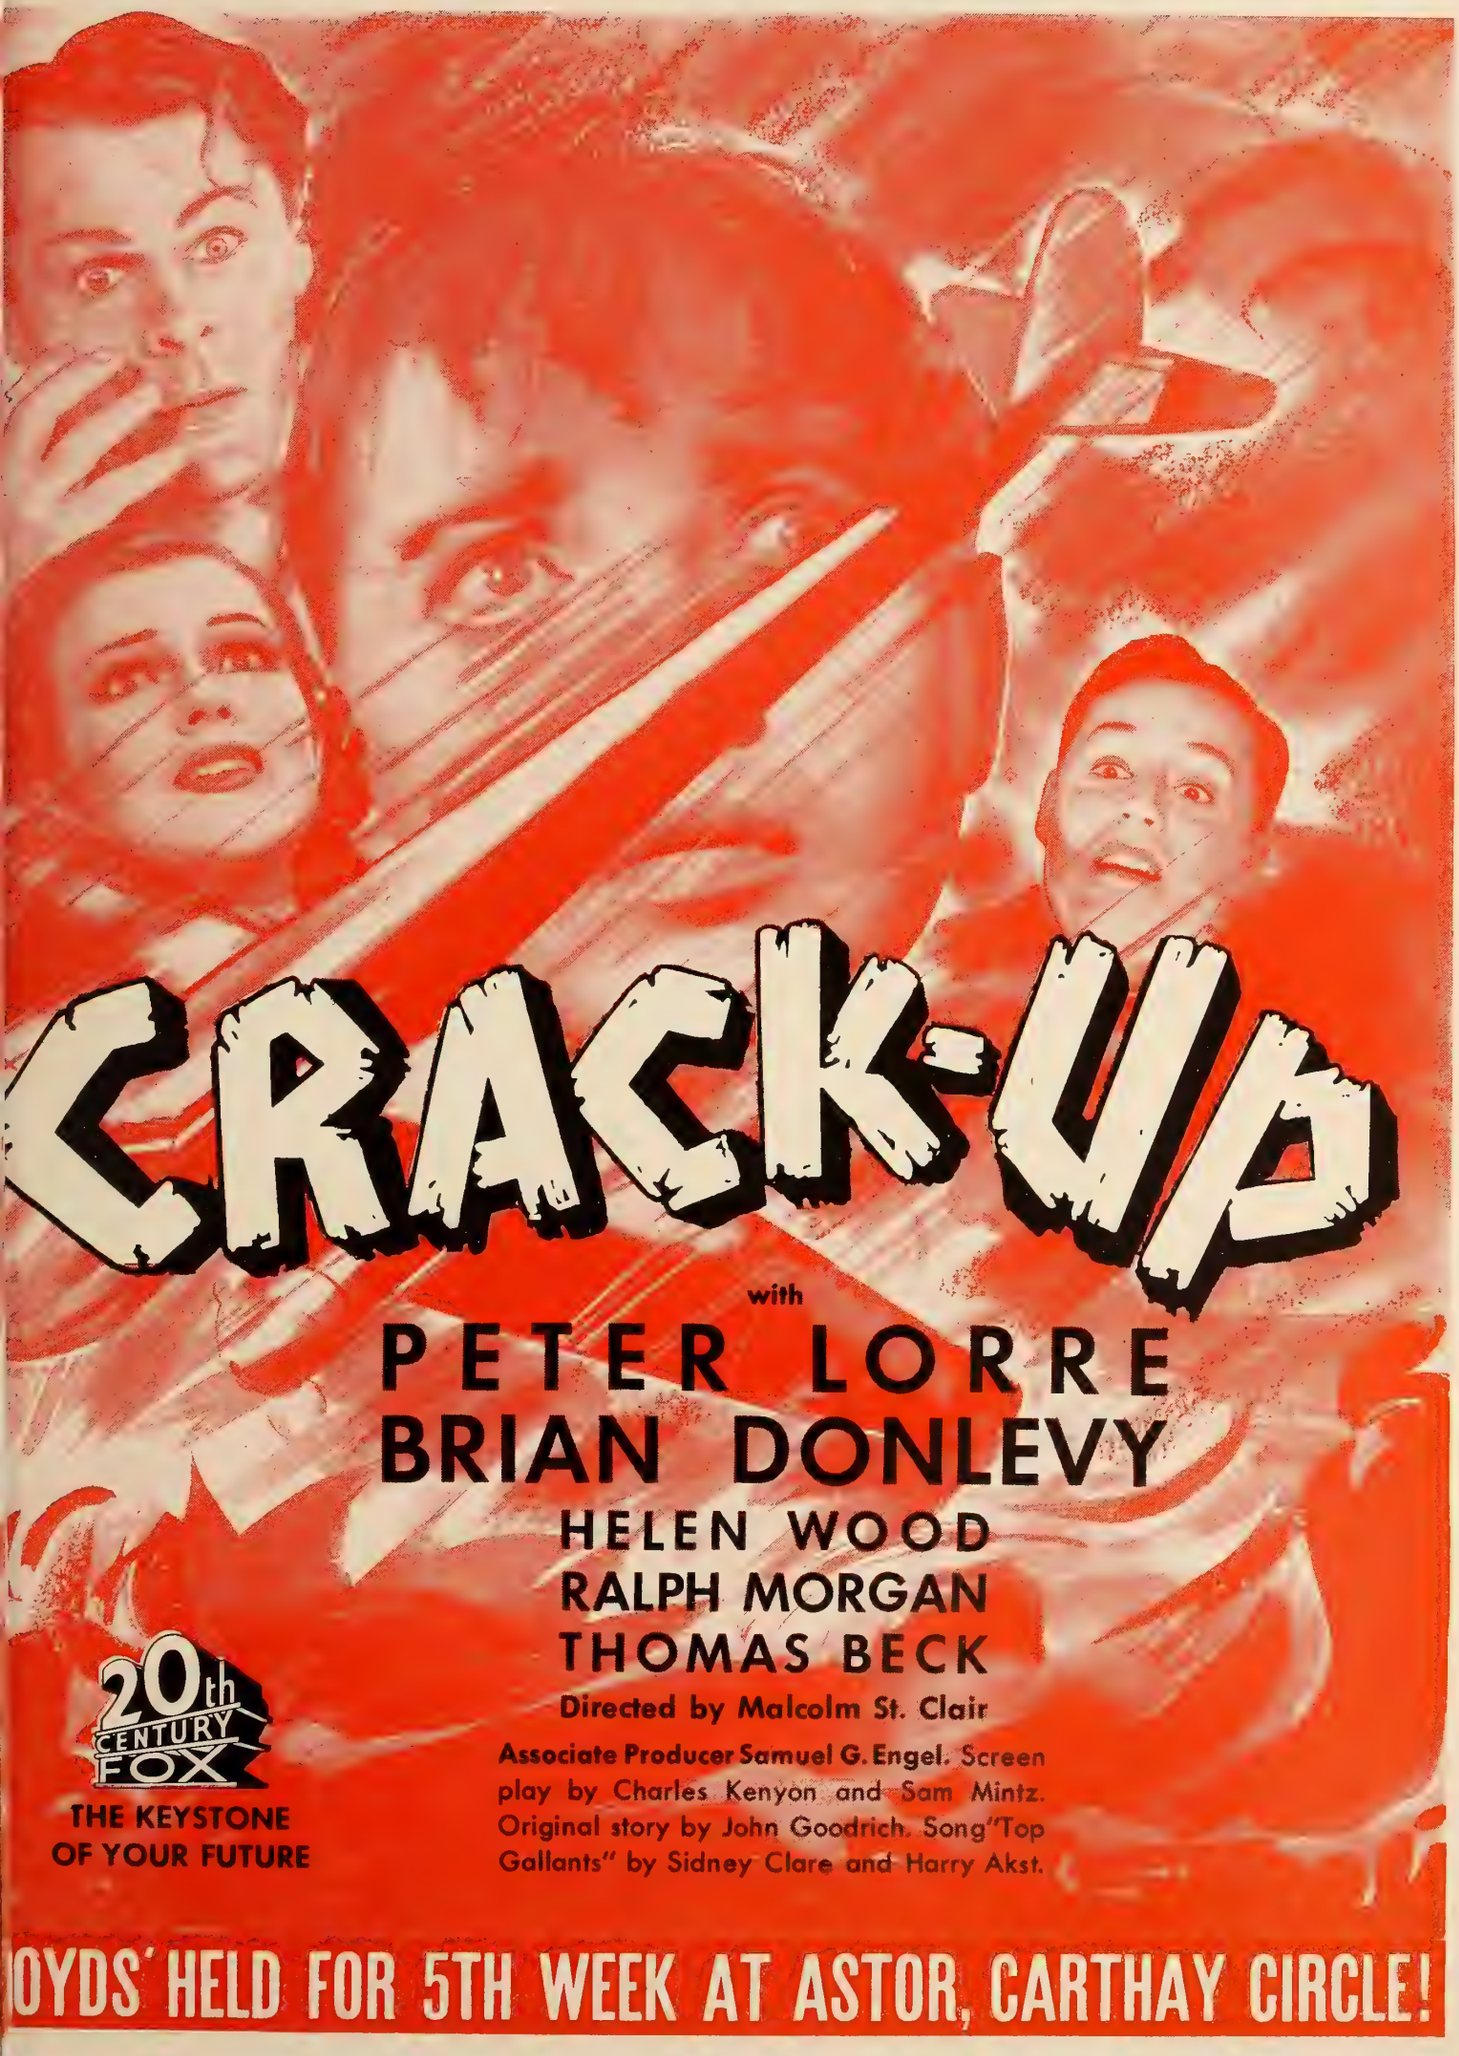
A MESSAGE TO EXHIBITORS

from John D. Clark

General Manager of Distribution,
20th Century-Fox Film Corporation

This statement is not to sell you a picture, but to open your eyes to an opportunity for making extra money.

It's about one of our pictures called "Crack-Up". It has a thrilling story, some of the best acting I've seen in any picture and a climax that left 250 people in our projection room silent for a full moment before they burst into spontaneous applause. They were young men and women of an every-day theatre audience.



When a picture does that, it has a quality that demands the best in your showmanship ability.

I am certain you will realize that its profit possibilities make it worthy of an earnest, extra effort of exploitation on your part in the proper theatres.

AND THE TRADE PRESS SECONDS THE MOTION!

Talk Circuit Deals On Board Selection

American Tobis is negotiating circuit deals in the west, south and east on the film, "La Kermesse Heroique," which was selected by the Committee on Exceptional Photoplays of the National Board of Review as the best picture produced anywhere in 1936, it was indicated Saturday. The film will finish a 14-week run at the Filmarte here on Tuesday, and has been booked throughout the country.

"Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" was called the best American film of the year. The 10 best American films, including "Deeds," were: "The Story of Louis Pasteur," "Modern Times," "Fury," "Winterset," "The Devil Is a Sissy," "Ceiling Zero," "Romeo and Juliet," "The Prisoner of Shark Island" and "The Green Pastures." The 10 best foreign films, including "La Kermesse Heroique," were: "The New Earth," "Rembrandt," "The Ghost Goes West," "Nine Days a Queen," "We Are From Kronstadt," "Son of Mongolia," "The Yellow Cruise," "Les Miserables" (French) and "The Secret Agent."

equipment, Hartley says, will include the rotary stabilizer sound head, directional loud speakers and power amplifiers. Both major equipment manufacturers now make all of these features available.

The move for standardization of sound is being actively supported by Loew's, both in its studio and theatres, on the theory that uniform recording standards in all studios will permit its theatre equipment to reproduce with the best sound results, and that standardized reproducing equipment in all theatres would enhance the sound presentation of M-G-M pictures wherever played. The same theory, of course, is applicable to all other producers and theatres, Loew's officials state.

By way of encouraging the standardization of reproducing equipment Loew's recently split its order for new equipment for its entire circuit between the two major manufacturers.

Court Is Told RKO Majority To Favor Plan

Rickaby Statement Made At Orpheum Hearing

Well over a majority of the RKO stockholders will approve the plan of reorganization for the company proposed by Atlas Corp. and Lehman Bros., Hamilton C. Rickaby, attorney for the proponents of the plan, told Federal Judge William Bondy yesterday.

The assurance of stockholder support for the plan is taken to indicate that the principal RKO stockholders' protective committee will recommend its confirmation by the court, inasmuch as Atlas Corp. and Lehman Bros. do not represent a majority of the RKO stock outstanding and, therefore, Rickaby must have been speaking for important stockholder interests in addition to his clients.

Atlas-Lehman own about 630,000 shares of RKO stock, or 24 per cent of the 2,593,992 shares outstanding, and have an option to acquire from RCA another 24 per cent. They also own about 42 per cent of the $11,600,000 of RKO debentures outstanding and have an option to acquire a like amount from RCA. The approval of

Expect Adjournment Of Hearing on RKO

The objections of the unsecured creditors committee of RKO to the company's plan of reorganization have not been met yet and indications are that an adjournment of the first creditors' hearing on the plan, which is scheduled for tomorrow in U. S. District Court here, will be asked by the committee as a result.

Meetings between Carlos Israels, attorney for the committee, which includes the large claims against RKO of the Karl Hoblitzelle interests, and attorneys for Atlas Corp. and Lehman Bros., proponents of the RKO reorganization plan, will be continued in the hope of ironing out the general creditors' objections to the plan.

Otterson on Stand All Day in FCC Probe

John E. Otterson, former president of Erpi, sparred verbally for seven long hours yesterday with Samuel Becker, counsel for the Federal Communications Commission, in one phase of its investigation into A. T. & T., and ringside observers were generally agreed the first round ended in a draw.

The telephone division of the commission, with Paul A. Walker, its chairman, presiding, and Thad Brown beside him, began its probe into A. T. & T.'s connection, through Western Electric and Erpi, with the sound film business, with 45 Broadway as the ring. Becker was seeking to establish that Erpi had developed a monopoly of the sound film field in its early stages, and bent its efforts toward the maintenance of that monopoly.

Play on Keats Is Variable; Good in Parts, Mostly Dull

The prospecting lure in endeavors to eke out a play from the private lives of great figures in the art forms made another attempt at the Lyceum last night, the very theatre which recently housed "St. Helena," or the story of Napoleon on his island retreat.

In that instance, the central character, of course, came from history. The Guild braved the identical idea in "Prelude to Exile," a most unsatisfactory play about Richard Wagner in the "Tristan und Isolde" formulative days. There was also Edgar Allan Poe and "Plumes in the Dust." Now it is poetry and the tragic life of John Keats who lived to love one night and to die in Italy, his fame to be emblazoned on the limitless shields of a time beyond his own.

"Aged 26" is the play and Anne Crawford Flexner wrote it. Young Keats, bedeviled by a gnawing consumption, had just finished "Endymion" and the critical conflict was raging. He is living from hand to mouth and largely on the bounty of his publisher who properly sensed his sole claim to fame would spring from his mentorship of the unappreciated poet. This, the one friend and Charles Armitage Brown, Keat's second. In Fanny Brawne, the sensitive and sickly Keats finds his one love and in her mother, herself seek-

Ostrers to Go With GB Sale In Status Quo

Nicholas Schenck Says Only One Talk Held

Isidore and Maurice Ostrer, president and assistant managing director of G. B., will sail for London on Saturday on the Normandie without any further meetings with Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, and Sidney R. Kent, head of 20th Century-Fox, it was learned yesterday. Thereby, it is indicated, the 20th Century-Fox-Loew-G. B. situation will continue at its present impasse.

"We held only one meeting on the coast with the Ostrers," Schenck stated. "They wanted to buy our stock in G. B. and we refused to sell."

That is where the meetings with the Ostrers ended, according to Schenck, and further than that there is nothing to report. No other meetings are scheduled, the Loew head said.

Meanwhile, it is learned Loew's is proceeding with plans to produce in England. Ben Goetz, who is in charge of production in England, will remain abroad permanently. He has already signed Michael Balcon, former G. B. production head, to supervise the new producing unit recently formed in England.

Arthur M. Loew, first vice-president of Loew's and in charge of all foreign activities of the company, will return from a three and a half month trip abroad on the Berengaria next Monday.

"Rainbow" a $55,000 Draw for Four Days

"Rainbow on the River" looks like the outstanding attraction of a pre-holiday week on Broadway. The Bobby Breen picture took approximately $55,000 in the first four days at the Music Hall. Indications are that the film will hit $80,000 for the week. Originally booked for 11 days, "Rainbow on the River" may be held a full two weeks. Breen is appearing in person in conjunction with the picture, putting in four shows on week days and an additional show on weekends.

Leader in the Broadway lineup last week, which was up to par for this time of the year, "Pennies from Heaven" tallied $45,000 at the Paramount with a stage show. "More Than a Secretary" at the Music Hall took in slightly over $45,000 for the week.

The third week of "Lloyds of London" at the Astor on a two-a-day policy ended with $7,500. "Three Men on a Horse" in its third stanza at the Strand took in about $15,000. "Born to Dance" at the Capitol for a second week garnered $35,000. The second week of "Rembrandt" was good for $22,000 at the Rivoli.

"Banjo on My Knee" and a stage show ended with $39,500 at the Roxy and "Stowaway" will most likely wind up with approximately $36,000. "The Plot Thickens" at the Rialto tallied about $6,000, while the Criterion completed a week's dual feature run, comprising "The Life of King Edward," and "Love in Exile," with $8,000.

First Division Gets $25,895 in '31 Case

Federal Judge Knox yesterday signed an order authorizing the Chemical Bank and Trust Co. to turn over to First Division Pictures the sum of $25,895 and $4,500 to Philips and Nizer, attorneys for the plaintiff. The payment is on an action begun in 1931 by William H. Moore, trustee in bankruptcy of the estate of James Cruze.

The action against First Division was dismissed in June, 1932, for lack of prosecution, but the Chemical Bank has refused to turn over the money because of the failure of the court to remove a restraining order.

The action was based on an agreement between the plaintiff and the defendant whereby the former was to produce and the latter to distribute a picture called "The Great Gabbo." The total amount involved in the suit was $30,399 which was claimed by both the plaintiff and the defendant.

Houston, Dec. 21.—Ray Jones, Majestic manager, pulled a fast one on the abdication speech of King Edward VIII that is still the talk of this town.

Admission Taxes Off Sharply in November

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—A sharp drop in admission taxes collected in November was reported today by the Bureau of Internal Revenue, which placed receipts for the month at $1,605,673.93 against $1,797,278.84 in October.

For the first time since May, bureau records show, collections were under those of the corresponding period a year ago, the month's total being $261,242 under the $1,866,915.42 collected in October, 1935.

As a result in the decline of October collections, the spread between 1936 and 1935 narrowed from $1,873,176 for the 10 months ended with November. For the year through November, collections were $16,262,897.17 against $14,650,962.66 for the corresponding period last year.

Ohio House Extends Tax

COLUMBUS, Dec. 21.—A bill indefinitely extending the present three per cent retail sales and admission taxes, which expire in March, has been passed by the House, 85 to 24. The bill was sent to the Senate, in skeleton session, and given first and second readings, then referred to the Taxation Committee. The upper chamber is expected to pass it this week.

Neither branch made reference to reinstatement of the former 10 per cent admission tax, which had been proposed in some quarters.

Republic product will be distributed in Venezuela, S. A., by Cine Colombia, Medellin, Colombia, in accordance with a deal just closed.

Actors Guild Probes Players' Wage Plan

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 21.—Possible legal action against at least two studios may result from the current investigation of the Screen Actors' Guild into the alleged practice of signing veteran players on a guarantee agreement basis whereby the studios guarantee the actors at least three days' employment weekly at $10 a day. M-G-M and Warners are charged with being the principal offenders.

The studio unions are also joining the Guild in the checkup on the practice and are seeking the cooperation of the Los Angeles Central Labor Council.

It is contended by the Guild that the studios seek to create the impression that they are aiding the relief fund in providing employment for the players when actually the actors do work worth $200 in the course of a week for small compensation. If suits are filed the Guild will base its complaints on the State Industrial Welfare Act., Sec. 16A, and on the NRA agreements which the producers agreed to maintain.

Of the deals objected to, 99 are said to be in effect at M-G-M and 75 at Warners.

Writers and Actors To Stay on Relief

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—All needy actors, musicians, writers and artists will be continued on relief, it was declared today by Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins in refutation of reports that industrial conditions have so improved that many on the rolls will be dropped.

Hopkins' promise was made in a letter to Sherwood Anderson in response to an inquiry as to the future of artists now on the rolls, in which it was pointed out that "the artist class is always the last to feel the benefit of improved conditions."

The Administrator called Anderson's attention to a new ruling that no one in need of relief was to be taken from the rolls. The Federal theatre will be continued.

Sues Chain for Libel

DES MOINES, Dec. 21.—Harold M. Cooper, resigned chairman of the Iowa Liquor Commission, has filed suit for $200,000 against the Central and Iowa Broadcasting Cos., claiming he was libeled in speeches made over WHO last Oct. 25 and over WMT last Oct. 29 during the political campaign. Cooper names as co-defendants Verne Marshall, who made the speeches, and the Cedar Rapids (Ia.) Gazette, of which Marshall is editor.

Cooper is alleging that an impression was intended that he violated the Iowa liquor act; that he attempted to influence a Linn county (Iowa) jury in February, 1935; that he was convicted of a crime in Sturgis, S. D., 24 years ago whereas "he was held innocent, the case being dismissed," and that he accepted bribes while holding the liquor position.

Each charge was called false in the suit.

The first two sponsored programs on the new coast-to-coast Mutual network, which will be inaugurated on Dec. 29-30, will consist of the following:

The Health Products "National Amateur Hour," starting Jan. 3 from 6 to 6:30 P.M.

The Murine Co.'s "Listen to This," which bows in over the new nationwide web on Jan. 5, from 8:30 to 9 P.M. The time on both is E.S.T.

Two other programs are tentatively set, although the contracts have not yet been received. They are the Mennen-sponsored "Famous Jury Trials," and the Grove Laboratory-sponsored news comments by Gabriel Heatter.

Another strong immediate possibility for the new network is the current WGN program known as "How to Reduce to Music." Bayer Aspirin, through an agency believed to be Blackett-Sample and Hummert is now working on the deal to bring the program to the complete network.

Meanwhile, the plans for the gala two-day Mutual-Don Lee salute have been completely set up. Mutual's program highlights have already been published in this department.

The inaugural gets under way on Dec. 29 at 10 P.M., E.S.T., when Commissioner Anning S. Prall, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, will read President Roosevelt's message of welcome to Mutual on the occasion of the network's coast-to-coast expansion. The commissioner will also personally welcome Mutual.

As the highlight from the California end, Don Lee will present Edward Arnold in a 20-minute radio adaptation of his current film "John Neade's Woman" over KAJ. Original atmospheric music as the background for the portrayal will be supplied by Felix Mills' orchestra. Conrad Nagel will act as "em cee."

KFRC, San Francisco, will cut in later in the evening with Claude Sweeten's orchestra. A novelty stunt will be a tour of San Francisco's Chinatown telephone exchange. A switchover will then be made to KGMB, Honolulu, where native entertainers will carry on with the entertainment.

Network Gross Still Rising

NBC's revenue for November was $3,438,616, or 29.5 per cent over the corresponding month last year, and compares with the all-time high of $3,696,489 set in October of this year. The network's gross total for the first 11 months of 1936 was $30,935,248, or 9.5 per cent above the corresponding period of 1935.

CBS's billings for the month represent an increase of 44.2 per cent. The company estimates that its 1936 total will approximate $23,289,000, which would compare with $17,637,805 for 1935.

Mutual anticipates a gross time billing of approximately $2,000,000 for 1936, which will represent an approximate 55 per cent increase over last year's figure.

Pope to Talk

The combined networks of NBC and CBS will carry Pope Pius XI's Christmas message on Christmas Eve at 6:15 A.M., Thursday. The broadcast will emanate from the Pope's study adjoining his bedroom where he has been confined by illness.

It is expected that Mutual and many of the local independent stations will be hookedin for the address.

Verbal Tilts Mark Raking Of Erpi Past

stand when the hearing resumes today, proved himself adept at parrying the verbal jabs of Becker, although the latter scored several times. With a mass of documents at his disposal, Becker attempted to draw from Otterson the admission that two clauses in the first licensing agreements concluded with producers and exhibitors, on recording and reproducing equipment respectively, were designed principally to foster the control by Erpi of the sound film field. The two clauses were that referring to interchangeability, and that on restriction.

Becker first established that the restriction clause, which provided that pictures produced with Erpi-licensed recording equipment could be reproduced only on Erpi reproducing equipment, had been a feature of the original contracts. He demanded to know if the real reason for the restrictive clause was to avoid possible competition, and Otterson replied that it was not.

Holds Methods Strictly Legal

Becker tried again and again to get the response from Otterson which he desired, on the question of what he called Erpi's desire to make the sound film field exclusively its own. Again Otterson refused to agree. Otterson's consistent reply to Becker's questioning was to the effect that Erpi was interested in obtaining the maximum business of the sound film field, "by every legitimate and legal competitive method."

Memoranda, letters, telegrams and cables, involving Otterson, David Sarnoff, RCA president at the time; Edgar S. Bloom, then president of Western Electric; General James G. Harbord of RKO; Paul Cravath, of Cravath, de Gersdorf, Swaine and Wood, attorneys for RCA, and a number of others, flowed through Becker's hands as he bore down on the other important point, the so-called interchangeability clause in the license agreements, which provided that Erpi-recorded product could be reproduced on other equipment only if that equipment was equal in quality to that of Erpi.

Interchangeability Defended

Otterson, under questioning, declared the clause was Erpi's method of protecting the industry from the effect of poor equipment, while Becker insisted that Erpi consistently refused to take a definite position on interchangeability. Becker asked what was to determine the quality of other type types of equipment, and Otterson replied it had not been specified.

The uncertainty among exhibitors as to whether they could play all product if they installed other than Erpi reproducing equipment, as a result of the Erpi licensing agreements, Becker contended, was deliberately stimulated and fostered by Erpi to maintain its position in the field. This Otterson denied.

The questioning was chiefly concerned with the licensing agreements in negotiation originally with the producers in the spring of 1927 and running through the conclusion of these agreements, and the subsequent modification in the interchangeability clause in 1928. Factual data relative to the conclusion of the deals and subsequent developments were brought out, with a constant stream of jabs and parries carried on by Becker on the one hand, and Otterson on the other.

The chief point which Becker attempted to establish relative to what he characterized as Erpi's unwillingness to permit the acceptance of other equipment as to quality was its effect on RCA, Erpi's major competitor in the field. In August, 1928, Becker brought out, a test of the RCA equipment was held at the Astor Theatre in New York. Whitford Drake of Erpi, cabled Otterson, then in Europe, according to data inserted in the record by Becker, that he could find no basis of criticism of the RCA equipment. Otterson's reply, it was indicated by Becker with documents, was to the effect that under no circumstances was Drake to indicate approval of RCA equipment, or to take any steps, if they could be avoided, until Otterson's return to the United States.

That embodied the line of questioning pressed by Becker, while Otterson, often noting a failure to recall details, continued to maintain that Erpi's actions throughout were designed merely to further its attempts to acquire all the business in the field which it could secure through legal, legitimate competitive means.

Becker still was attempting to prove monopoly through Erpi's use of the interchangeability clause when Chairman Walker called a halt for the day.

Otterson is scheduled to resume the stand today, probably to be followed either by H. M. Wilcox, former Erpi vice-president, or R. E. Anderson, former treasure of the company.

Becker told MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday that the hearings will run today and tomorrow of this week, and the first three days of next week, when he expected to conclude. The Erpi investigation here is a continuation of the A. T. & T. investigation which has been carried on in Washington up to this time.

Court Is Told RKO Majority To Favor Plan

the plan by debenture holders has been assured already.

Rickaby's statement was made during a hearing on a petition by Irving Trust Co., trustee of RKO, for leave to offer $700,000 to the Orpheum Circuit bankruptcy trustee for a clear title to all of the latter's going assets. The proposed offer was approved on behalf of Atlas-Lehman.

Joseph M. Cohen, attorney for holders of approximately 200,000 shares of RKO stock, did not oppose the petition but urged the court to bear in mind the possible effect of the proposed cash disbursement on the equity of stockholders in RKO assets. O. C. Doering, of counsel to the RKO trustee, countered that the acquisition of a clear title to the Orpheum assets was believed to be in the interest of the company and its creditors.

The petition was also approved by Carlos Israels of counsel to the unsecured creditors' committee of RKO.

In reply to a question by Cohen, Doering said that the Orpheum assets were now being operated at a cash profit, but were showing a net loss after all charges. Judge Bondy reserved decision on the petition which, if approved by the court and accepted by Orpheum creditors, would make possible the winding up of the latter's affairs with an indicated cash realization of 30 cents on the dollar for the creditors. There are virtually no assets in the Orpheum estate at present except those now held by RKO, whose title to them is contested by the Orpheum trustee.

Looking 'Em Over

"Four Days' Wonder"

(Universal)

Delightful may seem an inadequate adjective in describing "Four Days' Wonder." Jeanne Dante, who captivated New York theatre audiences last season, offers a sterling performance which should hold film audiences in like manner. The story is an exciting and kaleidoscopic adaptation from the A. A. Milne novel, dealing out whimsy, humor, drama and farce in quick succession.

Building from irritating domestic difficulties between Miss Dante, her aunt, Margaret Irving, and her sister, Martha Sleeper, the story in successive flashes speedily moves along when Miss Irving is accidentally killed. The young girl, in her adolescent, unfounded terror, runs off when she finds the body. Then in troops Walter Catlett, the police inspector, with his daffy deductions. His laughable intrusions set off the main events which mount to a whirlwind finish, not, however, until he has pinned the non-existent crime on practically the entire cast. Throughout the film there are evidences of fine directorial handling that bring out satirical effects, young romance and hilarity.

The expertly selected supporting cast includes Alan Mowbray, Charles Williams, Spencer Charters and Kenneth Howell. They do handsomely. Sidney Salkow directed. The script was fashioned by Harry Thaw and Michael Uris.

Production Code Seal No. 2,678. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"Stormy Trails"

(Colony)

Cattle thieves, the threat of foreclosing a mortgage, a wayward brother and the other elements of westerns, plus double-crossing double-crossers, are contained in this film. It is properly diverting, exciting and has its quota of thrills.

Rex Bell, the heir to valuable ranch property, has his difficulties with a gang of murderers who are seeking to kill him. In their efforts toward this end they kill a sheriff and Bell's brother. But a little later Bell discovers his enemies and with gunplay and fisticuffs he settles accounts. Lois Wilson supplies romantic opposition of a quality which is at least adequate.

The cast includes Bob Hodges, Earl Dwire, Earl Ross, Roy Williams and Lane Chandler. Sam Newfield directed.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 61 minutes. "G."

"College Holiday," opening at the Paramount tomorrow, was covered by wire from Hollywood Dec. 17.

"Janosik," which goes into the Filmarte the same day, was reviewed Nov. 10.

"Jungle Princess," tomorrow's final opening at the Rialto, was previewed from the coast by wire Nov. 18.

"After the Thin Man," a Christmas Day opening at the Capitol, was reviewed from Hollywood by wire Dec. 4.

"Gold Diggers of 1937," starting its run the same day at the Strand, was another Hollywood preview Dec. 4.

"Sing Me a Love Song," Friday attraction at the Criterion, was reviewed Oct. 9 by Hollywood wire.

"Counterfeit Lady," which the Globe plays beginning Saturday, was covered Dec. 3.

Short Subjects

"Pathe Topics, No. 3"

(Radio)

Scenes of The Flying Dutchmen, a trapeze act, rehearsing new tricks, in slow motion and showing some of the intricacies of the stunts fill the first part of this short. Doctor Rockwell does the second act with a monologue in a somewhat humorous vein on "The Abundant Life." "Alpine Carnival" closes the reel with spectacular scenes of winter sports in the Bavarian Tyrol. A nicely entertaining collection. Production Code Seal No. 01,398. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Plane Devils"

(Columbia)

A very effective and thrilling issue of the News World of Sports which features a history of flying showing many important historical flights made in the early days. Parts of the film are exceptionally well filmed, particularly the final sequences of stunt flying. Production Code Seal No. 01,315. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Graveyard of Ships"

(Van Beuren-Radio)

A stark, forbidding atmosphere is created by the scenes in this number of "The World on Parade." Brilliantly photographed on the sands about Cape Hatteras, the shots of the toll of the sea's fury convey a dramatic punch which will hold audiences. With interesting material, it should go over well. Production Code Seal No. 01,259. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Hurling"

(M-G-M)

With the customary Pete Smith narrative, the Celtic sport is here given in all its conflict, excitement and with horseplay. Well photographed and cut, there is interest and humor in practically every frame. Production Code Seal No. 2,756. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Dizzy Ducks"

(Mintz-Columbia)

Not much excitement or novelty in this cartoon, but it does prove divert-horseplay. Well photographed and cut, gunning for duck and they manage to get involved in awkward and, after a fashion, humorous situations with the birds. Production Code Seal No. 2,734. Running time, 6½ mins. "G."

"The Pups' Christmas"

(Harman Ising-M-G-M)

A suitable and well conceived color cartoon for presentation during the approaching holidays. Concerning the puppies' adventures on Christmas morning, there is considerable excitement created as they snoop and dodge the toys. It is very well done. Production Code Seal No. 2,885. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

Erpi Wins New Trial In Old Alaska Suit

A re-trial of an Erpi action involving the company's right to repossess Western Electric sound equipment for non-payment of money owed has been granted Erpi by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit, it was stated through Western Electric headquarters here yesterday.

The action was originally brought by Erpi in 1931 against W. B. Gross, theatre owner in Juneau and Ketchikan, Alaska. Following a jury trial last year, judgment for counterclaims amounting to $58,436, plus attorneys' fees and costs, was entered in Gross's favor by the District Court for the Territory of Alaska.

In rendering its decision on Erpi's appeal, the circuit court reversed the judgment of the lower court and granted a new trial, according to the Western Electric statement.

New Sound Advances Predicted by Knox

Further gains in sound recording and reproduction are in prospect for 1937, H. G. Knox, vice-president of Erpi, said yesterday.

In viewing the prospects for the coming year Knox predicted further extension of the volume range, with the possibility of automatic volume expansion, further advances of both general and selective studio pickup equipment and a refined recording technique.

Play on Keats Is Variable; Good in Parts, Mostly Dull

ing his affections, an enemy far more implacable than the literary carpers who pillory his work.

Financially strapped and physically not far behind, Keats is compelled to go to Italy, but spends his last night in England with Fanny; then departs, knowing full well he is not to return and leaving his epitaph behind him.

In plot, this is the beginning and the end. It is, obviously pretty slim pickings on which to build and sustain an evening's play. The author, however, tried as well to depict the mental sufferings of a finely attuned and beautiful mind, its agitation and its unhappiness and, in a measure, succeeded. But only in a measure. For "Aged 26," in some ways an improvement of the other plays grooved in the identic pattern, is, nevertheless, burdened down with many of their faults. Those faults, it might be said, appear by this time to be inherent in the difficulties of the subjects and in the inordinately evasive job of turning them into plays that will hold up. This new one, for all of that, is as quiet in its mood as a 20th century-ite is wont to look upon the days of 1818 in which Keats lived.

In acting, this effort does nicely. Robert Harris, to this reviewer, conveyed some of the anguish which must have been Keats'. Linda Watkins made a pleasant and attractive Fanny Brawne; Kenneth MacKenna, a good Armitage. Matthew Boulton, as the kindly publisher, did very well and Leone Powers was effective as the sharp and conniving Mrs. Brawne.

"Aged 26" hovers somewhat uncertainly between the good and the not so good with a slight shifting to the port, or dullish, side.

operators of a lottery is not severe enough to halt the practice. The maximum penalty is a fine of not more than $100, he pointed out.

Matheson declared he also plans to prosecute all persons who advertise games of chance in Rock County. A warning to exhibitors to discontinue games of chance has, to date, been ignored.

The Wisconsin statutes provide that all winnings in connection with lotteries shall be forfeited to the state and may be recovered by action brought by the attorney general. Matheson declared he would not take action against past winners.

Kansas Houses End Drawings

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 21.—Dodge City and Hutchinson, Kan., theatres have discontinued Bank Night and similar cash giveaways following pronouncement Dec. 12 by the Kansas Supreme Court that the scheme violated the lottery laws of the state.

Only one county attorney has shut down on bank night, according to R. W. McEwan, Kansas distributor for the promotion. This was the county attorney at Hiawatha, in Brown County.

Permits Memphis Giveaways

MEMPHIS, Dec. 21.—After reading a recent opinion of the Tennessee Supreme Court, City Judge Carter declared that Memphis theatres holding Bank Nights are operating within the law, as are drug stores and filling stations giving weekly prizes.

"The court doesn't look with favor on the practice," Judge Carter said, but declared that under our statutes they are operated within the law.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 21.—An application for a rehearing has been filed with the Court of Appeals by Charles G. Schanchell, in behalf of his minor son, in the Bank Night case against the Lewis Amusement Co., Inc., operators of the Florida. Protests Develop on New Canada Charges

OTTAWA, Dec. 21.—At the first hearing of the Copyright Appeal Board here recently, theatre owners joined with hotel keepers and radio stations in protesting that the fees proposed for 1937 by the Canadian Performing Rights Society were excessive, unfair and improper. Following a hearing, Justice A. K. MacLean, chairman of the board, announced it will make whatever changes in the tariff it considered appropriate.

Col. John A. Cooper, president of the M. P. Distributors and Operators, objected to the proposed penalty of 25 per cent for late payment of fees and to the society's regulation that all fees be paid anually in advance. N. A. Taylor of Toronto, representing indipendent exhibitors, said it was a hardship on small theatres to pay the whole sum in advance. Other interests presented objections on points affecting their peculiar conditions.

"Love on Run" Beats Frisco Strike Slump

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21.—"Love on the Run," dualled with "The Case of the Black Cat," triumphed over all kinds of adverse conditions here—the ship strike, which has made money scarce; Christmas shopping, which takes most of the money still in circulation; a shipowners'-strikers' debate at the Civic Auditorium attended by 12,000, and an Opera House "Believe It or Not" lecture. The gross was $18,000, up by $5,000, at the Warfield.

Eased Italian Restrictions Expected Soon

Word on Expanded Film Market Awaited

A freer market in Italy for American exporters is seen in the new regulations governing shipments to that country which are expected to be made public shortly by the State Dep't. at Washington.

The anticipation is that the amount of lira which the Government will permit to be sent out of the country will be very appreciably increased and the number of pictures shipped in also will be augmented by an extremely generous percentage.

Currently, the Italian officials will not allow more than 8,000,000 liras out of the land while the number of pictures allowed American distributors is held to 48 annually. The situation was gone into when Will H. Hays was in Rome recently at which time, it is understood, the more liberal regulations were agreed upon.

MGM Sales Policy Flexible, Rodgers Assures U.M.P.T.O.

Clarifying an understanding reached between a committee of the U.M.P.-T.O., represented by Lewen Pizor, president; Charles Segall, chairman of the board, and Abe Sablosky, and William F. Rodgers, general sales manager of Loew's, and Tom J. Connors, eastern division manager, on percentages and preferred playing time of M-G-M product, Rodgers, in a letter to the organization, states:

"We emphatically advised you that our policy was flexible and that we had not and did not intend to lay down any prescribed formula that would represent the only basis on which our product could be leased. We told you that our policy of merchandising M-G-M product was sufficiently flexible to meet any condition.

"We have a desire to have only satisfied customers, and want only a fair deal," the letter reads. "We expect every penny the product is worth—no more and no less. We do not wish one dollar to which we are not entitled.

"It was mentioned, because you brought it up, that to give us terms we were seeking invites other distributors to solicit equally as favor-

Radio Causes Rain

Cincinnati, Dec. 22.—The year's oddities in radio news should include the "rain-making tower" of WCKY, L. B. Wilson's local station, the 350-foot tower of which caused rain to fall for four consecutive days around its 30-foot base. Investigation developed that the top of the tower, which was in the midst of rain clouds, was condensing the moisture and causing the rain.

Erpi Service Charges Under Fire in Probe

Erpi's service charge upon exhibitors was an unwarranted method of obtaining revenue, it was charged in effect yesterday at the second day's hearing of the investigation into Erpi's operations in the sound film field by the telephone division of the Federal Communications Commission.

Samuel Becker, special counsel to the commission, of which two members, Paul A. Walker, division chairman, and Thad Brown, were present,

Conciliation Boards Await Majors' Stand

Delay on MPTOA Replies Holding Up Action

Delays of major distribution companies in replying to the M.P.T.O.A.'s trade practice program are adversely affecting the setting up of local conciliation boards, even in territories where the establishment of a board may be requested, it was stated yesterday by a proponent of the boards.

The administration expenses of the boards will be borne by distributors, it was pointed out, and until the major companies have formally made known their approval of the conciliation machinery, have voted the necessary funds for their establishment and maintenance and have cooperated in the selection of personnel little or no progress can be made in actually setting up the boards.

At the present rate of distributor action on the M.P.T.O.A. program, exhibitor leaders do not expect the boards to be in operation on any extensive scale before spring and of little practical use to exhibitors until the 1937-'38 season, it was said.

Loew Report Goes To SEC; No Detail

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—Lacking all financial data, which, the company explained, it had not had time to compile, Loew's, Inc., today filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission its annual report covering the fiscal year ended Aug. 31.

In explaining why it omitted the required lists of holdings of stock by officers and directors and salaries paid officers, as well as its financial statements, the company pointed out that

Warners, Musicians In Philadelphia Pact

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 22.—Warners and local musicians today came to an agreement, ending the strike which had extended for nearly three months. Although the terms of the agreement were not made public it is reported that the musicians have been guaranteed $25,000 additional on their total yearly salary.

The Earle will return to a stage show policy Friday. The Fox will again have an orchestra but no stage show is planned at the present time.

Critic, an Eye on Yuletide, Dismisses New Play Quickly

Dot, who once charmed snakes in the sideshow, was after bigger things including front-page streamers in the newspapers. Carlotta, who used to shake her hips with more on the inside for a dime admission, tried Aimee's revival plan. Nicky, a gangster with a reform complex, was after less mention in print. Clarence Class, a whole vine-full of Ivy Lees, was the bird who did the super-charging, who controlled the head writers, not to say their managing and their city editors.

Well, this is one headline Class couldn't control. Also a short and succinct review, for that matter. The truth is that "All Editions," described as a comedy by Charles Washburn and Clyde North, is as wild-eyed a rampage of fruitless goings on as could be assembled in one play, performed atrociously on one stage in one evening. Washburn, in the life, is a theatrical press agent. Really, he should have known better, which is about as gentle a dismissal as the onrushing Yuletide spirit will allow.

The theatre? The Longacre, if the information is essential.

ITOA Concentrating Upon Labor Problems

Labor problems will occupy the attention of a number of I.T.O.A. members today at two meetings, one a board of directors' meeting, which is to be held at the Astor this afternoon, and the second a committee meeting with Allied and Local 306 at Howard S. Cullman's office at 9 P. M.

Members of the theatre organization are concentrating their activities on labor before any other problems will be taken up, it was declared yesterday. Although Fire Commissioner McElligott has threatened an ordinance to ban smoking in theatres, the I.T.O.A. is sitting back until a measure is introduced.

Indications are, however, that in the event McElligott is successful in having a bill against smoking introduced, the organization will oppose it.

Plans are being made for the annual ball at the Waldorf on Jan. 16.

There will be no general membership meeting this week. One is tentatively scheduled for next Wednesday, but it is likely the session will be postponed because of the proximity of New Year's.

Slump on Broadway Hits Tax Receipts

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—Reduced theatre attendance in the Broadway district was responsible almost entirely for the $191,600 drop in admission tax collections from October to November, it was disclosed today by Deputy Commissioner of Internal Revenue George J. Schoeneman.

November collections in the third New York district were $394,756.24 compared with $578,973.90 in October, a drop of $184,217 or nearly all of the loss in total collections, which dropped from $1,797,278.84 to $1,605,673.93.

Figures made available today by the Internal Revenue Bureau showed that the November Broadway collections, the lowest since August, compared with October receipts as follows: Box-office admissions, $346,631.60 against $537,411.06; free or reduced rate admissions, $7,340.31, against $2,004.88; tickets sold by brokers, $4,896.78 against $4,166.77; tickets sold in excess of the established price, $1,037.05 against nothing; permanent use or lease of boxes, $28.90 against $30.63; admission to roof gardens and cabarets, $34,821.60 against $35,360.56.

Order Record Transcript

A transcript of records of both the U. S. District Court and the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in the Paramount reorganization proceedings will be filed in the U. S. Supreme Court in Washington, under an order signed yesterday by Federal Judge Coxe.

The records are required by Louis Boehm and Archibald Palmer, attorneys for stockholders, who are appealing against the decision by Judge Coxe and the Circuit Court disallowing their claims for fees for alleged services rendered in the proceedings.

Can Withdraw Funds

Through error it was stated in yesterday's MOTION PICTURE DAILY that $30,000 in First Division funds had been released by court order. As a matter of fact, the court order merely permits funds now on deposit with the Chemical Bank & Trust Co. to be withdrawn upon consent of First Division or its attorneys. The funds total approximately $13,000, the balance having been withdrawn some time ago.

Skouras to Make Tour

Spyros Skouras, operating head of National Theatres; Edward Zabel, his assistant, and William T. Powers, film buyer, will leave either Jan. 10 or Jan. 15 for a two-week tour of operating centers. Key cities to be visited on the flying visit will include Kansas City, Milwaukee, Seattle, Denver, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Name Jersey Receiver

UNION CITY, Dec. 22.—Capital Theatre Amusement Co., which owns the Capital and State here, has gone into receivership, listing assets of $1,362,513 and liabilities at $793,775.

RKO has the two theatres under a long term lease. The State is closed.

Delay Allied Meeting

No Allied of New Jersey meeting is scheduled until after the first of the year. A date will be set for the first 1937 conclave of northern New Jersey theatre owners after Jan. 1.

Set "McClure" Week

Kansas City, Dec. 22.—They like Harry McClure in Topeka. The week of Dec. 20-26 was set aside by proclamation of Mayor Herbert G. Barrett as "McClure Week," and in newspaper articles and elsewhere Topekans were urged to attend Fox theatres and help the McClure and the Topeka district to win first place in the circuit's 17-week contest. The winning district gets the lion's share of $12,500 in prizes.

Hodes' Bank Night Opinion Ambiguous

CHICAGO, Dec. 22.—Police Commissioner Allman of this city, who today received from Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes a legal opinion concerning the legality of Bank Night and other giveaway games, expressed inability to derive from the letter any definite opinion on the question of law involved. Hodes wrote:

"In reply to your letter of Dec. 7 requesting an opinion as to whether Bank Night, Screeno and Rolleo, as described in your letter, are in violation of the Chicago municipal code, please be advised that while no additional charge is imposed for the privilege of participating in these games, they are offered for the purpose of encouraging the public to patronize the theatre during the period of economic distress and they constitute chance distribution of money, gifts, etc., within the preview of Sec. 190, one of the revised Chicago code of 1931."

After reading the letter several times, Allman asked, "Why don't they say in plain English that those things are, or are not, a violation of the law."

Allman plans no action until the Hodes' opinion has been clarified.

Curb New Toronto Games

TORONTO, Dec. 22.—The gambling craze among residents of New Toronto, an industrial municipality close to Toronto, became so intense that, on the protest of theatre owners and merchants, Police Chief Hedley Padgett clamped a ban on Bingo, Keno and other games of chance which were being sponsored by clubs, churches and alleged charities. The games will be permitted in future on a restricted basis, it was announced. Theatre managers claimed that places of amusement paying heavy taxes were deserted when the club and church gambling was at its unchecked height.

Show "Beloved Enemy"

Most of the daily and magazine critics and many others turned out yesterday for a showing of Samuel Goldwyn's "Beloved Enemy" in the ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria. The screening was followed by a cocktail party in the East Foyer.

The film will open at the Rivoli on Christmas Day.

Johnston May Return

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 22.—John Leroy Johnston, former head of the Universal publicity department, may return under Marc Lachmann, newly appointed head there.

Hoffman presented the guest of honor a handsome gift.

George W. Curtiss Dead

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 22.—George W. Curtiss, who took the first motion pictures in Kansas City, on May 15, 1897, died Dec. 20 at the age of 71. The camera used by Curtiss was of French make. Curtiss prophesied talking films before 1900 and himself experimented with sound by using a phonograph. He invented several types of motion picture cameras, and was widely known for his experimentation with still photographs.

W. E. to Pay $1.50

A dividend of $1.50 per share was voted yesterday by the board of Western Electric. It is payable Dec. 28 to stockholders of record Dec. 24.

Edgar S. Bloom, president, said the dividend was declared after consideration of the provisions of the Federal Revenue Act of 1936 and should not be taken as an indication of a continuing dividend policy.

Ampa Party a Sellout

A sellout is indicated for the Ampa lunch in the College Room of the Hotel Edison today. Late yesterday it was decided to add to the gayety by giving out Mickey Mouse handkerchiefs, Shirley Temple novelties, TerryToon balloons and M-G-M noisemakers. The proceeds will go to the Film Daily Relief Fund.

Roxy to Present Gifts

All children visiting the Roxy on Friday, Saturday and Sunday will receive a chocolate confection gratis. "Stowaway" with Shirley Temple is being held a second week and will be replaced by "One in a Million" on New Year's Eve.

Dubbing Contract Signed

Parties Aid Chicago Poor

Perry Charles Party Guest as a Farewell

Perry Charles, a Loew veteran and in recent years in charge of publicity for WHN, the company's station atop the Loew State Bldg., leaves for Hollywood Saturday to take over radio publicity at the studio. Al Simon succeeds him locally.

Yesterday Loew and M-G-M executives tendered him a luncheon at the Astor. Among those present were E. A. Schiller, Louis K. Sidney, I. Frey, Marvin Schenck, S. H. Meinhold, Si Seadler and Herb Pettey.

Alter New Coast Show

The new Chase and Sanborn Sunday night program, "Do You Want to Be an Actor?" a west coast favorite for the past year, has been revamped in two instances. The changes include a new 22-piece orchestra and a definite screen test promise to winners by Warners whose casting director, Max Arnow, sat in formerly, as on Sunday, but heretofore did not hold out definite test promises for the screen.

The current contract is understood to be for 13-weeks with options for three years at 15-week intervals. The purchase price is understood to be $5,000 weekly.

Networks Deny Censor Gag

All three major networks yesterday denied that a formal censorship existed in radio, as charged in a study of the radio situation by the American Civil Liberties Union. A composite of the answers to the charge is to the effect that the only criterion that governs radio is one of "good taste."

The Civil Liberties Union brochure entitled, "Radio Is Censored" and written by Minna F. Kassner and Lucien Zacharoff, cited 70 "authenticated" instances of radio censorship and as a remedy for the situation urged further Federal legislation to insure greater freedom of the air.

5 Shows Renewed

Two hours of renewal programs have been signed by Standard Brands, Inc. They are "One Man's Family," popular west coast script show, and the "Royal Gelatin Hour" starring Rudy Vallee's orchestra. Both programs are handled by J. Walter Thompson Co.

Other network renewals include the Shell Union Oil Corp. program, J. Walter Thompson agency; the "Kreuger's Musical Toast" program, Milton Biow & Co. agency; and the Modern Food Process Co. "Dog Heroes" program, the Clements Co., Philadelphia, agency. All programs are NBC presentations.

Jimmy Braddock Absent

The whys and wherefores are not known at the moment but Heavyweight Champion Jimmy Braddock did not make his scheduled appearance on last night's Tastyeast program. No announcement was made on the air explaining his absence. Instead, a new show titled "Unsung Champions," was substituted.

Replacement for "Melodiana"

Beginning Dec. 28, the "Melodiana" program starring Abe Lyman's band, will be replaced by a program to be known as "Sweetest Love Songs Ever Sung." The series will feature Natalie Bodanya, Metropolitan Opera soprano and Frank Munn.

Pearce and Chandler, New Ford Shows; Replace Waring

The long-awaited decision as to who would succeed Fred Waring on each of the two Ford programs currently occupied by the Pennsylvanians is at last on hand. Al Pearce and Gang, plus an orchestra headed by Larry Nash, have been nominated to take over the 9 to 9:30 P. M., E.S.T. CBS spot beginning Tuesday, Jan. 5. The Friday night NBC-Blue niche has been reserved for Rex Chandler and his 43-piece orchestra beginning Jan. 1.

N. W. Ayer placed both programs in the face of presentations made by practically every advertising agency in the business. Ayer did not represent Waring, the latter having acted as his own agent. The Al Pearce program will be known by the title "Watch the Fun Go By." The Chandler series will be billed as "Universal Rhythm."

There is a grand human interest story behind the signing of Rex Chandler, which isn't generally known. His real name is Chandler Goldthwaite, and he has long been a personal friend of Edsel and Henry Ford. He is a veteran broadcaster known for his organ specialties. At present he is featured on an early morning NBC sustaining program.

Worthy of more than passing note is the wide scope of Chandler's general contract with Ford. He has been appointed personal music advisor to the Fords and at their request has been named general music director of the N. W. Ayer agency. This latter position, it would seem, gives him control not only of the NBC program but also of the CBS series featuring Larry Marsh's orchestra.

Additionally, Chandler will have full control of the Ford Motor Company's music activities for the coming World's Fair in New York. This indicates that his contract is for at least three years.

The Pearce contract, it is understood, has been signed for some time. Freddie Rich auditioned with the Californian, and it was generally accepted that he had been signed with Pearce. Many reasons are now percolating about Radio Row as to why he was not signed.

The price paid by the Ford Motor Co. for the new talent is not known at the moment, but unquestionably it is far below the $13,500 per week paid to Waring.

"Mammy" Still Good

The new Al Jolson program wrote its own review last night and it was a favorable one.

The old mammy-shouter proved in his new series' debut that there's life in the old boy yet by giving one of the best performances of his career. Not far behind him in talent were rowdy Martha Raye and Sid Silvers who gave evidence that if they had to take a back seat they'd take it only for a Jolson. And let it be noted that Victor Young's music was more than a filler. It rated.

A surprise visitor on the program was Ruby Keeler, who was in tap form. This is another way of saying that Ruby offered several choruses of ear-filling rhythms as Hubby Al sang the accompaniment.

Martha Raye, as usual, was noisy but infectuous. Her offering of "You Came to My Rescue," plus her contribution to an opera burlesque, was greeted enthusiastically by the studio audience and by at least one loud speaker adherent.

More shows like this one and they will be able to toss away the studio applause signs.

The series is sponsored by Lever Bros. in the interests of Lifebuoy and Rinso and is heard Tuesdays over CBS at 8.30 P.M. E.S.T.

Exhibitor Awaits Ruling

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 22. — Oscar Johnson's application to the FCC for license of a 100-watt station in his Rivoli, Falls City, Neb., was heard this week by Ralph Walker in Washington. Johnson owns the Electric and Rivoli and says in conjunction with the latter theatre the station would cost about $7,000.

The only fly in the procedure is the fact that a Kansas City station now operates on the same 1,310 kilocycle wave length for which Johnson has applied. Johnson, previously having asked for full time operation, is now willing to take it only on a daytime basis.

Erpi Service Charges Under Fire in Probe

made the indirect charge in the course of his examination of H. M. Wilcox, former operating manager and then vice-president of Erpi, under the regime of John E. Otterson as president.

The hearing yesterday covered three major phases of Erpi's sound equipment operations, in the course of which Becker sought to further substantiate the basic premise of the inquiry, that Erpi developed, and strove to maintain, a monopoly of the sound equipment business. The first phase concerned the so-called double royalty provisions of the Erpi license agreements with producers, in the interpretation of which, Becker sought to point out, Erpi attempted to keep competitive equipment, especially that of RCA, off the market. Otterson's testimony, continued from Monday, featured this part of the inquiry. The second phase had most specific reference to the cross licensing agreements with RCA, and Becker sought to draw from John H. Ray, formerly Erpi and Western Electric legal chief, and now A. T. & T. general counsel, the admission that Erpi arranged a licensing settlement with RCA only after RCA had drawn complaint papers in a proposed anti-trust action against Erpi, based on its licensing agreements.

Servicing Discussed

The third and final phase of the day's hearing concerned Erpi's contracts for service, parts and replacements with exhibitors, and during which Becker quizzed Wilcox severely. At the close of the session, Becker had not completed his examination of Wilcox, who will resume the stand when the hearing opens today.

Wilcox testified under questioning that he was loaned to Vitaphone on a leave of absence from Erpi in 1926 and 1927, and that he left Erpi in 1935 to join Otterson as his assistant when the latter went over as president of Paramount. The basis of Becker's sharp questioning was an obvious intention to prove that Erpi's compulsory service charge was a means of obtaining money in unwarranted fashion, since, Becker attempted to bring out, exhibitors were forced to pay a weekly service charge, while the amount of service, and the schedule of service visits by Erpi engineers was left entirely to the discretion of Erpi, and was not provided for specifically in the service contracts.

Injustices Alleged

Further, Becker declared, Erpi was legally entitled, under the service contracts, to force the exhibitor to take new parts whether or not he signed an order for such parts. Various memoranda and letters were introduced into the record by Becker tending to support his contention. Among the letters were those from Nicholas M. Schenck, as head of the Loew circuit, and Harold B. Franklin, then president of F.W.C., the first to Otterson and the second to Whitford Drake, Erpi executive, asking reductions in the service charges for the circuit. Also independent exhibitor complaints were entered in the record.

Becker sought to obtain from Wilcox the admission that the F.W.C. matter was settled by the "resignation" of Franklin from the circuit.

The compulsory service change was changed for an optional type in 1933, Becker brought out, by a supplementary agreement whereby service would be rendered only on request from exhibitors, to be executed sometime in 1935 by virtue of a two-year optional arrangement.

Becker introduced a series of figures indicating Erpi's annual gross revenue and profit from theatre servicing from 1928 to the first half of 1936.

The average number of theatres serviced in 1928 was 451; in 1932, 5,457, and in 1935 it dropped to 4,745.

The revenues and profits were:

Year	Gross	Profit
1928	$ 950,000	$ 70,000
1929	3,375,000	125,000
1930	5,500,000	1,100,000
1931	5,000,000	965,000
1932	4,500,000	1,062,000
1935	3,000,000	270,000*
1936†	1,200,000	130,000*

†Six months. *Loss.

The figures were indicated by Becker as approximate, but approved by Erpi. Wilcox admitted the drop in revenue was due chiefly to the elimination of the compulsory service contract.

In October, 1934, according to a document submitted by Becker, Wilcox, in a memorandum to C. W. Bunn, general sales manager, suggested that Erpi seek to bolster its servicing revenue by offering to service the equipment of competing manufacturers.

Earlier testimony by Ray and Otterson, under questioning by Becker, had to do with Becker's attempt to show that on the basis of the phrase "technical information supplied by Erpi," the company was enforcing what amounted to a double royalty on producers. The negotiation with RCA leading to the agreement finally concluded, were gone into in detail, and Becker sought to get admission that the delay in negotiations was deliberately fostered by Erpi officials, since such delays were to the advantage of Erpi.

The hearing will recess after today until next week when sessions will be held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Chairman Walker told MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday that the A. T. & T. hearings in Washington, of which these are a part, probably will be resumed either on Jan. 4 or Jan. 11.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Plough and the Stars"

(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 22.—This is an artistically produced and capably acted adaptation of Sean O'Casey's play. It is distinctive class entertainment.

As was the case with "The Informer," the public must discover the film's quality. Experience gained by exhibitors in selling that picture should stand in good stead in overcoming the problems certain to be encountered in marketing this.

In essence, the story is a personal drama told against a background of marital conflict. The locale is Dublin during the 1916 uprising. The motivation focusses attention on Barbara Stanwyck and Preston Foster, who present their characterizations with understanding and conviction. Barry Fitzgerald, Una O'Connor, J. M. Kerrigan, Bonita Granville and Erin O'Brien-Moore contribute effective performances.

Much credit for the power of the film is attributable to the sets designed by Van Nest Polglase, to Joseph August's superior photography and to Roy Webb's stimulating music score. Also, Dudley Nichols' screenplay and John Ford's direction emphasize the bitter drama with its contrasts of Irish humor.

Miss Stanwyck's love for her husband, Foster, transcends her devotion to the cause. In a welter of military action where death is sudden Miss Stanwyck's every thought is for Foster's safety. Pleading, as all women plead whose men fight and die, she cannot swerve Foster from his avowed purpose of standing true to the cause to which he has dedicated his life. Comforter of those whom sorrow has stricken harshly, her one solace is a brief interlude in which she enjoys the companionship of her husband, who, she knows, will shortly go forth again to renew the centuries-old battle for liberty.

The film's sombre quality is relieved by a humor that makes it seem true to life. Sold as a human document which can reach down from the screen to make audiences believe in the characters, the picture may rank as a commercial venture on a par with the success achieved by "The Informer."

Flexible Sale Policy Stays Says Rodgers

able terms and I remarked at the time that it was unfair, in my opinion, to penalize us for making good pictures. We are not interested in what other producers or distributors receive for their merchandise and by the same token other distributors should not be interested in our terms, but I do prophesy the suggestion that attempting to fashion their quotations along lines similar to ours, that they should and would no doubt be willing to give theatres a like assurance of protection.

"This writer did say we were interested and hoped that every account with whom we did business would play our product profitably, but naturally, having no control or voice in the operating expense of theatres, we are not in a position to guarantee profit. It naturally follows, however, that theatre owners generally expect to make money on the merchandise they handle and I am sure we could not have satisfied customers who would lose money on our product.

"This writer expressed a very definite assurance of a square deal for all at all times."

At the meeting with the three Quaker City exhibitors at the M-G-M home office, an agreement was reached that no literature on the discussions held would be released until Rodgers saw it and made whatever corrections were made as to an understanding.

In the latest issue of Contact, house organ for U.M.P.T.O., both the letter to Rodgers, and his answer are printed. In the same issue are four signs printed which are to be used for picketing theatres which violate a date strike called for Jan. 2.

Fulton Theatres Tip Kansas City Scales

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 22.—The W. D. Fulton theatres here, the Southtown, Tivoli, LaSalle, Colonial and Mokan, are leading the way toward higher admissions in Kansas City. The average scale, here, including first runs, has been slightly over 16 cents for several years.

Beginning this week dime nights have been eliminated from the Southtown, which has gone to a straight 20-cent price; the Tivoli also is 20 cents straight; the LaSalle has eliminated all but two dime nights a week, giving it a 15-cent price five nights; and the Colonial and Mokan (at the latter there has been one night a week at seven cents) are now 15-cents straight.

This represents the first move of any importance, not only in Kansas City, but in the territory as a whole, to tip admissions as a result of generally improved business conditions. There probably would have been more of a movement in this direction before had the area not had a drought last summer.

The first run Tower, according to William Reinke, manager and part owner, will shortly go to 25c-35c instead of the present straight 25c. If the Fulton is successful and prices stay up, it is a foregone conclusion that other independents will follow.

Conciliation Boards Await Major Stand

dent, is due here some time in January to engage in a further effort to speed distributor action on the boards. Inasmuch as he now plans to attend the Presidential inauguration in Washington on Jan. 20, he probably will not be in New York on the boards' mission until after that date, it was said.

Proponents of the boards see their establishment retarded not only by distributor inaction, but also by a lack of understanding of the aims and functions of the proposed conciliation machinery among exhibitors throughout the country. This lack of information is said to be responsible for actual hostility to the boards among some exhibitor groups, even in localities in which a need for an industry agency to hear and resolve trade practice grievances is admitted, it was said.

Big Shows Eliminate Any Lull at Houston

HOUSTON, Dec. 22.—Encouraged by an experiment last December which was profitable, P. J. O'Donnell of Interstate Theatres, Inc., splurged on attractions for this December, and is finding his policies justified by box-office returns.

O'Donnell decided in the fall of 1935 to fight the pre-holiday jinx with big pictures.

This year Mr. O'Donnell booked into the Metropolitan the second week in December, John Boles in person; Mlle. Corinne, apple dancer, and her stage unit, and an average film. Two weeks before Christmas without a midnight show or playing a holiday, the Metropolitan's attendance and receipt records fell. Previous house record was slightly more than $17,000 for an eight-day run which included two midnight shows and one holiday. The big December show pulled more than $18,000.

"Love in Exile," with a big radio publicity campaign that tied it in with the love troubles of King Edward, brought about $11,000 to the Missouri.

Polish Industry in New Theatres Drive

By R. SELLEI

WARSAW, Dec. 10.—Producers and distributors in Poland have launched a movement to increase the number of film houses in the country. With a population of 34,000,000 there are only 750 theatres.

The basis of the drive is the introduction of portable film shows, similar to those in use in other countries, as a means of popularizing the screen in the outlying districts. A second factor in the movement is a petition to the Government for a reduction in taxes. They consider the present basis, on seating capacity, unfair because often a small house will do proportionately better business than a large theatre.

Two railway lines in the country, those between Warsaw and Zakopane and between Krakow and Gdyynia, have introduced film showings. Special cars seating 60 have been attached to all trains on these lines for the screenings. Travel and tourist propaganda films only are being used at present.

Drop in Erpi Parts Revenue Is Described

Poor Quality Was Cause, FCC Hearing Told

The total gross revenue derived by Erpi from its repair and replacement business on sound film equipment in theatres dropped from a high of $1,627,000 in 1930 to a low of $293,000 in 1932, and that drop was caused chiefly by the inadequacy in quality and high level in price of Erpi replacement parts, it was pointed out yesterday in the third day of hearing before the telephone division of the Federal Communications Commission, in its study of A. T. & T. and Erpi operations in the sound film business.

The figures and deductions were brought out by Samuel Becker, Milwaukee attorney who is acting as special counsel for the F. C. C., in the course of his examination of H. M. Wilcox, former operating manager

Columbia Employes Given Bonus Checks

Columbia yesterday distributed approximately $75,000 in bonuses to its employes throughout the country. Last year the Christmas gift was limited to home office workers earning $40 and under.

According to the plan this year all employes earning up to $25 a week were given a full week's salary and to those receiving a weekly stipend above $25 and under $100 got checks amounting to $25.

A series of salesmen's bonuses will be awarded during the "Columbia-Montague Sweepstakes," the company's annual sales and liquidation drive which will be on from Jan. 17 to May 1. In addition, grand awards will be made to campaign leaders at the end of the drive.

The campaign this year has been named for Abe Montague, sales manager. The final of four midseason sales meetings is scheduled to be held in New York in two weeks. Date and hotel have not yet been set.

Keller-Dorian Color Film Compares Well with Others

By SHERWIN KANE

Three selected subjects employing the Keller-Dorian color screened in the Music Hall projection room yesterday permit the process to be compared favorably with any now in commercial use.

The three subjects selected for the demonstration were "La Beguine," produced by Paramount in its Paris studio; the overture from Wagner's "The Flying Dutchman," and a single reel of camera subjects selected at random.

The first reel employs Kodacolor, a Keller-Dorian process adapted especially for 16 mm. use. Two Martinique native dances, one a solo and the other by a dance team, are presented against a simple stage setting. The color, in consequence, does not involve variable subjects, being confined to facial and costume features, which are uniformly clear and authentic.

The camera subject in the operatic overture is a seacoast. In this, surf shades are reproduced in a high degree of natural color, deep water shades are less impressive and contrasts between sky and sea colors are not well defined. In the final reel, the

Sale Tax Case May Go Over To February

Hearing of the major distributors' appeal from the application of the New York City sales tax on film rentals may be delayed until February, it was indicated yesterday.

Originally scheduled for next month in the Court of Appeals at Albany, delays on the part of Frederick H. Wood of Cravath, de Gersdoff, Swaine & Wood, special counsel to the distributors, in completing the appeal brief, may make it impossible to get the case on the court's January calendar. Wood's brief has not been

Miss Cornell Excels in a Play Below Her Artistry

Even your best friend has a cold in New York these days. This reviewer isn't doing so well himself, as a matter of fact. Yet, apparently an astonishing number of heaving chests and rasping larynxes found their way into the plush hat premises of the Empire last night to see Katharine Cornell present Katharine Cornell in "The Wingless Victory" by Maxwell Anderson.

It was all polite coughing, you should be informed early. And the shifting around in the seats north, east, south and west of this reporter was done with aplomb, not to neglect decorum. Nevertheless, the coughs and the shiftings were unmistakably present.

Not without some reason. It would be anti-climactic, if not downright tardy, to let loose on this Christmas an adjectival flood about Miss Cornell, her undeniably great abilities as an actress, her appearance, the thrill in the cadence of her voice, the mobility of her expressions, the eloquence

Italy Ready To Admit 250 Films Yearly

Export of 20,000,000 Lire Also in Plan

Two hundred and fifty pictures a year may be exported to Italy and 20,000,000 lire exported from that country by the terms of new regulations governing American distribution, it is understood. The rules are so liberal that, in effect, Italy becomes a free and untrammeled market for this nation's films.

Third in the major developments effected as a result of recent conferences by Will H. Hays with officials of the Italian Government is the removal of all restrictions on surplus earnings beyond the 20,000,000 lire now set up as the export maximum. It is learned that surpluses will not have to be invested in Italy, as earlier restrictions had provided. American distributors, of course, will be barred from any attempt to send out of that country any portion of such surplus in disguised form.

The increase in exportable lire, under the new arrangement, is 12,000,000, comparing with the old peak figure of 8,000,000. Whereas, American imports into Italy had been limited to 48, the new total of 250 tops by 82 the previous high in any previous full year.

The anticipation now is that the major American companies will immediately resume shipment of prints.

Pool at Minneapolis Will Start Tomorrow

Pooling arrangements between RKO and the Minnesota Amusement Co., affecting six Minneapolis downtown theatres in Minneapolis, will start tomorrow. The half dozen houses involved are the Orpheum, Minnesota, State, Lyric, Century and Aster.

Mort Singer, partner with RKO in the Orpheum, is chairman of the operating committee, which comprises J. J. Freidl and L. J. Ludwig of the Minnesota Amusement Co.

Phila. Pact Raises Total of Musicians

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 23.—With the revealing today of some of the details of the agreement between Warners and the Musicians' Union which ended a three-month strike, it is indicated that the number of men to be employed on at least a part time basis in accordance with the new pact will be more than 100 in excess of the number engaged last year.

The Earle will rush in a stage show tomorrow, instead of Friday as first reported. The Fox will return to stage shows early in January. At the same time the Allegheny, large uptown neighborhood house, will adopt a full week stage and film policy. The Nixon, Frankford and Oxford will get three-day stage shows weekly, while five or six other houses will get one or two-day bookings.

The new agreement will not expire until some time in January, 1938, instead of in September as heretofore. This change was one of the factors prominent in the arbitration. Warners held out for the January date in order to protect themselves during next year's holiday season in the event that there be a renewal of the battle just ended.

THE KEYSTONE OF YOUR FUTURE

"Champ" Braddock Is Defeated by Sponsor

James J. Braddock, world's heavyweight champion, has been defeated by a radio sponsor. The battle took place in an NBC studio Tuesday evening when Braddock, script in hand, was barred from broadcasting by his sponsor, Tastyeast. Jimmy stood by and watched a new troupe inaugurate a substitute program.

Further, J. P. Muller no longer is in charge of the Tastyeast account, the Peck Advertising Agency now having complete control.

Exactly what led up to Tuesday night's developments is not known, although the Muller agency has made some particularly bitter charges. Neither is it known if any escape clauses exist in the Braddock contract which has been reported to be for $1,500 a week for 13-weeks at the usual renewal terms for a full year.

The Muller agency charges that it balked at the sponsors ever increasing demands for wordier commercials on a progam which, the agency says, from the beginning suffered badly in this respect. The agency objected also because the sponsor kept rewriting scripts which already had been approved.

All of which, however, has nothing to do with Braddock personally. Jimmy's dismissal apparently hinges on the popularity rating of his program, which has sagged of late.

The substitute program, entitled "Unsung Champions," was put on the air Tuesday without an explanation as to the reason for Braddock's cancellation. It is understood that the script of the new program did contain a paragraph stating that Jimmy would not be heard because of illness, but NBC refused to permit the reading of the announcement. After all, Braddock was in the studio and apparently enjoying the best of health.

Braddock's program was known as "My Battle with Life." In view of the above developments, radio wisecrackers yesterday were saying it might better have been entitled "My Battle with Life—and a Sponsor."

A. Rolfe, Harry Sosnick and Benny Goodman. A flip of a coin a few moments before the program is to go on the air will determine who will conduct.

Additionally there will be as guests Bill Robinson, the Four Horsemen, of Notre Dame football fame; the Vass Family, Admiral Raymond Pearson Hobson, who bottled up the Spanish fleet in Santiago during the Spanish War, and two Philadelphia families totaling 28 members who will be interviewed en masse by Cook.

Memphis Gasps a Bit

MEMPHIS, Dec. 23.—Memphis is still gasping over the radio boner unintentionally pulled by Arline Judge while here on a visit last week-end.

Grounded on an airline trip to New York, Miss Judge liked Memphis so well that she decided to remain overnight instead of proceeding via a later, more circuitous route to Manhattan.

A guest of several prominent Memphians at a party that night in the ballroom of the Peabody Hotel, Arline was invited by Jack Denny to say a few words over the mike. Not realizing that Denny was broadcasting via WREC at the time, Miss Judge indavertently uncorked a choice flow of verbiage that sent control room engineers scurrying for the switch.

Station was off the air for fully a minute before Denny stepped to the microphone with the announcement that he would dedicate the next number to Miss Judge. Title of the selection: "You Do the Darndest Things, Baby."

Another program which will go over to NBC is the California Chain Store hour, which leaves the Don Lee network on Jan. 3, several days after Don Lee affiliates with Mutual.

These new accounts are the first of eight new programs slated to switch over to NBC by Feb. 1. It is understood that NBC will take over a local theatre because of the west coast program expansion.

Price Hits Censorship

A sharp attack on censorship was voiced yesterday by Joseph M. Price, chairman of the board of trustees of the City Club, coincident with his election to the executive committee of the National Board of Review. He praised the influence of the National Board in the development of intelligent thought concerning the screen, and lauded its method of classification and selection, instead of straight censorship.

A number of tax measures, invoking industry attention, have also been entered for legislative consideration. The Massachusetts Legislature gets under way Jan. 2.

Miss Cornell Excels in a Play Below Her Artistry

in her hands. The word of these has gotten a wide circulation by this time.

But even as sterling an artist as Miss Cornell should not have placed on her strong and eminently capable shoulders the almost complete task of carrying off an evening in the theatre. She is entitled to a vehicle which, if it should have nothing weighty to say for itself, by its construction and by its impact certainly should maintain its pace for whatever period the playwright may have allotted for it. In other words, this department goes insistent long enough to insist that the piece be worth its star.

Story Rather Unwieldy

This does not happen in "The Wingless Victory." Here, Anderson selects Salem and 1800 as his year. Walter Abel is back after seven years of the seven seas with a particular concentration on the waters that wash the Indies. Miss Cornell, a Malayan princess who had defied her father, a sultan of the Celibes, is with him as his wife, together with their two children. The dramatic development swings slowly and, it is regrettable to have to report, ponderously around the immediate conflict which tears back and forth. Arrayed on the one side are icebound Salem town folks—represented at large by all of Abel's family except one younger brother and the local girl who once loved the seafarer, now returned a wealthy man. On the other is Miss Cornell, proud in her own right, ready to bow a willing knee to the strange customs of a chilly people whose ways she does not know, but whose selfishness she quickly enough grasps.

Moving inexorably toward its climax, the hastening circumstance is a threat to reveal how Abel acquired his vessel with connotations of piracy and a hangman's noose in the offing. But, as important, is the reassertion of his native New England narrowness which recoils under the failure of his own people to accept the Malayan wife. Actually, the piracy menace gives him his excuse to urge their separation. On the vessel that is to take Miss Cornell, her children and her servant to her own world, that night the stoicism of the East dictates to them that they shall die. Black hemlock does it, but not before Abel, this reviewer no longer crediting the strength of character the first act gives him, attempts to heal the break. The play ends on a note of complete despair for him and the author's conclusion that only death will bring him solace for the vacillations of his earthly existence.

The chief theme, developed often by beautiful prose which is Anderson's forte, is the reiterated exposition of the old one about the east and the west and their dogged determination not to meet. It has been done before, as all and sundry must know by now. There might be read into it, Anderson's scoffing of the alleged superiority of the Aryan, too, the writer's scorn of the Hitler philosophy. But that might be carrying symbolism further than the intent.

Being all very well as it is, the conclusion also is that it is not well enough. Not for last night's evening and not for Miss Cornell. Abel came back from Hollywood for this part. He apparently came back with a rush, a swagger and a propensity for "acting" that stamped his performance as something considerably removed from the desirable. This department liked Effie Shannon as the mother, Kent Smith as the prosecuting reverend and brother and Myron McCormick as the youngest of the males in the family.

Theme Not New

This department, to finish this off now, was also reminded very strongly of a something written by Joseph Hergesheimer some years ago. It was called "Java Head" and had the same general story idea. Paramount made it with Leatrice Joy, which gives you an idea of dates, and recently it was re-filmed in England with Anna May Wong in the lead.

Miss Cornell? That's different. They've been trying for a long spell now to persuade her about films. It would be a ten-strike and a further mark of distinction for the entire celluloid institution if some honey-tongued impresario should induce a change of heart.

Short Subjects

"March of Time, Vol. 3, No. 5"

(Radio)

The first part of this reel might hold the avid interest of entertainment seekers, or an audience after enlightenment on serious problems. Titled "Girls in Business," it unreels as a pictorial probe into the economic difficulties the young woman faces when she arrives in New York to begin her career. The imperative facts which face her existence are shown, minus the gloss. Finally, the social services say "Unless you have enough money to support yourself in the city for a full year, stay home."

Of different import is "A New China," the second part. Quite up to the minute, it presents the work and ideals of Chang Kai-Shek, who is getting no little space in the newspapers for the past week. Taking a definite stand the film reveals his past efforts to build up his country for a stand against the encroachment of Japan. In its quickly succeeding flashes it is exciting in a revelatory manner. No production code seal. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"Knights for a Day"

(Universal)

That trio of amusing monks, Meany, Miny and Moe, play Santa Clause to a family of unfortunate ducks in this cartoon, which should prove a nicely timed offering for the approaching holidays. The monkeys raid the Christmas Eve setup of Henrietta Hen and bring it to the poor family. The indignant Henrietta seeing the happiness she could bring forgets the affair and joins in the merriment. Production Code Seal No. 2,770. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

The Stanley post goes to Alton Rea, former assistant at the Enright, and Paul Williams, from the Cameraphone, takes over Rea's job.

Drop in Erpi Parts Revenue Is Described

and vice-president of Erpi, which was resumed yesterday from Tuesday.

Following the declaration of Wilcox that Erpi's repair business was not profitable, but that the replacement business was, Becker introduced into the record figures showing that the total gross revenue from repairs and replacements was: in 1928, $296,000; 1929, $1,032,000; 1930, $1,627,000; 1931, $857,000, and 1932, $293,000.

Profits were: 1928, $61,000; 1929, $77,000; 1930, $89,000. Losses were sustained in the two following years, amounting to $112,000 in 1931 and $60,000 in 1932.

Becker attempted to prove, by documentary evidence and through examination of Wilcox, that the drop in revenue was occasioned by the fact that Erpi was unable to offer replacement parts which were the equal of those manufactured by competing companies, and that exhibitors were buying outside parts. Wilcox insisted, on the other hand, that the drop in revenue was chiefly due to the depression.

Rule Circumvented

The purchase of parts from companies other than Erpi actually was in violation of the original contract provisions with theatres, Becker said, but Erpi did nothing about these violations, pointing to a declaration from John E. Otterson, then president of Erpi, to the effect that the company no longer could rely on the compulsory purchase of parts clauses in the Erpi theatre contracts.

Becker sought to bring out that this shift in policy followed a letter from Spyros Skouras, theatre operator, to Otterson, in which the former was said to have declared it his belief that Erpi's insistence on the compulsory purchase clauses was a violation of the anti-trust laws.

Becker introduced into the record a series of complaints from exhibitors on the excess repair and parts costs levied by Erpi, the prices for parts being considerably higher than outside supply dealers were asking for superior parts, the special counsel declared.

Testimony brought out that Erpi had repeatedly asked Western Electric to take steps to reduce the cost and improve the quality of the parts manufactured, so that costs might be reduced to theatres. But, Becker contended, the contract by which Erpi was formed as a Western Electric subsidiary in 1926, forced Erpi to buy all its material from W. E. and the Bell Laboratories, which fact in turn forced Erpi to maintain its high charges to theatres.

It was pointed out that when Graybar Electric Co. was underselling Erpi on certain parts, an agreement was finally reached whereby the two firms sold the same part at the same price.

Repair Rates Established

Exhibitor contracts were altered in 1932, it was brought out, so that it was no longer necessary for exhibitors to buy all parts from Erpi, but with the condition that if non-Erpi parts were used, the exhibitor must waive any claim against Erpi relative to the operation of the Erpi equipment in the theatre, and that repairs would be charged for on the basis of $35 per day per man, plus expenses and transportation.

In the course of his testimony, Wilcox declared, "The repair business has always been a headache, and always will be. It is not profitable."

The only solution to the problem, it was brought out, was the reduction of prices or the enforcement of replacement contracts. Prices were cut, it was said, to include a very small margin of profit, but an effort was made to avoid a price war.

R. E. Anderson, former treasurer of Erpi, was brought to the stand, shortly before the close of yesterday's short session, but was excused after brief testimony on the setup and operation of the General Service Studios on the coast, wholly owned Erpi subsidiary. The studio was leased from Educational, it was brought out, and formerly was the Metropolitan Sound Studio. A recording license taken by Christy in 1928 was assigned to Metropolitan with the consent of Erpi.

The hearings will be resumed here on Monday.

$175,281,675

As of Nov. 18, this year, there were pending 22 suits against Erpi involving the anti-trust laws, with aggregate damages asked, figured on a triple-damage basis, of $175,281,675, it was indicated yesterday in the course of the F.C.C. investigation of Erpi, by Samuel Becker, special counsel to the commission.

The figures were obtained, he said, from Western Electric in response to a question on the matter.

Keller-Dorian Color Film Compares Well with Others

subjects selected offer a wider range of color and the results are frequently impressive.

The Keller-Dorian process probably achieves its best effects in blue and shades of blue and in flesh tints in closeups. These appeared to best advantage in the demonstration subjects and were the most often utilized. In distance shots facial outlines are no more clearly defined than they are in other color processes. Sponsors of the Keller-Dorian color, however, claim that no makeup is required for photographing with their process and assert as well that the projection machine used for the demonstration was not specially equipped for the showing.

With the color results on the screen comparing favorably with other color systems now in use, the outstanding advantage of Keller-Dorian color would appear to be centered upon the economies claimed for it. Its makers assert that color negative costs are as much as 80 per cent less with Keller-Dorian; that print costs are about two-thirds less; that rushes are available on approximately the same time basis as for black and white, and that it requires a minimum of extra equipment for camera and projection machines. A wide shutter for cameras and a filter for projection machines are said to be the only essential basic extras required in the use of the process.

Foreign Interests to Control

Negotiations are now under way for use of the Keller-Dorian process in five features to be produced by a major company next year, it was said. Control of 70 per cent of the company's outstanding stock is scheduled to pass to European financial interests under an option to purchase 350,000 shares, which may be exercised in the near future, according to George E. Quigley, former vice-president of Vitaphone, who is fiscal agent for the purchasing interests.

corporation and in another action brought by a Milwaukee stockholder it is charged that the 1931 RKO refinancing plan under which the company's old Class A stock was exchanged for new common was an invalid procedure. The company's present plan of reorganization is attacked by the stockholder on that basis.

Judge Bondy yesterday postponed to Jan. 14 the scheduled first hearing of RKO creditors on the reorganization plan. The postponement was requested by attorneys for the unsecured creditors' committee and was not opposed by any other creditor groups. Hearings on several other petitions which had also been scheduled for yesterday were adjourned to Jan. 14, as well.

Sale Tax Case May Go Over To February

completed yet and the calendar will be made up during the next few days. If the brief is not filed by the time the calendar is published there would be little likelihood of the case being heard before February, it was said yesterday.

The appeal involves an assessment made by the city against the rentals collected by the local United Artists exchange, which was contested by the law firm of O'Brien, Driscoll & Raftery, counsel for the distributor. On appeal from the city's assessment the Appellate Division held that film rentals collected from theatres within the city limits were subject to the tax, but that rentals collected by the local exchanges from theatres outside the city were not. The appeal from that decision is now being taken to the Court of Appeals with major distributors, who regard the United Artists assessment as a test case, retaining Wood to represent all local distributors.

City Also to Appeal

The city itself is appealing to the same court from that portion of the lower court's decision exempting rentals originating outside city limits. Distributors contend that film rentals are not subject to a municipal tax.

Pending the outcome of the litigation, the tax is being passed on to exhibitors by the local exchanges. It is estimated that the tax liability of the local exchanges is not in excess of $3,000,000.

Sound Services New Erpi English Branch

LONDON, Dec. 14.—The flotation of Sound Services, Ltd., indicates the transfer to a new organization of all those activities of Western Electric Co., Ltd., the British branch of Erpi, concerned with "advertising, propaganda and educational purposes."

E. P. L. Pelly, director, and about 30 members of W. E.'s London staff, will be attached to the new company. Sound Services will have a nominal capital of £120,000 in 20,000 six per cent cumulative preference shares and 100,000 £1 ordinaries.

Fox's Plans

An interested spectator during the session of the F. C. C. investigation into Erpi's sound film business yesterday was none other than William Fox.

Caught by a Motion Picture Daily representative at the elevator, during a five-minute recess at 1 P. M., Fox was asked, "Have you any immediate plans for the future?"

"Yes," responded Fox, "I am going downstairs."

"For lunch?"

"Yes," and the elevator door closed in front of Fox's grin.

Latin America Turns To Films in Spanish

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—Films produced in Latin American and European countries are gaining prestige in Peru at the expense of American films, according to a report to the U. S. Dep't of Commerce from Assistant Commercial Attache A. C. Crilley, Lima.

Last year, the report points out, American film companies accounted for 90 per cent of films exhibited in Peru, a proportion which has declined to approximately 80 per cent.

A feature produced in Argentina which is now being shown in Lima in second and third run theatres has earned more than advertised American features shown in first run houses, the report states.

Schach Sets 2 Films At Outside Studios

LONDON, Dec. 14.—Max Schach of Capitol Film Prod. is staging his next two pictures at Sound City and Welwyn studios. A Tom Walls-Ralph Lynn comedy goes on at Sound City, and "The Lilac Domino," is set for Welwyn.

Schach, who made his first films at British & Dominions' Elstree plant, transferred operations to Denham when the B. & D. studio was burned down. Through his Trafalgar unit, Schach has a United Artists release, but it is not indicated whether his future U. A. pictures will be made at Denham, generally regarded as earmarked for all U. A. British releases. Capitol productions are released through General Film Distributors.

Victoria Film Ban Lifted by Tyrrell

LONDON, Dec. 14.—Lord Tyrrell, president of the Board of British Film Censors, has declared it will be permissible to introduce the figure of Queen Victoria in films released after June 20, 1937. The Lord Chamberlain had previously indicated a similar concession in regard to stage plays.

Following the recent announcement of Herbert Wilcox that he will produce "Victoria the Great," and that of London Films that "Queen Victoria" will be made for September release, Michael Balcon of Gaumont British said the company also would produce a Victoria film, using either the Sil Vara play, "Girlhood of a Queen," or another story.

German Film Import Rules Made Public

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—Conditions under which imports from Germany could be arranged without running counter to the anti-bounty provisions of the Tariff Act were made public today by the Treasury Dept.

Under the regulations, German films might be brought into the country to be paid for, in whole or in part, with the use of controlled mark credits, providing that such credits, from the time they became subject to German Government control, were continuously owned by the person for whose actual account the merchandise is purchased.

The films might be paid for, also, from the proceeds of sales in Germany of pictures exported from the United States by the person buying the German product.

An exchange of merchandise between single German and American parties without any monetary transaction actually taking place also would be acceptable.

Warner 'Change Has Big Christmas Party

The local Warner exchange club yesterday afternoon held an elaborate Christmas party with an orchestra furnishing music while the employes partook of a catered buffet spread. Several executives of the home office attended.

Nat Cohn, New York district manager for Columbia, was host to all of his employes at the local exchange at a special luncheon at the Astor.

The local Paramount and 20th Century-Fox exchanges will hold parties this afternoon. Milt Kusell, New York state district manager and eastern captain for the Zukor Silver Jubilee drive, will return today from Pittsburgh to act as host at the Paramount branch.

Ross, Becker Get New Theatre Profit Jobs

Max G. Felder, president of Theatre Profit Sharing Corp., has appointed Louis M. Boas as representative in Boston and Richard Beck, Chicago representative. Several other appointments will be made within the next week.

J. Krumgold, general sales manager, is in Chicago now, and will spend the weekend in Minneapolis. He is making a tour of the country.

Johnson to Reopen Memphis Orpheum

MEMPHIS, Dec. 23.—The Orpheum, Memphis' finest house, will reopen Saturday as a combination stage-and-screen theatre operated under a 30-month lease by W. H. Johnson, Shreveport capitalist.

The pool of downtown theatre interests under which the Orpheum was closed for a year, with the single exception of a Thanksgiving presentation of George White's "Scandals," by M. A. Lightman, was not renewed upon expiration, and local bondholders made arrangements for the lease to Johnson interests during the past week.

Johnson was represented by Virgil Posey, of Jackson and Shreveport, while J. L. Ross, of the National Bank of Commerce, handled the deal for the bondholders.

Lou Hellborn, of Denver, Orpheum manager under the RKO regime, is returning as manager.

Andre Lasky's "French Revue" is the first stage attraction booked. It will be followed by a unit from the Chicago State-Lake, the Sally Rand touring troupe, Dave Apollon, probably Olsen and Johnson, and Morton Downey, with others to follow as available. Contract for a band was signed with Nate Evans, Memphis maestro.

The management is angling for pictures, with most of the major releases tied up until next fall under present contracts.

Asks Court to Allow Music Academy Bids

Authorization for the acceptance of sealed bids for the sale of the Academy of Music, located on 14th St. in Manhattan, was requested by Milton Weisman, receiver for Fox Theatres, at a hearing held yesterday before U. S. Circuit Judge Martin Manton sitting as a district judge.

Weisman told the court that the theatre is now being operated by Skouras Brothers at a deficit and that on the current plan indications are $200,000 will be needed in the next five years. Skouras Brothers, he said, had made an offer of $100,000 for the property and had deposited a check for $15,000 with him as a guarantee. He said he believed better offers could be obtained in sealed bids.

Weisman also said that he believed that out of the $35,000,000 claims against Fox Theatres $7,500,000 would be allowed. The corporation now has $777,000 in the treasury, he said, and he expressed the opinion that a 10 per cent dividend might be advisable in the future.

Music Suit Is Filed

A suit charging that the song "Midnight in Paris," from "Here's to Romance," plagiarizes a composition known as "Passa I'Amore" by Cesare A. Bixio, and asking $1,000,000 damages for copyright infringement, and an injunction, was filed in U. S. District Court here yesterday.

Plaintiffs in the action in addition to Bixio are the Foreign and Domestic Music Co., Samuel Cummins and the Societa Anonima Musicale Bixio. Defendants named in the action are Twentieth Century-Fox, Movietone Music Corp., Sam Fox, Harry Fox, music publishers; Con Conrad and Herb Magidson, authors of "Midnight in Paris," and Nino Martini.

Chicago Police to Start Games Drive to have all such games stopped within 48 hours.

His decision to take action came after a conference with the corporation counsel, who ruled that such games are illegal in Chicago. State Attorney General Kerner in Springfield today confirmed his earlier decision that Bank Night is "criminal in Illinois." Theatre operators here say they will continue the games until the police stop them. Three hundred theatres here would be affected by a ban on giveaways.

Seek B. N. Injunctions

BELOIT, WIS., Dec. 24.—An injunction to restrain T. M. Ellis, Jr., and Gerald A. Turner, local exhibitors, from using Bank Night or any device of like character is sought in Municipal Court by District Attorney John H. Matheson.

The district attorney is also seeking judgment against J. C. Dillon, who the complaint states, was the winner of the drawing Dec. 18.

Ellis, operator of the Majestic and cooperator with Turner of the State, recently invited the district attorney to start action against him, declaring that he would abandon Bank Night if he was convicted, even though the court assessed the minimum fine.

Stadium Bid For Orpheum Is Approved

RKO Company Will Give $700,000 for Title

Stadium Theatres Corp., a wholly owned subsidiary of RKO, was authorized by Federal Judge William Bondy on Thursday to offer $700,000 for uncontested title to all of the Orpheum Circuit's assets which were taken over by Stadium in 1932. The offer will be submitted to Orpheum creditors by Marcus Heiman, trustee in bankruptcy, in the near future and, if accepted, will permit the winding up of Orpheum's affairs with an indicated cash settlement of approximately 30 cents on the dollar for the $3,100,000 of claims outstanding against the company.

Judge Bondy on Thursday also signed an order which will permit RKO Rhode Island Corp. to retain

RKO Reorganization Objector Files Plaint

It was Edward J. Hickey, an RKO stockholder, who on Thursday filed with Judge William Bondy a petition declaring that the current reorganization plan of RKO is aimed at giving control to RCA and asked that the current court action be dismissed.

Hickey charges that RKO has reclassified Class A stock in a manner causing present owners of Class A to lose three-fourths of their holdings. He further alleges that the stock represented to be held by Atlas Corp. was obtained from holdings of stock illegally acquired from RKO. These holdings, he claims, are bound up and co-mingled with the rights and inter-

Ostrers Sail Today After 2 Months Here

Isidore and Maurice Ostrer, president and assistant managing director of G.B., will sail today for home on the Normandie after spending two months here and in Hollywood.

During their stay, the Ostrers had one meeting with Joseph M. and Nicholas M. Schenck and Sidney R. Kent at which the G.B. executives offered to buy the 49 per cent stock interest in Metropolis & Bradford Trust, holding company for G.B., from 20th Century-Fox and Loew's. The proposition was turned down after the Schencks and Kent evinced little interest in disposing of the M. & B. stock.

What Happened in Radio

The detail makes an interesting resume and will be found in detail on page 3 today.

Twin City Houses Vote Ban on Duals

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 25.—Voting unanimously to maintain a single feature policy 56 members of the Twin City branch of Northwest Allied have signed an agreement by which they promise to refrain from showing double features for one year. The instrument, however, will permit reopening of discussion of the plan after March 7, 1937.

The meeting of independent exhibitors representing an almost 100 per cent Twin City membership was enthusiastic in its support of the single bill program, particularly with "the coming of better times assured."

At the same time, S. D. Kane, secretary of the Allied group, received word from the Minnesota Amusement Co. that it would not use dual bills without giving the independent exhibitors ample time for consideration. The Minnesota circuit now plans to install double features in two loop theatres, the State and Astor.

Mexico Producers Exempt from Tax

By JAMES LOCKHART

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 25.—Mexican producers operating within the Federal District, which includes this city, will be exempt from all municipal taxes, starting in 1937, by the terms of a new Congressional decree.

The measure is a modification of the proposition which Congress rejected earlier, and which called for exemption for all branches of the domestic industry throughout the country, from all Federal, state and municipal taxes. The first proposal was rejected because Congress considered such a drastic measure would mean too great a loss to the national treasury.

The majority of producers in this country have their studios within the boundaries of the Mexico City Federal District.

Para. Dividend Aid For Allied Owners

The recent payment of a $12 per share dividend on Paramount's first preferred stock has enabled Allied Owners Corp. to pay off applications for fees for services in its reorganization, the company advised Federal Judge Robert Inch in U. S. District Court in Brooklyn on Thursday.

Allied Owners reported to the court that it had received dividends amounting to $600,000 on the first preferred Paramount stock which it received in settlement of its claim against Paramount in the latter's reorganization proceedings 18 months ago. Judge Inch set Dec. 29 for a hearing on the payment by Allied Owners of the $298,958 of fees for its trustees, counsel and reorganization committees.

Bill Hitting Theatres Has 3-Year Grace

Gives Producers Time to Unload Holdings

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25.—Producer-distributor owners of theatres will be given a period of grace in which to dispose of their exhibition facilities in the event Congress enacts Representative Patman's bill to divorce manufacture from retail distribution.

Determination to press his fight for further control of trade practices was voiced this week by the Texas Congressman, co-author of the Robinson-Patman anti-price discrimination act.

However, in order to prevent a disruption of business and to give manufacturers now engaged in retail trade an opportunity to dispose of their retail outlets, the new measure would not become effective until three years after its enactment.

Motion pictures will be covered by the bill, by a specific provision that "the exhibition of a motion picture, for a charge, shall be deemed to be a sale at retail."

As did the Robinson-Patman act, the new bill will amend the Clayton Act on the ground, to be expressed in the measure, that it "is necessary in order to protect commerce from restraints and monopolies which result in certain cases where persons are

"Secret Valley"

(Principal Prod.-20th Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 25.—Comedy, romance and action are combined in this different type of western. Fast-moving as are the dialogue and action they are blended with credible individual performances giving a real punch to the story and result in good, average entertainment.

In order to escape an unpleasant marriage with Norman Willis, a gangster, Virginia Grey starts for Reno. Fearing mobster vengeance, she accepts the advice of Jack Mulhall, an attorney, and attempts to hide out on the ranch of Richard Arlen. Experiencing legal difficulties of his own, Arlen is sympathetic. Their relationship ripens into love as Willis and his henchmen endeavor to get hold of her. When they form a combination with Russell Hick, Arlen's enemy, the resultant situations make for tense drama comically contrasted by the antics of Willie Fung to foil Willis.

Arlen calls to his aid a group of ranchers and they join with a detachment of G-men, who are also tracking Willis. A pitched battle occurs which results in the death of Willis and permits Arlen and Miss Grey to work out their collective and romantic destiny.

In her first featured role, Miss Grey gives a good account of herself. Arlen, in a role which in the beginning has him wary of women only to surrender wholeheartedly in the end, does a neat job. The balance of the cast, principally Willis, Sid Saylor, Maude Allen, Hicks and Mulhall, check in with acceptable performances. Dan Jarrett, Earle Snell and Paul Franklin did the screen play from the story of Harold Bell Wright. Howard Bretherton directed.

Overseas Previews

"Pagliacci"

Trafalgar-United Artists

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Karl Grune has done a clever piece of work here, in transposing one of the most popular operas in the world into a film which substitutes real life for stage conventions without sacrificing any of the essential musical values promised by the title.

Additional attraction to the appearance of Richard Tauber in one of the greatest of tenor roles is the fact that about one-third of the footage, including a straight version of the last act of the opera, is in color. The process used, British Chemicolor, is new and its standard came as a pleasant surprise. Nothing so good has been made from a British process before and plenty worse has been sent from America.

Grune has treated the first part of the opera libretto as a film story, has taken it out of the theatre and presented the drama of jealousy between Casino, the tenor; Nedda, his wife, and Silvio, the young cadet, as an episode of the traveling theatre's journey across the Alps in wintertime. This has given reality, variety and a series of striking backgrounds and yet has enabled the songs to be retained without a jolt in the action. There is a particularly fine sequence as the coachload of players, singing, descend from the snow peaks, through the St. Bernard monastery with its big dogs to the market place of Cremona.

Tauber, who sings the prologue as well as his own part, acts admirably and is magnificent in "On With the Motley," which is presented as sung by the broken-hearted clown to his own reflection in his dressing room mirror. Steffi Duna is at her best in the color sequences of the play within a play. Arthur Margetson, not a very sinister Tonio; Esmond Knight, as Silvio, and Diana Napier, Trina, are the other names.

Brainy adaptation and skilled direction has made box-office material of a classic; the liberties taken with the opera are too slight to impair the appeal to the musical public. It looks first-class audience material.

Running time, 90 mins. "G."

Suggests Censorship Of History in Films

LONDON, Dec. 14.—Lord Mersey in the House of Lords asked the Government to institute some form of control over films purporting to present history. Saying Henry VIII had been represented as "a comic buffoon" and that the pre-execution meeting of Mary Queen of Scots and Elizabeth in "Mary of Scotland" was another liberty with fact, he suggested that an officer of the Board of Education should be attached to the British Board of Film Censors to prevent such errors.

For the Government Lord Dufferin and Ava said there were grave political objections to preventing people taking artistic license in such matters, and that it was not possible to intro-

Networks Note Sharp Jump In Non-Sponsored Programs

In addition to writing many millions of dollars more business this year than last, all three major networks show an appreciable increase in broadcasts of international and national affairs, educational, and cultural programs during 1936 over 1935.

Following is a comparison of sustaining programs this year and last of the three national networks:

Incidentally, President Roosevelt made 12 more radio appearances this year than last. His speeches were carried by all three networks. Also, Vice-President Garner spoke over the networks six times this year; not once in 1935.

Mutual Broadcasting System

The Mutual network, two years after its inception, now finds itself on the verge of expanding as a coast-to-coast web. Its highlights, this year and last, in brief are these:

In July 1935, Mutual had 15 hours weekly sold commercial time. A year later, 27¼ hours were sold commercially every week. Mutual grossed $1,000,000 in billings for 1935. For this year billings will exceed $2,000,000.

This year, Mutual's Special Events Dep't completes the first full year of its existence with a total of 345 special broadcasts for the fiscal period. Of the total, 43 were connected with the presentation of spot news as it happened; 57 were of the human interest variety especially by the division.

The remaining programs were presented for national and international events, topical presentations, and the like. Some of the more important subjects covered by the department include the death of King George V, the New England floods, the Lindbergh kidnapping case, the political conventions and election, the Spanish civil war, the world series and other notable news events.

drafted by attorneys for the two unions and the theatre group.

The original basis of the agreement was for the absorption of Allied by Local 306, with a salary increase for present Allied members who are employed in theatres belonging to members of the I. T. O. The recording carried a translation from Italian to English.

Stadium Bid For Orpheum Is Approved

the leases on the Albee and Victory at Providence under a new mortgage agreement which runs to 1956. The agreement eliminates an RKO liability of $287,500 on lease defaults on the theatres in consideration for which Laura F. Albee, to whom the mortgage was assigned, was permitted to file a claim for that amount against RKO and have it allowed at $187,500 in the company's reorganization proceedings.

Acceptance by Orpheum creditors of the RKO offer will give the latter company a clear title to all of the going assets of the old Orpheum Circuit. The equity of RKO and Keith-Albee-Orpheum in Orpheum Circuit assets was assigned to Stadium in 1932, following which that company declared Orpheum notes amounting to approximately $2,800,000 to be in default. Stadium then took possession of the Orpheum assets and has been operating the properties since.

Acceptance Means Title

Several legal actions were threatened by Orpheum subsequently in an effort to regain the assets from Stadium on the ground that the notes assigned to RKO and K-A-O were invalid and that mismanagement of Orpheum properties was involved prior to the latter's bankruptcy. The Orpheum trustee, however, was prevented from prosecuting the actions by a lack of funds. If the $700,000 offer is accepted now, these causes of action would be withdrawn and clear title to the Orpheum assets would be given to Stadium.

Orpheum's preferred stockholders, who have retained Attorney Isidor J. Kresel in an effort to establish an equity for themselves in Orpheum assets, would not participate in the benefits of a liquidation in the event the $700,000 offer is accepted. Indications are that they will lay claim to a right to participate in the RKO reorganization when creditors' hearings on the plan open in Federal Court here next month.

Irving Trust Co., trustee for RKO, presented both the Orpheum and Rhode Island theatre petitions to Judge Bondy through its counsel, Donovan, Leisure, Newton & Lumbard.

Bill Hitting Theatres Has 3-Year Grace concerned with both the manufacturing and retailing of articles or materials."

The legislation will make it unlawful "for any manufacturer or any affiliate of such manufacturer to directly or indirectly transport or cause to be transported, in commerce, any article or material produced by such manufacturer for sale or distribution at retail by such manufacturer or by an affiliate of such manufacturer."

Producers' Theatres Affected

The measure thus strikes at theatre companies which are affiliates of producers as well as at producers directly operating theatres, and considers them affiliates if one has over the other actual or legal control, whether direct or indirect, or any direct or indirect power or influence (whether arising through direct or indirect ownership or control of stock or other capital, evidences of indebtedness, or physical properties or equipment, through contract, lease, or agency arrangements, through interlocking directorates or officers, or through any other means or circumstances, which can be used to affect, in any substantial manner, the policies or conduct of the retail organization).

By giving producers a three-year period in which to dispose of their outlets, Congressman Patman believes his measure can be made effective without disrupting business or forcing losses upon those who become subject to the law. This is probably one of the most important provisions of the whole measure, it being estimated that billions of dollars are invested by producers and manufacturers in theatres, retail stores, filling stations and like facilities. There is hardly any line of trade in which manufacturer-owned stores are not a factor.

State Taxes Cause Worry

Taxes are regarded as of the most immediate concern to the industry in state legislative sessions soon to start.

Indications are that no new Federal taxes affecting the industry will be introduced in Congress at the forthcoming session, beginning Jan. 5.

The legislatures of 42 states are scheduled to convene in January and the 43rd, Florida, convenes in April. The only states which have no legistive sessions scheduled for 1937 are Alabama, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi and Virginia.

Hickey claims that Judge Bondy lacks the necessary full knowledge of the case.

Irving Trust Co., as trustees for RKO, has been granted six months from Jan. 1 until July 1, 1937, in which to disaffirm any lease, contract or agreement in which RKO is a party.

Expect Deluge of Laws Aimed At Broadcasts

Congress, Legislatures to Get Varied Bills

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—A veritable deluge of legislation affecting the radio industry is expected when Congress and 44 state legislatures get under way next year.

At Washington, the eyes of the trade are turned toward the possibilities of repeal of the five per cent tax on radio sales, which with other nuisance taxes is scheduled to expire June 30.

The industry also will be affected by other legislation which is slated to come up in Congress, including the 30-hour week bill, proposed Federal incorporation of all corporations engaged in interstate commerce, revision of the social security act and the

FWC Air, Film Trade Deal Reported Again

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 27.—Reports persist here that Fox West Coast and the Don Lee stations, KFRC here and KHJ in Los Angeles, are negotiating a deal whereby theatre trailers will plug air programs and the stations will advertise attractions at the circuit's houses. February is reported as the effective date of the arrangement.

An indication of the F. W. C. intention to begin a new approach to the public via the air is seen in the fact

Ostrers Staying On; No GB Change Seen

Isidore and Maurice Ostrer cancelled their reservations for sailing Saturday on the Normandie and will remain in New York until after New Year's.

No significance is seen in the delay and there is little possibility of any meeting here with Joseph M. and Nicholas M. Schenck and Sidney R. Kent, it was learned.

Isidore Ostrer told MOTION PICTURE DAILY that the postponment was "for personal reasons." Nicholas M. Schenck left yesterday for Miami for a month's vacation and his brother is not expected from the coast for some time.

Although it was reported the Ostrers would sail for England on the next sailing of the Champlain, this was denied, Isidore stating "we have not made up our mind when we will leave."

Sol Lesser Sails to Make Foreign Deals

Sol Lesser sailed Saturday on the Normandie to negotiate foreign distribution deals for six westerns he is producing this season. He will visit Austria, Czechoslovakia, Switzerland, France and England. He will sail from England on the Queen Mary on Feb. 3.

Just before sailing, Lesser received reports from the Music Hall that "Rainbow On the River" grossed $20,000 on Christmas Day. He was overjoyed at this take as well as other reports on the picture all over the country.

Games in California Legal, Ruling Holds

REDWOOD CITY, CAL., Dec. 27.—Bank Night, Ten-O-Win and Merchants' Cash Night are not illegal under the state and county lottery laws, City Attorney Albert Mansfield told the Redwood City Council here this week after study of the local situation.

The decision is of interest to theatre operators throughout the state, as well as in San Mateo County, because Mansfield's legal opinion was admittedly based on a consideration of giveaways published in the November issue of the California Law Review, organ of the School of Jurisprudence, U. of C. The logical assumption is that other city or district attorneys in California might come to a similar decision based on the same source material.

Mansfield gave no decision on

Police Clamp Down On Chicago Prizes

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—Police Commissioner Allman started his drive yesterday against Bank Nights and other giveaways with the tacit understanding that he would allow theatres a chance for one more drawing before clamping down.

Theatre managers are silent on their plan of action, although it is understood they will go to court and try to get the games organized on a basis satisfactory to the Police Dept.

December Gets Fast Start, But Grosses Fall 2d Week

December key city grosses started off with a rush that brought the total up within hailing distance of the four-year record set Labor Day week. The total for the week ending Dec. 4-5 was $1,946,078. This was for 176 first runs in 29 cities. The record Labor Day week total for 173 houses was $2,090,144.

The pre-Christmas slump set in the following week when the number of first runs dropped off to 172 and the gross fell to $1,613,087. This was the lowest figure since the opening of the season, with the exception of the week ending Nov. 27-28 when many houses switched their opening days for Thanksgiving day and played weak films for six days to take advantage of the holiday rush.

Cullman Seen Chairman for New Roxy Co.

Offer of Post Already Has Been Made

Howard S. Cullman, trustee for the Roxy, most likely will be named chairman of the board of the new operating company to be set up by 20th Century-Fox after the Roxy is reorganized. This is expected about April 1 or April 15. The new operating company will be a subsidiary of National Theatres which is the holding company for all 20th Century-Fox exhibition interests.

Cullman has been offered the post, it is understood, but has turned it down, the reason given said to be that he will not consider any proposals while representing the court in the present operation of the theatre.

Harry Arthur and Jack Partington of Artco also are scheduled to continue with the theatre under a long-term management contract with the new company. Executives of 20th Century-Fox are said to be satisfied with their handling of stage shows and bookings of the house since Cullman brought them into the picture. There have been several talks, but no agreement has been reached as yet.

Arthur arrived over the weekend from St. Louis, presumably to discuss a deal with 20th Century-Fox. A hearing on the reorganization plan presented recently by the Roxy bondholders' committee to Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey is scheduled for Jan. 15.

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 12.—The Dutch M.P. Federation has won an important decision with respect to the use of music in pictures played by theatres. Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

NICE for those letters to continue popping in. Nice, too, on days like Saturday when one of the chief occupations, because of the extended holiday, was looking down from this thirtieth story turret on the ice skaters gyrating and whirling on the new Rockefeller Plaza rink. Lazily, it occurred someone around the 20th Century-Fox office might have Sonja Henie show them how to the usual battery of newspaper photographers. Never mind "One in a Million" which heads into the Roxy in a couple of days. Anyway, the letter, it came from Elinor Hughes, dramatic and motion picture editor of the Boston Herald, is house copy for MOTION PICTURE DAILY, but also something considerable beyond. . . .

This is Miss Hughes:

"I suspect that I am not only taking a good deal on myself, but that I am also a little late. None the less, I have been for some time meaning to write to you and congratulate you on the play reviewing department which you instituted not long ago in your valuable publication.

"Not that I always agree with your anonymous reviewer, but I have read enough to respect his judgment, especially when I remember that he is approaching the New York offerings less as plays than as fodder for films. In particular, I thought his article on 'Stage Door' excellent, particularly in view of the subsequent announcement concerning the purchase price of the Kaufman-Ferber play. 'Stage Door' is in no way an important play and certainly it has nothing in it for Hollywood except its success on Broadway. What can RKO possibly do with a play whose entire theme is the unfortunate effect upon acting and writing talent of the picture business? Yet they paid somewhere in the neighborhood of $130,000 for a name! It doesn't make sense.

"My work is divided between the theatre and the screen—yes, there is a theatre season in Boston and you'd be surprised to find that there are still quite a few persons who pay to see actors in the round—so that my sympathies are also divided. I believe that there is room in the world for both forms of entertainment, but I believe—and I know you do, too—that this indiscriminate buying of successful plays, regardless of their use, is pretty silly. After all, theatre audiences and film audiences are not the same and what makes a good play is by no means sure to make a good picture. Plays still rely on conversation, films on action, and if that seems too primitive a distinction, I suspect that it is, in the main, true.

"'Stage Door' is a hit in New York because it says what the theatre-minded audiences in that city want it to say and because Margaret Sullavan—improved rather than harmed by Hollywood—is giving a nice performance. What will happen to it on the screen, I can't even imagine, but it won't be recognizable, I'm sure. I'm sure also that it couldn't be recognizable and be a good film. None the less, I hope it goes on tour, because even a pretty good play is better than none, and those who can't go to New York should not be deprived entirely of their theatre. Films and plays need not kill each other; they can stimulate business for one another, but they should not go in for slavish imitations.

"I'm afraid this isn't of much interest to you, but I have been meaning for some time to write to you about MOTION PICTURE DAILY which I read regularly and enjoy.

"It's a relief to find one trade publication whose reviews of pictures can be trusted, after acres of tiresome and unreliable blurbs."

The purchase of stage plays, regardless of their use, actually is a pretty silly business, as Miss Hughes points out and as this column, as well, has with persistence. Yet, in all fairness, there is another angle and it is the angle of Hollywood, the feudal land of the caste system and dollar society. You formerly were judged in these parts largely on the rate of your annual income. Today it's the size of the income tax, but the idea is identical. Now imagine, if you can, what might transpire if all the New York stage successes and all the best-sellers were to end up in Louis Mayer's lap. Suppose Dave Selznick did not nab an occasional "Gone with the Wind." Or Sam Briskin, a "Stage Door" and Jack Warner, a "Tovarich"? Social revolution, that's what would result. Everybody would be taking sides, indulging in internecine warfare and nobody would make pictures. Not even bad ones. . . .

is expected. This will range all the way from excise taxes on radio sales to the banning of automobile receivers and the Nevada proposal to require state registration of trade marks.

In anticipation of a busy winter, radio trade leaders already are preparing for the appearance of strong representatives before all legislative bodies considering radio bills, particularly those which would tend in any way to limit the market.

Lawyers to Present "Lincoln" Law Cases

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—With actual lawyers, court clerks, prosecutors and judges taking the places of the customary radio actors, a dramatic series entitled "Lawyer Lincoln," using cases from Lincoln's legal career as material, is to make its bow over WLS at 8 P. Names of the participating men will be revealed for radio listeners.

The "Good-Will Court" was sunk after various legal groups had objected to the participation of lawyers and judges in it. But that, of course, was a commercially sponsored program.

Beginning Jan. 1, Hal Kemp's orchestra takes over the Friday Chesterfield series formerly featuring Andre Kostelanetz. The latter, however, will continue to broadcast for Chesterfield on Wednesdays with Nino Martini.

On Jan. 5, Al Pearce and Gang, supported by Larry Marsh's orchestra, inaugurate a new series for Ford. The following day Myrt and Marge celebrate their return to the air waves by opening in a new series for Colgate-Palmolive-Peet. The program will be heard Mondays through Fridays at 2:45 P. M.

After 10-years of broadcasting exclusively over NBC, Jessica Dragonette will make her widely-heralded debut on the CBS air channel for Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Jan. 13. The time is 9:30 to 10 P. M. Earlier that same morning (9:30 to 9:45 A. M.) Allen Prescott inaugurates a new twice weekly script series for Manhattan Soap Co.

All programs are E. S. T.

Chains Prepare News Dramas

Because two news events are tied for second, third and eleventh places, CBS's "Twelve Crowded Months" program will feature re-enactments of 15 major news events of the year instead of the dozen originally planned. The selections are based on returns from 117 newspaper editors, as well as the press associations and Press-Radio. The program will be broadcast tomorrow night from 11:30 P. M. to 12:30 A. M., E.S.T.

The re-enactments will be the abdication of King Edward (a unanimous choice); re-election of President Roosevelt, the Spanish War (tie); Hitler's re-occupation of the Rhineland, Italy's conquest of Ethiopia (tie); execution of Bruno Richard Hauptmann; floods and drought of last spring and summer; death of King George V; Supreme Court's AAA, NRA and TVA decisions; labor troubles; the Hindenburg and China Clipper flights; Inter-American Peace Conference; payment of soldiers' bonus, Olympic Games (tie); Schmeling-Louis fight.

The Mary Astor case received nods from 16 editors. It will not, however, be dramatized.

NBC, not to be outdone, will also broadcast the headline stories of 1936 over the Blue network beginning at 9 P. M., E.S.T., on New Year's Eve, Dec. 31. The stories, selected by Associate Press editors, will comprise the British Empire crisis (death of King George V, abdication of Edward VIII, and succession of George VI); the national election; Spanish Civil War; conquest of Ethiopia; the war in labor's ranks; business recovery; Germany's re-militarization of the Rhineland; the droughts and floods; the Schmeling-Louis fight; and the kidnapping of Chang Kai-shek.

Short Subjects

"Stranger Than Fiction No. 30"

(Universal)

The usual collection of interesting oddities is again found in this number of the series. Included herein are a natural lemonade spring, a private fire department in Connecticut, reviving lung fish shipped in mud from Africa and a ranger who shaves with an axe, among others. It holds attention. Production Code Seal No. 01,300. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Singing Wheels"

(Van Beuren-Radio)

Automobile racing, from soapbox vehicles to the engineering marvels in the recent race on the Roosevelt Raceway for the Vanderbilt Cup, is covered in this Bill Corum short. The action and danger of the speeding cars, the historical comparison, drivers and other sidelights of the game are well presented in successive camera clips. It is interesting and will please. Production Code Seal No. 01,321. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Stranger Than Fiction No. 31"

(Universal)

Another clever compilation of the unusual. Well edited and cleverly commentated upon, it should make an entertaining and diverting few minutes. This issue among other items includes a dog who pumps water for cattle, the queer storeyard of a lamp post factory, a blind boat builder and stingless bees. Production Code Seal No. 01,301. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Don't Be Like That"

(Radio)

Jack Norton gets himself involved in a series of complicated situations following a spat with Muriel Evans, his wife. Miss Evans leaves to go to her mother and aboard ship there is standard chase and slapstick done in no unusual manner. The fadeout reunion clears the deck for more fighting. Entertaining in spots. Production Code Seal No. 2,430. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"Grandma's Buoys"

(Radio)

A slapstick farce revolving about Zeffie Tilbury's refusal to drink the family product, bottled sarsaparilla. She prefers something stronger. Tom Kennedy and Harry Bowen, sailors on her yacht, lure Miss Tilbury ashore and in a waterfront dive they stage the wow finish, a brawl resulting from inability to pay the check. Moderate stuff. Production Code Seal No. 2,498. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

Games in California Legal, Ruling Holds

Screeno, as that premium game is no longer played in Redwood City since F.W.C. recently acquired the New Redwood. The original demand for prosecution of theatres using games was made by J. C. Chastain, publisher of a local weekly, who charged that they came under the same laws as slot-machines, against which San Mateo County wages a perpetual, if dubiously successful, police campaign.

Coincident with the legal decision, persistent reports around the San Francisco peninsula and bay region are to the effect that many theatre operators are planning to suspend cash payments to patent-holders of Bank Night because of the recent Denver decision that Bank Night is not entitled to copyright protection. C. B. Milton, local representative of Bank Night, however, declares that there is no truth in the reports, and that there has been no change in the local situation as a result of the Federal Court decision.

Drop Bank Night in Mobile

MOBILE, ALA., Dec. 27.—Bank Night has been dropped by the Saenger, Crown and Empire here in view of adverse rulings throughout the country affecting Bank Night drawings. A statement issued by the theatres explained the reason for the withdrawal, and said the game may be revived if the Bank Night situation is clarified.

Conn. Town Bans Bingo

ROCKVILLE, CONN., Dec. 27.—Bingo has been banned in the city by Bernard J. Ackerman, prosecutor. This follows similar rulings in Bridgeport. The Princess, Rockville, which runs Bank Night, is not affected.

the receipts of the Rembrandt here in connection with the showing of a Ufa production. A decision was rendered in favor of the Federation. BUMA was forced to remove the embargo, the court holding that in the contract between the composer and the producer for the use of music, the rights to reproduction are also included.

There were 35 film theatres, with a total seating capacity of 19,333, in Amsterdam at the close of 1935, which compares with 29 houses seating 14,675 in 1933, it was revealed in figures just published. During 1935, a total attendance of 8,400,000 was recorded for theatres in this city, the total gross having been 4,000,000 guilders.

Two newsreel theatres will open in Rotterdam in January, interest in this type of program having increased greatly in the past year.

Erpi's Share In Universal Deal Revealed

FCC Hearing Told Firm Put Up $2,000,000

Erpi participated in the financing of the deal by which Standard Capital Co. took over the control of Universal last spring, to the extent of $2,000,000, it was revealed yesterday in the resumed hearings in the Federal Communications Commission investigation into the operations of Erpi. The study is a part of the F. C. C. inquiry into the A. T. & T.

The Erpi share in the Universal deal was brought out in the course of the examination of Whitford Drake, executive vice-president of Erpi, by Samuel Becker, special counsel to the F. C. C. Drake declared on the stand that the participation was dictated by Erpi's interest in "preventing a crash in that situation," referring to Universal.

At the same time it was revealed that the English group, headed by J. Arthur Rank and Lord Portal, participated to the extent of $2,000,000; that Eastman Kodak financed the deal with $1,000,000, and that the balance of the $5,500,000 total price paid for Universal was contributed by Standard Capital and several individuals.

Drake declared that Erpi "expects to get out of it as soon as it can."

Erpi and Eastman received deben-

Nebraska Expecting Trio of Film Bills

LINCOLN, Dec. 28.—Three bills affecting films are expected at the legislative session which opens Jan. 5.

One will be a renewal of the attempt to force two operators in a booth for houses seating more than 600, another will try a graduated occupations tax on circuit houses and a third will provide for a sales tax.

William Haycock is expected to be speaker of the House.

Arrests Mark Chicago Drive On Giveaways

Police Hold 15 Managers After Drawings

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—Police carried out their Bank Night threat over the weekend by raiding theatres throughout the city. More than 15 managers were arrested and released on bail for hearings today but their cases were postponed until Jan. 15 at the request of Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes, who stated that he plans an "airtight" case against the theatre men.

Circuits as well as independents received police visits. The police waited until drawings had been held, or prizes had been awarded, before making the arrests. Patrons booed.

Some managers advertised the drawings late at night and then held them early to avoid arrests. Others

Parlay Is Held Not B. N. Infringement

BOSTON, Dec. 28.—Holding that Bank Night entered public domain when used in theatres and that therefore it may be adopted by others without infringement, the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals today threw out the infringement case brought by Bank Night against Meyer Gruber and Harry Bloomberg, operators of Parlay Cash Night. Judges Bingham, Wilson and Morton decreed that:

"However good and valuable an idea, plan, scheme or system may be,

Only One New Spot Abroad, Says Loew

Loew's has no immediate plans to build or acquire theatres abroad with the exception of the construction of a house in Amsterdam, Holland, it was stated last night by Arthur Loew, head of the company's foreign department, upon his arrival on the Berengaria from a three-months trip to England, France, Italy, Switzerland and Holland.

The site for the Amsterdam project was purchased while Loew was in Holland and details in connection with its construction will be completed shortly. The executive viewed reports from abroad about the company's building in England as unfounded. He could give no information about M-G-M's producing plans in England,

Coxe Accepts Ruling On Paramount Claim

U. S. District Judge Coxe yesterday formally accepted the ruling of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in overruling Referee John E. Joyce's refusal to allow a claim of the Madison-Toledo Co. against Paramount for $18,000. The court also allowed $403 for court expenses.

The company will make the payment with $9,000 in debentures and $9,000 in first preferred stock.

Flavin Play Bad, Outdated; 'The Women' Is Baudy Fun

"The Woman"

You're apt to feel more than a trifle guilty sitting through "The Women," second Max Gordon play of the season and first in his producing combination with Harry M. Goetz. Maybe, even uncomfortable.

For, in this play by Clare Boothe Brokaw Luce with a man-less cast, 35 women disport themselves nobly and mostly otherwise in a through-the-keyhole, behind-the-scenes festival with amusing results and occasionally

"Around the Corner"

The economists and the curves in practically all indices to industry make it quite clear these days that, if the country is not currently experiencing prosperity, it must be a boom at least. Virtually everyone feels much, much better about things at large.

Withdraw that last statement. There is one who does not, his name is Martin Flavin and he brought his economic philosophy to the stage of the Forty-Eighth Street Theatre last

Theatre Takes Top Last Year From 15%-20%

Loew Grosses Jump 50% On Christmas Day

Circuit grosses over the Christmas weekend were up from 15 to 20 per cent in comparison with last year, according to operating heads of Loew's, RKO and Warners.

Speaking for Loew's, Joe Vogel yesterday stated that the circuit's national business jumped 50 per cent on the Christmas holiday. He also pointed out that last year Christmas fell on a Wednesday, while this year theatres benefited enormously because of the three-day holiday weekend.

"After the Thin Man," he said, broke existing records at the State, Houston, Tex., and Palace, Indianapolis, where "Tugboat Annie" had been the blue ribbon winner.

Nate Blumberg said that RKO showed a 15 per cent differential over the preceding holiday and in many instances where "Rainbow on the River" was being shown the Bobby Breen film was doing record business.

As for the Warner circuit, Harry Goldberg, assistant to Joseph Bernhard, estimated that this year the theatres took in from 15 to 20 per cent more than last Christmas.

An executive of National Theatres, 20th Century-Fox theatre subsidiary, yesterday could not estimate the business, as many of the divisions had not reported by late afternoon.

Leading the Broadway lineup was "Rainbow on the River," which tallied $64,000 in the four-day weekend at the Music Hall. This is $11,000 less than the first week's gross and indicates the film will end up with well over $100,000 on the second week. Breen is appearing in person with

Report Films' '36 Gain $250,000,000

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 28.—Industry grosses were more than $250,000,000 greater in 1936 than during the previous year, according to the United Press.

Theatre attendance reached a weekly average of 81,000,000, a new record, the news service states. In 1935, the weekly average was 71,000,000, while 1933 averaged 54,000,000. These figures have been published in Motion Picture Almanac.

Chief result of the improved business, the article says, is studio expansion by M-G-M, Warners and Radio.

Tri-States Restores 55-Cent Admission

OMAHA, Dec. 28.—Tri-States Theatres, which has changed policy for the recently reopened 2,900-seat Paramount almost weekly, again has raised prices to a 55-cent top, with matinees at 25 cents until 2 P. M. and 35 cents until 6 P. M.

This time the prices will stay up, District Manager E. R. Cummings, announced, but the double feature policy will be retained. The experiment of dropping prices to a 40-cent top, with matinees at 25 cents until 6 P. M., resulted in a great loss of business instead of an increase as had been anticipated, Cummings said.

Your patrons are reading these marvelous notices in advance!

LOUELLA PARSONS, Syndicated to millions of newspaper readers and radio listeners: "Only the genius of Irving Thalberg could give Dumas' 'Camille' the interest and beauty of this brilliant screen translation. Greta Garbo and Robert Taylor excellently teamed."

ALICE TILDSLEY, Philadelphia Public Ledger Syndicate: "Greta Garbo scores a great triumph. Robert Taylor will be hailed again a star in his own right when the public sees the picture. George Cukor's direction one of the finest jobs this year."

PAUL HARRISON, Syndicated to millions through Newspaper Enterprise Association: "A fine picture. Acting, direction, photography and all other studio departments concerned in production merit highest praise. The genuine genius, the hand of Irving Thalberg has created another magnificent motion picture."

THE FILM DAILY: "Great love drama, expertly acted and produced, holds appeal for all types of audiences. Greta Garbo and Robert Taylor in this love drama mean big box-office appeal to all classes of audiences, especially the women from whom it will elicit many a tear. Garbo is beautiful. Her emotional portrayal ranks with her best work. Taylor, handsome as ever, does the best acting of his career. In a production containing as many torrid love scenes as does this picture the dialogue is especially praiseworthy. Lavishly mounted."

HAROLD HEFFERNAN, Motion Picture Editor Detroit News: "The sheer magnificent translation of this classic play to the screen reflects the genius of Irving Thalberg and joins in the cinematic Hall of Fame 'Big Parade', 'Ben Hur', 'Big House,' 'Grand Hotel', 'Smilin' Thru', 'Barretts of Wimpole Street', 'Mutiny on the Bounty', 'Romeo and Juliet' and other great Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pictures."

EDWIN SCHALLERT, Los Angeles Times: "This is indeed one of Irving Thalberg's most ambitious dreams fulfilled. A triumphant realization of the Dumas classic and certainly no performance of Greta Garbo's has ever approached the perfected beauty of her Marguerite Gautier. Taylor, who is starred with her, surpasses any previous effort."

TED MAGEE, Screenbook: "The inspired performances of Greta Garbo and Robert Taylor make M-G-M's 'Camille' a most masterful version of the great classic."

ROBERT WATSON, Canadian, Scotch and English Publications: "Garbo stands alone in Hollywood as an emotional actress. Taylor also excels previous best performance in 'Camille'."

SHEILA GRAHAM, Syndicating to uncounted millions through North American Newspaper Alliance: "Garbo gave the most sensitive performance of her entire screen career. She was gay even in sadness. Her reality of expression was very stirring."

ED SMITHSON, Movie Classic: "Garbo and Taylor give the best performances of their screen careers."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY: "Quality entertainment with strong emotional appeal to all types of audiences."

W. K. GIBBS, Hollywood Magazine: "'The Lady of the Camellias' is given new life by Greta Garbo ably abetted by Robert Taylor."

JACK GRANT, Hollywood Press Syndicate: "An exquisite production of 'Camille' featuring Garbo's most vital performance and Taylor's finest work in his sensational career."

Garbo's greatest role!

Isn't it wonderful! Move on to next page!

"DESTINED TO BE THE GREATEST PICTURE OF THE NEW YEAR", says Los Angeles Times!

"Speak to me, beloved!"

DAILY VARIETY: "With Garbo and Taylor, 'Camille' has magic marquee combination. The love story still stands as one of the most poignant ever told. Production is gorgeous, direction and playing of highest merit to please the most discriminating and the most naive, all of which spells box-office, a smash proposition."

ROSALIND SHAFFER, Chicago Tribune: "Garbo's emotional scenes are the most tender I ever saw on the screen. For a young actor Robert Taylor plays the role of Armand with great polish. This is one of Irving Thalberg's finest contributions."

CARLOS BORCOSQUE SINTONIA, Buenos Aires Correspondent and Motion Picture Radio Commentator of all Latin America: "The prize to the best screen performances of the year and of many years must go to Greta Garbo for her perfect human characterization of Marguerite Gautier in one of Hollywood's most outstanding pictures that is sure to mellow the hearts of the world."

FEG MURRAY, King Features: "Garbo was never more beautiful. She is still the greatest actress. Robert Taylor gives the best performance of his career."

COL. R. A. DUCKWORTH-FORD, Reuters News Agency, England: "In 'Camille' George Cukor has made himself responsible for another masterpiece of poignant artistry with Greta Garbo triumphant and Robert Taylor, Henry Daniell and Lenore Ulric assured of distinguished places in the Hollywood roll of fame."

CLARKE WALES, Screen and Radio Weekly: "A beautiful production of an infallible favorite. It is Garbo's best picture in years and it raises Robert Taylor to new heights."

E. M. BUCHANAN, Correspondent to England: "'Camille' is a poignant production presenting a new Garbo — gay, sportive, immortal — but so fragile and tragic that her performance wrung tears from men. Robert Taylor is handsome and sincere as the romantic lover."

MAYME OBER PEAK, Boston Globe: "An equal with 'Romeo and Juliet' in beauty of production. Garbo reaches new heights as the screen's finest emotional actress. Robert Taylor superb as Armand. The two stars rise to the heights of artistry under the most capable direction of George Cukor."

HARRISON CARROLL, Los Angeles Herald-Express: "I am still under the spell of Garbo's magnificent performance. She reaches the peak of her career and makes all the other glamor stars of Hollywood seem pale wraiths by comparison. If Greta Garbo in 'Camille' is not Hollywood's greatest dramatic actress in her greatest dramatic role then I have been bewitched."

JEANETTE REX, India Correspondent: "An entirely new, vivacious Garbo rises to greater heights in the M-G-M production of 'Camille' in her role opposite the number one romantic screen lover Robert Taylor."

ELIZABETH WILSON, Silver Screen: "I have gone pleasantly mad over Greta Garbo and Robert Taylor in 'Camille'. Garbo's portrayal of Marguerite Gautier is as near a complete triumph as I hope to see. Only Irving Thalberg could have endowed the Dumas classic with such brilliant a presentation."

BARBARA O'CONNOR, Australian Publications: "Outstanding performance by Garbo. The best thing she has ever done, 'Camille' is excellent."

DOROTHY KILGALLEN, New York Journal: "'Camille' is a beautiful and heart-breaking picture. I didn't see Bernhardt as Marguerite Gautier but I don't see how she could have been better than Garbo."

Winning a fortune, but broken-hearted!

HARRY NIEMEYER, St. Louis Post Dispatch: "Greta Garbo's greatest performance."

ELENA DEZARRAGA, Spanish Publications: "Greta Garbo's best picture and probably will be rated the best picture of the year. Marvelous in every way."

LOVE! THE MAGNET THAT WILL DRAW THEM BY THE MILLIONS!

Press reports blanket the earth! A fortune couldn't buy them!

ALLAN HERSHOLT, Denmark and Norway Correspondent: "I believe 'Camille' is superior to the play. Extraordinary from every standpoint. Garbo gives the outstanding performance of her career."

IVAN SPEAR, Box-Office: "Among the score of highly laudatory observations that might be made concerning 'Camille'; it definitely establishes that Greta Garbo is still the number one exotic lady of the screen."

AGNES BLAIR, Hollywood Motion Picture Review: "Most beautiful and realistic love story. Picture should draw great raves from the country over."

EMIL BERBERICH, Central European Correspondent: "Performances of Garbo and Taylor are outstanding. Indeed 'Camille' as a whole is an outstanding picture."

SHOWMEN'S TRADE REVIEW: "Love story splendidly acted and produced; box-office bulls-eye. Filled with the emotion of great love. Brought to life by the artistry of Garbo and Taylor. Taylor gives his best performance to date and his fans will be fully satisfied. Garbo looks like the Camellia flower for which she is named."

J. D. SPIRO, Screen and Radio Weekly: "'Camille' with Garbo and Taylor should be one of the big box-office successes of the year."

FRANCIS CROWE, Hollywood Citizen News: "Two highly dramatic events stirred Hollywood yesterday. One was the sad farewell of Edward to his people. The other Greta Garbo's return to the American screen. Never a 'Camille' more lovely, more life-like or more heart touching."

"Crush me in your arms till the breath is gone from my body!"

RALPH WILK, Film Daily: "Greta Garbo and Robert Taylor in this superb love drama will mean big box-office. Its appeal extends to all classes."

EUGENIO DE ZARRAGA, Correspondent to Spain and Japan: "The direction is superb and the acting by all is perfect."

HARRY MINES, Los Angeles News: "The greatest performance Garbo has ever given. Destined to be the greatest picture of the New Year."

LLOYD PANTAGES, King Features: "Undoubtedly the greatest Garbo picture to date and the greatest Camille of all with the possible exception of Sarah Bernhardt."

PAZ VANMATRE, St. Louis Star: "As tender and poignant a love story as the screen has seen. Garbo is magnificent and Robert Taylor easily turns in his best performance to date in the role of Armand."

GUY AUSTIN, English correspondent: "Taylor gives a superlative performance as Armand to Garbo's Camille. This 'Camille' surpasses everything that has been done before and represents the excellent traditions of an Irving Thalberg achievement."

These Reviews could go on and on! Opinion is unanimous! "CAMILLE" is M-G-M's salute to the New Year! And then comes—

1937

Your Lucky M-G-M Year!

At the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios the forecast for 1937 is even brighter and more ambitious than the memorable past year. Among the first attractions to come will be an epic production of Rudyard Kipling's "CAPTAINS COURAGEOUS" with Freddie Bartholomew, Spencer Tracy, Lionel Barrymore and others; "THE LAST OF MRS. CHEYNEY" with Joan Crawford, Robert Montgomery, William Powell; "PARNELL" the noted stage success with Clark Gable and Myrna Loy; "MAYTIME" with Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy; the Marx Brothers in "A DAY AT THE RACES"; "MAIDEN VOYAGE" with Robert Taylor and Luise Rainer. And that's just the start of . . .

Your Happy New Year!

"Love on Run" Is Loop Smash With $26,000

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—"Love On The Run" was the shining light in the Loop last week. Matinee and night crowds took time off from shopping to see it. The gross was $26,000, or $11,000 above normal take for the United Artists.

The rest of the Loop houses found the going tough in the pre-Christmas week. Most of them played but six-day engagements in order to have new films for Christmas Day. "Born To Dance," moved over from the United Artists, did well at the Apollo. Other houses were fair except the Palace which did a dismal business and garnered only $13,000.

The weather was extremely mild, the thermometer hitting the highest temperature ever recorded for this week of the year.

Flavin Play Bad, Outdated; 'The Women' Is Baudy Fun

"The Women"

something less. If a male playwright had essayed a job such as this, the women of New York might have risen in something approaching revolt. But since it was Miss Boothe, or Mrs. Luce, who essayed the job of turning the microscope on her own sex, the conclusion seems a fair one to draw that the picture and the situations painted must be an approximation of the truth, or perhaps the whole of it—a melancholy thought.

It fails to bespeak much for the sex at large. Virtually the only redeeming character in it is Margalo Gillmore, 12 years married and happily and the mother of two children. Ilka Chase is an empty-headed hell-cat on two wheels, gossiping indiscriminately about those she calls her friends and the direct casus belli of the misfortune that follows. Through her chatter, Miss Gillmore learns her husband is keeping Betty Lawford whom he eventually marries and leaves two years later to return to his first wife. There are divorcees, kept women, sappy women, pregnant women, wisecracking women and he-mannish women, carrying connotations of whatever you may determine for yourself.

There is also off-color dialogue, women in negligee, women in bathtubs, women nursing new-born babies and making bad taste remarks about "jaws like a dinosaur."

Lurid Stuff Dragged In

A large percentage of "The Women" is funny if you want your fun in a ribald and bawdy sort of fashion which, no doubt, means the play that opened at the Ethel Barrymore Saturday evening probably will have a long and prosperous run in New York. It sets a pretty rapid pace for itself in the first act with its quick-changing scenery and, while the scenery maintains its speed in Acts 2 and 3, the tempo of the play does not. This reviewer, furthermore, carried away the impression that much dependence for belly laughs was placed on unnecessary inclusion of risque lines, an old technique frequently resorted to when plot and situation began to sag at the knees. If that be playwrighting, then this department doesn't know a gag man when it sees one.

"The Women" is hardly an entertainment for the kiddies. It is not entertainment which will submit itself to film treatment as it now stands either. A generous application of disinfectant is quite essential to bring this one under the line and the process of so doing might prove well nigh fatal.

"Around the Corner"

night in a piece called "Around the Corner." You're right, the title gives it away.

It was a curious show and an unfortunate evening. Curious, because Flavin, who must have turned this one out while his right hand was busy elsewhere, has contributed to the American theatre. Curious, also, because "Around the Corner" definitely carries the stamp of something dated with a vintage hardly 1936 and almost 1937 and, if you looked only casually, conveys the idea that the author is not aware that millions have returned to work, hundreds of millions of dollars have been paid out in dividends, corporations everywhere have coughed up the bonuses they would not unless they could afford to.

These should not of necessity prove a bar to a play about depression and its defeatism. But it does strike as more than passing strange that now, of all times, was elected as the time. The topical value is gone. It's not merely yesterday's headline, but last year's and even further back and no audiences are apt to be interested, nor should they be.

Developments Telegraphed

That is not all. Not by a long shot. The play, endeavoring to reveal the spots of the depression's ravages on a Middle Western and small town family is very perfunctory and painfully routinized in its formula. Not merely do the hackneyed dramatic twists make themselves long apparent before the time rolls around for them to happen. They fairly leap out from the stage placarded all over themselves for those in the audience who would run as they read. Nobody actually ran, but plenty walked after the second act and did not return.

Subject matter would have been a violent something to overcome. But subject matter played off in almost naive denouements proved too much.

All play reviews should list the principals in the cast. Always a slave to convention, here goes:

Dodson Mitchell, Zamah Cunningham, Charles Coburn, Merle Maddern, Cyrus W. Kendall, Lillian Emerson, Milburn Stone, Boyd Crawford, Edwin Cushman and Frank Tweddell.

Only One New Spot Abroad, Says Loew

stating that he kept clear of this phase of the business while on the other side.

Herman (Bibb) Wiener, who recently completed the construction of two houses for Loew's in South America, arrived by plane yesterday from Rio de Janeiro and met Loew at the boat. Wiener stated that he is now awaiting another assignment. He said, in commenting on business conditions, that new theatres are rapidly replacing old ones in South America and that there is a new law which makes the installation of an air conditioning system compulsory for all new theatres.

William Beaudine also arrived on the Berengaria after having made 11 pictures in England during the past two years. He stated that he has deals under consideration to make one picture for Gainsborough, one for A. T. P. and two for Warners but that he first intends to see what's doing in Hollywood. He leaves today for the coast to see his new grandchild for the first time. He said that he might direct the next Joe E. Brown picture for David Loew and that if this plan does not materialize he will leave for London probably around March 1.

Alan Hale, who appeared in the English production, "The Thief in the Night," for Criterion Films, will leave tomorrow for Washington from where he will go to Chicago and finally to Hollywood.

George Kamen, brother of Kay, and representative for Walt Disney Products in England, returned for his wedding to Lee Prince on Jan. 10. They will return to England shortly thereafter.

Television Is Tried Out in London House

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Dec. 17.—The demonstration of "public address television" by the Baird system, to a small press party at the Dominion here, introduced what is claimed to be the world's largest high definition television screen.

An upright picture, 8 feet, 6 inches by 6 feet, was shown. Various speakers and performers appeared, in head and shoulders shots only, and answered questions transmitted by telephone from the audience. Among others, J. L. Baird by this method supplied technical details of the system.

Designed primarily to provide a means whereby a speaker can address audiences simultaneously in all parts of the country, the "multi-mesh" system employed is obviously adaptable to entertainment purposes. The 120-line picture was remarkably free from lining or distortion, and was of fair quality. It was clearly visible from the back of the theatre. Transmission was from a theatre dressing room.

It is claimed for the Dominion that it is the first in the world to possess a permanent "cinema-size" television screen. With the regular B.B.C. transmissions barred from reproduction to audiences, it is planned to provide special exclusive transmissions from time to time.

The Dominion in Tottenham Court Road, a G. B. house, is to make television a regular program feature from Jan. 4. Special items will be broadcast by Baird Television, an associate of G. B., and possible is an extension of the idea to other G. B. theatres in the London area. Ten minute transmissions will be the limit at the start.

Street Broadcast

Omaha, Dec. 28.—KOIL sponsored singing of community Christmas carols in a special broadcast at noon on a busy shopping day at 16th and Farnam Sts., Omaha's most important downtown intersection. Song books were passed out to the crowd and the program was dedicated to the Salvation Army.

Passersby joined the chorus eagerly and the incident aroused favorable comment from many civic sources.

Mutual Goes Nat'l Today; NBC, CBS Adding Outlets

Today marks one of the most important 24-hour periods in network history, with the Mutual network expanding into the nation's third coast-to-coast chain and with NBC formally annexing the four California radio stations comprising the McClatchy chain. Both networks will signalize the expansions with special inaugural programs to be broadcast tonight.

The Mutual-Don Lee wedding will be heralded at 10 P. M., E.S.T., this evening, when Anning S. Prall, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, officially welcomes Mutual into the coast-to-coast fold by reading President Roosevelt's message of congratulation. Thereafter, until 2 A. M., all the basic Mutual stations will present their best musical and dramatic features.

Don Lee will return the salute tomorrow night beginning at 10 P. M. and concluding at 12:30 A. M., E.S.T. Tom Lee, president of that network, will make the formal address of welcome. The west coast offerings will consist also of highlights from the regular Don Lee schedule, augmented by a 20-minute radio adaptation of the film "John Meade's Woman," starring Edward Arnold and a host of film celebrities.. Novel features will include a tour of San Francisco's Chinatown telephone exchange, and a broadcast to be provided by KGMB, Honolulu, where native entertainers will provide the entertainment.

After the amalgamation, sponsors will have their choice of any or all the 39 stations which will comprise the Mutual network. The affiliated stations will include:

WOR, Newark; WGN, Chicago; WLW, Cincinnati; CKLW, Detroit-Windsor; WSAI, Cincinnati; WFIL, Philadelphia; WBAL, Baltimore; WRVA, Richmond; WCAE, Pittsburgh; WOL, Washington; WSM, Nashville; WGAR, Cleveland; KHJ, Los Angeles; KFRC, San Francisco; KGB, San Diego; KDB, Santa Barbara; KFXM, San Bernardino; KPMC, Bakersfield; KDON, Monterey-Del Monte; KGDM, Stockton; KVOE, Santa Ana; WAAB, Boston; WEAN, Providence; WICC, Bridgeport; WTHT, Hartford; WFEA, Manchester; WSAR, Fall River; WSPR, Springfield; WNBH, New Bedford; WLLH, Lowell; WXBS , Waterbury; KWK, St. Louis; WHB, Kansas City; KSO, Des Moines; WMT, Cedar Rapids; KOIL, Omaha; KFOR, Lincoln; KFEL, Denver, andKXO, El Centro.

Reversing the usual procedure, the McClatchy stations will salute NBC in a broadcast tonight heralding the amalgamation. The program will be heard on the NBC-Blue beginning at 10:30 P. M., E.S.T. The entertainment will consist of orchestral music from the various McClatchy stations. The welcoming address will be made by George C. Hamilton, vice-president and general business director of the McClatchy newspapers and stations. The new NBC additions include KFBK, Sacramento; KWG, Stockton; KMJ, Fresno, and KERN, Bakersfield, all in California.

Additionally, NBC will usher in the New Year by adding six more stations to its networks. These include WTCN, Minneapolis; KGFH, Pueblo, Colorado; WEAN, Providence; WICC, Bridgeport; KGNC, Amarillo, Texas, and KARK, Little Rock, Arkansas.

Also slated for NBC acquisition during the coming year are WFEA, Manchester (March 1); WSPD, Toledo (May 2), and WOWO, Fort Wayne. On this date, the NBC network will comprise 114 stations, an increase of 25 stations over last year's network total.

CBS will also play an important part in the week's station addition festivities on Saturday, when the network will present a two-hour program celebrating the formal acquisition of KNX, Hollywood, and KSFO, San Francisco. The program will be heard at 10:30 P. M., E.S.T., and will feature entertainment provided by practically every artist under CBS contract.

The Mutual web is an elastic one, many of its stations sharing time with both NBC and CBS. Mutual advertisers will be able to purchase the complete network only if time is available.

Lux's "Cavalcade"

Radio's leading dramatic presentation, "Lux Radio Theatre," last night featured Madeleine Carroll and Herbert Marshall in an etherized version of the motion picture success, "Cavalcade" Radio did not suffer too badly in the transition from visual to oral presentation.

Miss Carroll and Marshall were more than adequate in the lead roles of the Noel Coward opus. This favorable reaction might have been due to the smooth manner in which the etherized version of the motion picture was produced; at any rate, the jumpiness which has characterized many of the Lux offerings in the past was lacking.

A highlight was reached in the interview between Cecil B. DeMille, Lux producer, and Noel Coward, author of the play. The English playwright apparently refused to stick by the script in a confab between scenes, and DeMille proved that Yankee humor was more effective than the staid British variety by copping the English playwright every time he attempted to vary from the script. At any rate, it seemed that playwright and producer were indulging in a bit of horseplay.

"Lux Radio Theatre" is a weekly presentation over CBS at 9 P. M., E.S.T. The weekly presentation consisting of either stage or screen re-enactments are usually first-rate. Last night's offering was no exception to the general rule.

BANNER

Another for Miss Deane

Martha Deane, WOR's feminine news commentator, adds another sponsored program to her schedule beginning Jan. 4. The series will be presented Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 11:30 to 11:45 P.M., E.S.T. California Fruit Packers, in the interests of the Del Monte brand, is sponsoring.

Additionally, Miss Deane will be heard each afternoon at 2 P.M., E.S.T., over WOR, as heretofore.

WGN to Feed Mutual

Starting Jan. 3, WGN, Chicago, will feed the Mutual network two hours and 15 minutes of sustaining program time per week. This will mark the first time since the organization of the network that WGN programs will be heard elsewhere than in Chicago.

Martin, Thibault, Et Al

Short Shots: Darryl Martin, radio editor of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, leaves for home today after a week's stay in Gotham gathering news and interviewing stars. . . . Conrad Thibault has been screen tested for a role in "Desert Song." . . . Earle Ferris, crack local publicist, back at his desk after a week's stay in the south. . . . Lily Pons will guest solo on the Ford program this Sunday night. . . . Rosaline Green will guest emote on the CBS "Your Unseen Friend" program Jan. 24. . . . Jim Barton will perform with Kate Smith on the "Bandwagon" program Jan. 7. . . . Ethel Barrymore Colt will sing, not emote, on the Hammerstein Music Hall program tonight. . . . Morton Bowe returned to New York yesterday after spending a week in Florida. . . . Harry Salter and Vic Erwin both celebrate their 10th year in radio this week. . . . Bill Yolen, press agent, will tender his third annual New Year's Eve party to the press at the McAlpin Hotel. . . . Fred Waring planes to Hollywood Thursday—reason at this moment unknown. . . . Benton and Bowles have taken over from Batten Barton, Durstine and Osborne the network series entitled "Renfrew of the Mounted." . . . Kathryn Cravens, who conducts the CBS program "News Through a Woman's Eyes" sponsored by Pontiac Motor Co., has been renewed for an additional 13-week period. McManus, John, McManus, is the agency. . . . Benay Venuta, who broadcasts from New York, tenders a cocktail party to her husband, Dr. Paul Kelley, who resides and practices in Chicago. . . . James Hall goes off the WOR "Morning Matinee" program this Thursday, and will be replaced by Lawrence Gray.

No Worries, His

Apparently there is no limit to the fertile imagination of press agents. Latest p. a. pipe dream is one offered by Jimmy Davis, who represents Lynn Murray and his choral singers.

Davis solemnly assures that television will hold no terrors for Murray when it arrives, because the choral director has been assembling a chorus of 12 "full-throated" midgets whose images will fit the confines of the television screen.

Continuing its pioneering expansion on the coast
NBC adds the McClatchy stations to its networks

KFBK—Sacramento	Stockton—KWG
KMJ—Fresno	Bakersfield—KERN

IN December, 1935, NBC opened its new Hollywood studios—modern, convenient headquarters for programs featuring Hollywood celebrities. Soon to be enlarged, these studios are the finest west of the Rockies. In January, 1936, the NBC Pacific Coast Blue Network commenced service, making NBC the only broadcasting organization giving two network services to West Coast listeners as well as two network services coast-to-coast. Now NBC intensifies its service to listeners and advertisers alike with the addition of these important stations in the Sacramento-San Joaquin Valley.

Erpi's Share In Universal Deal Revealed

tures convertible into Universal common stock, and the English group took one-half in debentures and one-half in the common, it was brought out. Erpi's convertible arrangement called for conversion into common stock at intervals, at prices ranging from $15 to $25 per share. It was estimated by Becker that at an average price of $20, Erpi could receive 100,000 shares of Universal common stock, under a voting trust agreement. The voting trustees were named as J. Cheever Cowdin, president of Standard Capital; Dr. A. H. Giannini, now chairman of the board and president of United Artists; George N. Armsby, Paul G. Brown, both connected with Standard; Garretson Dulin, of the firm which underwrote the stock issue; Rank and Charles R. Rogers.

Drake, Otterson Testify

The facts relative to the Universal deal came out in the course of a day's testimony, during most of which Drake was examined and which was devoted to a revelation by Becker of the financing of production, chiefly independent, by Erpi. John E. Otterson, former president of Erpi and then of Paramount, and R. E. Anderson, former treasurer of Erpi, testified briefly, after Drake occupied the morning session, but when little or nothing could be learned from Otterson or Anderson, Becker recalled Drake to the stand for the rest of the day's session.

The details leading to the conclusion of the Universal deal were recited. Otterson, in a letter to Edgar S. Bloom, president of Western Electric at that time, told of the formation of a group headed by Cowdin for film financing, and capitalized at $1,000,000, with $500,000 to come from Eastman Kodak. A deal was planned whereby the intended Standard Capital Co. would work with Exhibitors' Reliance Corp., wholly-owned Erpi subsidiary, in the financing of production. Drake declared that Otterson had approved the plan, and said it was considered valuable in relieving Erpi of the "burden" of film financing. Little was done with Standard Capital, however, Drake testified, when the Cowdin company became interested in Universal.

"U" Borrowed $750,000

Universal owed Erpi $350,000 in royalties, it was brought out, and was seeking 50 per cent of the production cost of four films, each to cost $200,000. A possible Erpi loan to Universal was discussed at that time, Drake said, but never materialized. A deal involving Universal, Standard Capital and Erpi was set in December, 1935, it was revealed, with a loan of $750,000 to Universal for production, in return for a 90-day option to purchase control. Notes and a chattel mortgage on the Universal studio equipment were used to secure the loan. The loan came from Standard Capital and Rogers.

The testimony revealed that the $375,000 share of that loan which came from Standard was the subject of an agreement between Standard and Erpi's Exhibitors' Reliance, used for financing purposes. By that agreement Erpi agreed to furnish $125,000 of the $375,000, taking six per cent of the notes and a one-sixth interest in the chattel mortgage. Erpi, by the deal, was to have no participation in the purchase option. The deal was made in November, 1935. Later, it was testified, the Erpi subsidiary made an additional loan to Universal of $300,000. The entire loan was subsequently paid in full, plus interest, Drake testified.

Erpi Film Funds Itemized

A summary of Erpi's film financing, read into the record by Becker, showed a total to Dec. 31, 1935 of $3,571,918, of which $850,000 was said to be outstanding. Financing of various small independent companies during the period amounted to $1,978,977, Becker pointed out. Becker read further that up to Dec. 31, 1935, Erpi's earnings from interest amounted to $327,399, and from royalties, $397,351, for a total of $725,250.

It was brought out that the revolving fund established by Erpi for film financing reached a 1933 peak of $800,000, which Drake said he considered at the time insufficient for higher priced pictures. Attempts were made at the time to interest banks, including the Commercial National Bank and the Manufacturers' Trust Co., in film financing, but they were unwilling to participate, it was said.

The earlier testimony yesterday covered in considerable detail the negotiations concerning the Western Service Studios on the coast and the Eastern Service Studios in New York, the latter first housed in the old Edison plant in the Bronx, and later, by lease, in the former Paramount studio in Astoria.

Becker attempted to prove at one point that Erpi was interested in developing the non-theatrical field, since the theatre equipment business had very nearly reached its saturation point, and had become for the most part a replacement business.

Dealings with E. W. Hammons of Educational and the Christies in the Metropolitan Sound Studios, on the coast which later became the Western Service Studios, were detailed.

The hearing resumes today and is expected to end in New York tomorrow.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Holy Terror"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 28—Jane Withers performs in peppy style, making this desirable amusement for adults and youngsters. The background is a naval aviation station, with a spy plot as the dramatic basis. The film blends farce, music, dancing, romance and action.

Construction of the story is credited to Lou Breslow and John Patrick, with music and lyrics provided by Sidney Claire and Harry Akst, and direction by James Tinling. These give Jane ample opportunity to display her talents, and Anthony Martin, Leah Ray, Fred Kohler, Jr., El Brendel, Joe Lewis, John Eldredge and Joan Davis are given opportunities to be effective.

Jane, buddy of the gobs, and hectic problem of her father (Eldredge), plays hob with naval discipline. As star of the station's show, which includes music and dancing, she is determined to foster a romance between Martin and Miss Ray.

Spies headed by Gavin Muir and Gloria Roy are bent on stealing plans for a radical new plane. They start their dirty work only to find that Jane is too much for them. Just as their plot seems about to succeed she alarms the officers and men, and in a parachute-jumping climax the spies are trapped. Jane is established as a heroine, and her father, no longer regarding her as incorrigible, the way is cleared for the Martin-Ray romance. The station settles down to routine operation.

The film has qualities promising appeal for general audiences, with special attraction for kids. It is lively, fast-moving, and with the music and dialogue well balanced.

Sold to emphasize the comedy content, the show should have no difficulty in pleasing.

Production Cole Seal No. 1,658. Running time, 58 minutes. "G."

British Group Asks Experts on History

LONDON, Dec. 17.—A report of the British Film Institute's History Committee, shortly to be issued, will contain recommendations designed to secure greater accuracy of historical background in period films. It is understood the committee will advise inspection of all historical films by experts. As recommendations for revision are accepted by the producers, the film will be endorsed or deprecated as an accurate record suitable to be seen by the younger generation.

Recently, the same problem was debated in the House of Lords, where the assertion was made that Henry VIII had been pictured as a "clown," but the Government attitude was that nothing could be done to interfere with a producer's personal view of history.

4 British Films "Foreign"

LONDON, Dec. 17.—Four British films, "The Three Maxims," Herbert Wilcox; "A Woman Alone" and "The Amazing Quest," both Garrett, Klement, and "Forget Me Not," London, have been refused "British" classification for quota purposes by the Board of Trade, due to non-compliance with the British cost percentage requirements of the Films Act. They have been widely booked as British films, and the Board of Trade has intimated that consideration will be given to the fact in the case of any exhibitors showing the films who are charged with quota default.

12 Annually for Wardour

LONDON, Dec. 17.—Under the contract between Julius Hagen and Wardour Films, Ltd., the three Hagen studios at Twickenham, Elstree and Hammersmith will make 12 pictures a year, for five years, for world distribution by Wardour. The organization of Twickenham Film Distributors, Ltd., which previously handled the Hagen output direct, will be taken over partly by Wardour.

Houses Cost £380,000

LONDON, Dec. 17.—The report of Stoll Theatres Corp., for the year to Sept. 30, reveals that the price received for the Alhambra, Leicester Square, and the adjoining Charing Cross House, was £380,000. The immediate purchaser was the Covent Garden Properties Co., but the site is being used for the erection of a £600,000 Odeon by the Oscar Deutsch interests.

G. B. Company Has Profit

LONDON, Dec. 17.—A profit of £99,040 for the year ended Sept. 30 is shown in the report of P.C.T. Construction Co., Ltd., a financing subsidiary of Provincial Cinematograph Theatres, Ltd., G. B. subsidiary. After writing off £5,000 from the expenses of a preference share issue a dividend of four per cent will be paid and £4,528 carried forward.

completed the drawings with the assistant managers in charge after the police had taken the managers to headquarters.

With the announcement of the delays of the trials circuit men today stated that they will stop all games in their theatres until the legal difficulties are untangled. Independents are also planning to halt the games until after the situation is aired in court.

Some houses with drawings scheduled for tonight and next week stated they would go ahead with plans. These include the Oriental and State-Lake in Loop. Managers say circuit executives have offered them no advice on what to do.

Mayor Edward Kelly today said: "These theatre managers aren't criminals. The law is being enforced simply because it is the law. We have had very few complaints about Bank Night, Screeno and similar novelties—but they are against the law."

This afternoon Alderman Walter J. Orlokoski promised to introduce an ordinance repealing the ban on prize giveaways. At the same time Police Commissioner Allman stated that no more theatre managers would be bodily arrested. Meanwhile, theatre groups and game operators are planning a legal battle when the cases come to trial in order that a definite decision may be reached.

Parlay Is Held Not B.N. Infringement

the moment it is disclosed to the public without the protection of a patent it becomes public property and the fact that it has been made popular by advertising and the expenditure of effort, time and money on the part of the originator does not alter the situation.

"As the plan has not been copyrighted, and, being in no sense a writing, could not be and has not been patented, we are constrained to hold that, although the plaintiff has expended time and money in originating and developing a system, it has no property right therein which has been appropriated by the defendants."

Today's decision overturns that of the local U. S. District Court from which the case was appealed after that body tossed it out on the ground that the game constituted a lottery. The circuit court cites that Bank Night has been declared not a lottery by the Supreme Courts of Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Iowa and Tennessee and declares, regarding the finding of the district court that it was a lottery, "we think that the dismissal of the bill of complaint on the ground stated was erroneous."

Bank Night probably will appeal to the Supreme Court on the ground that the game is a legally privileged publication and therefore has not been placed in the public domain.

Drop Omaha Insurance

OMAHA, Dec. 28.—Bank Night insurance plans laid by a group of local men met threats of legal action from Affiliated Enterprises of Denver and the plans were dropped.

Oklahoma Hits Insurance

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 28.—Attorney General Mac Q. Williamson has ruled that any attempt to insure Bank Night payments in this state will constitute a lottery. The opinion was given upon request of County Attorney Lewis Morris.

Looking 'Em Over

"The Crimson Circle"

(Wainwright-Du World)

Standard pseudo-mystery material, projected against a London background, but dragging and too obvious, "The Crimson Circle," a British production, offers little of an entertaining nature and barely nothing in the way of novelty.

It is an adaptation from the Edgar Wallace story of the same name. Terror is struck in the hearts of a number of prominent London business men when they receive demands for money from a criminal syndicate. This is due, of course, to the fact that the threats are unerringly carried out and there follows swift death. Scotland Yard, a pair of lovers, a mystery story author, all with their individual ideas and collective aims, in a roundabout and in a moderately thrilling manner trace the "Circle" and bring about the general demise of the underworld organization. At approximately the third reel the audience will confirm its suspicions as to the identity of the master-mind, since the denouement is about given away in earlier sequences. The attempt to keep the audience guessing is not lacking.

In the cast, Noah Beery is the only name familiar to audiences here. The other players deliver rather standard performances for this sort of offering. Reginald Denham directed.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 74 minutes. "G."

the stage show. The police had their hands full with the lines around the side of the theatre which made it impossible for pedestrians to use the sidewalk.

The Paramount had a bang-up take on the five days of "College Holiday." The Jack Benny film and the Casa Loma band on the stage has garnered $45,500 since it opened last Wednesday and is headed for a $65,000 week. Up to 1 P. M., 9,200 visited the theatre yesterday. This, according to Paramount, is a new attendance record.

"Beloved Enemy" took in approximately $20,000 for the first three days at the Rivoli, indicating that the picture will end the week with close to $40,000.

"Stowaway" at the Roxy in the first three days of a second week grossed $28,000 and is expected to do $42,000 in six days. "One in a Million" will open Thursday.

The Astor turned in a surprise week just before Christmas started with "Lloyds of London," getting $10,500. All shows have been sold out since Friday and it is possible the current week will top the $17,000 opening week.

Republic Goes To Unit Plan Of Production

Four Producers Will Be Added to the Roster

Republic in the next three weeks will drop mass production for the unit system idea with six to seven producers scheduled to turn out the company's annual program, it was learned yesterday. Nate Levine, current production head, will personally produce from seven to eight pictures a year under the new setup.

Four producers, who are not affiliated with the company at present have been lined up already and it is expected two others will be added before an official announcement will be made. Each producer, with the exception of Levine, will be responsible for four to five pictures a year.

Under the new plan, Levine will be relieved of the responsibility of turning out the entire program, which he has been doing since the company was organized.

J. J. Milstein, general sales manager, returned yesterday from a four-week trip during which he visited the studios and saw "Join the Marines." He arrived by plane, 14 hours late.

B. & D. May Decide To End Production

LONDON, Dec. 29.—Abandonment of production will, it is expected, be recommended by the board of directors of British & Dominion at a meeting to be held tomorrow. If this is decided upon, the company's interests would be limited to the Pinewood Studios.

Efforts to Merge TOCC and ITOA Ended; Former May Be Dissolved

Efforts to merge the T.O.C.C. and I.T.O.A. have been abandoned and the committees appointed by each organization to get together on the amalgamation have disbanded. The reason given for dropping the plan was that the committee could not agree on terms.

Meanwhile, the T.O.C.C. maintains offices in the Times Bldg. The organization is inactive and will most likely pass out of the local exhibition picture quietly.

Members of the I.T.O.A. will hold their regular meeting today at the Astor. Labor will again be discussed. The organization on Jan. 23 will begin publishing The Independent, a new semi-monthly house organ, with Lionel Toll as editor.

Considered Dropping Erpi, Says Gifford, AT&T Head

The disposal of Erpi by the A. T. & T., whose subsidiary the sound film company is, through Western Electric, has been considered from time to time, Walter S. Gifford, president of A. T. & T., declared in testimony yesterday at the closing session of the hearings here into the telephone system's operations in the film field.

The hearings were adjourned yesterday by Paul A. Walker, chairman of the telephone division of the Federal Communications Commission, who presided at the five days of hearings with Thad Brown, member of the commission. Walker said the hearings will be resumed in Washington next Thursday, Jan. 7. Samuel Becker, special counsel to the commission, said after the hearing yesterday that the investigation into the film affairs of A. T. & T. has been concluded.

Gifford revealed the discussions relative to the possible disposal of Erpi under questioning by Becker, but emphasized that the matter has been

Philadelphia Group Meets Rodgers Here

Lewen Pizor, president, Charles Segall and Abe Sablosky, acting as a committee of the U.M.P.T.O., yesterday discussed problems of members of the organization with William F. Rodgers, general sales manager of Loew's; Tom Connors, eastern division head; Bob Lynch, district manager; and Salem Appelgate, Philadelphia branch manager.

The meeting, which was held at the distributor's home office, lasted about an hour during which no mention was made of an impending date strike. The Quaker City group returned to Philadelphia last night.

Rodgers will leave today for a two-week vacation at Hollywood, Fla.

Chicago Moves on Games Hit a Snag

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—While Alderman Walter J. Orlikoski prepared to present a repeal ordinance to enable theatres to continue giveaways the Attorney General's office pointed out today that the state constitution contains a definite ban against lotteries.

The section referred to reads: "The General Assembly has no power to authorize lotteries or gift enterprises."

This is expected to automatically prevent the City Council from passing an ordinance contrary to the constitution.

Orlikoski will present his plan to Corporation Counsel Hodes tomorrow and an opinion on it will be presented at the next meeting of the Council.

Exhibitors met today with the Mayor in an effort to work out a plan for

Networks Now Lean Heavily On Hollywood

Nearly All Big Shows Using Film Names

Statistics often make for dull and uninteresting reading. A shock of sorts, however, may be provided by the following film-radio survey, which discloses that there is hardly an important program on the networks today which does not depend either wholly or in part on Hollywood.

Out of the entire melange of NBC's weekly offerings, 19 programs currently are wooing listeners with film personalities. An even dozen programs at CBS, featuring the cream of the Hollywood crop, also comprise the cream of the CBS program crop. Remove these 31 programs from the combined CBS and NBC curriculums and the residue becomes fairly unimportant.

The ace program attractions at NBC are American Can (Ben Bernie and frequent film guests); Jello (Jack Benny, Mary Livingstone and picture stars at intervals); Jergens-Woodbury (Frank Parker and film players as guests, it is expected. Paul Whiteman is currently featured on this program and leaves shortly. The new schedule will include Hollywood favorites); Kraft Music Hall (Bing Crosby and several screen guest players each broadcast); "Hollywood Gossip," with Jimmy Fiddler and film stars in interviews; National Biscuit program (Buddy Rogers, Victor Moore and Helen Broderick regular-

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 29.—Twentieth Century-Fox will launch the building campaign in its $2,000,000 expansion move at the Westwood studios early in January. The new building campaign, which includes three sound stages, a three-story office building and a three-story dressing-room building, is an outgrowth of the augmented production schedule of 58 pictures against last year's 56.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

CELLULOID dynamite. That's "The Black Legion." Word has been trickling through from the coast for weeks now about this Warner picture. Archie Mayo spoke about little else when he was around a fistful of weeks back. But he directed and reservations seemed conservative, if not in order. Yet, now and fresh from the projection room, we recall the points he stressed, how he had persisted in his belief that this was an important job by the nature of the material and not from his part in it. In most instances, the good Hollywood folk talking about their own handiwork, must be pardoned for exaggeration; the coast air. In the instance of Mayo who has ranted and raved against routine stories and message-less vehicles, he is to be believed. Then, there was Harry Warner, who not far back, spoke off the record about this picture and urged that it be seen the minute available. . . .

Yesterday brought that minute. It brought a lot of minutes and most of them were jam-crammed through with excitement and horror and repulsion over the sorry reflection that, in this day and in these times, a monstrous, outside-the-law thing, such as the Black Legion, could exist and even thrive. Yet, of course, it did. The newspapers were full months ago and from the factual record and with little story embroidery and license the Warners have put together a crying indictment of only one phase of the political and religious bigotry that continues to stalk this land of the free and the brave. Little need was present to let Hollywood scenarists loose on an imagination tour. There was enough and more in the amazing and actual history of the terroristic organization to load any single feature with explosives. . . .

It is all there. While the foreword makes it very clear that what follows is based on no actual incidents or on fact itself, for that matter, this will deceive no one who looks and, we hope, millions will for the good it has a chance of doing. Get no idea, moreover, that the Warners went public-spirited and sacrificed their commitment to entertain. Not at all. It merely happens that this is one of those infrequent cases where a picture not only tells a chapter that ought to be told, but also tells it in terms of brutal and easily understood drama. "The Black Legion" moves motion pictures one notch forward in the recognition, eventually to come, that, although films may be designed chiefly to entertain, they must also go beyond in the cause of social problems. . . .

All of this may sound like a wide and flying leap off the deep end on behalf of one lone attraction. It may even read like the hailing of the perfect picture. It is not the perfect picture. The earlier episodes, planting the contentment of Humphrey Bogart and his family, are extended and stretched pretty thin, no doubt to sharpen the contrast which follows his oath to the Black Legion, its incendiarisms, its floggings, its beatings and its murders. The strength is there because it is thoroughly inherent in the subject matter, the drama in the established record. Whittling its mass down, concentrating on highlights and filming them in climactic order—these are what Mayo has done. The story he was telling seemed well nigh impossible to defeat. . . .

The director grafted an excellent cast and striking types and saw to it that they did their tasks well. Bogart is splendid as the disgruntled mechanic caught up in the false passions of the Legion; Erin O'Brien-Moore is very good as the wife. Inexorably and as it happened, the story moves to its close. Bogart, ready to face the music and leaning on the court to protect his threatened wife and child, in a torrent unleashed crumbles the fake defense, indicts his brother legionnaires. The sort of newspaper headline yarn which they do better than the others, you can thank the Warners and Mayo for no compromise finish, no phony end-of-the-sunset clinch. Bogart goes to prison for the remainder of his life and along with him his criminal associates. They should have. They, or their counterparts, did in reality and on the screen they do it again. . . .

They finished off the Erpi phase of the A. T. and T. probe in New York yesterday to the welcome relief of those who had to testify, those who had to report it and, no doubt, to those who may have been reading it. Practically nothing not heretofore known was divulged and that, obviously, should astonish none. This investigation, like others of the past and others, we ponder morosely, to come, furnish a field day for the probers, fatten their accumulated testimony and allow them to return to Washington and to whatever committee they report with the physicial and ponderous evidences of a job outwardly marked well done. Erpi invested in this and financed that. Well, what of it? Whose money was it anyway? The nature of those investments falls within the jurisdiction of the electric's board of directors. Askance or approval belongs there, also the blame or the praise. . . .

By the dock side on November 2, Sidney R. Kent declared 20th Century-Fox would not handle outside product beyond that which it had now. In other words, Gaumont British. Little surprise, therefore, should trail word that the distributor has no place for the B.I.P. films which John Maxwell is placing through G.B. here. You might ruminate over the matter of inclination or otherwise and speculate that a handful, more or less, should make little difference in the physical machinery of such a well-oiled machine. You might also draw a pretty fair conclusion that 20th-Fox has no reason for accommodating the man in London who upset its original deal. Would he? Would you? Would anyone? . . .

RKO Orpheum Offer May Go to Ehrhorn

RKO's offer to pay $700,000 for the assets of the Orpheum Circuit may be submitted to Oscar Ehrhorn, referee for Orpheum, for approval within the next three weeks, it was indicated following a meeting of Orpheum creditors yesterday.

In the meantime appraisers will be appointed to fix the value of the assets. A disagreement over acceptance of RKO's offer may result in a substitution of Charles Tuttle for M. M. Black as counsel for Marcus Heiman, who is trustee in bankruptcy for Orpheum. Black, who opposes consideration of the $700,000 offer, has said he would resign if it were submitted to Referee Ehrhorn.

RKO Wins Arbitrations

RKO yesterday won two decisions before the arbitration board of the New York Film Board of Trade. Both cases involved alleged breach of contract on shorts.

In the first case, against the Park, Highland Park, N. J., the distributor was awarded $150 for unplayed shorts. The second case was against the Sussex, Sussex, N. J., and involved $28 due on the weekly payment plan.

Both exhibitors failed to put in an appearance. Frank Drum represented RKO.

Pathe Board to Meet

Pathe's board of directors will hold a regular meeting today which will be of a routine nature. O. Henry Briggs, president, is vacationing in Miami and is due back shortly.

"HO HUM! BIGGEST BUSINESS IN 3 YEARS AT NEW YORK'S CAPITOL FOR 'AFTER THE THIN MAN!' Bill Powell and Myrna Loy are good in it, too!"

"Hey Asta, it's terrific everywhere beating 'San Francisco' in 11 opening engagements, you lucky dog!"

HERE'S SOMETHING VERY INTERESTING!

The Oklahoma News is first in America to announce the selection of the Year's Ten Best Pictures! They were chosen by the paying public, not by the critic. And look:

M-G-M GETS 7 OUT OF 10 BEST!

As follows: "MUTINY ON THE BOUNTY" "SAN FRANCISCO" "BROADWAY MELODY" "LIBELED LADY" "WIFE VS. SECRETARY" "ROSE MARIE" "GREAT ZIEGFELD". OF COURSE, THE PUBLIC PICKS M-G-M!

WHEN THE CLOCK STRIKES MIDNIGHT!

Thousands of exhibitors' wives will say:

"HAPPY M-G-M NEW YEAR!"

Starting 1937 with "CAMILLE"
(starring Garbo and Robert Taylor)
one of the greatest attractions in all film history—followed in quick succession by

An epic production of Rudyard Kipling's "CAPTAINS COURAGEOUS" with Freddie Bartholomew, Spencer Tracy, Lionel Barrymore and others; "THE LAST of MRS. CHEYNEY" with Joan Crawford, Robert Montgomery, William Powell; "PARNELL" the noted stage success with Clark Gable and Myrna Loy; "MAYTIME" with Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy; the Marx Brothers in "A DAY AT THE RACES", "MAIDEN VOYAGE" with Robert Taylor and Luise Rainer. And MORE BIG ONES TO FOLLOW!

P. S. And didn't we tell you that M-G-M would get the holiday crowds with "AFTER THE THIN MAN" and "BORN TO DANCE"!

M-G-M, with its unequalled resources, its myriad stars, its showmanship producers, is the power that gives meaning to "GOD BLESS OUR HOME!"

Social Security Tax Blanks Are Sent Out

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—Blanks for the making of monthly tax returns required by the old-age pension provisions of the Social Security Act were today distributed to employers in the film and other industries by the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

First returns under the law must be filed with the collectors of internal revenue by Feb. 28, covering employment returns during the month of January, and similar reports and tax payments will be required monthly thereafter, under penalty of five to 25 per cent of the tax for failure to file on time. Penalties and interest will be imposed upon those failing to pay taxes.

The return has been kept as simple as possible, and calls merely for a statement of the number of persons employed during the month and the taxable wages paid, and for the payroll taxes, shown separately, due from employer and employes.

Reports are to be made in quadruplicate, one copy to be receipted and returned by the Collector of Internal Revenue and thereafter made a part of the employer's records. Consolidated returns of parent and subsidiary corporations are not permitted.

Gifford Bares AT&T Desire To Drop Erpi

dropped because the talks "ran up against a blind alley and stopped." The chief obstacle, he indicated, was the long term producer contracts held by Erpi. The reason for the considered disposal of Erpi, Gifford said, was in line with his belief that the Bell System should not be in any other field but that of communications, and he would prefer to have somebody else handle other fields, under license from the A. T. & T.

Regarding the whole Erpi situation, Gifford said under questioning, "I am not sure it has not been more detrimental than helpful to Bell System public relations." Relative to film financing, and particularly to the Universal deal, Erpi's participation in which was brought out Monday, Gifford said, "I don't like the idea at all," but he declared he had no doubt the Erpi officials who negotiated the deal had good and sufficient reasons for so doing.

Involvement Unforeseen

Erpi, Gifford declared, has gone into the film business more deeply than he or even Erpi anticipated at the time the operations in the field started. The unsatisfactory results of the original arrangement with Vitaphone forced Erpi to take over, the A. T. & T. official said.

The line of questioning revolved about the attempt of Becker to extract from Gifford an admission that the A. T. & T.'s socalled by-product research often was not undertaken primarily for telephone advancement, but for the exploitation of the by-product itself. Gifford, however, maintained consistently that such was not the case, and that the Bell System should stay out of every field but communications.

In June, 1935, it was brought out, a general agreement was worked out tentatively among Erpi, Western Electric and the A. T. & T. for the disposition of Erpi, but was never put into effect.

Otterson Again Heard

John E. Otterson, former president of Erpi, took the stand first yesterday, and his testimony had to do with the $50,000,000 loan to William Fox for the purchase of a block of shares in Loew's, in which Erpi participated to the extent of $15,000,000, with Halsey-Stuart and several banks joining in supplying the funds. The Tri-Ergon patent situation also was reviewed and the steps leading up to the financial difficulties of William Fox, the purchase of control by Harley L. Clarke, and the subsequent assumption of the presidency of Fox by Sidney R. Kent, after Harry L. Stuart, one of the Fox trustees, became dissatisfied with the management of Clarke.

Late in 1932 and early in 1933, it was brought out by Becker through the introduction of letters, Otterson declared the film industry owned Erpi $16,000,000, that it expected a revenue in the next five years of $65,000,000, and that the industry badly needed rebuilding. Otterson was said to have declared at the time that the Chase Bank held the power to reorganize the film industry, and that Erpi was the second largest interest holder in the industry.

In a memorandum to Winthrop W. Aldrich, who was handling film matters for Chase, Otterson urged a broad program whereby all distributing would be combined under one company, all producing under one studio operating company, and all theatre properties of the big companies be combined. It was designed, Otterson said, to effect economies. In November, 1930, Otterson had a plan for the management of small theatres, which was discussed with leading producers, but never adopted. The industry reorganization plan, Otterson said on the stand yesterday, is no longer necessary, since the business is in much better shape financially.

Whitford Drake, executive vice-president of Erpi, testified briefly relative to Erpi's licensing policies in fields other than the screen.

Deny Eternal Road Stay

Supreme Court Justice Philip J. McCook yesterday denied a temporary injunction to Arthur Klare and Moore Hannel who sought to restrain the Eternal Road Distributing Corp. and six individuals from giving out any theatre concessions pending final disposition of their case. The plaintiffs allege that as financial supporters to the extent of $7,500 they signed an agreement whereby they were to get all the concessions connected with the show.

The plaintiffs declared the defendants failed to carry out the agreement, returned their money and gave the concession privileges to somebody else.

Loew's Boston Net Placed at $167,003

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—A net income of $167,003 was shown by Loew's Boston Theatres Co., while the State, Boston, had a net of $91,676 during the fiscal year ended August 31, last, it is shown by annual reports filed by the former with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Folsom Predicts Gains

ROCHESTER, Dec. 29.—Continued improvement in business conditions, although possibly at a slower rate than during 1936, is predicted by Marion B. Folsom, treasurer of Eastman Kodak Co.

He bases his prediction on the large increase in purchasing power during recent months, gains for heavy goods industries because of shortages, and benefits to consumer goods dealers because of increases in wages and employment.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 29.—A special meeting of the Cleveland M. P. Exhibitors' Ass'n has been called for tomorrow afternoon to discuss the possibility of passing part of the three per cent gross receipts tax on to the public.

The idea is to boost all prices one cent. If this plan succeeds it is figured that exhibitors throughout the state would be saved about $1,500,000.

"Good-Will Court" May Resume Jan. 6

In again — out again — Finnegan about explains the status of the recently deposed "Good-Will Court," which may, and then again may not, be revived as a sustaining feature over WMCA beginning Wednesday, Jan. 6, at 10 P.M., E.S.T. The program had been quietly scheduled for revival tomorrow night at the above time, but for some reason its second debut has been set ahead one week.

The entire setup is cloaked in mystery. Even while making the announcement that the "Good-Will Court" would return next week, Larry Nixon, press head at WMCA, refused to guarantee that the program would be broadcast. He has been instructed by station executives to list the program on his weekly schedule, he states. Beyond that he claims to know nothing about it.

If, however, the program is broadcast, A. L. Alexander will again head it. Who will advise the litigants is unknown. It is almost certain, however, that lawyers will not serve as counsellors, inasmuch as the bar associations opposed the program as a whole, and not because it was sponsored.

On the Air Last Night

Mutual-Don Lee Salute

Welcome entertainment featured Mutual's welcome to the Don Lee network in an elaborate program which began at 10 P. M., E.S.T. and lasted until 2:30 this morning. Your mike weary reviewer, however, signed off at 11:30 P. M. to meet the exigencies of a press deadline.

The first words uttered over the new coast-to-coast web were those of Gabriel Heatter who, after a short address, explaining the future scope of the network, introduced Anning S. Prall, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission. Prall read a message from the White House conveying President Roosevelt's congratulations to the new combine and those responsible for it.

Many speakers extolled the past virtues of the units which were heard on the air last night. The speakers included Alfred J. McCosker, president of WOR and chairman of the board of Mutual; W. E. MacFarlane, president of Mutual and vice-president of WGN; John Shephard 3rd, president of the Colonial network, and Powell Crosley, president of WLW.

The entertainers were headed by Benay Venuta, George M. Cohan, Bide Dudley, Nat Brusiloff's orchestra, the WGN symphony orchestra, several mixed choral groups, the Colonial network grand orchestra, and a parade of announcers.

As with all dedicatory programs, too many back-patting speeches made the listening somewhat boring. But then again, coast-to-coast networks aren't formed every day.

Oakie's Debut

Jack Oakie's College is freshman entertainment.

The chubby-faced screen comedian last night braved the airwaves for the first time as the star of his own program in a new series sponsored by R. J. Reynolds for Camel cigarettes. The program runs for a full hour. Crawls might be a better word, for if ever a program dawdled and meandered aimlessly, this one did.

Oakie was introduced as the president of Oakie College, a frayed-at-the-heel institution that is saved from the sheriff's hammer by a pair of itinerant funsters (Shaw and Lee of the revue platforms) who suggest that the price of the mortgage might be raised if entertainers instead of bookworms were enrolled at the school. If you've heard the formula before, stop me.

At any rate, President Oakie agrees to the plan, thus paving the way for the entry of Alice Faye, Bob Burns, Harry Stockwell, and glee club members of Wesleyan College.

Alice Faye didn't particularly burn up the airwaves with her rendition of "It's De-Lovely." Nevertheless this number, and several subsequent songs, must be rated program high spots. Harry Stockwell was disappointing in his songs. Bob Burns' monologue was good but somewhat familiar. The Arkansas sage hasn't varied his routine in more than a year.

Georgie Stoll's rhythmic band out-swung Benny Goodman's swing band throughout the instrumental proceedings.

Oakie College is a Tuesday night CBS offering, from 9:30 to 10:30 P. M., E.S.T.

BANNER

The McClatchy-NBC Salute

It was a perfunctory and routine program that signalized the affiliation of the McClatchy stations in Northern California with NBC from 10:30 to 11 P. M., E.S.T. last night. The New York outlet was WJZ and the proceedings were heard over the Blue network.

Aside from a short address by George C. Hamilton, executive head of the coast newspaper chain which publishes the Sacramento Bee and who described the new association as a furtherance of the ideals of James McClatchy, founder of the newspaper string bearing his name, the 30-minute program was chiefly made up of music emanating from KFBK, Sacramento. The opening salute came from NBC's San Francisco studio with KFBK then picking up the first half with occasional commentary briefly describing the industry of the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys which the McClatchy stations and papers serve. Switching to KMJ, Fresno, it was from that point that Hamilton spoke with music from Sacramento again picking up for the final 10 minutes.

KFBK, Sacramento; KMJ, Fresno; KWG, Stockton and KERN, Bakersfield now are part of the NBC coast-to-coast facilities and swell the national network's outlets to 101.

Big Ad Campaign on For CBS Expansion

One of the biggest newspaper space buying campaigns ever indulged in by CBS is now underway announcing the acquisition by the network of stations KNX in Hollywood and KSFO in San Francisco.

Thirty-two west coast newspapers yesterday carried full page ads announcing the expansion of the network, and, additionally, each newspaper will carry three follow-up ads, 400 lines in size. Also, a supplementary list of 11 additional newspapers has been awarded contracts for 400-line ads, three insertions each.

One hundred and seven billboards in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Hollywood and Oakland are now emblazoned with 24-sheets advising westcoasters of CBS's new intensified California service, and 800 street-car cards are performing a like service.

CBS to Name Gluskin Coast Musical Head

Lud Gluskin, orchestra leader under CBS contract for the past three years, has been named west coast music director of the network, it was learned yesterday. Donald Thornburgh, CBS vice-president in charge of west coast activities, will formally announce the appointment in a few days.

Gluskin will leave for California immediately after he completes his stint on the Jan. 2 program welcoming stations KNX and KSFO into the CBS family.

The local band leader long has been considered for the position, but California musicians' unions repeatedly have voted against importing outsiders for the post.

The Hollywood trend in radio this year was much stronger than in 1935. CBS last year had seven film-radio programs; NBC had 14.

The 1935 CBS film-radio offerings included "Hollywood Hotel," Burns and Allen program, Eddie Cantor, then broadcasting for Lehn and Fink; The Hinds "Honey and Almond" program starring Leslie Howard; the Chesterfield program with Lily Pons, Nino Martini and Andre Kostelanetz's orchestra; Lux Radio Theatre and the Packard program, then starring Lawrence Tibbett.

The NBC film-radio programs in 1935 included Ben Bernie then, as now, for American Can; the Palmolive "Beauty Box Theatre" which featured many of the screen's best vocalists; Maxwell House Showboat; Jack Benny for Jello; the "New Penny" series with Helen Hayes; Kraft Music Hall; Jimmy Fidler; Magic Key; Shell Chateau, then starring Wallace Beery; the Bakers' Broadcasts; the Fleischmann Hour (Rudy Vallee); and Vick's "Open House," then featuring Grace Moore and weekly film guests. The two Campana programs, "Grand Hotel" and "First Nighter," might also be included, although Don Ameche, star of the "First Nighter" program had not yet entered films.

Fred Kohlmar Signed To New Goldwyn Pact

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 29. — Samuel Goldwyn today signed Fred Kohlmar to a new five-year contract as production executive, replacing the present Kohlmar pact, which still had some time to run.

Kohlmar's first assignment will be as associated producer on the "Goldwyn Follies." He has been on the Goldwyn staff for the past four years.

Not to Join Stage Plea

BUDAPEST, Nov. 17.—The Exhibitors' Union has refused the request of the Union of Hungarian Composers and Text-Writers that the former join them in a plea to the Minister for Home Affairs for permission to allow stage shows in conjunction with films. The composers' group sees an opportunity to afford employment for jobless actors and musicians. The exhibitors' refusal was based on a fear that legitimate theatres, in reprisal might begin to show films.

China Censors Have More Bans in Mind

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29. — More stringent rulings on censorship of films in China are expected from the Central Film Censorship Board, according to a report to the U.S. Dept. of Commerce from Commercial Attache Julean Arnold in Shanghai.

It is believed, Arnold's report states, that these new measures will demand that every film judged derogatory by the board be confiscated and destroyed. If pictures are shown in countries other than China without first receiving deletions deemed necessary by Chinese authorities, future productions from the offending company will be banned from China.

The proposed drastic action, is due to the recent release of two American features, parts of which are believed by Chinese authorities to reflect unfavorably on their people.

"Take it from Eddie, boys, this Paramount picture has given me more personal satisfaction than any I've ever played in. And that goes for 'Diamond Jim' and 'Come and Get It.' Why? Because the story has true emotional power. And because Miss Larrimore is one of the finest dramatic actresses I've ever had the good fortune to play opposite."

"I've played in plenty of Broadway hits, but this, my first appearance in pictures, tops them all. For, as Mr. Arnold says, the story is the kind an actor likes to get his teeth into, and he and Mr. Bancroft are just about the grandest lads to work with I've ever known in the theatre."

"Just let me add my two bits worth. 'John Meade's Woman' is okay. And this Larrimore girl is the box-office find of the year."

P. S. Just to prove they know what they're talking about, we might add that both previews of Paramount's "John Meade's Woman", in South Norwalk, Conn. and in Hollywood, Cal., have shown audiences cheering the picture and claiming Miss Larrimore's performance one of the great acting jobs of the year.

"Rembrandt" Dual Top in Louisville

LOUISVILLE, Dec. 29. — "Rembrandt," dualled with "Adventure in Manhattan" at Loew's State, pulled $5,700, over the line by $200. This was the best showing among the first runs.

"Born to Dance" at the Brown took $3,000, $500 over par, on its second downtown week, and was held.

Charity shows and entertainments contributed toward putting a crimp in boxoffice takings, but exhibitors are also to blame, for the only good adult entertainment was "Born to Dance" and that was a holdover.

Mild weather was inviting to shoppers, and didn't help theatres.

Engineers for 15-25 Super Power Spots

Recommendations Going Before FCC Soon

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—If the recommendations which will be submitted to the Federal Communications Commission by the commission's engineering division at the next meeting of the governing body of the broadcast industry are adopted, the nation soon will have a number of stations, possibly 15 to 25 in number, operating on a clear channel frequency of 500,000 watts. At present WLW, in Cincinnati, is the only station in America allowed a power of 500,000 watts, and this is on an experimental basis.

The engineering division's report based on an exhaustive study of the engineering aspects of radio will further state that there is no engineering objection to the creation of such high-power stations, and will recommend that the number of clear channels be reduced from 40 (as at present) to possibly 25 to 30; that the band from 1,500 to 1,600 be

Goldstein in Charge At Republic Studios

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 30.—E. H. Goldstein today was given complete charge of business administration at Republic studios and Jack Fier was placed in charge of serials and westerns. These moves were predicted exclusively in MOTION PICTURE DAILY Dec. 5.

Fier's appointment is in the nature of a promotion. The new posts will be effective Jan. 2. The revised personnel setup is the result of conferences held here between Republic officials and Herbert J. Yates.

Bank Night Action Dismissed in Maine

BOSTON, Dec. 30.—The U. S. District Court in Maine has dismissed an infringement suit brought against Bank Night by Harry Berman.

Berman, a former dry goods dealer, who became the Maine Bank Night representative, claimed that a similar cash scheme of his had been infringed and adopted by Bank Night.

He has another suit pending for commissions alleged to be due him from Roy Heffner.

ITOA Holds a Significant Meeting—Nothing Happens

The I.T.O.A. held a significant meeting at the Astor yesterday. The score charge and what it means to the small exhibitor were discussed, but no action was taken. As a matter of fact, no plans have been made on what to do about it, but when the members gather around the table in the next few weeks there is a remote possibility they will remind themselves that it is time to talk about the subject again.

Labor was gone into yesterday, but no action was taken. Another meeting was planned last night, but no one was on hand that could reveal any of the details.

Several weeks ago the organization announced a mass meeting planned in New York with members of the I.T.O.A. and U.M.P.T.O. of Philadelphia scheduled to attend. This was supposed to concern allegedly unfair selling practices by unnamed companies. No action, no date, as a matter of fact nothing has been heard of it since word first got around that something would be done about it.

Then there's that vigorous campaign that the I.T.O.A. planned because Fire Commissioner John McElligott threatened to further an ordinance to ban smoking in theatres. Something was said about a fight. Nothing has been done about that, either.

A year's happenings in the industry, as mirrored in the day-by-day headlines of Motion Picture Daily for 1936, are presented on Pages 8-9-10 today.

The complete financial recovery of the industry after four years of business depression is reflected in the earnings reports of representative production, distribution and exhibition companies which contributed to the headlines from the start to the end of the year. Another headline development, stemming from the industry's new economic order, was the complete revision and simplification of the corporate structure of the larger film and theatre enterprises and the resumption of dividend and bonus payments by virtually all companies.

Para., Loew Stock Issues Hit New Highs

All Paramount issues and Loew's soared to new highs on the stock exchange yesterday, the gains for the day being the greatest in some time. Other film stocks also showed substantial increases, with practically all issues closing at top prices.

The reason attributed for the day's rise is the anticipated theatre returns for the next few days. According to

Hardwicke Distinguished in Well Done, Intelligent Play

In a well done, thoughtful and intelligent play, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, restrained stalwart of the English theatre and a familiar through British and an occasional Hollywood-made film, made his American stage debut last night. The play was "Promise" by Henri Bernstein, English version by H. M. Harwood, produced by Gilbert Miller, presented at the Little Theatre. And that's all of that.

An auspicious debut, this typewriter willingly, but nonetheless persistently, maintains. Poised, calm, always charming, occasionally somewhat the dullish for his own good and even contemplative, Sir Cedric's perform-

Warners Not To Take G.N. Cagney Film

Legal Angles Involved, It Is Explained

Although a number of the circuit's houses have signed for Grand National's lineup, no Warner theatre will play "Great Guy," starring James Cagney.

At Warners, it was admitted that the situation involved a legal question and not exhibition or prejudice. It was pointed out that Cagney some time ago won a suit to terminate his contract with Warners, following which the producer-distributor-exhibitor appealed. In handing down the decision, the judge pointed out that until a final court determination was made, Cagney had the right to work for anyone.

Edward Alperson, president of Grand National, said it was true that Warners would not book the Cagney film, but the trouble is between Warners and Cagney and does not involve Grand National.

"Great Guy" opened in six towns Christmas Day, including Allentown and Wilmington, and will open in a number of key cities today, and the Criterion on Broadway.

Maury Cohen Joins RKO as Producer

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 30. — Maury Cohen, president of Invincible Pictures, today was signed by RKO as a producer. The duration of the contract could not be learned.

production field with the indicated disbanding of his Invincible Pictures, it was stated at Chesterfield headquarters here yesterday.

George Batcheller, Jr., pointed out that Chesterfield and Invincible were completely separate business organizations and that the combination of interests between the two was limited to office and distribution services. The pictures of each company were sold separately, he said.

"Chesterfield will not be affected in any way by the withdrawal of Cohen or the disbanding of Invincible," Batcheller said. "We are remaining in the state's rights field and are fulfilling all of our obligations in both production and delivery."

Three pictures on Chesterfield's schedule of nine for the current season have been completed and the fourth will be started immediately after the first of the year with the return to the coast of George Batcheller, Sr. The entire program will be completed according to schedule, it was said. It was understood that Invincible has delivered only one picture to date on its current schedule of nine.

THE SHOW THAT'S A MILLION SHOWS IN ONE brings to the screen a great new star!

"SONJA HENIE is a sensation in her film bow. Displaying from her first scene a vivid personality, a freshness and charm which get over with men and women alike. Her performance will back the most ardent exploitation. Offering is by no means a one name affair. Lavishly produced, fattened with hilarious and assorted comedy and attuned to music and lyrics, 'One in a Million is ear-marked for prosperous business!"

—Variety Daily

"'ONE in a Million' easily ranks as a smash hit! Besides shining with a galaxy of tried and true performers, it introduces to the screen Sonja Henie, undoubtful and instantaneous star material who will gain an immediate following. This different musical is certain of wide and cordial interest and may safely be put down as a top-rank box-office bet!"

'LLOYDS' HELD FOR 6th WEEK AT ASTOR AND CARTHAY CIRCLE!

On the Air Last Night

Mutual Salute Returned

Tuesday night Mutual played Alphonse to Don Lee's Gaston by saluting the west coast chain in a program which fused the two networks into a coast-to-coast chain—the nation's third. Last night the Golden Gate web reversed the Alphonse-Gaston roles by returning the salute.

Californians long have boasted that they can double in spades anything offered or accomplished by effete easterners. Maybe it is the result of this insidious propaganda but, at any rate, last night's proceedings possessed a sparkle and snap that was sadly lacking in the Tuesday salute from the east.

It was good to hear again the voice of Conrad Nagle, erstwhile screen star who for some time past has been a Don Lee m. c. Now that he is again in the national spotlight this reviewer predicts that Nagle will soon become one of the most popular figures in radio.

The speeches, too, last night were briefer than those of Tuesday. Speakers included Fred Weber, general manager of Mutual, and Tom Lee, president of the Don Lee network. Wisely, they confined their talks to a minimum and left the microphones open to the entertainers.

A galaxy of screen stars were on hand to offer their felicitations—Hugh Herbert, Mae Clarke, George Jessel, Ella Logan, Ann Sothern, Mary Brian, Ann Shirley and many others. The stars were more ornamental than useful (all they did was say a few words) but their presence seemed to give the program a lift.

David Broeckman's orchestra again gave evidence that it is probably the best musical aggregation in radio. If there are any finer we haven't heard them yet.

Another highlight was the dramatization of "John Mead's Woman," starring portly Edward Arnold who gave an excellent account of himself.

Numerous other features included a microphone tour of San Francisco's Chinese telephone exchange and a brief offering of native music from KGMB, Mutual's Honolulu station.

BANNER

4th CBS Radio Theatre

CBS has leased the John Golden and will officially take over the house Jan. 2 for the special salute broadcast dedicated to CBS stations KNX, Hollywood, and KSFO, San Francisco. The lease is believed to be for a period of one year.

The new addition gives CBS a total of four playhouses—the Hammerstein, Avon, Hudson, and the Golden.

Reinhardt on "Magic Key"

Max Reinhardt, stage and screen producer will head the RCA "Magic Key" program this Sunday in a talk based on his forthcoming presentation of "The Eternal Road." Others who will appear on the program with Reinhardt include Ezio Pinza, Le Petit Mirscha, 10-year-old singer whose voice will be short waved from Italy; Ania Dorfmann, "Fats" Waller and "Doc" Rockwell.

NBC Schedules 6 New Shows Next Month; Two Tomorrow

Six new programs are scheduled to bow in over NBC networks during the month of January.

Friday night, Jan. 1, the new Ford program, "Universal Rhythm," featuring Rex Chandler and a 42-piece orchestra inaugurate the parade over the Blue. The time is 9 P. M.

Also on Friday will be heard the new "Twin Star" revue with Helen Broderick, Victor Moore and Buddy Rogers' orchestra. The National Bisquit Co. is sponsoring. The time is 9 P. M. over the Red.

The following evening at 9:30 P. M., Joe Cook and a host of guest artists begin a new series for Shell Petroleum over the Red.

Elsie Hitz and Nick Dawson in a script series entitled "Follow the Moon," begin a five-time a week program, Mondays through Fridays, for Woodbury-Jergens, Jan. 4. The program will be heard over the Red from 4:30 to 4:45 P. M.

The Betty Moore "Triangle Club," sponsored by the Benjamin Moore Co., begins Jan. 7 and will be heard at 11:30 A. M. over the Red.

The final premiere for the month takes place Jan. 22 when Pontiac presents a series entitled "College Campus." The program will be heard weekly from 10:30 to 11 P. M. over the Red network.

All programs listed above are E.S.T.

Wrigley Planning Change

According to a reliable source from Chicago, it is reported that the Wrigley-sponsored "Poetic Melodies" and "Mortimer Gooch" programs will be dropped from the Pacific coast rebroadcasts and replaced with a serial based on Clarence Budington Kelland's "Scattergood Baines Adventures" stories. The program, it is understood, will feature the title character in new stories especially written for the microphone. The report states that the new program will get under way Jan. 11.

"Poetic Melodies" is broadcast Mondays through Thursdays from 7 to 7:15 P. M., E.S.T. "Mortimer Gooch" is heard Fridays at the same time. The program is carried over 45 CBS network stations, and is rebroadcast to the Pacific coast daily at 11 P.M., E.S.T.

If the new setup materializes, it will mark the first time a rebroadcast program will differ from that of the regular broadcast.

O'Brien, Crosby's Guest

Pat O'Brien and the "Foursome Famous Quartet," last seen in "Born to Dance," will be Bing Crosby's New Years' Eve guests on the Kraft "Music Hall" series.

Tracy, Bruce and Farmer

Spencer Tracy, Virginia Bruce and Frances Farmer will be heard in a microphone-treated version of the film, "Men in White" on the Lux Radio Theatre program, Jan. 4.

New Colgate Show

Colgate-Palmolive-Peet has closed for a new program to succeed "Come On, Let's Sing" which will be heard for the last time on the air tonight at 10 P.M., E.S.T., over CBS. The new series beginning Jan. 7 will be known as "True Adventures" and will star Floyd Gibbons and a dramatic cast in re-enactments of true life adventures. Two adventure episodes will be dramatized each week and a third will be narrated by Gibbons.

The series will be broadcast in behalf of Colgate's ribbon dental and shave creams. Benton and Bowles is the agency.

Another One

Another "salute" program is in the making. NBC has decided to put on a special show welcoming all new stations midnight Sunday over the Blue. No details have been set as yet.

Hoppes in New Post

William L. Hoppes joins the World Broadcasting System as station relations manager on Jan. 1, succeeding Stephen R. Rintoul who resigned recently.

Hoppes, a West Pointer, has been associated with Western Electric and Erpi since 1928, in Europe as well as in the United States. He pioneered in the development of talking pictures.

Thompson, Reilly, Et Al

Short Shots: Kay Thompson is hospitalized after an operation. . . . Tim and Irene start production on their Educational short Jan. 11. . . . Mike Reilly, formerly of Reilly and Farley of "Music Goes 'Round and 'Round" fame, has been added to the WNEW Dance Parade schedule. . . . Mary Small's Monday and Friday NBC programs have been cancelled temporarily pending the recovery of the tiny singing star, now abed with the grippe. . . . Paul Whiteman plays the State Inaugural Ball in Texas, Jan. 21. . . . Amos 'n' Andy will broadcast from Palm Springs, Calif., for the winter. They head west on Jan. 2. . . . WBNX reports a gross inincrease in business for 1936 of 44½ per cent. In 1935 the station's billing was $113,605, as compared with $164,162 in 1936. . . . Arrangements for the President's Birthday Ball will be outlined by Carl Byoir, general director of the affair, in a talk to be broadcast over CBS on Jan. 2 at 6:15 P. M., E.S.T. . . . Sunday's "Vick's Open House" program will be the last to originate in Hollywood. Thereafter, Nelson Eddy and his company move East in a series of concert jumps. . . . Lois Wilson, of the screen, will make her debut on the "Your Unseen Friend" program over CBS Jan. 10. . . . Betty Jaynes, 15-year-old soloist, will guest on the Ford Sunday night series Jan. 10. . . . Remi Morosani, skiing expert, will be the guest this Saturday on Dr. Shirley W. Wynne's "All-American Boys and Girls Club" program over WMCA. . . . When Milton Berle opens at Loew's State Friday, he will receive $5,000 for the week, plus 50 per cent of the receipts over $35,000. Which is a tribute to radio, for, before coming to the air, Milton played the State for far less money.

opened for general broadcasting; that the rules governing the allocation of frequencies be made flexible.

The commission engineers are now of the opinion, it is reported, that by the use of modern engineering knowledge and equipment, interference would be prevented, as has long been feared by the commission. It is because of this fear that all requests for power increases to 500,000 watts have been turned down excepting in the Crosley-WLW instance.

FWC Takes to Air; Programs Tuesdays

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 30.—Two Don Lee stations will air "Swingtime" at 8 P. M. on Tuesdays for Fox West Coast. The program will be conducted by Ed Lowry and probably will originate from KHJ, Los Angeles, since KFRC is unable to confirm the trailer announcements used by the local F. W. C. theatres today.

No Room for More Films, Says Kent years ago called for the use of our exchanges throughout the country for the distribution of their pictures only. Our facilities will not permit us to distribute additional outside pictures which the Gaumont British organization now desires to circulate in this country. To handle this extra product it would be necessary for 20th Century-Fox to increase vault space in exchanges and make other changes which cannot be made at this time. I hope this statement makes our position clear."

Ten of 24 from Outsiders

Of the 24 pictures scheduled to be released by G. B. in this country, 10 are from outside producers. B.I.P., John Maxwell's company, has five and Herbert Wilcox recently made a deal for the other five.

Last year G. B. released only 16 pictures and, according to 20th Century-Fox, there is little vault space in its exchanges to accommodate more than that number a year.

Budd Rogers, American representative for Maxwell, said that G. B. has a contract to release five pictures and that he expects G. B. to live up to it.

In the absence of Arthur Lee, who is in Miami and due back Tuesday, a sales executive of G. B. stated that no decision on the handling of the 10 outside pictures will be made until Lee returns.

Acquisition in July of 803 shares of Grand National Films common stock by Willis C. Bright, New York, all but 44 shares of the total through the exercise of rights, and sale in October of 600 shares, leaving him with 538 shares, also was shown by the report.

Hoblitzelle Reply Is Due by Jan. 24

Hoblitzelle theatre interests and distributor defendants in the Government anti-trust action brought in Dallas recently have until Jan. 24 in which to file answers to the complaint based upon the contracts entered into by the distributors with Texas Consolidated Theatres and the Interstate Circuit, it was stated here yesterday.

Indications, as a result, are that the case cannot be set for hearing by the U. S. District Court at Dallas during February unless a preference is granted on the court's calendar.

Hardwicke Distinguished in Well Done, Intelligent Play

ance as Emile Delbar ranks well up with the first half dozen renditions of the season. If you press this department ever so slightly, he'll bend and place it among the first three.

In point of plot, "Promise" is almost completely static. That is to say, nothing of consequence happens. Frank Lawton, artist and designer, thinks he is in love with Louise Platt, Irene Browne's daughter by her second husband who is Hardwicke. But Lawton looks through this brittle, ambitious, fun-loving and disagreeable young thing to find on the other side Jean Forbes-Robertson, a half-sister.

There is a row, of course. Miss Forbes-Robertson and Lawton eventually marry. Miss Platt swirls around in a wealthy set to forget something which hurt only her pride anyway and heads toward marriage with the scion of a wealthy family. This leaves the parents alone.

Not quite all, however. It works tricks on the chief characters. It gives Miss Forbes-Robertson release from a mother in many ways unnatural toward her daughter. It saves Lawton from an unfortunate marriage with Miss Platt and gives him happiness with the girl he loves and who loves him. It supplies the patient, benign Sir Cedric of the old school, muddled by the swift modernity of his wife, with a haven. That haven he finds a restful and a promising one in the point of view, the confidence and the faith of Lawton. And, finally, it robs Miss Browne, the tyrannical, of dominance over her two children and over Hardwicke and leaves her alone, an old woman in tears as the curtain drops.

Good, But Not Hollywood

Hardwicke does a distinguished job. Miss Browne is splendid as the wife. Miss Forbes-Robertson, true to her theatrical heritage, is well nigh superb and Lawton is thoroughly likable and competent. Miss Platt, subscribing to the throaty school of diction and the debutante swing in her carriage, is inferior by far. Thomas Collins, in an unimportant role, is satisfactory.

"Promise" is too thin in content for Hollywood. It leans too heavily on character reformation, not action, to make any point as a film. But let there be no mistake about it as a play. It is one of the comforting contributions of a theatrical season which, the signs seem to say now, is slowly but gradually coming into its own.

Ship Strike Delays Films for Far East

Film shipments to the Orient, Australia and other foreign countries are being delayed because of the seamen's strike, thereby causing a temporary disruption in releasing schedules.

In some countries home office executives pointed out, releases have been held up for a month or more due to late arrivals of prints.

Four checking instructors are being sent to Detroit and Cleveland exchanges by Alan Cummings, who is inaugurating Loew's own system in a number of branches.

She Likes It

"I have only one reason," she said. "I like New York!"

The Honest Ballot Ass'n is now striking a medal for her.

Cinesound Sets New Production Program

SYDNEY, Dec. 10.—Cinesound Prod., Ltd., Australia producing company headed by Stuart Doyle, plans five or six features annually for domestic and world distribution. The company was formed in 1931. Next year a second production unit will be established for outdoor pictures. In addition, 52 Cinesound Reviews will be produced annually, and items of international interest will be used by the company under contracts with the Pathe Gazette, London; Ufa, Germany; Pathe Freres, Paris, and M-G-M in the United States.

Organizations have been set up in London and Hollywood for the borrowing of foreign players, and Shirley Ann Richards, Australian actress, has been signed to a long term contract. For 1936-37 eight films have been scheduled by the Capt. Frank Hurley producing unit, which specializes in films of domestic industries and scenic pictures. The company also plans to encourage the use of its Bondi Studios by independent producers through reductions in rentals. Distribution through Cinesound's Associated Distributors, Ltd., is also available to independents.

Decision Impends on Ending of "Enemy"

A decision as to which of two endings for "Beloved Enemy" will be used for the nationwide booking of the print is to be made early next week by Daniel Mulvey, vice-president of Goldwyn Prod., it was stated at United Artists yesterday.

Test screenings of prints with either the happy ending which has been provided, or the ending implying the death of Brian Aherne, were given recently at Newburgh and Poughkeepsie. Results appeared to show that the latter ending was the most satisfactory. This ending is the one being used in the only two regular showings of the picture now in progress, which are here and in Philadelphia.

There is a possibility that the happy ending may be used in the smaller cities and towns, while the version now being shown at the Rivoli here may be the one to be used in the larger cities.

M-G-M Signs Machaty

Gustav Machaty, director of "Ecstasy," which was made in Czechoslovakia, has been signed to a long-term contract by M-G-M.

Knickerbocker Sued By Its Stockholders

A suit for $100,000 was brought against Knickerbocker Theatres, Inc., Louis Schneider, Jacob Bradkin and Stanley LaCov in N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday. The plaintiff, Charles Stiner, is vice-president of the company and is suing for himself and other stockholders. He charges that the credit of the theatre company has been damaged to the extent of $100,000 and the public made to believe that it was insolvent through the filing in Federal Court last July 17 of a petition in bankruptcy. He opposed the petition at the time and the bankruptcy action was dismissed in October.

The defendants contend the bankruptcy action was filed as a result of a vote of the board of directors and they denied that they had falsely declared the organization insolvent. They also intend to ask for a dismissal of the suit next week. Knickerbocker controls 10 theatres on the East Side.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Join the Marines"

(Republic)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 30.—Aimed at average audiences, this should please because of the novel story and the way it presents the Marine Corps in a light vein. The cast, headed by Paul Kelly and June Travis, troupe through the piece in flip style under the direction of Philip Staub. The pictures moves rapidly throughout.

The action starts when Kelly, a member of an Olympic team, is fired from the squad following a row which involves Miss Travis, the daughter of Purnell Pratt, the Marine commandant. Continuing his pursuit of the girl, Kelly joins the corps only to discover the Marines are her pet aversion. Learning that the only way to cut short his four-year hitch, is to win a commission and resign, Kelly becomes a model soldier, quelling native uprisings in a south sea outpost. When rewarded with a lieutenancy, Kelly finds Miss Travis has changed her attitude and his return to duty brings further complications and increased merriment.

Joseph Krumgold and Olive Cooper wrote the screen play from the Karl Brown story, getting many laughs from the dialogue and situations into the script. The supporting players include Warren Hymer, Reginald Denny, Sterling Holloway and Carleton Young.

As comedy and action entertainment, the picture should be well received by general audiences.

"The Battle of Greed"

(Crescent)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 30.—Varying the usual western formula, but retaining the elements necessary to actionful drama, this measures up as satisfactory entertainment for houses presenting this fare.

The locale is Virginia City at the time of the discovery of the Comstock Lode. Tom Keene, lawyer, leads a group of eastern farmers into the new mining town. Their claims are contested by a powerful corporation. Keene, aided by Mark Twain (James Bush), is forced to cause the removal of a dishonest judge, battle a corrupt attorney, shoot down menacing gunmen and bring in an ethical judge to see that the cooperative group gets justice. Running along with this dramatic theme is a well-conceived romance centering about Keene and Gwynne Shipman, the new judge's daughter.

The manner in which the character of Twain is continually carried through the story gives it more than usual interest. In the lead role Keene discards the whoop-'em-up, hard-riding character for a straight dramatic role which he handles ably. While the story gives Shipman little to do, Bush, as Twain; Robert Fiske, as the unscrupulous corporation attorney; Carl Stockdale, as the heavy, and Jimmy Butler, as Keene's crippled brother, contribute effective work.

Mixing fact and fiction, John T. Neville's original is soundly prepared and Howard Higgins' direction balances the tempo for excitement and suspense.
